CATALOGUE

OF

THE PERSIAN MANUSCRIPTS

IN

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

BY

CHARLES RIEU, PH. D.

VOLUME II.

PRINTED BY ORDER OF THE TRUSTEES.

SOLD AT THE BRITISH MUSEUM;

AND BY

LONGMANS & CO., 39, PATERNOSTER ROW; B. QUARITCH, 15, PICCADILLY; ASHER & CO., 13, BEDFORD STREET, COVENT GARDEN, AND TRÜBNER & CO., 57, LUDGATE HILL.

1881.

NOTICE.

This Second Volume completes the description of the Persian Manuscripts which were in the Museum at the end of the year 1876 (the date at which the printing of the catalogue began), and of such of the later acquisitions as came in time to be incorporated into their respective classes.

The manuscripts which it comprises are 1128 in number, forming with the 947 manuscripts noticed in the first volume a total of 2075. They are arranged under the headings of Sciences, Philology, Poetry, Fables and Tales, a few minor divisions, and, lastly, the considerable class of manuscripts of mixed contents.

First and foremost in importance and extent is the poetical section, which occupies nearly one half of the present volume and includes several early and valuable copies of the classical poets from Firdūsī to Jāmī, as well as a fair muster of their successors in Persia and in India down to the most recent times. Among the many remarkable works which it contains, the following may be pointed out as either unique or extremely scarce:—

The Yūsuf and Zulaikhā of Firdūsī (p. 545). A fragment of the Shahryār Nāmah of Mukhtārī, one of the episodic poems engrafted upon the Shāhnāmah (p. 542). The rare Dīvāns of Abul-Faraj Rūnī and Mas'ūd i Sa'd, poets of the Court of Ghaznīn (pp. 547, 548), of Adīb Ṣābir and 'Imādī Shahryārī, who lived under the Saljūķis (pp. 552, 557), and of Saif Isfarangī, who survived the invasion of Chingīz Khān (p. 581). A poetical version of Kalīlah and Damnah, composed about A.H. 658 by Ķāni'ī, a panegyrist of the Saljūķ Sultans of Iconium (p. 582). The poems of Khwājū Kirmānī, written by the celebrated penman Mīr 'Alī Tabrīzī, A.H. 798 (p. 620). The Dīvāns of two hitherto unnoticed poets, Haidar Shīrāzī, a contemporary of Hāfiz (p. 623), and Nazīrī Tūsī, who lived under the Bahmanī sovereigns of the Deccan, about A.H. 860 (p. 611). Some poems in the Guran dialect, which supply materials for the study of a yet unexplored province of Persian speech (pp. 728—735).

In compiling the biographical notices of poets valuable assistance has been derived from the new and copious sources of information collected, and critically sifted, by Doctor A. Sprenger in the first volume of his Catalogue of the Oude Libraries, a work the discontinuance of which must be regretted as a grievous loss to Oriental studies.

Out of the rare and interesting manuscripts described under the remaining classes the following may be noticed here as especially worthy of attention:—Durrat ut-Tāj, an encyclopædia of philosophical sciences, written about A.D. 1300, by Kutb ud-Dīn Shīrāzī, for the Dubāj, or king of Gīlān (p. 434). The Tafhīm, or manual of astronomy, by al-Bīrūnī: a copy dated A.H. 685 (p. 451). The Zakhīrah i Khwārazmshāhī, a complete treatise of medicine, so called from the founder of the dynasty of the Khwārazm-Shāhs, to whom it was dedicated about A.H. 504 (p. 466). Ma'din ush-Shifā, a medical work, compiled from Sanskrit sources for Sikandar Shāh Lodi, A.H. 918 (p. 471). A treatise on the art of war, dedicated to the Sultan of Dehli, Shams ud-Dīn Iltatmish, A.H. 607—633 (p. 487). Several of the earliest Persian dictionaries, as Adāt ul-Fuzalā, dated A.H. 822, Sharaf-Nāmah i Munyarī, written about A.H. 862, and others (pp. 491, 492). Kitāb Sindbād, the tale of the king's son and the seven Vazīrs, translated into Persian for Ķilīj Tamghāj, Khān of Turkistān, about A.H. 556 (p. 748). An early, and yet unnoticed, translation of the memoirs of Baber, dated A.H. 994 (p. 799). Simt ul-'Ulā, an account of the Karā-Khitā'īs of Kirmān, written by a contemporary historian, A.H. 716 (p. 849).

A third volume, now in a forward state of preparation, will comprise the description of the Elliot MSS. purchased in the year 1878, and of some other recent acquisitions, as well as indexes of names, titles, and subjects to the entire catalogue.

CHARLES RIEU.

CONTENTS OF THE SECOND VOLUME.

	PAGE	PAGI
SCIENCES.		LEXICOGRAPHY: PERSIAN - TURKISH
ENCYCLOPÆDIAS	. 433	Dictionaries 513
Риноворну	. 438	Miscellaneous Dic-
Етніся	. 440	TIONARIES 510
Politics	. 444	GRAMMAR: PERSIAN GRAMMAR 519
MATHEMATICS	. 419	- Arabic Grammar 521
ASTRONOMY	. 451	Prosody 523
NATURAL HISTORY	. 462	INSHA, OR THE ART OF COMPOSITION . 527
MEDICINE	. 466	TREATISES ON CALLIGRAPHY 531
FARRIERY AND FALCONRY	. 480	POETRY
ALCHEMY AND CABALISTIC	. 486	- Anthologies 734
Arts and Games	. 487	Ornate Prose 740
PHILOLOGY.		FABLES, TALES, AND ANECDOTES 745
LEXICOGRAPHY: PERSIAN DICTIONA-		Proverbs
RIES	. 491	COLLECTANEA
- ARABIC-PERSIAN DE	IC-	BIBLIOGRAPHY
TIONARIES .	. 505	DRAWINGS AND SPECIMENS OF CALLI-
TURKI-PERSIAN VOC	A-	GRAPHY
BULARIES .	. 511	MANUSCRIPTS OF MIXED CONTENTS . 789

SCIENCES.

ENCYCLOPÆDIAS.

Or. 16,830.

Foll. 283; 9 in. by 43; 11 and 15 lines, 3 in. long; written by two different hands, apparently in the 17th and 18th centuries.

[WM. YULE.]

دانش نامهٔ علائي

A manual of philosophical sciences. Author: Khwājah Ra'is Abū 'Alī B. Sīnā, who died A.H. خواجه رئيس ابو على ابن سينا, who died A.H. 428 (See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 221, b).

Beg. שپاس و ستایش مر خدارند آفریدگار خردرا
The author wrote this work, as he states in the preface, for the prince in whose service he had found safety, wealth, and leisure, and by whom he had been desired to compose in Parsi Dari a compendious manual of the five branches of the philosophy of the ancients.

The prince, whose name and title are written عضد الدين علاو الدولت و فخر الماة و تاج written عضد الدين علاو الدولت و فخر الماة و تاج was الائمه ابو جعفر محمد ابن اشهرار دشنميزاز was really called 'Alā ud-Daulah Abu Ja'far Muhammad B. Dushmanziyār, and surnamed Ibn Kākavaih, or "uncle's son," because his father was the maternal uncle of Sayyidah, a Buvaihide princess, who, in the name of her son Majd ud-Daulah, exercised sovereign power. From her he had obtained, A.H. 398, possession of Isfahan, where, although temporarily ejected by the Ghaznavis, he maintained himself till his death, which happened A.H. 433. See Kāmil, vol. ix. pp. 146, 397, 433, Jahānārā, Add. 7649, fol. 24 b. Compare De Slane, Ibn Khallikān's translation, vol. i. p. 445.

Ibn Sīnā, who spent the last years of his life at the court of 'Alā ud-Daulah, wrote the present work in Isfahān. Such is the statement of his diseiple, 'Abd ul-Vāḥid Ibn Muḥammad Jūzjānī, who was his master's constant companion for five-and-twenty years previous to Ibn Sīnā's death, and wrote the account of his life which has been preserved by Ibn Abi Uṣaibi'ah; see Add. 7340, fol. 124 a, and fol. 127 a.

'Abd ul-Vāḥid, who edited the present work after the author's death, and who designates it by the title of Dānish Nāmah i 'Alā'ī, states, fol. 207 b, that the section treating of mathematics was lost, because "the master" was not in the habit of keeping copies of his writings, and that he had taken upon himself to supply that deficiency with a condensed translation in Pārsī Darī of the following treatises of Ibn Sīnā, which were in his possession: an abridgment of Euclid, a treatise on astronomical observations, another on music, and the arithmetical section of the "Shafā." It is therefore the first three sections alone, that contain the original work of Ibn Sīnā.

Contents: Logie, علم منطق fol. 3 a. Metaphysics, علم الهى or علم برين fol. 67 b. Physics, fol. 175 b. Geometry, fol. 207 b. Astronomy, fol. 233 b. Arithmetic, fol. 260 b. Music, fol. 273 b.

The work is commonly known, as stated in the endorsement, under the name of علائی. It is mentioned by Haj. Khal. under دانش نامه, vol. iii. p. 184, and under کتاب العلائی, vol. v. p. 118. In the Durrat ut-Tāj, Add. 7694, fol. 18 a, it is quoted under its proper title, Dānish Nāmah i 'Alā'i.

It is stated in a note written on the first page by a former owner, Muḥammad Naṣīr ud-Dīn, that he had purchased the earlier portion of the MS., and had had the rest transcribed for him, in Lahore, A.H. 1127.

Add. 7694.

Foll. 428;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 33 lines,  $4\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in close and fair Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1611).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

درّة التاج لغُرّة الدُّباج

An encyclopædia of philosophical sciences. Author: Kuth ud-Din Mahmud B. Mas'ud ush-Shirazi, قطب الدين محمود بن مسعود الشيرازي Beg. اكرچه بر ضمير ارباب كياست وخاطر اصحاب

Kutb ud-Dīn Shīrāzī, the greatest of the disciples of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī, came of a family of physicians in Shīrāz, where he was born A.H. 634. He spent most of his life at the court of the Moghul sovereigns, and died in Tabrīz, A.H. 710, leaving numerous works, mostly written in Arabic, and treating of philosophy, medicine and astronomy. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 189, Tārīkh Guzīdah, Add. 22,693, fol. 237, and Wüstenfeld, Geschichte der Arabischen Aertzte, p. 148.

The last word of the above title, which is distinctly written "Dubāj" in various places, and is unknown to Persian dictionaries, points to Gīlān. We are informed by 'Abd ur-Razzāķ, Maṭla' us-Sa'dain, Add. 1291, fol. 350, and by Ghaffārī, Jahānārā, Add. 23,516, fol. 484, that Amīrah Dubāj was the hereditary title of the Isḥākāvand or Isḥākiyyah princes of the Bayah Pas, or Western Gīlān, whose capital was Fūman, and for one of whom, the Durrat ut-Tāj was composed. The same title, written of Shāh Ismā'īl Ṣafavī; see Fumeny's Geschichte von Gīlan, edited by Dr. B. Dorn, pp. v and A.

The present copy is defective at the beginning. Although there is no apparent break in the writing, the main portion of the preface and the initial part of the introduction are wanting. The preface probably included a dedication to the prince of Gīlān, and that account of his genealogy which, according to 'Abd ur-Razzāķ, l. c., formed part of the work.

The Durrat ut-Tāj is divided into an introduction (Fātiḥah), six books (Jumlah), and an Appendix (Khātimah), which are enumerated with all their numerous subdivisions, foll. 11 b—17 a. The main divisions are the following:—

Fātiḥah, treating of science in general and its branches, in three Faṣls, fol. 1 b. Jumlah I. Logic, in seven Makālahs, fol. 17 a. Jumlah II. Philosophy proper, فلسفه اولى, in two Fanns, fol. 45 a. Jumlah III. Physics, علم اسفل, in two Fanns, fol. 63 b. Jumlah IV.

Mathematics, علم ارسط, in four Fanns, fol. 81 a. Jumlah V. Metaphysics, علم اعلى, in two Fanns, fol. 242 b.

Khātimah, divided into the following four Kuths: 1. The fundamental principles of faith, اصول دين, fol. 264 b. 2. The secondary points, فروع دين, fol. 333 a. 3. Ethics, fol. 373 a. 4. Rules of religious life, سلوك, fol. 410 b.

The contents are fully stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 88, Anzeigeblatt, pp. 17—21. See also Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 201, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 35, Dorn, Preface to Sehir-Eddin's Geschichte, p. 7, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 57.

Add. 7695.

Foll. 148; 9½ in. by 5½; 19 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A portion of the same work, viz. the first Fann of Jumlah IV., treating of geometry, and corresponding to Add. 7694, foll. 81—140.

Add. 16,827.

Foll. 593; 9% in. by 6; 21 lines, 3% in. long; written in small Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WILLIAM YULE.]

نفائس الفنون في عرائس العيون

An encyclopædia of the sciences known to the Muslims.

Author: Muḥammad B. Maḥmūd ul-Amuli,

معمد بن معمود الاملى

حمد و ثنا و شکر بی انتها حضرت پادشاهی را .Beg

The author was a Mudarris in Sulţāniyyah during the reign of Uljāitū (A.H. 703—716), and frequently engaged, as a decided Shī'ah, in controversy with his famous Sunni contemporary, 'Azud ud-Dīn ul-Ījī (who died A.H. 756). He left, besides the present work, commentaries upon the Kulliyyāt of the Ķānūn of Ibn Sīnā, upon the Kulliyyāt of the Ķānūn of Sharaf ud-Dīn Īlāķī, and upon the Mukhtaṣar fil-Uṣūl of Ibn Ḥājib. See Majālis ul-Mūminīn, Add. 23,541, fol. 373, Haft Iķlīm, Add. 16,734, fol. 475. The first of the works above mentioned was written, according to Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 500, A.H. 753. See the Arabic Catalogue, pp. 222 a, 774 a.

The author states in his preface that he had devoted his whole life to the pursuit of science, and, having visited in his wanderings the leading scholars of the period, had availed himself of their teaching in every branch of knowledge, and written special works on several sciences. After an eulogy upon the reigning sovereign, "Jamal ud-Din vad-Dunyā Abu Ishāk Mahmūd Shāh," he dedicates the present work to a Vazir designated by the following titles: جهانیان صاحب قران دستور سلطان نشان آصف عهد but whose ,وزمان واسطه قلاده سلك وزارت الز proper name does not appear. The preface concludes with a statement of the plan and divisions of the work, foll. 23 b-25 b.

Amīr Jamāl ud-Dīn Shaikh Abu Ishāk, whose father, Amir Mahmud Shah, had governed Fars during the reign of Abu Sa'id, made himself master of Shīrāz, A.H. 742, during the period of anarchy which followed the death of that sovereign, and, having added Isfahan to his dominions, remained for twelve years the recognized ruler of Fars and 'Irak. He succumbed at last to the rising power of Amir Muhammad Muzaffar, who wrested from him Shīrāz, A.H. 754, and, after seizing him in Isfahan, had him publicly executed in the former city, A.H. 757, according to Hafiz Abra, or A.H. 758, as stated by 'Abd ur-Razzāk; see Or. 1577, fol. 104, and Add. 17,928, fol. 98.

The date of composition, which is incidentally mentioned at the end of Muhammad's life, fol. 270 b, is A.H. 735; but the historical section is brought down to the death of Abu Sa'id and proclamation of Arpa Khan, which took place A.H. 736, and the preface, which names Shaikh Abu Ishāk as the reigning sovereign, cannot have been written before A.H. 742.

The work consists of two parts (Kism), treating respectively of the modern or Muslim sciences, and of those of the ancients.

Kism I. treats of eighty-five arts or sciences, in thirty-six Fanns, classed under four categories (Makālah) as follows:

Makalah I. comprises the literary sciences in the following fifteen Fanns: 1. Writing, علم خط , fol. 25 b. 2. Language, علم لغة , fol. 30 a. 3. Flexion , علم لغة , fol. علم اشتقاق, fol. 45 a. 5. Syntax, جلم محو, fol. 48 b. 6. Rhetoric, ,علم بيان ,fol. 53 a. 7. Eloquence ,علم معاني fol. 58 b. 8. Ornaments of speech, علم بديع, fol. 62 b. 9. Prosody, علم عروض, fol. 71 a. 10. Rhymes, علم قوافي, fol. 78 a. 11. Poetical composition, علم تقریض, fol. 82 a. 12. Proverbs, علم امثال, fol. 86 a. 13. Knowledge of the Divans, علم دواوين, fol. 99 a. 14. Epistolary composition, علم انشا, fol. 108 b. 15. Collection of revenue and accountkeeping علم استيفا, fol. 117 b.

Makālah II. Legal sciences, شرعیات, in nine Fanns: 1. Scholastic theology, علم كلام, علم fol. 125 a. 2. Exegesis of the Kur'ān, علم تفسير, fol. 136 a. 3. Traditional sayings, علم حديث, fol, 149 a. 4. Fundamental prineiples of the law, علم اصول فقه, fol. 158 a. 5. Law, علم فقد, fol. 168 a. 6. Various readings of the Kur'an, علم قرآات, fol. 182 a. 7. Dialectic, علم خلاف يا علم جدل, fol. 194 a.

8. Forms of contracts and legal instruments,

جام شروط, fol. 200 a. 9. Forms of prayers, and the proper time for their recitation, دعوات, fol. 211 b.

Makālah III. Sufism, in five Fanns: 1. Religious life, سلوك. 2. True knowledge, علم حقيقه 3. Degrees of knowledge, علم حقيقه مراصد, fol. 221 a. 4. Mystic meaning of the letters, علم حروف, fol. 228 a. 5. Moral perfection, علم فتوت, fol. 235 a.

Twenty-seven leaves having been lost after fol. 220, the first two of the above Fanns are wanting. They are found in the next copy, Add. 23,555, foll. 96 a -108 b.

Makālah IV. Branches of conversational knowledge, علوم محاورى, in seven Fanns, as follows: 1. The art of conversation, fol. 242 b. 2 and 3. The science of dates and lives, علم تواريخ و علم سير, (an abridgment of universal history), fol. 257 b. 4. Religious systems and sects, مقالات اهل عالم, fol. 295 a. 5. Genealogy, عالم, fol. 303 b. 6. Battles and encounters (i.e. علم المواقف , the expeditions of Muhammad fol. 309 b. 7. The science of riddles, علم احاجي, fol. 322 a.

Kism II. comprises the following five Makālahs:-

Maķālah I. Practical philosophy, حكمت علم تهذیب , in three Fanns, viz.: 1. Ethics, عملی اخلاق, fol. 331 a. 2. Government of the family, علم تدبير منازل, fol. 344 b. 3. Government of the city, علم سياسة مدن, fol. 351 b.

Makālah II. Speculative philosophy, in four Fanns, viz.: 1. Logic, علم منطق, fol. 363 a. 2. The first philosophy, or introduction to metaphysics, فلسفه اولى, fol. 373 b. 3. Metaphysics, علم الهي, fol. 383 b. Physics, علم طبيعي fol. 393 a.

Maķālah III. Mathematics, in four Fanns, viz.: 1. Geometry, علم السطقسات, fol. 403 a. 2. Astronomy, علم اسطرنوميا, fol. 413 a. 3. Arithmetic, ارثماطيقى, fol. 419 a. 4. Music, موسيق, fol. 429 a.

Makālah IV. Branches of physies, in nine Fanns, viz.: 1. Medicine, علم طب , fol. 443 b. (2. Alchemy, and 3. Magic, سيميا, are wanting; see Add. 23,555, foll. 225 – 234). 4. Interpretation of dreams, علم بعلم , fol. 462. 5. Physiognomy, علم ألحرف, fol. 481 a. 6. Astrology, علم ألحواس, fol. 485 a. 7. Properties of natural objects, علم ألحرف الطبيعية, fol. 485 a. 7. Properties of natural objects, علم ألحرف الطبيعية, fol. 493 b. 8. Physical crafts, agriculture, etc., fol. 509 b. 9. The art of holding the breath, and other austerities, practised by the Jogis of India, علم دم وعلم وهم, fol. 514 a.

Makalah V. Branches of mathematics, in علم ,thirteen Fanns, as follows : 1. Spherology , fol. 576 a. 2. Optics, علم مناظر, fol. 576 b. 3. Knowledge of the "intermediates," i. e. of nineteen treatises, which are taken up, in the mathematical course, between Euclid and Almagest, fol. 532 b. 4. Practical arithmetic, علم حاب, fol. 533 b. 5. Algebra, علم جبر و مقابله, fol. 540 a. 6. Surveying, علم ماحت, fol. 541 b. 7. Knowledge of the constellations, علم صور الكواكب, fol. 545 a. 8. The art of making almanacks, and using علم ارقام واعمال زیج و تـقویم واسطرلاب, the astrolabe خلم مساك و ممالك و ممالك , Geography و مالك و ممالك و ممالك على الله على ا علم fol. 554 b. 10. Numerical diagrams, علم , علم حيل , fol. 562 b. 11. Mechanics , وفق اعداد ale. 576 b. 12. The art of divination, علم ومل, fol. 577 b. 13. Games, ومل, fol.

Detailed accounts of the Nafa'is ul-Funun will be found in the Vienna Jahrbücher, vol. 61, Anzeigeblatt, pp. 2—10, and in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. pp. 38—42. See also Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 364, Uri, p. 282, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 734, vol. v. p. 261.

A full table of contents is prefixed, foll. 1—16; but the numbers indicating the folios do not apply to the present copy.

Add. 23,555.

Foll. 296; 14½ in. by 9½; 30 lines, 7 in. long; written by different hands, and in various characters, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 14th century.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same work.

Two leaves, which contained the greater part of the preface (Add. 16,827, foll. 18 a—22 b), and about two pages at the end, are lost.

Contents: Ķism I. Maķālah I., fol. 5 b. Maķālah II., fol. 53 b. Maķālah III., fol. 96 a. Maķālah IV., fol. 118 b.—Ķism II. Maķālah I., fol. 162 a. Maķālah II., fol. 177 b. Maķālah III., fol. 197 a. Maķālah IV., fol. 216 b. Maķālah V., fol. 260 a.

The following inscription in ornamented Kufi shows that this valuable copy, dating probably from the author's time, was written for a Vazīr named Rukn ud-Dīn Salām Ullah: برسم خزانة الكتب الصاحب قران الاعظم ركن الحق A diamond-shaped ornament on the same page contains what at first sight seems to be a geometrical design, but is in reality an inscription in a fanciful square character. It consists of honorific epithets applying to the same Vazīr, of which the following may be deciphered والنقبا الوزرا والنقبا العالم سلطان الوزرا والنقبا العالم

Add. 16,828.

Foll. 396; 12½ in. by 8½; 26 lines, 5½ in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1054 (A.D. 1644). [WILLIAM YULE.] The same work.

This copy omits that part of the preface which contains the mention of the reigning sovereign and the dedication. It wants also the twelfth Fann of Makālah V., Ķism II.

Add. 7718.

Foll. 286;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The following detached sections of the same work.

Kism I., Makālah I., Fanns 7—15 (the last imperfect), fol. 2 a. Makālah II., Fann 9, fol. 68 a. Makālah III., complete, with the exception of the third Fann, fol. 71 b.

Ķism II. Maķālah II., Fann 1, fol. 116 a. Maķālah I., Fanns 1—3, fol. 126 b.

Ķism I. Maķālah IV., Fanns 1—7, fol. 158 b.

Kism II. Makālah IV., Fann 4 (here numbered 6), fol. 241 b. Fann 5 (numbered 7), fol. 261 b. Fann 9, fol. 264 b. Fann 10, fol. 283 b. The last is defective at the end.

PHILOSOPHY.

Add. 16,659.

Foll. 582; 9 in. by 6; 31 lines, 37 in. long; written in small Naskhi, with 'Unvāns, and ruled margins, dated (fol. 34 b) A.H. 1182 (A.D. 1768). [WILLIAM YULE.]

Philosophical works of Abu 'Alī Ibn Sīnā. The contents are mostly Arabic, and have been described in the Arabic Catalogue, pp. 447—451. The following are Persian:

I. Foll. 101—140. A Persian version of the second, or metaphysical, part of the work entitled الاشارات واتنبيات which is, according to Ibn Abi Usaibi'ah, Add. 7340, fol. 127 a, the latest and most excellent of Ibn Sinā's philosophical writings.

Beg. سپاس ان خدایرا که آنریدکار جهان است
The translation is divided, like the original, in ten sections called انساط. The contents of the work, and the numerous commentaries written upon it, are stated by Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 300. Compare Uri, pp. 118, 119, Casiri, p. 195, the Petersburg Catalogue, p. 60, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 320.

II. Foll. 228—235, حكمت البوت "Philosophy of death," a treatise attributed in the subscription to Abu 'Alī Sīnā.

بباید دانستی که اول چیزی که بر بندگان .Beg

The author states that he wrote it at the request of one of his disciples, whose mind had been enlightened by true knowledge, and warns readers against divulging it to those who were still groping in the dark ways of received belief.

This work, which is not mentioned by Ibn Abi Uṣaibi'ah, is distinct from the treatise entitled في دفع الغم من الموت, noticed in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iv. p. 312.

III. Foll. 258—352. Dānish Nāmah i 'Alā'ī, the work described vol. ii. p. 1.

IV. Foll. 373—381. شرح معرلة, a tract on the spiritual interpretation of Muhammad's ascension.

سپاس خداوند آسمان و زمین را ستایش

The author, who does not give his name, states at the beginning, that he had written this tract in answer to the repeated questions of a friend, and with the permission of a spiritual guide designated as مجلس عالى علائي علائل الدولة.

No work of the kind is mentioned among the writings of Ibn Sīnā, either by 'Abd ul-Vāḥid Jūzjānī, or by Ibn Abi Uṣaibi'ah. Its attribution to the celebrated philosopher rests on the doubtful authority of Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 443, on the heading in the present

MS.: اين رساله ايست در معراج كه شيخ الرئيس, and on a similar title in another copy, Add. 16,839, art. xxv. It was probably suggested by the 'Alā ud-Daulah mentioned in the preface, who, however, as a religious teacher, has nothing but the name in common with the prince to whom the Dānish Nāmah was dedicated. A celebrated saint of that name, 'Alā ud-Daulah Simnāni, died A.H. 736; see Nafaḥāt, p. 524.

V. Foll. 381—402. A Persian version of Ibn Sīnā's treatise on the immortality of the soul, ترجمه رسالة المعاد للشير الرئيس

The translator, whose name does not appear, states that, having been shown by a friend a version which was found to be much abridged and defective, he undertook at his desire to write the present fuller and more faithful translation. It is divided into sixteen chapters (Fasl).

The original work کتاب البعاد was written, according to Ibn Abi Usaibi'ah, Add. 7340, fol. 27 a, in Rai for Majd ud-Daulah. See Arabic Catalogue, p. 450, art. xxxii., and Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 442.

VI. Foll. 403—410. A shorter version of the same work, in sixteen chapters (Bāb), with the heading: ترجمه رسالة النفس للشيم الرئيس

Beg. الحدد لله رب العالمين والعاقبة للمتقين ولا عدوان VII. Foll. 411—413. A short metaphysical tract on the origin and end of existence, with the heading: رسالة المبداء والمعاد

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد بدانكه غرض از علم 'Beg. الهي معرفت مبداء و معاد است

It is divided into two parts (Kism); the first, treating of the origin, comprises six chapters (Fasl), the second, treating of the end, four. This short tract is distinct from the work entitled كتاب المبداء والمعاد which was written, according to 'Abd ul-Vāḥid, in Jur-jān, for Abu Muḥammad Shīrāzī. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 442, and the Arabic Catalogue, p. 450, art. xxiii.

VIII. Foll. 424—435. A Persian commentary upon Ibn Sīnā's allegorical tract, Risālat uṭ-Ṭair, الطير الشيئ الرئيس

The commentator, who is named in the subscription الشيخ الفاضل عبر بن سهلان السارحي was a metaphysician, of the time of Sultan Sanjar (A.H. 512—548); see Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 412. The allegory is intended to show, according to 'Abd ul-Vāḥid, by what steps the author had attained true insight. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 418, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 329.

On fol. 4 is a note by Abu Ṭālib ul-Ḥu-sainī, stating that he had bought this volume in Murshidābād, A.H. 1208, on his way from Calcutta to Lucknow.

Add. 16,829.

Foll. 249; 8½ in. by 4¾; 17 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—42. دانش نامه جهان A treatise on physics.

Author: Ghiyāş ud-Dīn 'Alī ul-Ḥusainī ul-Iṣfahānī, غياث الدين على الحسيني الاصفهاني

سزاوار ستایش وسپاس مبدعی ست که Beg. باتتضای ذاتی

Short extracts and tables of contents of the same work are to be found in Or. 1839, fol. 267, and Or. 1947, fol. 37, where, to the author's name, as given above, the patronymic is added.

The author mentions occasionally phenomena observed by himself in Badakhshān (see foll. 28 b, 38 b), while he speaks of Turkistīn and Fārs by hearsay. From the fact that he refers to Fakhr ud-Din Rāzī, fol. 29 b, as one of the "moderns," it may be inferred that he was not considerably later than that philosopher, who died A.H. 606.

A short preface is devoted to considerations on true immortality, which is shown to consist of the good name or useful work which man leaves behind him. The work, which is described as فوائد از علم حكمت طبيعي, comprises ten sections called Fasl, twenty more termed Asl, four entitled Natijah, and an appendix (Khātimah), the headings of which are given in the preface. The first series, beginning on fol. 4 b, contains elementary notices on the spheres, the elements, and bodies in general. The second, or Asls, fol. 13 a, treats of meteorological phenomena, such as vapours, winds, rain, thunder, shooting stars, etc. The four Natijahs, beginning fol. 40 a, treat severally of minerals, plants, animals, and man, and the Khātimah of the anatomy of the human body.

The present copy breaks off after the first five pages of Natijah I.

II. Foll. 43—249, Arabic tracts. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 455.

Add. 25,869.

Foll. 87; 8¼ in. by 4½; 18 lines, 2¼ in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. CURETON.]

Commentary upon a short treatise on logic, with the text.

The MS. is slightly defective at the beginning, and contains neither title nor author's name. The treatise is divided into several short sections headed فصل, but not numbered. It is found, without commentary, in another MS., Add. 7720, art. I., where it begins as follows: در آدمی را قوتیست دراکه که در آئیذه لیکی منتقش کرده دروی صور اشیا چنانکه در آئیذه لیکی در آینه حاصل نشود مکر صور محسوسات

The first word of the text in the present

MS., fol. 1  $\alpha$ , is توتیست, which is explained as follows: مبداء که مبداء تاثیر درغیر شود و تاثر ازو باشد و مراد باو اینجا نفس ناطقه است

The commentator refers occasionally, foll. 12 b, 62 b, to glosses written by the author of the treatise upon the Shamsiyyah, a well-known manual of logic, written in the time of Hulākū; see Arabic Catalogue, pp. 250 a, 775 b.

A former owner, Muḥammad 'Alī, states at the end that the MS. came into his possession A.H. 1089.

Add. 26,288.

Foll. 180; 13 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

A philosophical treatise, without preface, title, or author's name, endorsed كتاب موسوم برايات عاليات اسم مولف معلوم نشدة

برایات عالیات اسم مولف معلوم نشده رایت دربیان تعریف حکمت بدانک، در Beg. اخلاق ناصری در تعریف حکمت

It treats at considerable length of questions of metaphysics and physics, in a number of sections headed , and contains extensive extracts from the following works: a commentary on the Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī, the Ḥayāt un-Nufūs, and the Gauhar i Murād, the last of which was written in the reign of Shāh 'Abbās II.; see vol. i. p. 32 a.

ETHICS.

Or. 457.

Foll. 120; 11 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 27 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, with ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century.

جاویدان خرد

Moral precepts of the ancient sages of

ETHICS. 441

Persia, India, Arabia, and Greece, collected by Ahmad B. Muḥammad B. Miskavaih, who died A.H. 421 (see Arabic Catalogue, p. 627 a), and translated from the Arabic by Taķī ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Shaikh Muḥammad ul-Arrajānī ut-Tustarī, عقى الدين عبد

بن شيخ محمد الارجانى ثم التستري Beg. نورانى تر آيتى كه سيمرغ تاف بلاغت وبراعت Taķī Shushtarī, a scholar and poet of Persian birth, repaired to the court of Akbar, by whose command he turned the Shāhnāmah into prose. He was appointed to the office of Ṣadr by Jahāngīr, in whose reign he died. See Badaoni, vol. iii. p. 256, Ṭabaṣāt i Shāhjahānī, Or. 1673, fol. 296, and Riyāz ush-Shuʻarā, Add. 16,729, fol. 196. He describes himself in the preface as a servant of Jahāngīr, and states that it was by that emperor's order that he translated the above work, which was written in an elegant, but Contents: Preface of the translator, fol. 3 b. Preface of Ibn Miskavaih, fol. 5 a. Precepts of Hüshang, fol. 6 a. How the Javidan Khirad came to Māmūn, fol. 15 b. Precepts of Buzurjmihr, fol. 20 a, Kisrā Kubād, fol. 27 b, Nūshīrvān, fol. 32 a, Bahman B. Isfandiyār, fol. 38 a. Maxims of the sages of India, fol. 59 a, of 'Alī, fol. 70 b, Luķmān, fol. 79 a, Hasan Baṣrī, fol. 94 a, Aktham B. Ṣaifī, fol. 90 a. Proverbs of the Arabs, fol. 111 b. Hermes and Greek sages, fol. 119 a. The present copy breaks off in a notice on Diogenes.

abstruse, language.

For accounts of the original work of Ibn Miskavaih see Haj. Khal, vol. i. p. 213, vol. ii. p. 581, the Bodleian Catalogue, vol. i. p. 86, vol. ii. p. 576, S. de Sacy, Notices et Extraits, vol. x. p. 95, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iv. p. 191.

Add. 5626.

Foll. 272; 9\frac{3}{2} in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, on gold-vol. II.

sprinkled paper, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 997 (A.D. 1589).

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

اخلاق ناصري

A treatise on ethics.

Author: Naṣīr ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. ul-Ḥasan ut-Ṭūsī, نصير الدين محمد بن محمد بن الحسن الطوسى

حمد بیعد و مدح بیعد لایق حضرت عزت Beg. مالك الملكي

This celebrated philosopher and astronomer was born in Tūs, A.H. 507, and died in Baghdād, A.H. 692. Notices on his life are to be found in the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1., p. 60, Haft Iklīm, Add. 16,734, fol. 407, and Majālis ul-Mūminīn, Add. 23,541, fol. 368. See also Jourdain, Mémoire sur l'observatoire de Méraghah, and Audiffret, Biographie Universelle, voce Nassir-eddyn.

He states in the preface that, having been desired by the governor of Kuhistān, Nāṣir ud-Dīn 'Abd ur-Raḥīm B. Abi Manṣūr, to translate into Persian the Kitāb nṭ-Ṭa-hārah of Abū 'Alī B. Muḥammad Ibn Mis-kavaih (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 745 b), he had complied with his wish by writing an abridged version of that treatise, to which he had added the ethics of civil and domestic life, and had given to the work a title derived from his patron's name.

Nāṣir ud-Dīn, surnamed Muḥtasham, was governor of Kuhistān under the Ismā'ili prince 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad, who died A.H. 653, and under his successor Rukn ud-Dīn Khwurshāh. On the approach of the Moghul army in the same year, he came out of his fortress, Sartakht, and made his submission to Hulāgū, by whom he was graciously received, and appointed to a post of honour; but he was enfeebled by old age, and died shortly after, A.H. 655. See Rashīd ud-Dīn, Jāmi' ut-Tavārīkh, Add. 16,688, fol.

442 ETHICS.

90. The author, who was then with Rukn ud-Dīn Khwurshāh, in Maimūndiz, urged that prince to submit to the conqueror. He was employed by him in his negotiations with Hulāgū, and passed with him into the Moghul's camp on the first of Zulka'dah, A.H. 654. The circumstances of his stay at the Ismā'īli court and of his reception by Hulāgū are told in the Jāmi' ut-Tavārīkh, l.c., in Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, Bombay edition, vol. v. p. 70, and in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 80, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 54.

In a later preface, subsequently prefixed to the work, Naṣīr ud-Dīn, alluding to his rescue by a powerful prince from the hands of the infidels (Malāḥidah), apologizes for the praises he had been compelled by circumstances to bestow upon those unbelievers, and requests the owners of the first edition to substitute the present preface for the former.

One only of the Museum copies, Add. 25,843, contains the earlier preface, which contains eulogies upon 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad and Nāṣir ud-Dīn 'Abd ur-Raḥīm.

Several editions of the Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī have been published in India, Bombay, A.H. 1267, Calcutta, A.H. 1269, Lucknow, A.H. 1286, Lahore, A.D. 1865. A sketch of its contents has been given by Licut. E. Frissell in the Bombay Transactions, vol. i. pp. 17—40. See also Abul Faraj, Historia Dynastiarum, p. 358, Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 343; Schier, specimen editionis libri اخلاق ناصري, Dresden, 1841, and Sprenger, Zeitschrift, vol. xiii. pp. 539—41.

The last page of the MS. contains three 'Arz-Dīdah, the first two of which are dated the 13th and the 37th year of the reign (of Aurangzīb).

Add. 7616.

Foll. 218; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sübah of Orissa, Muḥarram, A.H. 103, probably for 1003 (A.D. 1594). [Cl. J. Ricii.] The same work.

Add. 16,815.

Foll. 243; 9 in. by 5; 14 lines, 24 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1063 (A.D. 1653).

[WM. YULE.]

The same work.

Add. 18,808.

Foll. 236; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 and 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page, written in Indian Nestalik, probably in the 17th century.

The same work.

Add. 26,290.

Foll. 151;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 16 lines,  $3\frac{7}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, in Ahmadnagar, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. Erskine.]

لوامع الاشراق في مكارم الاخلاق

A treatise on ethics.

Author: Muḥammad B. As'ad Davānī, محمد بن اسعد دواني

Beg. Jalāl ud-Dīn Davānī, who is also called Ṣiddīķī, as claiming descent from Abu Bakr Ṣiddīķī, was reputed the greatest philosopher of his time. He was born, A.H. 830, in Davān (spelt Davvān by Yāķūt), a village of the district of Kāzarūn, in which his father, Sa'd ud-Dīn As'ad, was Ķāzī, and spent the greater part of his life in Shīrāz, dividing his time between his professorial duties in the Madrasah called Dār ul-Aitām, and his functions as Ķāzī of the province of Fārs. He died A.H. 908 near Kāzarūn, and was buried in logue, p. 183, the Copenhagen catalogue, p. 6, the Munich catalogue, p. 63, and the St. Petersburg catalogue, p. 257.

POLITICS.

Add. 23,516.

Foll. 153;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Aḥmadābad, Rajab, A.H. 1032 (A.D. 1623).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

A treatise on the art of government.

Author: Nizām ul-Mulk, نظام الملك

Beg. سپاس خدايرا عز و جل كه آفريدكار زمين
و آسمانست

This celebrated Vazīr, the first who bore the title of Nizām ul-Mulk, and whose proper name was Abu 'Alī ul-Ḥasan B. 'Alī, was born in Ṭūs, A.H. 408. He carried on for thirty years, under Alp Arslān and Malak Shāh, the government of the vast empire of the Saljūķis, until he fell under the dagger of an assassin, near Nahāvand, A.H. 485. Accounts of his life will be found in Ibn Khallikān, de Slane's translation, vol. i. p. 413, Kāmil, vol. x., pp. 137—142, Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, Bombay edition, vol. iv. pp. 85—90, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, pp. 90—93.

The present work, which is designated by the editor in his epilogue as كتاب سير املح المتكلمين, is called in the subscription سير املح المتكلمين. It is generally known by the title of سير الملوك, which is found in the heading of another copy, Or. 1930. The same title is assigned to it by Haj. Khal., vol. iii., p. 638, who adds that it was written for Malak Shāh, A.H. 469. The author of the Guzīdah, who mentions it among his sources,

Add. 22,693, fol. 3 a, calls it الملوك نظام See also Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 236, vol. vi. p. 114, the Library of King's College, Cambridge, No. 219, and Sir Wm. Ouseley's Collection, No. 475.

The Siyar ul-Mulūk was published some years after the author's death. The editor, Muhammad, who describes himself as the copyist of the Royal Library, ناسخ کتابهای خزانه, and further on, fol. 151 a, محمد ناسخ نویسنده gives the following account, کتابهای خاص خزینه of its origin: In A.H. 484, Malak Shah ordered some of the great office-holders of his court, such as Nizām ul-Mulk, Sharaf ul-Mulk, Taj ul-Mulk, Majd ul-Mulk, and others, to submit to him in writing their ideas for the better government of the empire and the management of secular and religious concerns. The memoir of Nizām ul-Mulk met with the Sultan's complete approval, and was by his order transcribed for the royal library.

The work in its present shape consists of fifty chapters (Fasl). Nizām ul-Mulk, who had, according to the editor's statement, written in the first instance only thirty-nine, added subsequently eleven more, suggested by dangers he saw threatening from certain enemies of the state, at the same time enlarging those he had previously written. he set out, A.H. 485, on his last journey to Baghdad, he left his work for transcription in the hands of the editor, who, after the author's death, did not think it advisable to publish it, until the time came when the reign of justice and Islam was restored by the "Master of the World." At the end is a Kaşıdah in praise of the work of Nizam ul-Mulk, addressed to that new sovereign, who is there mentioned by name. It was Ghiyas ud-Din Muhammad, son of Malak Shāh, whose accession in A.H. 498 restored for a time peace to the distracted empire.

The following are the headings of the chapters:—

ا اندر احوال روزکار و مدح خداوند عالم

اندر شناختن نعمت ایزد تعالی

اندر مظالم نشستن بادشاهان و سیرت نیکو ورزیدن

م اندر عمال و پرسیدن احوال وزیران و غلامان

اندر مقطعان و پرسیدن با رعایا که چو میزیند

1 اندر پرسیدن احوال قاضیان و خطیبان و محتسبان

ورونق كار ايشان

۰۰ اندر پرسیدن حال عامل و شحنه و رونق کار ایشان

اندر پزوهش کردن و پرسیدن ارکان دین و شریعت

۱ اندر مشرفان دولت و کفاف ایشان

۱۰ اندر صاحب خبران و منهیان و تدییر ملك كردن

۱۱ اندر تعظیم داشتن فرمانها و مثالها که از درگاه نویسند

۱۱ اندر غلام فرستادن از درکاه بمهمات

۱۰ اندر جاسوسان فرستادن و تدبیر کردن اندر صلاح ملك و رعیت

۱۰ اندر برندکان سکان (و پیکان) بر مداومت

١٥ اندر احتياط كردن پروانها بمستى و هشيارى

۱۱ اندر وکیل در خاص و رونق کار او

۱۷ اندر ندیمان و نزدیکان ملك

۱۸ اندر مشاورت کردن با دانایان و پیران درکاه

۱۱ اندر مفردان و برك و تيمار و تدبير ايشان

· اندر سلام مرصع و ترتیب آن

۱۱ اندر احوال رسولان و ترتیب کار ایشان

۲۲ اندر ساخته داشتن علف در منزلها

٣٠ اندر روشن داشتن احوال لشكر

۲۳ اندر لشکر داشتن از هر جنس و مقیم داشتن بر درکاه

هم اندر داشتن ترکمانان در خدمت بر مثال غلامان

۲۱ اندر زحمت نا کردن بندکان وقت خدمت و ترتیب کار ایشان بر پرورش

٧٠ اندر ترتيب بار دادن خاص و عام

۱۸ اندر مجلس شراب و ترتیب و شرایط آن

۲۱ اندر ترتیب ایستادن بندکان و کهتران بوقت خدمت

٣٠ اندر ساختن تجمل و سلاح و آلت جنك و سفر

اس اندر حاجات و التماس لشكر وخدم و حشم

مه اندر عتاب کردن با بندکان یا بر کشیدن هنگام کناه

rr اندر کار با پاسبانان و نوبتیان و دربانان

مع اندر نهادن خوان نیکو و ترتیب آن بادشاهرا

ro اندر حق كذاردن خدمتكاران شايسته

٣١ اندر احتياط كردن اقطاع مقطعان

۳۷ اندر شتاب ناکردن در کارها بادشاه را

۲۸ اندر امیر جرس و جوب داران و اسباب سیاست

۳۱ اندر بخشودن بادشاه بر خلق خدای و هر کاری و هر رسمی باز برقاعده، خویش آوردن

٠٠ اندر معنى القاب

۴۱ اندر ان که دو عمل یك تن را نا فرمودن و معطلان را عمل نا فرمودن و محروم كذاشتن

مع اندر معنی اهل شر و نکاه ذاشتن مرتبت سران سراه سیاه

۴۳ اندر نمودن احوال بدمذهبان این ملك كه دشمن اسلام اند

۴۵ اندر خروج کردن مزدك ومذهب او و نوشيسروان هلاك کردن جمله وم را

هم اندر خروج سينا و كبر بر مسلمان از نيشابور بري

۲۶ اندر بیرون آمدن باطنیان و قرمطیان در کوهستان عراق و شام و خراسان و خوزستان و لحصا و مغرب و بحرین و فتنهای ایشان

۱۲۷ اندر خروج خرم دینان در اصفهان و آذربایجان

۴۸ اندر خزینه داشتن و قاعده و ترتیب آن در نکاه داشتن

۴۹ اندر کذاردن وجواب دادن شغل متظلمان و انصاف دادن

٥٠ اندر نکاهداشتن حساب و مال ولايت و نسق آن

POLITICS.

The work is written in plain and archaic language. It contains many historical narratives and anecdotes relating to former dynasties, especially to the Abbasides, Al i Buvaih, Sāmānis and Ghaznavis. Sometimes the author relates incidents of his own life, as for instance, fol. 62 a, his sending a secret emissary to watch and report upon the private utterances of the envoy of Shams ul-Mulk, Khān of Māvārā un-Nahr. Chapters 44—47 have a special historical value; they treat of the rising of some subversive sects, such as the followers of Mazdak, the Bāṭinis, Ķarmaṭis, and Khurramdīnān.

On fol. 151 b, is found a subscription transcribed from an earlier MS., which is stated to have been written in the town of Urmiyah, A.H. 564, by order of the Amīr Ḥājib Alp Jamāl ud-Dīn.

Or. 256.

Foll. 93;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik; dated Sha'-ban, A.H. 1127 (A.D. 1716).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Counsels of Nizām ul-Mulk to his son, Fakhr ul-Mulk, respecting the responsibilities of the Vazīrate, illustrated by incidents of his own life, and various historical ancedotes.

It appears from the preface, which is slightly defective at the beginning, that the work was dedicated to an Amīr Fakhr ud-Dīn Ḥasan, المير فخر الدوله و الدين حسن بن الصدر المبرور on his appointment as Vazīr (in whose reign is not stated). The genealogy of that personage is traced up to the great Nizām ul-Mulk, who was his ancestor in the twelfth degree. It shows also that the Vazīr's great-grandsire, Amīr Mu'izz, had been Ṣāḥib Dīvān, or first Vazīr, to Ṭughātīmūr, who reigned in Khorasan from A.H. 735—753. (See Jahānārā, and Ḥāfiz Abrū, fol. 298.) From this it may be inferred that the work was written in the ninth century of the Hijrah. The compiler, whose name does not appear, states that he had drawn the contents partly from books, and partly from traditions handed down in his family, which was also descended from Nizām ul-Mulk.

Fakhr ul-Mulk (Abul-Muzaffar 'Alī), to whom the counsels are addressed, was the eldest son of Nizām ul-Mulk. Appointed Vazīr by Barkyāruķ, A.H. 488, he afterwards held the same office under Sanjar in Naishāpūr, until he was assassinated, like his father, A.H. 500. See Kāmil, vol. x., pp. 172, 287.

The work, which is designated in the preface as "the Counsels," نصائح, is more generally known by the name of وصایای نظام البلك, by which it is referred to in the Rauzat usṢafā (Notices et Extraits, vol. ix. p. 149, and the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 91).
Compare Hammer, History of the Assassins,
p. 45, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. vi.,
p. 115. Several extracts, translated by a Munshī, will be found, under the title of Majma'i Wasáyá, in Sir H. Elliot's History,
vol. ii. pp. 485—504.

Contents: Preface, fol. 4 a. Mukaddimah. Notice on the life of Nizām ul-Mulk, fol. 5 b. Faṣl I. Warnings against the dangers of the Vazīrate, fol. 13 a. Faṣl II. Rules and duties of the Vazīrate, fol. 42 b.

Another copy, Add. 26,267, begins as follows:

شرایف تحمیدات پادشاهی راست که انبساط فخر دین

A short notice on the work is prefixed to the present volume, foll. 2, 3. It is signed the present volume, foll. 2, 3. It is signed برخشان, and dated Dehli, April 17, 1866. Nayyir i Rakhshān is the nom de plume of Navvāb Muḥammad Ziyā ud-Dīn Aḥmad Khān, son of Navvāb Aḥmad Bakhsh Khān, a distinguished scholar and poet of Dehli, to whom Sayyid Aḥmad Khān has devoted a notice in his Āṣār uṣ-Ṣanādīd, vol. iv. p. 152.

Or. 254.

Foll. 72; 63 in. by 41; 15 lines, 21 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, apparently in the 15th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

A work treating of the duties of kings and the art of government.

Author: Islam B. Ahmad B. Muhammad ul-Ghazzālī, [sie] اسلام بن احمد بن محمد الغرالي حمدی که اسماع ارباب صوامع جوامع ملکوت . Beg. The preface contains a wordy panegyrie on the reigning sovereign, Amir Sultan Husain. It includes a Kasidah in his praise by Salman, the court poet of the Ilkanis, which leaves no doubt as to his identity. Sultan Husain was the son of Shaikh Uvais, the second prince of the Ilkani dynasty. He ascended the throne in Tabriz, after his father's death, in A.H. 776, and was put to death, after a short and chequered reign, A.H. 781, by his brother, Sultan Ahmad. See Raugat us-Safa, vol. v., p. 172, and Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 137.

It is stated in the preface that the work had been originally written in Greek by Aristotle, and that the present version was made from the Arabic by order of Sultan Husain. A legendary account of Alexander and his " Vazir," the sage Aristotle, حكيم ارسطاطليس, foll. 15 a-25 b, is prefixed to the treatise, which purports to contain the precepts addressed by that philosopher to his sovereign.

The work is written in prolix and ornate prose, interspersed with numerous verses. The present copy is imperfect at the end.

and on سارك السلطنت The MS. is endorsed the first page is written the following title: هذا كتاب من تصنيف الامام الهمام امير اسلام بن احمد بن محمد الغرالي في معرفه سلوك السلطنه

The same page is covered with the notes and seals of former owners. One of the latter contains the name of an Amir of Shahjahan's reign with the date 1054, while some of the more recent belong to the kings of Oude.

Add. 7618.

Foll. 250; 103 in. by 9; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 996 (A.D. 1588). [CL. J. RICH.]

ذخيرة الملوك

A treatise on political ethics, and the rules of good government.

Author: 'Ali B. ush-Shihāb ul-Hamadāni,

على بن الشهاب الهمداني

حمد بسیار و ثنای بی شمار حضرت ملکی را که . Beg. اسباب معاش

Amir Sayyid 'Ali B. Shihab ud-Din B. Mir Sayyid Muhammad ul-Husaini, of Hamadan, a celebrated saint, and founder of an order of Sufis, led the itinerant life of a Darvish, and is said to have visited all parts of the Muslim world. He is especially known as the apostle of Kashmir, which he entered, in A.H. 781, with a train of seven hundred followers, and where he acquired great influence on the Sultan Kuth ud-Din. He spent in that country the last years of his life, died shortly after setting out on his return to Persia, on the 6th of Zulhijjah, A.H. 786, at the age of seventy-three, and was buried in Khuttilan. Notices on his life will be found in Javahir ul-Asrar, Add. 7607, fol. 121, Majālis ul-Mūminin, Add. 23,548, fol. 340, Nafahāt ul-Uns, Calcutta ed., p. 515, Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 87, Vāķi'āt i Kashmir, Add. 26,282, fol. 40, and Newall, History of Cashmere, Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. xxiii., p. 414, and vol. xxxiii., p. 278. Some of his works are mentioned in the Arabic Catalogue, 406 a.

The Zakhīrat ul-Mulūk is divided into ten books (Bab). Its contents have been stated by Hāj. Khāl., vol. iii., p. 329, Tornberg, Upsala catalogue, p. 290, and Flügel, Vienna eatalogue, vol. iii., p. 284. Compare Stewart, p. 50, Uri, p. 273, and the Leyden catalogue, vol. iv., p. 220.

Add. 16,818.

Foll. 218;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century. [WM. YULE.] The same work.

Or. 253.

Foll. 173; 9 in. by 5; 21 lines, 3 in. long; written in small Naskhi; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1089 (A.D. 1678.)

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

سلوك الملوك

A treatise on the mode of governing in accordance with the Muslim law.

Author: Fazl B. Rūzbahān Işfahānī, فضل

ابن روزبهان اصفهانی

فتم الباب هرك تاب بحمد آن ملك وهاب Beg. فتم

The occasion on which the work was written is told at great length in the preface. After the death of Abu-l-Fath Muhammad Shaibani Khan, at Merv, A.H. 916, the Uzbak princes retired to Turkistan, and Mavaraun-nahr, invaded by the Chaghataï forces under Babar, became overspread with heresy and perverse practices. When, two years later, Abu-l-Ghāzī 'Ubaid-Ullah Khān resolved to attempt the recovery of the lost kingdom, he performed, in Muharram, A.H. 918, a pilgrimage to the tomb of Khwajah Ahmad Yasavi, and there took a solemn vow that, if suecessful, he would conform in every act of his rule with the behests of divine law. He attacked Bukhārā a few days later, and completely routed Babar, who had brought from Samarkand superior forces against him. After re-establishing Uzbak rule throughout Māvarā-un-nalır and taking his residence in

The author adds that he sets forth on every point the teaching of the Ḥanafi and Shāfi'i schools.

'Ubaid Ullah Khān, more commonly known as 'Ubaid Khān, was the son of Maḥmūd Sulṭān, a brother of Shaibānī Khān. He was the most powerful Uzbak chief during the reign of Kūchkunjī Khān, A.H. 916—936, and a formidable foe to Shāh Ismā'il and Ṭahmāsp, whose dominions he repeatedly invaded. He was raised to the Khānship A.H. 940, and died A.H. 946. See Erskine, History of India under Baber, vol. i. pp. 309, 322, and Rauzat uṭ-Ṭāhirīn, Or. 168, p. 365.

The work is divided into an Introduction and fifteen chapters (Bab), as follows: Mukaddimah. Legal meaning of the titles Imām, Sultān, Amīr, and Vazīr, fol. 14 b. Bāb. I. Maintenance of the law: appointment of the Shaikh ul-Islam and Muftis, fol. 19 b. II. Appointment of Kāzīs and their duties, fol. 31 b. II. Appointment of the Muhtasibs and their functions, fol. 54 a. IV. Appointment of Daroghahs, watchmen, vālī-mazālim, and frontier guards, fol. 65 a. V. Public alms (Sadakāt), fol. 78 b. VI. Tithes and imposts, fol. 93 a. VII. Treasuretrove and heirless estates, fol. 112 b. VIII. Penal laws, fol. 120 b. IX. Observance of pilgrimage, Friday-assemblies, festivals, etc., fol. 134 a. X. Repression of mutinies, fol. 144 a. XI. Religious war, fol. 148 a. XII. Booty and its division, fol. 154 b. XIII. Laws concerning renegades, fol. 160 b. XIV. Treatment of Zimmis (Christians and Jews), fol. 164 b. XV. Engagements contracted with unbelievers, fol. 170 a.

The end of Bāb XIV. and the beginning of the next are wanting.

Bukhārā, he sent for the author, then living in Samarkand, who by his desire wrote the present work in order to assist the young sovereign in the performance of his vow.

See Memoirs of Baber, translated by Wm. Erskine, p. 239 seqq.

MATHEMATICS.

Add. 23,570.

Foll. 136; 6\frac{3}{4} in. by 3\frac{1}{2}; written in minute Nestalik; dated Yazd, A.H. 1014—1018 (A.D. 1605—1609). [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

A collection of mathematical tracts, mostly Arabic (see Arabic Catalogue, p. 622). The following is Persian.

Foll. 117-133; 17 lines, 13 in. long.

فوائد جمالي

A manual of geometry, translated from an Arabie work entitled اشکال الناسیس

Translator: Maḥmūd B. Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. Kivām ul-Kāzī ul-Vābashtā'ī, commonly called Maḥmūd ul-Haravī ul-Hai'avī, محمود بن محمد بن قوام القاضي [sic] المشتهر بحمود الهروى الهيوى

حمد بي حدو ثناء بي منتها و سپاس بي تياس . كه قدم شهسوار

The translator calls the author of the work Shams ud-Din Sayyid Ḥakim Samarkandi. (According to Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 322, it was Muḥammad B. Ashraf us-Samarkandi, who died about A.H. 600.) He dedicates his translation to an Amīr Jamāl ud-Din Sulṭān Ḥusain, in whose honour he gave it the above title.

That prince's name is preceded by the following titles: امير و اميرزادة اعظم افتخار اعاظم امراء from which it would appear that he was not a sovereign, but a provincial governor.

The translation is divided, like the original, into a Mukaddimah and thirty-five theorems مثكل, the last of which is imperfect at the end.

The original work, Ashkāl ut-Ta'sīs, was written A.H. 593. See Casiri, vol. i. p. 380. A commentary upon it by Ķāzī Zādah is mentioned in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 119.

Add. 7693.

Foll. 72; 7 in. by 4\frac{3}{4}; 13 lines, 2\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unv\(\bar{a}\)n, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

مفتاح کنوز ارباب قلم ومصباح رموز اصحاب رقم

A treatise on some ingenious arithmetical operations invented by the author.

خلیل بن ابراهیم Author: Khalil B. Ibrāhim, خلیل بن ابراهیم شکر و سپاس سزاوار حضرتیست که ذات او .Beg از صفت امکان

The work is divided into a Mukaddimah, ten chapters (Fasl), and a Khātimah. This is the treatise which is apparently twice mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 29, under two different forms of the author's name; الفاضل it is attributed in the first instance to and in the second to Khalil B. Ibrahim, as in the present copy. As the honorific title Khair ud-Din is commonly coupled with the name of Khalil, it is very probable that both belonged to one and the same writer. The author states in the preface that he wrote the treatise at the request of some friends, and that it owed its success to its appearance in the auspicious days of the great Sultan Muhammad B. Murad B. Muhammad (i.e. Muhammad II., A.H. 825—855).

Add. 5649.

Foll. 86; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 7\frac{3}{4}; 15 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Calcutta, Zulhijjah, A.H. 1190 (A.D. 1777).

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

ليلاوتي

Lilāvatī, a treatise on algebra and geometry, translated from the Sanskrit.

تيضى , Translator : Faizī, فيضى

اول زثنای بادشاهی کویم وانکه زستایش الهی کویم

Shaikh Abul-Faiz, with the poetical surname of Faizi, which he subsequently altered to Fayyazi, was the eldest son of Shaikh Mubarak Nagūri, and the brother of Abul-Fazl. He was born in Agra, A.H. 954, became a great favourite of Akbar, who bestowed upon him the title of Malik ush-Shu'ara, or poet laureate, and died on the 10th of Safar, A.H. 1004. The present work is mentioned by Abul-Fazl, among various translations made for Akbar, in the A'in i Akbari, vol. i. p. 116. The same author gives notices of Faizi's life, with copious extracts from his poetical compositions, in the Akbar Nāmah, vol. iii. pp. 716-738, and in the A'in i Akbari, vol. i. p. 235, while Badaoni inveighs against him with the bitter rancour of Muhammadan bigotry, in Muntakhab ut-Tavārīkh, vol. iii. pp. 299-310, a passage translated in Elliot's History, vol. v. pp. 544-9. See also Mir'at ul-'Alam, Add. 7657, fol. 452, and Blochmann, translation of A'in i Akbari, vol. i. p. 490.

After a panegyric on Akbar, by whose order the translation was written, Faizī states in the preface that the Hindi (i.e. Sanskrit) original was due to Bhāskarāchārya بهاسكراچار, of the city of Bedar, in the Deccan. The time of composition, he adds, is not exactly known; but an astronomical treatise of the same author, entitled بيكرن كتوهل, had been written in the year 1105 of Sālivāhan, i.e. 373 years before the "current year," namely the 32nd of the Ilāhī era (A.H. 995—6). The preface concludes with a legend on a daughter of Bhāskara called Līlāvatī, and on the circumstance which led to the composition of the book of the same name.

The Sanskrit text has been printed in Calcutta, 1832, and English translations have been published by John Taylor, Bombay, 1816, and by H. Colebrooke, London, 1817. Faizi's version has been printed in Calcutta, 1828. For accounts of Bhāskara's mathematical works see Edward Strachey, "Early History of Algebra," Asiatic Researches, vol. xii. pp. 159—185, and "Observations on the mathematical science of the Hindoos, with extracts from Persian translations of the Leelawuttee and Beej Gunnit," Calcutta, 1805, Colebrooke's Miscellaneous Essays, vol. ii. pp. 419—450, and A. Weber, Vorlesungen, p. 231.

The present volume contains marginal notes by N. B. Halhed, extracts from which by J. H. Hindley are preserved in Add. 7032.

Add. 16,869.

Foll. 156; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-\(\bar{a}\)m\(\bar{z}\); dated Sh\(\bar{a}\)h\(\bar{a}\)h\(\bar{a}\)h\(\bar{a}\), A.H. 1141 (A.D. 1728). [WM. YULE.]

ہیے گنت

A treatise on algebra, translated from the Sanskrit Vijaganita of Bhāskarāchārya.

Translator: 'Aṭā Ullah Rashidī B. Aḥmad Nādir, عطاء الله رشيدي بن احمد نادر

اول زستایش آلهمی کویم یوس نعت رسول او کهاهی کویم

The translator states that he wrote this work in A.H. 1044, the 8th year of Shāhjahān, to whom it is dedicated. It is divided into a Mukaddimah and five Makālahs. The same translation is noticed by Aumer, Munich Catalogue, p. 136.

For editions and translations of the Vijaganita see Zenker, Bibl. Orient. vol. ii. p. 340.

Add. 16,744.

Foll. 113;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; from 13 to 19 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, dated Sha'bān, the 7th year of Farrukhsiyar, A.H. 1130 (A.D. 1718).

WM. YULE.

I. Foll. 3-56.

منتغب

A treatise on arithmetic, translated from the Arabic treatise entitled فلاصة الحاب, by Bahā ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Ḥusain 'Amilī (d. 1031; see Arabic Catalogue, p. 622 b.)

Translator: Lutf Ullah Muhandis B. Ustād Aḥmad Mi'mār Lāhaurī, لطف الله مهندس

ابن استاد احمد معمار لاهوري

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد ميكويد فقير لطف الله . . . ممندس

The translator is known as the author of a rhymed abridgment of Daulatshāh's Tazkiralı. He uses مندس as his Takhalluş. See Oude Catalogue, pp. 116, 122.

He states that he wrote the present translation by desire of the noble Sayyid Mir Muhammad Sa'id B. Mir Muhammad Yahyā, and that the above title conveys the date of composition, viz. A.H. 1092.

II. Foll. 57-99.

خلاصة راز

A treatise in verse on arithmetic, mensuration, and algebra, in ten sections (Bab).

Author: 'Aṭā Ullah B. Ustād Aḥmad Mi'mār عطا الله بن استاد احبد معار, a brother of the preceding, and probably identic with the translator of Bijganit (p. 450 b).

شکر بیعل بواحد ازلی حمد بیعد بفرد لم یزلی Beg.

The author begins with eulogies on Shah Jahan and Prince Dara-Shikuh, to the latter of which the work is dedicated.

III. Foll. 100-107.

A treatise on the properties of numbers خواص اعداد, in four Makalahs, by Lutt Ullah Muhandis; see Art. I.

ASTRONOMY.

Add. 7697.

Foll. 157;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Naskhi; dated Ramazān, A.H. 685 (A.D. 1286). [Cl. J. Rich.]

كتاب التفهيم لاوائل التنجيم

A treatise on astronomy.

Author: Abu Raihān Muhammad B. Ali-mad ul-Bīrānī, ابو ریحان محمد بن احمد البیرونی

دانستن صورت عالم و جکونکی نهاذ اسمان وزمین .Beg. دانستن صورت عالم و جکونکی نهاذ اسمان وزمین to which the following heading is prefixed : تفهیم کردن استاذ ابو ریحان محمد بن احمد البیرونی رحمة الله علیه مر ابتداء علم مجوم را بطریق مدخل

Al-Biruni, the celebrated philosopher, and contemporary of Ibn Sina, was born in the city of Khwārazm, A.H. 362, and was so ealled, according to Sam'ani, Add. 23,355, fol. 98, from "Birun," the outskirts of the .البيروني بكسر البا . . . نسبة الى خارج خوارزم town, He lived at the courts of Kābūs B. Vashmagir, prince of Jurjan, who reigned A. H. 388-403, and of Abul-'Abbas Mamun B. Māmūn, the last of the independent rulers of Khwarazm, who was put to death by rebels A.H. 407. Having repaired, shortly after, to Ghaznah, al-Biruni spent the rest of his life under the patronage of the Ghaznavi Sultans, Mahmud and Mas'ud, whom he accompanied in their Indian campaigns. He died in Ghaznah, A.H. 440. See Professor Sachau's introduction to "Chronologic Orientalischer Völker von Alberuni," pp. 1-38, Reinaud, Introduction à la Géographie d'Aboulféda, pp. 95-8, and Sir H. Elliot's notice, enlarged by Professor Dowson, History of India, vol. ii. pp. 1-8.

The author, after remarking that, before entering upon the investigation of astronomical problems, it was necessary to make one's self acquainted with the configuration of heaven and earth, and the technical terms used by astronomers, states that he had written the present elementary treatise at the request of Railianah, daughter of al-Hasan, of Khwārazm, and had set forth in it, by questions and answers, the principles of geometry and arithmetic, the figure of the world, and judicial astrology, احكام الجوم.

The text is divided into short sections by the questions, which are written in red, as headings. A table of these sections (Bāb), 530 in number, occupies foll. 1—7. The work contains numerous diagrams, astronomical tables, and drawings of the constellations. These last fill twenty-seven pages, foll. 41—54. Some leaves are wanting after fol. 140; the lacune extends from Bāb 475 to Bāb 481.

The date of composition is fixed by a passage of the chronological section, fol. 98 a, in which the author states the very day on which he was writing; this was the 25th of Ramazān, A.H. 420 (in another copy, Add. 23,566, A.H. 425).

The Tafhim is extant in a Persian and an Arabic edition, neither of which purports to have been translated from the other. Two copies of the latter are preserved in the Bodleian library; their contents, which perfectly agree with those of the Persian edition, have been fully stated by Nicoll, pp. 262—268.

The above title, which is found in the subscription of the present copy, is nearly the same as that by which the author designates the work in his Fihrist (Sachau's introduction, p. 44), viz. كتاب التفهيم لاوائل صناعة التنجيم. This last form is given by Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 385, who adds that the work had been written, A.H. 421, for Abul-Ḥasan 'Alī B. Abil-Fazl ul-Khāṣṣī, a notice probably applying to another recension of the same work.

The present copy was written by Ibn ul-

Ghulām ul-Ķūniyavī ابن الغلام القونيوى, who wrote also, as has been noticed by Professor Sachau, p. xv., the valuable Leyden MS. (Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 296), containing an account of Rāzi's and Bīrūnī's works, written by the latter, and dated A.H. 692.

On the first page is a note by a former owner, whose name has been erased, stating that he had purchased the MS. in Sīvās, A.H. 732.

Add. 23,566.

Foll. 79; 11 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 23 lines,  $5\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 19th century. [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same work.

This copy has, instead of the preface, a short doxology, which begins thus:

الذى جعل النجوم زينة للسموات ومسخرات

There are two lacunes in the body of the work, viz. one after fol. 72, extending from Bāb 478 to 489 (according to the numeration found in the table of Add. 7697), and another after fol. 76, extending from Bāb 513 to 523. The language is, to some extent, modernized.

Add. 7700.

Foll. 69;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 27 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 15th century. [Cl. J. RICH.]

مختصر در معرفت تـقويم

A compendious manual on the computation of the almanack, by Nasīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī (see above, p. 441 b), with a commentary, the author of which is not named.

این مختصریست در معرفت : Beg. of the manual

The work is divided into thirty chapters (Fasl), and, from that circumstance, it has become generally known as Sī Fasl, سى فصل. Its contents have been stated in the Vienna Jahrbücher, vol. 67, Anzeigeblatt, p. 44, Bodleian Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 300, and Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 490. See also Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 642, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 148. An Arabic version is noticed in the Arabic Catalogue, p. 188 a.

The work was written, as incidentally stated by the author, Fasl 22, fol. 55, in A.H. 658, that is to say, as the commentator remarks, some time before the commencement of the observations in Maraghah, which extended from A.H. 860 to 872.

In the preface, which is somewhat defective at the beginning, the commentator, after describing the gradual steps by which men were led to the observation of the motions of the heavenly bodies, bewails the sad neglect of astronomy in his day, and complains that, in spite of his long and distant travels, he had not succeeded in meeting with a competent master of that science.

From a passage, fol. 56 a, in which the commentator indicates the positions of the planets for A.H. 824, it appears that this was the year in which he wrote.

Or. 1585.

Foll. 38; 7½ in. by 4½; 11 lines, 2 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1079 (A.D. 1668).

[Sir Henry C. Rawlinson.] A treatise on the astrolabe, without author's name. It is the well known manual of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī, which, from its division into twenty chapters (Bāb), is known under the name of Bīst Bāb, is known under the name of Bīst Bāb, Uri, p. 287, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, pp. 112, 306, and the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 9.

Add. 22,752.

Foll. 136;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1221 (A.D. 1806).

شرح بیست باب در معرفت اسطرلاب

A commentary on Nasir ud-Din Tusi's treatise on the astrolabe, with the text.

Author: 'Abd ul-'Alī B. Muḥammad ul-Barjandī, عبد العلى بن محمد البرجندي

فاتحه خطاب ازهر باب و خاتمه مقال در همه .Beg. حال

Nizām ud-Din 'Abd ul-'Alī ul-Barjandī was a pupil of Mansur B. Mu'in ud-Din Kashi, and of Saif ud-Din Taftazani, the Shaikh ul-Islam of Herat (who died A.H. 916). He wrote commentaries upon the Tazkirah of Naşîr ud-Dîn Tûsî, the Tahrîr Majistî of the same author, and upon the Zij of Ulugh Beg (this last is dated A.H. 929; see p. 457 b). He left also a treatise on the distances and sizes of planets, dedicated to Habib Ullah, Vazīr of Khorasan (see p. 98 a), and another on the construction of almanacks, which was completed in A.H. 883, and which has been lithographed in Tabriz (?), A.H. 1276. The author of Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 4, p. 117, writing A.H. 930, speaks of him as still living, and he is mentioned in Mir'at ul-Advar among the great scholars of the reign of Tahmasp. See also Uri, p. 284, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 111, and Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 471.

A short preface is followed by an introduction مقدم, foll. 7 b—10 b, containing definitions of technical terms. The commentator mentions, fol. 129 a, some tables of the positions of stars calculated by himself for the year 853 of Yazdajird (A.H. 889—890). He states at the end that the date of composition of the commentary is expressed by the name of the month جميدي الاخر in which it was completed. That name, as written in the MS., gives 899, but, if we read جمادي according to the usual spelling, the date would be A.H. 890.

This copy was written, as stated in the sub-seription, for Abu'l-Fath Sultān-Muḥammad, called Shāh Khudābandah, a descendant of the Ṣafavis who fled to India A.H. 1205, and settled in Lucknow; see p. 133 b. Foll. 1 b—5 a and 133 b—136 a contain some additional tables.

Add. 7698.

Foll. 162; 9½ in. by 6½; 21 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in fair Naskhī, apparently in the 14th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

زيج ايلخاني

The astronomical tables constructed by order of Ilkhān, i.e. Hulāgū, by Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī, نصير الدين طوسى الحمد الله رب العالمين . . . . خداى تعالى . . . . خداى تعالى . . . . خداى تعالى . . . . . . . . . . . . . . .

After giving a short account of Chingiz Khān and his successors down to Hulāgū, the author states that the latter prince, after rescuing him, Nasīr of Tūs, from the land of the Mulhids (Ismā'ilis), and appointing him his chief astronomer, had called together other adepts to assist him in the work, viz. Fakhr ud-Din Marāghī from Mausil, Mu'ayyid ud-Din 'Urzi from Damascus, Fakhr ud-Din Khalāţī from Tiflis, and Najm ud-Din Dabīrān from Kazvīn. Having selected the site of Maraghah, and provided the requisite buildings and instruments, the astronomers commenced a series of observations, which were completed under Abakā Khān, and Nasīr ud-Dīn compiled their results in the present tables, which he presented to the reigning sovereign.

The author then proceeds to review the carlier tables to which they had referred for comparison, namely those of Hipparchus, 1400 and some years anterior to the beginning of their observations, of Ptolemy, 285 years later than Hipparchus, of al-Māmūn, 430 and some years before their own time, of al-Battānī, somewhat later in Syria, of al-Ḥākim in Egypt, and of Ibn al-A'lam in Baghdād, the latter two being 250 years earlier than the present tables.

The work is divided into four books (Makālah), as follows: I. On eras, in a Mukaddimah and two Babs, fol. 3 b. It treats of the Chinese era تاریخ قستا, the eras of the Greeks, *-Arabs, and Persians, and that of Malakshāh. II. On the motions of the planets, and their position in longitude and latitude, in thirteen Fasls, fol. 21 b, with tables, full. 30-82. III. On the determination of the times and در معرفت اوقات, of the horoscopes of each time in fourteen Fasls, fol. 83 b; tables, foll. 90-110. IV. On other astronomical operations, in two Babs: Bab 1. on horoscopes of nativity, in seven Fasls, fol. 111 b, with tables, foll. 116—119. Bāb 2. Prognostics connected with the ascendant of ردر دلایل که تعلق بطالع عالم دارند ,the world, foll. 120 a-122 b.

Foll. 123—152 contain various additional tables, with explanations in Arabic and Persian, and foll. 153—160 an Arabic tract, with the heading شرح العمل بالمجدول المعروف المعروف بدقايق النسب

The appointment of Naṣīr ud-Dīn by Hulāgū, A.H. 657, and the erection of the observatory, are recorded in the Jāmi' ut-Tavārīkh. See Add. 16,688, fol. 105, Quatremère, Reshid eddin, p. 325, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 59.

In the last work, p. 61, the Zij of Naṣīr ud-Dīn is designated by the name of تنسوق instead of its usual title زيج البلخاني instead of its usual title زيج البلخاني See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 561, Jourdain, Magazin Eneyclopédique, 1809, vol. vi. p. 97, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 149. A table of longitudes and latitudes, extracted from it, has been edited by John Greaves, who published in the same year, London, 1652, the introduction of a commentary upon it by Maḥmūd Shāh Khuljī, under the title of Astronomica quædam ex traditione Shah Cholgii Persæ. An Arabic version of the Zij i Ilkhānī is mentioned by Uri, p. 195.

Add. 11,636.

Foll. 69;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 27 lines,  $4\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Baghdād, Rabī' II., A.H. 795 (A.D. 1393).

توضيح زيج ايلخاني

An enlarged recension of the preceding work.

Author: Al-Ḥasan B. ul-Ḥusain B. ul-Ḥasan Shahanshāh us-Simnānī ul-Munajjim, الحسن بن الحسن شهنشاء السناني الحسن الحسن بن الحسن بن الحسن سهنشاء السناني المعربية

This is the author's autograph, as shown by the following subscription: تم الكتاب بغضل الله تعالى وحسن توفيقه في رابع ربيع انثاني سنه ١٥٠ هجريه كاتبه و مولفه الحسن بن الحسين ١٠٠٠ السمناني المنجم هداه الله تعالى صراطا مستقيما بمدينة السلم بغداد حرسها الله تعالى من الافات

After praising the original work, which he had tested by his own observations, the editor states in the preface, the first page of which is wanting, that a desire to facilitate its use to beginners had induced him to prepare the present Tauzih, or "lucid exposition," in which, while eliminating some superfluous portions, he had inserted useful explanations, and some supplementary tables of his own composition.

The Tauzīḥ is divided, like the original work, into four Maķālahs. The MS., however, is very defective, and contains only the following portions: Maķālah I. The Muķaddimah and Faṣls 1—4, fol. 2 b. Maķālah III. Faṣls 12—14, fol. 8 a. Maķālah IV., fol. 8 b. Supplementary tables, to which a statement of their contents is prefixed, foll. 16 a—68.

Add. 7703.

Foll. 31; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19—23 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written by two hands, apparently in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

ارشاد

A short manual on the use of the astrolabe, divided into fifty short sections (Bāb), a table of which is given at the beginning.

Author: Nāṣir ud-Din Alimad B. Muliammad Shirāzi, ناصر الدين احمد بن محمد شيرازي

شکر و سیاس بی حد و عد آفریدکاری را جل Beg. جلاله

The titles مولانائی معظم جاسوس افلاک are prefixed, in the opening lines, to the name of the author, who describes the work, in a short preamble, as اسطرلاب From the repeated mention of Isfahan in the examples, it appears to have been written in that city. The year 697 of the Hijrah, for which the position of some stars is indicated, fol. 29 b, is probably the date of its composition.

Add. 16,742.

Foll. 158; 9½ in. by 6; 19 lines, 3½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

[WM. YULE.]

The astronomical tables of Mirzā Ulugh Beg.

Author: Ulugh Beg B. Shāhrukh B. Timūr Kūrgān, الغ بيك بن شاهرخ بن تيمور كوركان. تبارك الذي جعل في السماء بروجا

Ulugh Beg, the eldest son of Shahrukh, born in Sultaniyyah, A.H. 796, was appointed by his father, A.H. 812, to the government of Māvarā un-Nahr, which enjoyed under his rule a long period of prosperity, and established his residence in Samarkand. After his father's death, and a victorious encounter with his nephew and competitor, 'Alā ud-Daulah, he ascended the throne in Herat, A.H. 852. His short and troubled reign came to a tragic end in A.H. 853, when he was put to death by his son Mirzā 'Abd us-Latif. See Matla' us-Sa'dain, foll. 45, 119, 256, Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 151, Price's Retrospect, vol. iii. pp. 566-75, and Sédillot, Introduction aux Prolégomènes, рр. 125—131.

The observations embodied in the tables were commenced, as the author states in the preface, by his master Salāḥ ud-Dīn Mūsā, called Kāzī-Zādah Rūmī, and by Ghiyāṣ ud-Dīn Jamshīd. The latter, however, having died in the early stage of the work, and the former before its conclusion, it was carried on and completed with the assistance of a youthful astronomer, 'Alī B. Muḥammad Kūshjī, whom Ulugh Beg calls his beloved son. The date of composition is not expressly stated. It was probably A.H. 841; for that year is taken as the starting point of several of the tables.

The building of the observatory, N.E. of Samarkand, is recorded by the contemporary author of the Maţla' us-Sa'dain among the occurrences of A.H. 823. The same historian names four astronomers to whom the observations were intrusted, viz.: Ṣalāḥ ud-Dīn Mūsā Ķāzī Zādah Rūmī, 'Alā ud-Dīn Ķūshjī, both inhabitants of Samarkand, Ghi-yāş ud-Dīn Jamshīd, and Mu'īn ud-Dīn, the last two from Kāshān. He adds that the new tables received the name of it will be a commentator, 'Abd ul-'Ali, designates the work of Ulugh Beg by the title of زي جديد سلطانی, while the Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafū, vol. vi. p. 202, and the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, l. c., call it زي جديد كوركاني;

The above statement of Ulugh Beg, combined with the date assigned in the Maţla' us-Sa'dain to the building of the observatory, shows that Ķāzī Zādah cannot have died so early as A.H. 815, as asserted by Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 322, or Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Jamshīd so late as A.H. 887, as stated in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 118. Both died during the course of the observations, which were carried on from A.H. 823 to 841.

The author of the Haft Iklīm mentions, under Kāshān, Add. 16,734, fol. 387, both Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Jamshīd and Mu'īn ud-Dīn as eminent astronomers. He adds that the former was ignorant of the etiquette of courts, but that Ulugh Beg was obliged to put up with his boorish manners, because he could not dispense with his assistance. Ghiyāş ud-Dīn wrote for Ulugh Beg, A.H. 818, a treatise on astronomical instruments. See the Leyden Catalogue, vol. v. p. 237.

'Alā ud-Dīn 'Alī B. Muḥammad Kūshjī became, as a youth, a great favourite of Ulugh Beg, who called him his son, and used, while hunting, to intrust him with his hawk; hence his surname Kūshjī, "the falconer," which, however, according to the Shaķā'ik, was derived from his father's office. Having left his master clandestinely, 'Alī proceeded to Kirman, where he prosecuted his studies under the best masters, and wrote his well known commentary upon the Tajrīd of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī. It was after his return to Samarkand that Ulugh Beg employed him on the completion of his great astronomical work.

Sometime after the death of that prince, finding himself neglected by his successors, 'Alī Ķūshjī repaired to Tabrīz, then the residence of Ūzūn Ḥasan, the Ak Ķuyunlu ruler, who sent him on a friendly mission to Muḥammad II. Received with great honour by the latter, he presented him with a manual of arithmetic, called, in honour of the Sultan, al-Muḥammadiyyah.

A treatise on astronomy, subsequently written by him for the same sovereign, was entitled al-Fathiyyah in memory of the conquest of the Irak Ajam. 'Alī Ķūshjī died in Constantinople in the reign of Muḥammad II., and, according to Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 198, A.H. 879. See Habib us-Siyar, vol. iiì., Juz 3, p. 160, Shakā'ik, Add. 9583, fol. 57, Seheref-Nameh, edited by Veliaminof, vol. ii. p. 123, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 303.

The Zij i Jadid follows the arrangement of the Zij i Ilkhani, and is divided, like the latter work, into four Makalalıs, with similar headings. They begin respectively on foll. 2 b, 13 a, 66 a, and 149 a. The contents have been stated in full, from an Arabic version, in the Bodleian Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 239. The explanatory part of the work has been edited, with an introduction, by L. P. E. A. Sédillot, Paris, 1847, and a French version by the same scholar was published in 1853. Detached portions have been edited under the titles of "Epochæ celebriores ex traditione Ulug Beigi," by John Greaves, London, 1650, and "Tabulæ longitudinis et latitudinis stellarum ex observatione Ulugh Begi," by Thomas Hyde, Oxford, 1665. See also Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 239, Quatremère, Journal des Savants, 1847, pp. 562-76, Uri, p. 281, No. lxv., etc.

Add. 11,637.

Foll. 212; 10 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

The same work.

This copy is more correct than the preceding, but is slightly imperfect at the end; it vol. 11.

breaks off at the second page of the concluding table, fol. 200. An additional table without any heading is appended, foll. 201 —212.

Add. 7699.

Foll. 139; 11 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 33 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in small Naskhi; dated A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work.

At the end are two additional tables. The first is headed جدول عمل سبتينى; the second shows the time of midday and midnight for the latitude of Antioch, foll. 131—139.

محمد بن رمضان انندى الانطاكي : Copvist

Add. 16,743.

Foll. 41; 9\frac{1}{3} in. by 6; 21 lines, 4\frac{3}{5} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Wm. Yule.]

The explanatory text of the preceding work, without the tables.

Add. 23,567.

Foll. 261; 10 in. by 7½; 19 lines, 5 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1045 (A.D. 1635).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

شرح زیج جدید سلطانی

A commentary on the preceding work. Author: 'Abd ul-'Alī B. Muḥammad B. Ḥusain Barjandī, عبد العلى بن محمد بن حسين (see 453 b).

Beg. اجناس حمد و سپاس معري از توهم تناهی The entire text of the Zij, here designated as زيج جديد سلطانی, with the exception of the tables, is inserted in the commentary, and distinguished by a red line drawn over it. The four Makālahs begin respectively on foll. 5 b, 48 b, 128 a and 235 b.

p. 52, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 95, and Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 516.

The work was written, as stated in the preface, by desire of a prince called Abul-Fath Khalil Bahadur Khan, son of the Sultan Abu Nasr Hasan Bahadur Khan, who appears from the following pompous titles, السلطان الاعظم الاكرم الخاقان الاجل الافخم مجدد مراسم المله محى مآثر الدوله موعود المائة السابعه . . . السلطان بن السلطان بن السلطان ابو نصر حسى بهادر to have been the , خان خلد الله مدى الزمان زمانه الز reigning sovereign, but whose time and country have not been ascertained. The only clue to the period in which he lived is found in the following epithet, "the promised one of the seventh hundred," which seems to imply that he reigned about A.H. 700, and which is apparently the sole authority for the date given by Stewart, l.c., viz. A.D. 1300. The work must, however, have been written at a somewhat later period, for Ghāzān Khān, who died A.H. 703, is spoken of, fol. 77 a, as a king of the past.

It is divided into an introduction (Mukaddimah) on minerals and their origin, fol. 7 a, and two books (Makālah). Makālah I., fol. 9 a, comprises twenty chapters (Bāb), treating of as many species of precious stones. Makālah II., fol. 66 a, contains seven chapters on metals.

The authorities most frequently quoted are the philosopher Abu Raihān (al-Bīrūnī), and Taifāshī, the author of an Arabic treatise on precious stones, who died A.H. 651 (Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 582).

Add. 25,870.

Foll. 88; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{7}{3}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the beginning of the 19th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

Another copy of the preceding work, in which the dedicatory portion of the preface has been omitted.

Or. 30.

Foll. 221; 8½ in. by 5; 11 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, dated Rajab, A.H. 951 (A.D. 1544). [G. C. RENOUARD.]

فرح نامه جمالي

A work treating of the properties and uses of natural substances, also of divination and astrology.

Author: Abu Bakr ul-Muṭahhar B. Muḥammad B. Abil-Ķāsim B. Abi Saʿid ul-Jamāl, called al-Yazdī, ابو بكر المطهر بن محمد بن

ابى القاسم بن ابى سعيد الجمال العروف باليزدى The author, who in his verses uses the Takhallus Jamāli, describes himself as an inhabitant of the village of Mayakh, in the مقيما بقريه مايخ من فاحيه تون بتريه مايخ من فاحيه [sic] عي كورة اصطرخ [He states in the preface, which is slightly defective at the beginning, that he was addicted to poetry, and was preparing a fair copy of his poem Tarik u Jauza when some friends, assembled in طارق و جوزا his house on the oceasion of the birth of his son Abul-Kāsim, praised the Nuzhat Nāmah i 'Ala'i as a book replete with useful knowledge, and urged him to write one of the same description. Yielding to their entreaties he composed the present work, and dedicated it to the Vazīr Majd ud-Dīn Ahmad صدر عادل مجد الدواه والدين ملك الوزرا ,B. Mas ud who was his father's benefactor, as well as his own. He adds that he completed it in the month of Ramazan, A.H. 580, and claims indulgence on the score of his youth, as he was then in his eighteenth year.

The title is written فرّخ نامه; but the reading of Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 412, أرح نامه , is, on account of its parallelism with منزهت نامه Mission and its parallelism with a vice gives A.H. 560 as the date of composition, and, in his notice on the Nuzhat Nāmah, vol. vi. p. 336, which he knew only from the above preface, takes 'Alā'ī to designate the author. Jamālī, however, gives him another name, but one which cannot be read with certainty in the present copy; for the passage is incorrectly written, as follows: نزهت نامه علائی

كه شهره ان المستوفى جمع كردة است

The Farah Namah comprises the following sixteen books (Makālat), subdivided into chapters (Fasl): 1. Useful properties of various parts of the body in men and quadrupeds, fol. 8 b. 2. Useful properties of birds, reptiles, and insects, fol. 53 a. 3. Properties of trees, vegetables, and seeds, fol. 84 b. 4-6. Properties of herbs and leaves, fol. 119 b, of gums, fol. 122 b, of stones and metals, fol. 125 a. 7. Drugs and perfumes, fol. 135 a. 8. Oils, and Firasat, fol. 144 a. 9. Divination by shoulder-blades, and astrology, fol. 150 a. 10. Auguries derived from throbbings of the muscles; divination of the death or recovery of the sick; vocabulary of Pehlevi words, fol. 181 a. 11. Poisons and antidotes, fol. 198 b. 12. Mode of dissolving gold, pearls, etc., fol. 207 b. 13. Conjuring tricks, magic inks, etc., fol. 210 b. 14. Khavatim, or symbols, of the planets, fol. 217 a.

The latter part of the fourteenth book, the fifteenth, and all but the concluding lines of the sixteenth, are wanting.

محمد بن ابراهیم المعروف به وی Copyist:

A copy of a similar work is described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 517. The same volume contains the second Makālah of the Nuzhat Nāmah i 'Alā'ī.

MEDICINE.

Add. 23,556.

Foll. 492; 18 in. by 11; 27 lines,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Rob. Taylor.]

I. Foll. 2-477.

ذخيرهء خوارزمشاهي

An encyclopædia of medical science.

Author: Zain ud-Dīn Abu Ibrāhīm Ismā'īl B. Ḥasan B. Aḥmad B. Muḥammad ul-Ḥusainī ul-Jurjānī, زين الدين ابو ابراهيم المحمد الحسيني الجرجاني بن حسن بن احمد بن محمد الحسيني الجرجاني الحمد لله . . . سيد امام اجل زين الدين نجم Beg. الاسلام . . . ميكويد جون تـقدير ايزد تعالى جنان بود

که جمع کننده این کتاب

The author calls himself, in the opening lines, the devoted servant of the just and wise Pādishāb, Kutb ud-Dunyā wad-Dīn Khwārazm Shāh Abul-Fath Muhammad B. Yamin ud-Din, Mu'in Amir ul-Müminin. He states that, having been brought by the divine decree to Khwarazm in A.H. 504, he had been induced by the fair climate of that country, and the able and righteous rule of its sovereign, to fix there his abode. dedicates the present work to His Majesty, as a grateful return for the favours showered upon him. His object in compiling it was to supply a want which he had felt himself while studying, that of a comprehensive work which would offer the required information on every branch of the medical science, and save a physician the trouble and loss of time involved in consulting other books.

Muḥammad, son of Nūshtigīn, the founder of the Khwārazmshāhī dynasty, was a vassal of the Saljūķis. He was appointed governor of Khwārazm by Sanjar, in the reign of Barkyāruķ, and received the titles of Ķuṭb ud-Din and Khwārazm Shāh in A.H. 491. His son Atsiz, who succeeded to him A.H. 522, and assumed independence A.H. 535, died A.H. 551. See Jāmi'ut-Tavārīkh, Add. 7628, Guzīdah, and Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 490.

Yākūt, who mentions our author, Abu Ibrāhīm B. ul-Ḥasan B. Muḥammad ul-Ḥusaini, among the illustrious natives of Jurjan, says that, after staying a long time in Khwarazm, he repaired to Marv, where he died A.H. 531; see Mujam, vol. ii. p. 55. Ibn Abi Usaibi'ah, who calls him Sharif Sharaf ud-Din Isma'il, Add. 7310, fol. 132, speaks of the great regard in which he stood at the court of 'Ala ud-Din [sic] Muhammad Khwarazm Shah, and mentions the four following works as composed by him in Persian for that prince-the present work, in twelve volumes, the Khafi 'Ala'i in two small volumes, the Aghraz in two, and the Yadgar in one. All four are noticed by Haj. Khal. vol. i. p. 368, vol. iii. pp. 162, 330, and vol. vi. p. 507, who calls the author Isma'ıl B. ul-Husain, and gives in one place A.H. 535, and in another A.H. 530, as the date of his death. Khwand Amir, who gives him the same name, Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz. 4, p. 176, is manifestly wrong in stating that he lived under Tukush, who reigned A.H. 568-596. The appendix to the Sivan ul-Hikmah contains a notice on the author, who is there called Zain ud-Din Isma'il B. ul-Hasan ul-Jurjani; see the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 295. Compare Stewart's Catalogue, pp. 106 and 108, Krafft's Catalogue, p. 147, and De Jong, Catalogus Codd. Orr. Bibl. Acad. Regiæ, p. 228, note 2.

The Zakhirah consists of ten books (Kitāb), which are enumerated in the preface, and to each of which is prefixed a full table of numerous subdivisions termed Guftārs and Babs. They are as follows: I. Definition and utility of medicine; composition, structure, and powers of the human body, fol. 4 a. II. Health and disease; causes and symptoms of disease; accidents of the body, fol. 42 b. III. Preservation of health, fol. 79 b. IV. Diagnosis of diseases; crisis and prognosis; fol. 151 b. V. Fevers, their various kinds, their symptoms and treatment, fol. 168 b. VI. Local diseases and their treatment, fol. 205 b. VII. Tumours, ulcers, etc., fol. 388 b. VIII. Care to be taken of the external parts of the body, hair, skin, nails, etc., fol. 411 b. IX. Poisons and antidotes, fol. 417 b. X. Simple and compound medicaments, fol. 431 b.

Some leaves of book ix., viz., foll. 418, 426—8, which are partly in another handwriting, contain a portion of a different recension, in which that book is divided into five Guftars, instead of six Makālahs.

At the end is a note, written by the same hand as the text, and stating that the transcriber, Muḥammad Bāķir B. 'Ināyat Ullah ul-Ḥusainī, had completed the collation of the present copy on the 17th of Rajab, A.H. 1095.

II. Fol. 478-492. A treatise on the anatomy of the human body.

Author: Mansur B. Muhammad B. Ahmad, منصور بن محمد بن احمد

شکر و سپاس بادشاهی را سرد و حمد و ثنای .Beg. بی قیاس

The preface contains a dedication to an Amir-zādah Pir Muhammad, who is addressed as the reigning sovereign with the following titles, السلطان الاعظم الاعدل الاكرم . . . . السلطان الاعظم العدل الاكرم . . . . السلطان في العدل العدل العدل العدل العدل العدل ألحق والسلطان في العدل العد

That prince, whose age and country are not indicated, is called in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 109, perhaps on the authority of the copy there described, "Pir Muḥammad Jahāngīr, grandson of Tīmūr."

Mīrzā Pīr Muḥammad, second son of Mīrzā Jahāngīr, the eldest son of Tīmūr, was proclaimed Valī 'Ahd, or heir apparent, on the death of his elder brother, Sultan Muhammad, in A.H. 805. Having been appointed some years previously to the government of Kābul, he was the first of the Timuride princes who invaded India, and held an important command in the Indian campaign, undertaken at his instigation by Timur. At the latter's death he was left in possession of the Indian provinces and Zābulistān, but did not enjoy it long, being murdered on the 14th of Ramazān, A.H. 809, by one of his Amirs. Another grandson of Timur who bore the same name, viz. Mīrzā Pīr Muhammad B. 'Umar Shaikh, ruled in the province of Fars from A.H. 796 to 812. See Matla us-Sa'dain, Or. 1291, fol. 25, and Jahānārā, foll. 174, 177.

The work is divided as follows: Mukaddimah. Component parts of the human body, fol. 479 a. Makālah I. Bones, fol. 480 a. II. Nerves, fol. 483 a. III. Muscles, fol. 485 b. IV. Veins, fol. 486 b. V. Arteries, fol. 489 a. Khātimah. Complex organs; development of the embryo, fol. 490 a. It is illustrated by five anatomical drawings, occupying a whole page each.

It has been edited under the title of تشریح by Manṣūr 'Alī, Dehli, A.H. 1264.

Another work of the same author, مجاهدیه, will be mentioned further on, p. 470 b.

Add. 26,307.

Foll. 41; 15 in. by 9; 23 lines, 5 in. long; written in large Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

A treatise on the anatomy of the human body, designated as مختصر در علم تشريع

Author: Abul-Majd ut-Tabib ul-Baizavi, ابه المجد الطبيب البيضاوى

حمد و ثنای که حاوی قانون تحمید و شامل .Beg کلیات تعمید بود

Abul-Majd ul-Baizāvī is mentioned as the author of a commentary on the Mūjiz ul-

Kānūn of 'Alā ud-Dīn 'Alī Ibn un-Nafīs ul-Kurashī, a work published in Caleutta, 1828. See the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 266. In the present work he quotes several times that celebrated physician, and it appears from the formula which he adds to his name, امام علاء الدين قرشي رحمة الله عليه, that he was writing after his death, which took place A.H. 687. See Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 251, and Wüstenfeld, Geschichte der Arabischen Aertzte, p. 146.

After some considerations on the high importance of a knowledge of anatomy, the author sets forth at length the divisions of his treatise. It consists of an introduction on the parts of the body in general, and of two books (Kitāb). The first treats of the simple parts of the body, and comprises six chapters (Bāb), as follows:—I. Bones, in fifteen sections (Fasl). II. Nerves, in five sections. III. Veins, in five sections. IV. Arteries, in four sections. V. Muscles, in thirty sections. VI. Skin. The second book treats, in seventeen Bābs, of as many complex organs.

The present copy, which appears to have been transcribed from a defective MS., contains only the following disjointed portions of the work: Mukaddimah, fol. 4 a. Book I., Bāb I., Fasl 1. Bones in general, fol. 5 b. Fasl. 2. Bones of the head, fol. 6 b. Fasl 3. Bones of the upper jaw, fol. 8  $\alpha$ . Fasl 4. Bones of the nose, fol. 9 b. Bab V. Muscles, in thirty Fasls, complete, fol. 10 a. Book II. Bāb I. The brain, fol. 31 a. Bāb II. The eye, fol. 33 a. Bāb III. The ear, fol. 36 α. Bāb IV. The nose, fol. 36 b. Bāb V. The tongue, fol. 37 a. Bab VI. The throat and gullet, fol. 37 b. Bab VII. The diaphragm and chest, fol. 38 a. Bab VIII. The heart, fol. 38 b. Bab IX. The gullet and stomach, fol. 39 b. Bab X. The liver, fol. 40 b.

Of the last Bab the beginning only is extant. Fol. 41 contains the latter part of the fourth Bab of Book I., which treats of the arteries.

Add. 16,748.

Foll. 347; 9¾ in. by 6¼; 19 lines, 4 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Jumāda I, the 5th year of Bahādur Shāh, (A.H. 1123, A.D. 1711). [WM. YULE.]

اختيارات بديعي

A work on materia medica.

Author: 'Ali B. ul-Ḥusain ul-Anṣārī, known as Ḥājī Zain ul-'Aṭṭār, على بن الحسين الانصارى المشتهر بحاجى زين العطار

امداد حمد بني عد و اعداد سپاس بي .Beg. قياس مبدعي را

Zain ud-Dīn 'Alī, who traced his pedigree to 'Abd Ullah Anṣārī, was born A.H. 730, in Shīrāz, where his father, Jamāl ud-Dīn Husain, a physician of Iṣfahan, had settled A.H. 715. He stood high in the favour of Shāh Shujā' (who reigned A.H. 760—786), and was during sixteen years in constant attendance upon him. He died A.H. 806, leaving, besides the present work, the following medical treatises: Miftāḥ ul-Khazā'in, Tuḥfat ul-Mulūk, and Risālah dar Ṣifat i Mardān u Zanān. See a notice on his life written by his son in Or. 165, fol. 108.

The Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'i is so called from Badi' ul-Jamāl, the name of the princess to whom it is dedicated. The date of composition, which is found in some copies, as Add. 6001 and 17,950, and in Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 197, is A.H. 770.

The work is divided into two books (Ma-kālat). The first contains the simple medicaments in alphabetical order, fol. 3 b. The second, which treats of compound medicaments, fol. 298 b, comprises sixteen chapters (Bāb), treating of as many different kinds of preparations, as follows:

المعاجين المجوارشات الاطريفلات المربيات
 الاشربة والربوب اللعوقات السفوفات الحبوبات
 الاقراص ۱۱ الايارجات ۱۲ الشيافات ۱۰ القرياقات
 السنونات ۱۵ الادهان ۱۱ المراهم

Seo R. Seligmann, Ueber drei seltene Persische Handschriften, p. 24, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 109, Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 277, De Jong, Catal. Bibl. Acad. Reg., p. 227, and Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 13.

Add. 7711.

Foll. 253; 10 in. by 6\(^3\); 22 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 832 (A.D. 1429). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work.

ابو مسلم بن حسن سلطان الدست : Copyist بياضي

Foll. 251—53 contain Ibn Sinā's poem on the soul (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 402, xiii.), with a version in Persian verse, and an Arabic commentary.

Add. 17,950.

Foll. 286;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 7; 21 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sha'bān in the 26th year of the reign (of Aurangzīb), A.H. 94 (i. c. 1094, A.D. 1683).

The first Makalat of the same work, with copious marginal corrections.

Add. 6001.

Foll. 151;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 26 lines,  $5\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1109 (A.D. 1697-8).

The first Makalat of the same work.

Add. 23,559.

Foll. 270; 9½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 17th century.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The first Makalat of the same work.

Foll. 266—270 contain a fragment on various kinds of soil and of water, designated by their Hindū names.

حافظ محمد حسين ولد محمد على : Copyist

Add. 17,957.

Foll. 77; 9 in. by 6; 11 lines, 35 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Lahore, Rabī' I., in the fourth year of the reign, without designation of the sovereign; probably of the 17th century.

[EDWARD GALLEY.]

The second Maķālat of Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'ī, treating of compound medicaments. At the end is added a chapter on some Hindu preparations called Pāk, تراكيب هندى پاكات foll. 76 b—79.

Copyist: جانحیل

Add, 17,948.

Foll. 136;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sürat, A.H. 1222 (A.D. 1807).

جامع الفاظ عيسوى

A dictionary of drugs, written in four columns, comprising the names found in the Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'ī, with their Arabic, Persian, and Hindustani equivalents.

It was compiled, as stated at the end, in Sūrat, A.H. 1222, for a Doctor Pudget (?) . See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 459 b.

Egerton 1010.

Foll. 422;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in the 18th century.

كفايه مجاهديه

A manual of medicine.

Author: Manṣūr B. Muḥammad B. Aḥmad B. Yūsuf B. Ilyās, منصور بن احمد بن يوسف بن احمد الياسي

شکر و سپاس مر خالقی را که در خلقت .Beg.

The work has been lithographed, with the in Lueknow, A.H. 1290. The author is evidently the same as that of the treatise of anatomy already described, p. 467 b, who there calls himself Mansur B. Muhammad B. Ahmad. In a portion of the preface, which is omitted in the present copy, but is found in the next, as well as in the Lucknow edition, he dedicates the present manual to a sovereign to whose court he had been attracted by the wide-spread fame of his justice and liberality, and whose titulature bears a close resemblance to that which precedes the name of Pir Muhammad in the author's other work. The proper name of that prince, which is wanting in Add. 19,003, is supplied by the lithographed edition, in which it reads . مجاهد السلطنة والدين سلطان زين العابدين

The king thus designated is probably Sultan Zain ul-'Abidin of Kashmir, who lived at about the same time as Mīrzā Pīr Muhammad, having reigned from A.H. 826 to 877, and is described as a generous patron of arts and science. His conquest of Tibet and Panjab is amply sufficient to justify, in Oriental parlance, the epithet of "second Alexander," bestowed upon him by the, اسكندر ثاني author. That epithet has been mistaken for a proper name by A. Stewart, who describes the work, p. 107, as "dedicated to Sekunder Shah the Second, of Dhely, A.D. 1300." It has led the authors of the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 276, to the equally unfounded conclusion, that the prince to whom it is applied could be no other than 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad Shāh Khiljī, who reigned A.H. 695—716.

The work is divided into two Fanns, the first of which treats in two parts (Kism) of theoretical and practical medicine, and the second, of ailments and medicaments. They are subdivided as follows:-Fann I. Kism I. Theoretical medicine, comprising four Makālahs, viz., 1. substantial elements of health, اسباب ماوی صحت, i.e. constituent parts of the body and its organs, fol. 9 a. 2. Apparent conditions of health, اسباب موری صحت, i. e. temperaments and faculties, fol. 27 a. 3. Efficient eauses of health, اسباب such as air, motion, sleep, food, فاعلى صحت and drink, evacuation, age, habits, etc., fol. 32 a. 4. Various conditions and accidents of the body, and their symptoms, fol. 50 a. Kism II. Practical medicine, in five Makalahs, viz., 1. Preservation of health and general treatment, fol. 70 b. 2. Local diseases, in twenty Bahs, fol. 100 b. 3. Fevers, fol. 258 b. 4. Diseases of the external parts, fol. 280 b. 5. Animal poisons, fol. 310 b. Fann II., comprising two Makālahs, viz. 1. Simple aliments and drugs, fol. 332 a. 2. Compound aliments and medicaments, fol. 349 a.

Add. 19,003.

Foll. 187;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

The first portion of the same work, ending with Bab 4 of Makalah 2, Kism II., and corresponding to foll. 1—146 of the preceding copy.

Egerton 1011.

Foll. 103; 9 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in a cursive and rude character, apparently in the 18th century.

رجوع الشيخ الى صباه في القوة على الباه

A translation of the Arabic work which bears the above title, and which treats of the means of increasing, or restoring, the virile powers.

Translator: Muḥammad Sa'id uṭ-Ṭabib B. Muḥammad Ṣādiķ ul-Iṣfahāni, كحمد سعيد الطبيب ابن محمد صادق الاصفاني

لحمد لله الذي خلق الانسان من ماء معين ثم .Beg. حملناه

The translator says that, the above Arabic work, which he ascribes to Ahmad B. Yūsuf ush-Sharīf, being the best treatise written on the subject, he had translated it at the request of Sayyid Jābir. The version is divided, like the original, into two parts (Juz'), each of which comprises thirty chapters. The present copy breaks off in the twenty-second chapter of Part II.

Hāji Khalifah, who mentions the work without author's name, vol. iii. p. 349, says that it had been translated into Turkish for Sultan Salīm in A.H. 940.

Add. 17,951.

Foll. 372; 12 in. by 7; 29 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

معدر الشفاء سكندرشاهي

A treatise on Indian medicine.

Author : Bhuvah B. Khavāş Khān, بهوه بن خواصفان

حمد خدايرا كه بحكمت بالغه وقدرة كامله Beg. ماد

Miyān Bhuvah, or Bhūvah, son of Khavāṣ Khān, is mentioned by Nizām ud-Dīn Aḥmad in the Ṭabakāt i Akbarshāhī, Add. 6543, foll. 124, 132, 135, and, after him, by Firishtah, vol. i. pp. 330, 345, 350, as one of the greatest Amīrs of the reign of Sikandar Shāh Lodī (A.H. 894—923). He is designated, like his father, by the title of Khavāṣ Khān, and is described in one place as Lord of the Chamber جاب خاص, and in another as Chief Justice عدل. Having incurred the displeasure of Sultan Ibrāhīm, the successor of Sikandar Shāh, he was cast into prison, soon after that king's accession in A.H. 923, and was put to death two years later. His name, which is written بروة in the best MSS. of the above quoted works, has been changed to بروة in the Bombay edition of Firishtah, and to Bhoory in Briggs' translation, vol. i. pp. 566, 594, 597. Compare the extracts from Mushtākī in Sir H. Elliot's History of India, vol. iv. p. 451, notes, and p. 544.

It appears from the preface that the author, having represented to Sikāndar Shāh that Greek medicine was not suitable to the constitution of the natives of India, obtained His Majesty's assent to the composition of the present treatise, which was compiled and translated from Indian, i.e. Sanscrit, works enumerated in the text, A.H. 918.

The preface, and an extract from the work, have been published, with a German translation, by Dr. Haas, Zeitschrift der D. Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. xxx. pp. 630—642, and an account of the work, from a Hamburg MS., which contained neither title nor author's name, will be found in Dietz's Analecta Medica, p. 171. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 108, and Mehren, Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 10.

Contents: Mukaddimah. Definition of medicine, its value, and its origin, fol. 6 a. Bāb I. Introduction to therapeutics, على, or, in Sanscrit, Sūtra Sthān, in thirtytwo ehapters (Faṣl), fol. 7 b. Bāb II. Structure of the human body, and anatomy of its several parts, Sārīrak Sthān, in nine chapters, fol. 68 b. Bāb III. Diagnosis and treatment of diseases, Nīdān u Chikitsā Sthān, in eightyseven chapters, fol. 90 a.

The work is stated in the endorsement, fol.5 a, to be commonly known as طب سكندرى.

A full table of contents is prefixed, foll. 2—4. The latter part of the MS., foll. 364—372, is in a late handwriting, although the subscription is dated Shāhjahānābād, Ṣafar, A.H. 1089.

The name of Miyan Bhuvah seems to point to a Hindu extraction, and, if he was, as he pretends in the preface, the real author of the Ma'dan ush-Shifa, he must have been well versed in the Sanscrit treatises from which that work is compiled. His identity, however, with the Hindu Misra Bhava, author of the Bhava Prakasa (see Aufrecht, Bodleian Catalogue, p. 309), which Dr. Haas, l.e. p. 641, considers possible, is more than doubtful. The title of Khan, which belonged to him, and to his father before him, suffices to show that both were Muslims. It is, moreover, quite impossible to suppose that a fierce Mulammadan zealot and ruthless persecutor of the Hindus, as Sikandar Shah is known to have been, could have conferred the highest offices of state upon men of Hindu faith.

Add. 16,745.

Foll. 646; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1079 (A.D. 1669). [WM. YULE.]

The same work, slightly imperfect at the beginning, with a table of contents, foll. 1—4.

محمد عارف ولد شيخ يحيى ساكن اودة : Copyist

Add. 18,680.

Foll. 877; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 17 lines, 3\frac{5}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unv\tilde{n} and ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

[J. Haddon Hindley.]

The same work, with a table of contents, foll. 1—7.

In identical notes written on the first and last pages it is stated by Muḥammad Vajih ud-Dīn, that he had purchased the MS. from the Masjid Akbarābādī on the 6th of Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1171.

Add. 16,746.

Foll. 371; 10½ in. by 6¾; 21 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

The same work, slightly imperfect at the end, and wanting the rubries.

Add. 17,947.

Foll. 230;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1060 (A.D. 1650).

دستور العلاج

A treatise on therapeuties.

Author: Sultan 'Ali Tabib Khurasani, سلطان على طبيب خراساني

سهاس و ستایش حضرت علیمی را که نسخه .Beg بی سقم

The author states in the preface that he composed this work in A.H. 933, and that he had previously spent forty years in the study and practice of the medical art in Khorasan and Māvarā un-Nahr, and especially at Samarkand, in the service of Abu 'l-Manṣūr Kūchkūnjī Khān (the Uzbak Khān, commonly called Kūchum Khān, who reigned from A.H. 916 to 936; see p. 104 a). It was written at the request of another prince, Abu l-Muzaffar Maḥmūd Shāh, who had called the author to the seat of his government, ولايت اجنى, and had been cured by him of a dangerous illness.

It is divided into the following two books (Maķālah): 1. Local diseases, in twenty-five chapters (Bāb), fol. 6 b. 11. General diseases, in eight Bābs, fol. 170 b. A table of contents is prefixed, foll. 1—4.

The same work is mentioned in Stewart's vol. 11.

Catalogue, p. 107, where it is stated to have been dedicated to "Abu Sa'id Bahādur Khān, Emperor of the Moghuls, A.D. 1334" (i.e. A.H. 734—5), and in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 277, where the same erroneous statement is repeated. The Dastūr ul-'Ilāj has been lately lithographed, together with the introduction described under the next number, in the Hindu Press, Dehli, without date.

Add. 17,946.

Foll. 143; 11½ in. by 6½; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in large Indian Nestalik; apparently in the 18th century.

مقدمه دستور العلاج

An introduction to the preceding work, by the same author.

Reg. جواهر حمد و ثنا خدایرا عزوجل که حکیم حاذق
This work is dedicated to Abu 'l-Ghāṣī Sulṭān Abū Sa'id, whom the author had attended for twenty years. It is stated to have been written subsequently to the Dastūr ul-'Ilāj, and as a complement to it.
It is divided into sixteen chapters (Bāb), treating of hygiene, of the definition of medicine, health and disease, pulse, crisis, etc.
It is described, with the preceding work, in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 277.

Abu Sa'id, son of Küchkunji, was raised to the Khanship after his father's death, A.H. 936, and reigned till A.H. 939; see p. 104 a, and Erskine, History of India under Baber, vol. ii. p. 99.

Add. 26,310.

Foll. 129; 9½ in. by 5¾; 15 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

A pharmacopæa قرابادین, in which compound medicaments are described in alphabetical order.

Author: Muzaffar B. Muhammad ul-Ḥusainī ush-Shifītī, مظفر بن محمد الحسيني الشفائي الحمد لله العليم الحكيم والصلوة على من اوتى Beg. الحكمة

The author, who was a poet as well as a physician, is mentioned by his townsman and contemporary, Taķī ud-Dīn, of Kāshān, in his Tazkirah, where he is stated to have died A.H. 963. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 22.

A Latin translation has been published by Father Ange de St. Joseph, of Toulouse, Carmelite monk and missionary, under the title of "Pharmacopæa Persica," Paris, 1681. The work is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 110, No. xxiii., Munich Catalogue, p. 135, Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 15, and by De Jong, Catal. Codd. Orr. Acad. Regiæ, p. 232.

Add. 23,560.

Foll. 311;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Shikastah-āmīz; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1099 (A.D. 1688).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

I. Foll. 2—98. A manual of medicine, ascribed in the heading علم علم علم ينبوع حكيم علم الدين الله ينبوع حكيم to Ḥakīm ʿImād ud-Dīn Maḥmūd. Beg. الدين محمود الحمد لله . . . اما بعد بدانكه آدمي مركبست

The author, who in some of his works calls himself Maḥmūd B. Mas'ūd, was a native of Shīrāz, and a near kinsman of a celebrated physician of the same city, Kamāl ud-Dīn Ḥusain, who died A.H. 953 (Tuḥfah i Sāmī, fol. 49). The author of the 'Alam Ārāi mentions him, Add. 16,684, fol. 43, among the great scholars who lived about the close of the reign of Shāh Ṭahmāsp, i.e. A.H. 984. He says that he was an eminent medical writer as well as a skilled physician, and that, after being attached for some time to the service of 'Abd Ullah Khān Istājlu, governor of Shirvan, he had been transferred by order of Shāh Ṭahmāsp to Mashhad. Ķāzī Nūr Ullah had in his youth studied under him the medical works of Mīr Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Manṣūr, a renowned philosopher of Shīrāz, who died A.H. 948; see Majālis ul-Mūminīn, Add. 23,541, fol. 381.

The work, which has no preface, is divided into nineteen chapters (Faṣl) of very unequal length, as follows: I. Preliminary notices, fol. 2 b. II.—xvi. Anatomy and diseases of the following parts of the body:—head, eye, ear, nose, mouth, throat, breast, heart, stomach, liver, gall-bladder and milt, kidneys and bladder, bowels, genital parts, and joints, fol. 5 a. xvii. Tumours, ulcers, etc., fol. 13 b. xviii. Fevers, fol. 14 b.

Fasl xix., which forms the main portion of the work, is subdivided into two sections (Kism), viz. 1. Aliments and drinks, fol. 20 a. 2. Simple and compound medicaments, classed according to their effect and the diseases for which they are used, fol. 46 a.

II. Foll. 98 6—214. An Arabic treatise on compound medicaments, entitled المركبات, and ascribed in the heading قرابادين and ascribed in the same writer (see Arabic Catalogue, p. 633 a).

In the preface the author states that he had applied himself from his childhood to the study of the standard medical works under his father and other physicians, and had carried on for nearly twenty years the practice of the healing art, when he repaired to the court of Shāh Tahmāsp, to whom he offered the present work. He adds that he was engaged upon the composition of a manual of medicine (probably the preceding treatise), which he had then brought down to the chapter treating of the anatomy of the tongue.

Foll. 215—218  $\alpha$  contain various medical recipes.

III. Foll. 218-262.

خفی علائی

A manual of medicine.

Author: Amir Sayyid Isma'il B. ul-Ḥasan B. ul-Ḥusain ul-Jurjāni, امير سيد اسمعيل بن الجرجاني

لحمد لله . . . اما بعد چنین کوید امیر سید . . . اما بعد اسمعیل

The author states in the preface that, after he had completed the Zakhirah i Khwārazmshāhī (see p. 466 b), he had been told by a prince whose name will be given further on, that a handy compendium of that voluminous work would be very desirable, and that he had, in compliance with that wish, written the present abridgment. He had given to it the name of Khafi, or "hidden," because it was written in two volumes of oblong shape, which could be conveniently carried by the owner in his boots. The second part of the title, 'Ala'i, is apparently derived from Ala ud-Daulah, one of the titles of the prince above mentioned. The author's patron is styled امير سيهسالار اجل سيد عالم عادل بها الدين عمدة الاسلام علاء الدوله ضياء المله . . . نظام المعالى قزل ارسلان ولى العهد ابو and in المظفر اتسز بن خوارزمشاة حسام امير المومنين an earlier copy, Add. 27,261, written A.H. امير سيهسالار بهاء الدين عمدة . الاسلام علاء ,814 الدوله و الدين ضياء الامه . . . نظام المعالى قزل ارسلان ابو المظفر اتسر بن خوارزمشاة حسام امير المومتين it would follow that the work was written in the reign of Muhammad Khwārazmshāh, A.H. 491—522, and for his successor, Atsiz, who was then commander of the army and heir apparent, a conclusion confirmed by the date which is assigned to the Khafī 'Alā'ī in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 106, viz. A.D. 1113, i. e. A.H. 506—7. It is also stated in the preface of the Aghrāz, as quoted by Haj.

Khal., vol. i. p. 368, that the present compendium was dedicated to Atsiz B. Khwārazmshāh.

The Khafi 'Alā'i consists of two parts, treating severally of theoretical and practical medicine. They are subdivided as follows. Part I., in two Makālahs, viz., 1. Preservation of health, in sixteen Bābs, fol. 219 a. 2. Diagnosis of disease, in seven Bābs, fol. 232 b.

Part II., comprising the following seven Maķālahs:—1. Advice to physicians, fol. 238 a. 2. Treatment of local diseases, in eighteen Bābs, fol. 238 b. 3. Fever, measles, and smallpox, fol. 257 a. 4. Tumours, sores, and wounds, fol. 260 a. 5. Fractures, bruises, and dislocations, fol. 261 b. 6. Treatment of the hair and of the skin diseases, fol. 261 b. 7. Antidotes, fol. 262 a.

IV. Foll. 262—264. Extract from the Jāmi' ul-Favā'id i Yūsufī, جامع التخاب كتاب جامع القوايد يوسفي

Yūsufī is the Takhallus of Yūsuf B. Muhammad, a physician of Herat, who lived under Bābar and Humāyūn. His medical works are the following: Fava'id i Akhyar, written A.H. 913, Kasidah fi Hifz Sihhat, i. e. a poem on hygiene, dedicated to Babar, A.H. 937, Riyaz ul-Adviyah, written for Humāyūn, A.H. 946, 'Ilāj ul-Amrāz, a versified treatise of therapeutics, and the above work, Jāmi' ul-Favā'id, which is a commentary on the preceding. See Fleischer, Leipzig Catalogue, p. 511, Krafft's Catalogue, p. 148, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 112, Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. pp. 279, 280, Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 564, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 261. It is doubtful whether he may be identified with the author of the well known manual of epistolary composition called Badā'i' ul-Inshā, or Inshā i Yūsufī, which in the Khulasat ul-Insha, Or. 1750, fol. 158, is ascribed to Hakim Yusufi, Munshi of Humayun.

V. Foll. 264 b-311.

موجز ڪهي

A manual of medicine, without author's name.

Beg. جنين كويد جامع اين مختصر كه چون پير شدم
The author states, in a short preamble, that, feeling his memory weakened by age, he had compiled this short compendium from the most esteemed Arabic and Persian works, and had given it the name of Mūjiz Kummī because its small size would allow of its being carried in the sleeve (Kumm). The following Persian works are mentioned as sources: هداية الاجويني و كفاية احمد فرج و ذخيره خوارزمشاهي The last three were written by Sayyid Ismā'īl Jurjānī in the early part of the sixth century of the Hijrah (see p. 467 a).

The work is divided into thirty-eight chapters (Bab), subdivided into sections (Fasl), all of which are enumerated at the beginning. The chapters are as follows: I. Treatment of infants, fol. 266 b. II. Signs of the temperament, fol. 268 a. III. Seasons, ib. IV. Properties of various articles of food, fol. 268 b. v. Perfumes, fol. 270 a. VI. Garments, ib. VII. Bathing, ib. VIII. -xxx. Local diseases and their treatment, in the customary order, fol. 270 b. xxxi. Fevers, fol. 296 b. XXXII. Tumours, fol. 302 a. xxxiii. Sores, fol. 303 a. xxxiv. Skin diseases, fol. 303 b. xxxv. Treatment of the hair and skin, fol. 305 b. xxxvi. Bleeding and cupping, fol. 308 a. XXXVII. Pulse, fol. 309 a. XXXVIII. Urina, fol. 310 a.

Add. 18,543.

Foll. 385; 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 6; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1002 (A.D. 1593).

[J. H. STERNSCHUSS.]

جامع الجوامع

A treatise on materia medica.

Author: Afzal B. Yaḥyā Jīlānī, انضل بن يحيى جيلاني

حمد و ثنای بی پایان آفریننده، را که Beg. بلطائف حکمت خود

The author's name is found, as above, in the preface, fol. 2 b; but it is written by a second hand, and over an erasure. In the following subscription, which is in the same handwriting as the text, the transcriber, Muḥammad Ḥusain B. Ziyā ud-Dīn ul-Jurjānī, calls the author Kamāl ud-Dīn Afzal: فارغ شد از تسويد اين تاليف شريف وجمع و تحرير فارغ شد ابدان بعنوان اطول از مصنفات عاليحضرت منيف برعلم ابدان بعنوان اطول از مصنفات عاليحضرت الحجد اجل كال الدين افضل محمد حسين بن ضياء الدين الجرجاني در روز شنبه هيجدهم ماه ربيع الاول سنه اثنى و الف

The work is dedicated to Abul-Muzaffar Shāh 'Abbās (i.e. 'Abbās I., who reigned A.H. 996—1038).

Contents: Introduction (Mukaddimah), treating, in fourteen sections (Fā'idah), of medicaments, their degrees, preparation, and use, in general, fol. 3 b. Makālah I. Simple drugs, arranged according to the Abjad, fol. 20 a. Makālah II. Various kinds of compound medicaments, in twenty-four sections (Bāb), fol. 279 a. Makālah IV. Diseases of the skin and their treatment, in twenty-four chapters (Fasl), fol. 356 b.

Add. 23,557.

Foll. 304; 113 in. by  $7\frac{3}{4}$ ; 25 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shamākhī, Shīrvān, Ramazān, A.H. 1121 (A.D. 1709).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

I. Foll. 2-274.

تحفة المومنين

A work on materia medica.

Author: Muḥammad Mūmin Ḥusainī, محمد

هبحانك اللهم يا قدوس ويا طبيب النفوس Beg.

The author says in the preface that, having inherited the experience gathered by his father Mir Muhammad Zaman Tanakabuni Dailami, and his ancestors, and having himself practised the medical art according to their method, he had been induced to compile the present work by the inaccuracies which he had noticed in the then current pharmacopæa, Ikhtiyārāt i Badi'i (p. 469 a). He had based it on the most trustworthy authority on the subject, viz. the book entitled مالا يسع الطبيب جهله (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 632), and commonly called Jāmi' Baghdādī, to which he had made copious additions, gathered from the Jāmi' of Ihn Baitar, the Tazkirat Uli-l-Alhab of Da'ud ul-Antaki, the Mughni, the Shamil, the Kāmil ul-Adviyah, the Jāmi' ul-Adviyah of Amin ud-Daulah, etc., and, lastly, from several works of Indian physicians, such as Bahar, Charak, Sat Jog, Firuzshahi, Bhojdev, Susrut, and others. He adds, in conclusion, that, as his father and grandfather had been court-physicians to the Safavi sovereigns, and as he had himself attended the present ruler, Shah Sulaiman (A.H. 1077-1105), he had adorned his page with the exalted name of the last-named sovereign.

The work comprises two main divisions, the first of which contains five chapters called Tashkhis, and the second, which is termed Dasturat, consists of three parts (Kism), as follows:—

Tashkhis 1. On the reason of the divergence of the opinions of physicians respecting the nature, properties, and doses, of drugs, fol. 3 b. Tashkhis 2. On the qualities of simple drugs and aliments in general, and their preparation, fol. 5 b. Tashkhis 3. Nature and properties of simple drugs and aliments, in alphabetical order, fol. 9 b. Tashkhis 4. On the treatment of poisons, fol. 192 b. Tashkhīş 5. On weights, fol. 197 a.

Dastūrāt. Ķism I. Manipulation of simple drugs, in five sections (Ṭarīķ), fol. 198 b. Ķism II. Manipulation of compound medicaments, in twenty-four chapters (Bāb), fol. 208 b. Ķism III. Treatment of diseases.

As the last-named part is wanting in the present and other known copies, it appears probable that it never was written. The fifth section (Tarik) of Kism I. has been transposed in the present copy; it is found at the end of Kism II., foll. 262—274.

The author's Nisbah Tanakābunī is derived from Tanakābun, a Buluk of the district of Āmul, which is sometimes joined to Gīlān (see the Zeitschrift der D. Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. xxi., pp. 242, 245), and which appears to have been his birth-place. He quotes occasionally some local names of animals or plants as current in the dialect of Tanakābun. On the other hand, his acquaintance with the medical works and the simples of India shows that he had been living a considerable time in that country.

The Tuhfat ul-Müminin has been printed in Dehli, A.H. 1266, and in Isfahan, A.H. 1274. It is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 108, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 13, the Munich Catalogue, p. 134, and the Ouseley Collection, No. 402.

II. Foll. 276—304. A treatise on therapeutics, with the heading: وسالم حكيم علاء علاء الدين بن هبة الله سبزوارى در معالجات امراض بدن Author: Muḥammad 'Alā ud-Dīn B. Hibat Ullah Sabzavārī, called Ghiyāş uṭ-Ṭabīb, محمد علاء الدين بن هبة الله سبزوارى المدعو بغياث الطبيب

الحمد لله الذي خلق الانسان و جعله اشرف .Beg. مواليد الاركان

The work, which was compiled, as stated in the preface, at the request of some friends, from the standard works on the subject, is divided into fourteen chapters (Bāb), according to the organs affected. The author gives his name, as above, at the end, stating that the treatise was completed in Rābī's I., A.II. 871.

ابن محمد رضا محمد تقى الرازى : Copyist

On the first page of the MS. is a note, stating that it was purchased by Mīr Muhammad Hādī ul-Ḥusainī, of Ķazvīn, in the town of Shamākhī.

Add. 17,953.

Foll. 433;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 22 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century.

محفة المومنين Another copy of the Foll. 360-433, comprising the latter portion of the work, from the beginning of Tashkhīṣ 4 to the end of Ķism II., are in a later hand.

Add. 16,747.

Foll. 382; 12 in. by 8¼; 27 lines, 5¾ in. long; written by several hands, in Indian Nestalik; dated Rajab, the third year of 'Alamgīr II. (A.H. 1170, Ad. 1757).

[WILLIAM YULE.]

The same work.

Add. 6642.

Foll. 531; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently early in the 18th century. [J. F. Hull.]

The preface and the first three chapters (Tashkhīş) of the same work.

Add. 26,308.

Foll. 103; 12½ in. by 7; 23 lines, 5½ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

WM. ERSKINE.

A portion of the same work. It contains Kism 1. of the Dastūrāt, with the exception of its last section, Ṭarīk 5, and the whole of Kism 11. The 24th chapter of the latter, which treats of the diseases of birds of chase and their treatment, has a separate heading, and a preface not found in other copies.

Add. 26,311.

Foll. 187;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written on European paper, about the close of the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

A dictionary of simple drugs, extracted from the Tuhfat ul-Mūmīnīn, Tashkhīs 3, and written in tabulated form, with the addition of the Latin, and, in a few cases, of the French, equivalents.

On the first page is impressed a seal with the name ويتال كيونت (Vital Guyonnet ؛).

Egerton 1006 and 1007.

Two uniform volumes, containing respectively 256 and 257 foll.;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 125 (for 1125 = A.D. 1713).

طب الاكبر

A treatise on the symptoms of diseases and their treatment, translated from the Arabic work entitled شرح السباب و علامات (written for Mīrzā Ulugh Beg by Nafīs B. 'Ivaz Kirmānī; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 224).

Translator: Muḥammad Akbar, called Muhammad Arzānī, B. Mīr Ḥājī Muķīm, عمد اكبر عرف محمد ارزاني بن مير حاجي مقيم صحیح ترین کلامی که مشام ناطقه دانش آئین را Beg.

Mīr Muḥammad Akbar, better known as Shāh Arzānī, lived in India, where his medical works are in high repute. It is stated in the Yadgar Bahaduri, Or. 1652, fol. 96, that he first applied for instruction to Sayyid 'Alavi Khān, a well known Shīrāz physician, who had come to the court of Aurangzib A.H. 1115 (see the Mir'at Afitabnuma, fol. 132, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 157), and that, on his refusal, he betook himself to Shiraz in order to study medicine there. The dates of his works, however, range, as far as they can be ascertained, from A.H. 1112 to 1130. In the latest of them, Karabadin i Kādiri, the author gives the following list of his previous compositions: Tibb un-Nabi, translated from Jalal ud-Din Suyūţī, Tibb ul-Akbar, Mufarrih ul-Kulūb, Mizān ut-Tibb, Taarif ul-Amraz, and Mujarrabat i Akhari.

Muhammad Akbar says in his preface that, after completing the usual course of studies, and making himself acquainted with medicine, he had selected the "Sharh Asbāb va 'Alāmāt'' (whose author he does not name) for translation, as the best treatise on that science. He had omitted, however, in his version some superfluous arguments of the original work, and had made useful additions to it from the following books: Kanun, Hāvī, Aksarā'ī, Sadīdī, Mūjiz, Zakhirah (see p. 466), Kifāyah i Mujāhidiyyah (see p. 470), and others. The work was completed, he adds, in the year expressed by the above title, with deduction of the weak letters () and ,), i. e. 1122-10=A.H. 1112, and at the time when 'Alamgir, after subjugating the Deccan, "had washed the blood-stained spears of his victorious armies in the waters of the Kishnah."

After the capture of Sattarah and of the fortress of Parli, Aurangzib crossed the swollen stream of the Kishnah, or Kistnah, with great difficulty and considerable loss, in the month of Safar, A.H. 1112. See Ma'āṣir 'Alamgīri, p. 429. The same event is placed by Khāfī Khān, vol. ii. p. 473, in A.H. 1111. The Tibb ul-Akbar comprises seven-and-twenty chapters (Bāb) on local and general diseases, and an appendix (Khātimah) on compound medicaments and technical terms. It has been repeatedly printed in the East, Calcutta, 1830; Dehli, A.H. 1265; Bombay, A.H. 1264, 1275, and 1279; Teheran, A.H. 1275; and Lucknow, A.H. 1289. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 110, and Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 345.

Add. 17,949.

Foll. 45; 12 in. by 8½; 25 lines, 6½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1155 (A.D. 1742).

ميزان الطب

A manual of medicine by the same Muhammad Akbar.

Beg. How I have large the leginning that the had written this short manual for the use of his own children and other students. It comprises the following three Makālahs:

1. On symptoms, and the four qualities of heat, cold, moisture, and dryness, fol. 2 b.

11. On simple and compound medicaments, ib.

111. On diseases and their treatment, fol.

10 a.

The work has been printed in Calcutta, A.D. 1836, Cawnpore, 1874, and Lucknow, without date. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 111, and Ouseley's Collection, No. 400.

A leaf appended to the present volume contains a short notice on the Pārsī work, entitled شارستان چهار چین, written by the Bihdīn Bahrām Farhād in the time of Akbar.

Add. 17,954.

Foll. 113; 9½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sha'ban, A.H. 1221 (A.D. 1806).

مجربات اكبري

A treatise on compound medicaments by the same author.

The author, having written down on loose slips such recipes as he had obtained from experienced physicians, found it necessary to reduce them to order for his own convenience. Hence grew the present work. It is divided into a number of chapters (Bāb), in which the medicaments are arranged under the various diseases for which they are used.

A table of contents is prefixed to the present copy, and another is appended to it. The latter is said to have been transcribed from the author's autograph.

The Mujarrabāt i Akbarī has been printed in Lucknow, A.H. 1280, and in Bombay, A.H. 1276. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 110, and the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 11.

Add. 17,952.

Foll. 880;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated A. 1159 of Yardajird, Jumādā I., A.H. 1204 (A.D. 1789).

قراباديس قادري

A treatise on compound medicaments, by the same author.

Beg. ثناى كه شايان جناب مستطاب حضرت الهي The author states in the preface, after enumerating his previous works, that he had commenced the present in A.H. 1126, and that he had given it the name of Karābādīn i Kādirī, because he was a disciple of the most holy Sayyid 'Abd ul-Kādir Jîlānī (i. e. a member of the Kādirī order). In the chapter on China root, fol. 832, A.H. 1130 is mentioned as the current year.

The work is divided into three-and-twenty Bābs, in which medical preparations are described under the diseases for which they are intended. In each Bāb they are arranged in alphabetical order.

The Karābādīn i Kādirī has been printed in Bombay, A.H. 1277, and in Dehli, A.H. 1286. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 110, xx.

Add. 26,309.

Foll. 9; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in small Shikastah-āmīz in the early part of the present century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

Author: Fīrūz B. Mullā Kā'ūs,

Beg. برارباب طبايع واذهان سليمة و اصحاب عقول A short tract in defence of the inoculation of the smallpox.

The tract was written, shortly after the introduction of inoculation in Sūrat, with the object of refuting the religious objections which Dastūr Barzūrjī, a Pārsī of Rustampūrah, had raised against the practice. It contains some Zend and Pehlevi texts in the original character.

Mullā Fīrūz is known as the editor of the Desatir, published in Bombay, 1818, and the author of a treatise on the intercalary year of the Parsis, Bombay, 1828; see Zenker, vol. i. p. 108.

FARRIERY AND FALCONRY. Add. 14,057.

Foll. 90;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a rude Indian Shikastahāmīz, apparently in the 19th century.

I. Foll. 3-60.

ترجمه سالهوتر

A treatise on farriery, translated from the Sanscrit work known as Sālihotra.

عبد الله ,Translator : 'Abd Ullah B. Ṣafī, عبد الله بن صفى

Heg. الصورت المحدولة الذي خلق الافراس على احسن الصورت 'Abd Ullah states, in a short preamble, that he had, in the reign of Sultān Ahmad Valī ul-Bahmanī, and by his order, translated into Persian the Sālihotra from the original of Durgarāsī, son of Sargarāsī, بنده ضعيف عبد الله بن صفي بر فرمان شاه جهانيناه ولحيف عبد الله بن صفي بر فرمان شاه جهانيناه از درك راسي بن سركراسي ساكن قصبه المله ترجمه سالهوتر را فارسي كرده

He adds that the work was written in the city of Kulbargah. The date of composition which follows is, in the present copy, defectively written "A. H. . . . hundred and ten," سنه عشر مایه سنه الهجریه. The same work is dated in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 96, A.D. 1407 (A.D. 810). As, however, Ahmad Shah Vali Bahmani reigned from A.H. 825 to 838, that date cannot be correct.

Contents: Preface and table of chapters, fol. 3 b. Legendary account of the creation of the horse, which is said to have been originally endowed with wings, fol. 4 b. Defects of the horse, in fifty-two chapters, (Faşl) fol. 5 a. Good points of the horse, in thirteen chapters, fol. 22 a. Signs of the age of horses, fol. 26 a. Diseases of the horse, with their treatment, and management of the horse, fol. 29 b.

The treatise is illustrated with a great number of coloured drawings of a rather rude style of execution.

Salihotra is the traditional inventor of the veterinary art. He is stated in the introductory chapter to have been instructed by his father, Aspasti, in the knowledge and management of horses, while in the next following work he appears as a Brahman, the master of Susruta. The same name, however, is defined by Abul-Fazl, in the A'in i Akbari, vol. ii. p. 144, as applying to the art itself, and it has come to be used as a common designation of the works in which it is set forth. See Weber, Verzeichniss der Sanskrit Handschriften, p. 291, Elliot, Bibliographical Index, p. 263, and History of India, vol. v. p. 574.

II. Foll. 61-73. A treatise, without title, on the same subject.

لحمد لله رب العالمين . . . سلطان غياث . Beg. الدنيا والدين

In the opening lines the Sultan Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Muḥammad Shāh B. Maḥmūd Shāh Khiljī is mentioned as the reigning sovereign, and the 21st of Muḥarram, A.H. 983, منه ثلث ,as the date of composition. As Ghiyāş ud-Dīn B. Maḥmūd, king of Mālvah, who is here meant, reigned from A.H. 873 to 906, the above date is obviously wrong; it is probably a clerical error for A.H. 883.

The work is divided into twelve chapters (Bāb), subdivided in sections (Faṣl), and enumerated at the beginning, as follows:

1. Breeds of various countries, fol. 62 a.

2. Mode of choosing horses, fol. 62 b.

3. Omens derived from the motions of horses, fol. 63 a.

4. Colours of horses, ib.

5. Their blemishes, fol. 63 b.

6. Their limbs, fol. 65 b.

7. Diseases and remedies, fol. 66 b.

8. Bleeding, fol. 69 a.

9. Diet and food, fol. 69 b.

10. Fattening, and treatment of sores, fol. 71 b.

11. How to know the age of horses by their teeth.

In the body of the work, however, the last chapter is replaced by the two following:

11. On various remedies, fol. 73 a. 12. On lucky and unlucky marks in horses, fol. 73 b.

A fuller copy of the same work, with the title of Kurrat ul-Mulk, will be found among the Elliot MSS., Or. 1697, art. ii. See also Elliot, Bibliographical Index, p. 263.

III. Foll. 74—89. Treatise on the diseases of horses and their treatment, imperfect at the beginning and end.

Prefixed to the volume is an English letter written by "Tirmal Rão, son of Rão Bahadoor Venkut Rão, principal Sudr Ameen of Dharwar," on sending the work to the Rev. John Wilson, D.D., president of the Bombay branch of the Royal Asiatic Society. It is dated Dharwar, 20th August, 1840.

Add. 16,854.

Foll. 122; 8 in. by 5. [WILLIAM YULE.] I. Foll. 3-74; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik on gold-sprinkled paper, with gold-ruled margins, in the 17th century.

A treatise on farriery, translated from the Sanscrit, with a preface by Kwajah 'Abd Ullah, entitled 'Abd Ullah Khan Bahadur خواجه عبد الله المخاطب بعبد الله عبد الله خان بهادر فيروز جنك

اسب فکرت چو زین کند دانا Beg. به که کوید تخست حمد خدا

'Abd Ullah Khān says that the sages of India had written of old, on the knowledge of the horses and their maladies, a treatise in the Sanscrit tongue, consisting of 16,000 Slokas. Most people being ignorant of that language, he called together, in the reign of His exalted Majesty, Shāhjahān, some Pandits well versed in Sanscrit, and had that work, there designated as سالوتر اسپان, translated into Persian. He adds that the original copy in his possession had been found, with other Hindu books, in some chests captured by him after defeating the rebel Amar Singh, Rānā of Chitor.

'Abd Ullah Khān had been sent against the Rana by Jahangir in the fourth year of the reign (A.H. 1018); but Amar Singh did not make his submission until A.H. 1023. 'Abd Ullah Khān died A.H. 1054, at the age of seventy years. See Ma'aşir ul-Umara, Tazkirat ul-Umara, and Elliot's History, vol. vi. pp. 335-9.

Contents: Introduction, treating of the ercation of the horse and of its colours, partly abridged from a Persian Faras Namah, written in the time of Mahmud Ghaznavi, fol. 6 b. Knowledge of horses, and of their good and bad signs, in twelve Babs, fol. 13 a. Diseases of the horse, and their treatment, in thirty-eight Babs, fol. 33 b. This copy contains three coloured drawings ' of horses.

An English translation of 'Abd Ullah Khān's version has been published by Joseph Earles, Calcutta, 1788. See also Sir H. Elliot, Bibliographical Index, p. 264, note, and Mehren, Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 16, no. xxxix.

II. Foll. 75—121; 16 lines, 23 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1098 (A.D. 1687).

The same work.

الاختدام بكرمه العميمه والاعتصام بحبله لجسيمه Beg. This copy wants the preface and introduction; it begins with a short statement that the work had been translated from the Indian into the Persian language in A.H. 926. But in spite of this, and other minor discrepancies, the substantial identity of the two versions is fully established by their general verbal agreement, especially in the Persian verses frequently inserted in the text.

Add. 7716.

Foll. 47; 6 in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $2\frac{3}{5}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century. [Cl. J. RICH.]

مضمار دانش

A treatise on farriery.

Author: Nizām ud-Din Alimad, نظام

سپاس بیقیاس خداوند جهان را که ابلق .Beg

The author is called in the heading of another copy, Add. 23,562, Mīrzā Nizām, son of Mulla Sadra.

It appears from the preface that this treatise was compiled from earlier works by order of Shāh 'Abbās II. (A.H. 1052—1077). Reference is made, fol. 45 a, to a census of the Shāh's horses taken A.H. 1067, and, as it is stated further on that four years had elapsed since then, it follows that the date of composition is A.H. 1071.

Contents: Mukaddimah. Creation and domestication of the horse, fol. 3 b. Marhalah I. Its good and bad qualities, and other things relating to the knowledge of horses, in nine Bābs, fol. 6 b. Marhalah II. Rules concerning the rearing of horses and the running of races, in nine Bābs, fol. 21 b. Marhalah II. Treatment of the diseases of the horse, in nine Bābs, fol. 31 a. Khātimah, on the horses of the Shāh, and on amulets, fol. 44 b.

Add. 8989.

Foll. 87; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 3 in long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

Another copy of the same work, wanting a few lines at the beginning.

Add. 23,562.

Foll. 92; S<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 5<sup>2</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; 21 lines, 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub> in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1213 (A.D. 1799). [ROBERT TAYLOR.] I. Foll. 1—48. The same work.

II. Foll. 49-67. Another treatise on farriery, with the heading ساله فرسنامه,

Author: Hazin, حزين

سواران مضمار بندگی و سرافکند کی را چه مجال .Beg.

The author, who has been already mentioned, p. 372 b, says that he had composed in his youth, and in his native place, an extensive work on farriery, and that, unable to procure a copy of it in India, where he was residing, he had now written what he calls a mere sample of his former work.

The earlier Faras Nāmah here referred to is mentioned by Ḥazīn in his memoirs, Balfour's edition, p. 97. It was written in Isfahan about A.H. 1127.

The present treatise comprises nine sections termed Hulyah, on the knowledge of horses and their diet, and ten chapters (Fasl) on the diseases of horses and their treatment.

III. Foll. 67—90. A treatise on zoology, with the heading رساله در خواص الحيوان, by the same Shaikh Ḥazīn, who here calls himself Muḥammad B. Abī Ṭālib uz-Zāhidī Jīlānī, surnamed 'Alī, ابن ابن طالب الزاهدي جيلاني

هجمد المشتهر بعلى سپاس بى قياس كه مدارك اوهام Beg. سپاس بى قياس كه مدارك اوهام This tract is called in another copy, Or.

207, II., Tazkirah i Saidiyyah.

Contents: Mukaddimah. Legal precepts concerning hunting and the slaying of animals, fol. 67 b. Bāb 1. Account of some animals of land and sea, arranged in alphabetical order, fol. 72 b. Bāb 11. Origin of animal life and its nature, fol. 88 a. Bāb 111. Senses and faculties of animals, fol. 89 b.

IV. Foll. 90—92. A short tract on the weight of coins and on legal measures in Khorasan, with the heading: رساله در اوزان مثقال و درهم و دینار و غیره

Author: the same Ḥazīn, who here calls himself 'Alī B. Abi Ṭālib ul-Jīlānī, على بن ابى اليلانى طالب لليلانى الخمد الله . . . وبعد انقر فقراء باب الله Beg.

Add. 23,563.

Foll. 169; 8½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Naskhi, dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1246 (A.D. 1830). [Robert Taylor.] A transcript of the preceding MS.

Add. 23,561.

Foll. 100; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 12 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 19th century. [Robert Taylor.]

11 2

خيل نامه

A treatise on farriery, without author's name.

حمد بیعد و مدح بیعد حضرت حکیم علی .Beg. الاطلاق را

It is divided into two books (Kitāb), the first of which treats of the knowledge of horses and of their training, in forty chapters, and the second, of the diseases of the horse and their treatment, in sixty chapters.

The work is noticed by Fluegel in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 553, where the contents are fully stated.

Add. 7715.

Foll. 80;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 12 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Baghdād, Ramazān, A.H. 1204 (A.D. 1790). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work.

Add. 19,528.

Foll. 63;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 19th century. [Sir Tho. Phillips.]

A portion of the same work, extending from the second chapter of book 1. to the twenty-ninth of book 11.

Or. 374.

Foll. 77;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 16 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, written in eursive Persian Naskhi, probably in the 13th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

A treatise on falconry, without author's name.

It is imperfect at beginning and end. What is now the first leaf of the original MS., fol. 6, contains the end of a table of contents, showing that the work comprised 135 chapters (Bāb), and the beginning of Bāb 1, which is as follows:

باب اول بدانکی این شکره جون بیدا شد روایت

میکنند از نصر بن لیث و از مهدی بن اهرم کفتند دیده ایم کتاب بهرام بن شابور و استادان بابل و جنان یاد کرده بودن در کتاب که یافتم کتاب خاقان اعظم ملك ترك و ذکر کرده بود در کتاب که من جنان مهوش شکره بودم تا خواستم که کتاب سازم در شکره و ازان یادکار باشد از من

This first chapter contains a legendary account of an ancient work from which the present treatise purports to be derived. Written by the sages of the town of Balnas it passed, in the time of Alexander, شهر بلناس and Aristotle, to Alexandria, and subsequently to Antioch. When the empress Helen and her son Constantine, wishing to force a new religion on their people, resolved to burn the contents of the royal library, it was rescued with some other books, and conveyed to Baghdad (sic), where it was translated into Syriae. Hearing of its existence, the Khākān of the Turks, who was passionately fond of falconry, sent for it, and had it translated by a learned Turk of Pāriyāb i Marv, پارياب مرو. Then follow various traditions relating to the invention of hawking, which is ascribed in turn to king Demetrius, to Shapur B. Salm, to Abul-Haris Mu'aviyah, to a Roman emperor called and to Constantine.

The following chapters, Bāb 2—30, foll. 13 b—35, treat of various kinds of birds of prey, the names of which are given in Persian, Arabic, Turkish and Greek, of their selection and training, and of their appearance in a state of health. The remaining chapters treat of the diseases to which they are liable, and of their treatment. The present copy breaks off before the end of Bāb 131.

Among authorities occasionally adduced are Ghitrif B. Kudāmah, described as living at the court of Hārūn al-Rashīd, Mahdī B. Ahram, the Khākān of the Turks, and Khalīl of Māvarā un-nahr, a contemporary of the author.

It may be noticed as a dialectic peculiarity that the third person of the plural is generally written without the final s, as use for section of the plural is generally written without the final s, as use for section of the plural in form with the infinitive.

Foll. 2—5 contain a short preamble and a table of chapters, written apparently in the 17th century. On the first page is written the title ميديه, and on the fly-leaf بثكرة. The passage above quoted shows that بشكرة, the common designation of hunting birds, is there applied to the work itself.

For Oriental works on falconry, see Hammer Purgstall, Falknerklee, bestehend aus drei ungedruckten Werken über die Falknerei, Pesth, 1840.

Egerton 1013.

Foll. 108; 9 in. by 5½; 13 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Rabi I., the thirtieth year of the reign (probably of Muhammad Shāh, i.e. A.H. 1161, A.D. 1748).

باز نامه

A treatise on falconry.

Author: Muhibb 'Ali, surnamed Khān Khās Maḥalli B. Nizām ud-Din 'Ali Marghu-lāni, على الملقب بخان خاص محلى ابن نظام المدين على مرغلاني

Beg. بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم طاير فرخنده حى قديم Muḥibb 'Ali Khān, son of Nizām ud-Dīn 'Alī Khalifah, prime minister of Bābar, was raised to the Khanship in the first year of Akbar's reign, and died as governor of Dehli, A.H. 989. See Erskine, History of India under Baber, vol. i. p. 385, Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 448, Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 87, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 420.

The author states that he was nearly sixty years old at the time of writing, and that, having from his youth upwards accompanied illustrious monarchs on the chase, he had acquired considerable experience. He dedicates the work to Akbar, whose skill and prowess in the hunting field he praises at great length.

The work is divided into sixty-one chapters (Bāb), a full table of which is given in the preface.

Contents: Preface, fol. 2 b. Precepts of the law relating to the chase, fol. 9 b. Qualifications of a perfect huntsman (Mīr Shikār), fol. 12 b. Capture and breeding of hawks, fol. 13 a. How to select hawks and other kinds of hunting birds, fol. 20 a. Signs of health and disease, fol. 24 a. Directions relating to hunting in general, and to the diet and training of the different kinds of hunting birds, fol. 26 b. Diseases of hawks, and their treatment, fol. 68 b. Snares and decoys, fol. 87 b. Selection and training of panthers, ;2, fol. 101 a.

Egerton 1012.

Foll. 124; 9\(\frac{3}{4}\) in. by 5\(\frac{1}{2}\); 21 lines, 3\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-Amīz, apparently in the 17th century.

باز نامه

A treatise on falconry.

Author: Bahādur,

باز طبعم خواهش برواز کرد Beg. پر زدن لاجین دل آغاز کرد

Bahādur is the poetical surname assumed by the author in a versified preamble, foll. 1—5, containing eulogies on 'Abd ul-Ķādir Jilānī, on his own spiritual guide, Mīr Muḥammad Ashraf, and on the reigning sovereign, Aurangzīb. He states in the next-following prose preface, that he had undertaken the present work at the urgent request of Ja'far Beg, whom he ealls his master in the craft, ارستاد, and of his own brothers, La'l Beg and Ḥabīb Ullah, adding further on that he had written it in the town of Bhaskar قصبه بيكر, Sūbah of Berār Bālāghāth, in the 25th year of the reign of 'Alamgīr, corresponding to A.H. 1091. It must be observed, however, that in the poetical preamble, fol. 5 a, mention is made of the capture of Sanbhā, which took place A.H. 1101.

The work is divided into forty-three chapters (Bāb), a list of which is given at the end of the preface, fol. 8. The first thirty-nine treat very fully of the training of hawks and other hunting birds, and of their employment in the chase. Then follow—Bāb xL. Diseases of hunting birds, in sixty-eight sections (Faṣl), fol. 84 b. Bāb xLI. Their treatment, in as many sections, fol. 93 b. Bāb xLII. Miscellaneous instructions, in four sections. The present copy breaks off before the end of the fourth section of this last Bāb.

ALCHEMY AND CABALISTIC.

Add. 17,956.

Foll. 127; 12 $\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{4}$ ; 10 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in large Indian Nestalik; dated August, A.D. 1807.

A treatise on alchemy ascribed to Tankulūshāh the Great, کتاب تنگلوشاه کبیر

اینست کنج کهر شاهی که در بیان فضه است و در کنج کهر بیان ذهب است

It is divided into sections bearing the following titles: مفاتیج الکنوز مصابیج الانوار انوار سبعه سبعه .

For an account of that mythical sage, more commonly known as an astrologer, see Chwolsohn, Ueberreste der altbabylonischen Literatur, p. 130, and Gutschmid, Zeitschrift der D. M. Gesellschaft, vol. xv. p. 79.

شيو لعل واد سندر امل قوم ناكر Copyist:

Add. 17,966.

Foll. 259; 10 in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Indian Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 7-101.

هفت احباب

"The seven friends," a treatise on alchemy.

حمد ثنا قیومی را که عجز عقول ذریات ادم

The author of the preface, who calls himself Hamid ud-Din Nāgorī, states that the work was the joint production of himself and six friends, each having contributed one of the seven parts (Bāb), of which it consists, in the following order:

I. Ḥamīd ud-Dīn Nāgorī, fol. 12 b. II. A Hindu Jogī, originally called Gyān, who is stated to have been brought over to the Muslim faith by the six others, and to have taken the name of Saʿādatmand, fol. 23 b. III. Shaikh Sulaimān Mandu'ī, fol. 51 b. IV. Mīr Sayyid Muḥammad Hāshim Bukhārī, v. Mīrān Sayyid Ṭayyib Audhī, fol. 62 b. VI. Shaikh Naṣīr ud-Dīn Nārnolī, fol. 76 a. VII. Maulānā Muḥammad Ṣādik Multānī, fol. 81 b.

The above names are those of Indian Shaikhs who lived in very different periods, as Ḥamīd ud-Dīn Nāgorī, who died A.H. 643, Shaikh Sulaimān Mandu'ī, who died A.H. 944, and Mīr Sayyid Ṭayyib of Bilgrām, who died A.H. 1066; see Riyāz ul-Auli'yā, Or. 1745, foll. 109, 131, and Or. 1804, fol. 38. Their connection with the present work is evidently fictitious.

Bāb II. contains a long piece in Hindī verse, with Persian glosses. Bāb IV. which has been transferred to the end, foll. 100—101, is imperfect.

II. Foll. 102—119. An alchemical tract, treating especially of the tincture of metals, written, as stated in the heading, by Abu Alī Sīnā for Khwājah Ḥusain بيل [sic].

چنین کوید خواجه ابو علی سیفا رحمة الله علیه . Beg. که میان من و میان خواجه ابو الحسن مشهدی

This is apparently a translation of Ibn Sīnā's Arabic treatise on alchemy, written for Abul-Ḥasan Sahl B. Muḥammad us-Sahlī, and mentioned by Ibn Abi Uṣaibi'ah, A.D. 7350, fol. 127 b, رسانة الى الشيخ ابي الحسن. Compare Wüstenfeld, Geschichte der Arabischen Aertzte, p. 72, no. 39.

III. Foll. 119 b—129 b. Short alchemical extracts, with a passage of Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī, relating to philosophy and its divisions.

IV. Foll. 131-254.

تحفة الملوك

A Hindustani treatise on medicine and magic, without author's name.

Add. 7713.

Foll. 237; 74 in. by 5; 19 lines, 35 in. long; written in a fair Naskhi, probably in the 13th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A treatise on the construction of the cabalistic squares called ارفاق, in which the numbers added up in any direction produce the same total, and of some other arithmetical figures, with numerous diagrams.

The work is divided into a Mukaddimah, five chapters (Bāb), and a Khātimah. The headings of the Bābs are as follows:

ا در ذکر وقت مجرد وشرایط وضع ای Fol. 3 a. در ذکر وقت تام وانج مناسب انست . Fol. 126 a. تام وانج مناسب انست . Fol. 165 a. در ذکر شطری از نوادر وغرایب اوضاع اعداد . Fol. 177 b. ع در وضع اسامی والقاب وانج در عداد ای بوذ . Fol. 228 b. ومدور . وضع اعداد وقت در اشکال مثلث ومدور . Fol. 228 b.

This copy wants the preface, a portion of the introduction, and all but a few lines of the Khātimah, which treats of the virtues of the above figures.

A spurious beginning, written by a later hand, ascribes the work to Abu-Ma'shar Balkhī.

On the last page is found the date Rajab, A.H. 608, مرتاریخ یوم السبت شهر رجب سنه ۱۰۸ probably copied from the original subscription of the MS.

Add. 23,582.

Foll. 30;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, written in Naskhi; dated Rajab, A.H. 1225 (A.D. 1810). [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

فال نامد

A book of divination, in which certain predictions or omens are arranged under the names of five and twenty prophets.

بدانکه این فال نامه ایست که استادان .Beg. قرارداده باسامی جناب پیغمبران

Foll. 26—30 contain some verses by Valishī and Sa'dī, transcribed by 'Alī Rizā, surnamed Mīrzā Bābā, Nūrbakhshī Shīrāzī.

ARTS AND GAMES.

Add. 16,853.

Foll. 190; 7½ in. by 4¾; 15 lines, 3½ in. long, written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. YULE.]

آداب الحرب والشجاعة

A treatise on the art of war.

Author: Sharif Muḥammad [B.] Manṣūr [B.] Saʿid etc., Kuraishi, surnamed Mubārak-shāh, commonly called Fakhr Mudabhir, شریف محمد منصور سعید . . . . قریشی ملقب بمبارکشاه معروف بفخر مدبر

حمد و ثنای بی نهایة و سپاس و ستایش . Beg. بی غایة ان صانعی را

The author, who in the preface traces his genealogy up to Abu Bakr, mentions incidentally, fol. 99 b, as his maternal ancestor, the Amīr Bilkātigīn, "who succeeded to the Great Chamberlain Alptigīn as king of Ghaznīn, where he reigned four years (A.H. 359—362), and was the father-in-law of Sultan Yamīn ud-Daulah Maḥmūd Ghāzī." (See Raverty's Ṭabakāt i Nāṣirī, p. 73, notes, and Elliot's History, vol. ii. p. 267, note, and p. 479).

Relating, in another passage, fol. 186 a, a marvellous instance of recovery from a deadly wound, the author states that it had come under his observation in Multān, fifteen years after the defeat of Khusrau Shāh by 'Alā ud-Dīn Ghūrī (A.H. 550; see Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 108), he being at the time (i.e. about A.H. 565) a mere youth , while in the preface he describes himself as old and infirm. Several other references to Multān make it probable that it was his native place.

He dedicates the present work to the Pādishāh of Islām, Shams ud-Dunyā wad-Dīn Abul-Muzaffar Īltatmish us-Sulṭān, Nāṣir Amīr ul-Mūminīn (who ruled the empire of Dehli from A.H. 607 to 633), and calls himself the least of his servants.

The work is divided into thirty-four chapters, which are enumerated in the preface, foll. 9, 10. The following table, written by Major Yule on the fly-leaf, gives a fair idea of the contents:—

Chapters 1 to 4. On the regal character and duties, fol. 12 b. 5. On the choice of ministers, fol. 51 b. 6. Intercourse with foreign states by ambassadors, fol. 56 b. 7. On counsel, and avoiding the extremity of war, fol. 66 a. 8. On horses, their qualities and use, fol. 71 a. 9. On their marks; on breaking in for the saddle, fol. 76 b. 10. On discovering the age of horses by inspecting their teeth; on food and medicine, fol. 87 a. 11. On the arms and armour of cavalry, fol. 96 b. 12. On reviewing an army, and preservation of order, fol. 109 b. 13. On encampments and changing of ground, fol. 112 a. 14. On guards, rounds, videttes and spies, fol. 115 a. 15. On night attacks, fol. 118 a. 16. On placing ambushes, fol. 119 b. 17. On the choice of a field of battle, 'fol. 123 b. 18. On arranging the several descriptions of troops, fol. 126 b. 19. Order of battle, fol. 129 a. 20. On coming to action, and attention of commanders of corps, fol. 131 a. 21. On engaging battle, fol. 133 b. 22. On public worship in front of the enemy, fol. 138 b. 23. On the courtesies of the field, fol. 141 b. 24. On the unity and composition of an army, fol. 146 b. 25. On religious wars, fol. 151 a. 26. On plunder, fol. 154 b. 27. On the siege of fortified places, fol. 159 a. 28. On the efficacy of the prayers of the pious in an army, fol. 166 b. 29. On the omens of victory, fol. 172 b. 30 and 31. On rewards and punishments, fol. 176 a. 32. On gymnastic exercises and military weapons, fol. 180 a. 33. On the fact that, whether you fice like a poltroon, or face the enemy like a hero. you will not die till your day come, fol. 185 a. 34. On certain maxims which it equally behaves the sovereign, subject, and soldier, to attend to, fol. 188 b.

The MS. breaks off before the end of the last chapter.

The work contains a great number of historical anecdotes, relating principally to the Ghaznavis.

Add. 26,306.

Foll. 62; 6\frac{1}{4} in. by 4\frac{1}{4}; 17 lines, 2\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in small Nestalik, with 'Unvan and ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. Erskine.]

هدایت الرامی

A treatise on archery, in twenty-seven chapters (Bāb):

Author: Muḥammad Budha'i, commonly called Sayyid Mir 'Alavi, عرف سيد عرف سيد علوى حمد وثنای مر خدایرا جل و علا آن توانای که .Beg.

It is dedicated to 'Alā ud-Dunyā wad-Dīn Abu-l-Muzaffar Ḥusain Shāh, who reigned in Bengal, according to Ferishtah, from A.H. 904 to 927; see Briggs' translation, vol. iv. p. 349, and Marsden, Numismata, p. 577.

There are some drawings in the margins of foll. 17, 18, representing archers in Indian costume drawing the bow in various attitudes. There are also some notes and additions in the margins. See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1940.

Egerton 1031.

Foll. 55; 8 in. by 5\frac{3}{2}; 15 lines, 3\frac{3}{2} in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1200 (A.D. 1785.)

The same work.

Egerton 793.

Foll. 211; 8½ in. by 4¾; 13 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1194 (A.D. 1780).

A treatise on music, translated from a Hindū work ascribed to Ahobal اهوبل.

روشن ضبير ,Translator: Raushan Zamīr

سرود اثر امود و اثر سرود نمود زمزمه حمد کار ساز . Beg.

The translator calls himself a born slave of Pādishāh 'Alamgir (A.H. 1068—1118). The title of the original work is uncertain; it appears in three different forms, viz. بارجانك, fol. 2 a, تارجانك, fol. 51 a, and مارجانك, in the subscription. It is not stated whether it was a Sanserit or Hindi work. The technical terms are Sanscrit, but several Hindi Dohrahs are introduced.

The treatise is divided into three parts, as follows: 1. Gīti-kānda, كيت كانى, fol. 3 b. 2. Vāda-kānda, باد كانى, fol. 97 b. 3. Nritya-kānda, نرت كانى, fol. 149 b.

Add. 16,662.

Foll. 119;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 17 lines, 5 in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Zul-ka'dah, A.H. 1205 (A.D. 1791).

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—94. Zauzanī's Commentary on the Mu'allaķāt; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 479.

II. Foll. 95-119.

رساله تغلبنديه

A work on agriculture, treating chiefly of the culture of fruit-trees, flowers, vegetables and grains, as practised in India.

Author: Ahmad 'Alī B. Muhammad Khalīl, of Jaunpūr, احمد على بن محمد خليل جونفوري

Beg. شكر و سپاس بيرون از اندازه قياس صانعي را The author says, in a short preface, that this treatise had been abridged in A.H. 1205, from the works designated as كتاب شجره نهال by و نسخه كغ باداورد من مصنفات امان الله الحسيني by Amān Ullah ul-Ḥusainī (i.e. Khānzamān, who died A.H. 1046; see Add. 5554).

Add. 17,960.

Foll. 55; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

مجموعة الصنابع

A collection of useful secrets and curious recipes for making artificial pearls and jewels, preparing various inks and dies, engraving stones, dissolving and oxydizing metals, making artificial flowers, illuminating books, etc., without author's name.

Beg. حمد و سپاس بدیع الاساس حضرت صانعی را It contains forty-two chapters (Bāb), subdivided into one hundred and forty sections (Fasl).

According to Stewart's Catalogue, p. 97, the work was written by Zain ul-'Abidīn in the reign of Aurangzīb. But a Turkish version, which appears to have been written about A.D. 1655 (A.H. 1065), is described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 525.

Add. 17,959.

Foll. 175;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, in the latter half of the 18th century.

خلاصة الماكولات و المشروبات

A cookery-book, without author's name.

After an introduction treating of the rites and observances to be attended to before eating, the author gives, foll. 20, 21, a table of the forty chapters (Bāb) comprised in the book. Another title, viz. خوان الوان نعبت, is found in the heading of a full table of contents prefixed to the volume by another hand, foll. 2—9. A frequent use of Hindi words shows that the work was written in India. It was completed, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1179; but it is not clear, whether the date relates to the composition, or to the present copy.

Add 16,856.

Foll. 63; 10 in. by 6; 10 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabī' I., A.H. 1021 (A.D. 1612). [WM. YULE.]

A treatise on the game of chess, abridged from an Arabic original.

Author: Muliammad B. Ḥusām ud-Daulah,

سپاس بی قیاس نثار حضرت معبودی که .Beg. دستیاری

It is divided into fourteen chapters (Bab), as follows:—1. The companions of Muhammad and their disciples have played at chess, fol. 7 a. 2 and 3. Proofs of the lawfulness of the game, and its advantages, fol. 9 a. 4. Inventor of the game; multiplication of the squares, fol. 13 b. 5. Etymology of the terms of the game, fol. 17 b. 6. Polite rules to be observed in playing, fol. 22 a. 7. Advice to players, fol. 24 a. 8. How to tell the issue of a game, fol. 31 a. 9. Opening of the game, fol. 33 b. 10. On some ingenious games on the chess board, fol. 36 a. 11. Positions منصوبها, or chess-problems, fol. 41 a. 14. On playing without looking at the board, fol. 62 a.

The present copy is defective. Of Bāb 9 the first three lines only are extant. The latter part of Bāb 11, and the whole of Bābs 12 and 13, are wanting. The last two are also omitted in the table of chapters at the end of the preface.

An abstract of the work has been given by Mr. Bland in his "Persian Chess," London, 1850, pp. 18—25. The title above mentioned خضرت همايون "the august Majesty" was taken by him for a proper name, and led to the statement that the treatise had been compiled for the emperor Humāyūn.

Sloane 4095.

Paper roll; 16 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; written in plain Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century.

Explanation of some technical terms, designating various kinds of ornamental buildings, such as أيرد , طنبى , ايوان, etc.

PHILOLOGY.

LEXICOGRAPHY.

Persian Dictionaries.

Or. 1262.

Foll. 101; 114 in. by 7; 23 lines, 44 in. long; written in fair Indian Shikastah-āmīz; dated Zul-Ḥijjah, A.H. 1102 (A.D. 1691).

اداة الفضلا

A dictionary of words and phrases used by the standard Persian poets.

Author: Kazī Khan Badr Muhammad Dihlavī, called Dharwal, عان بدر محمد دهلوی العروف بدهاروال

حبد و ثناى باقصى الحد والغايات وماوراء .Beg. الوصف والعبارات

This work is noticed by Blochmann, p. 7 of his learned "Contributions to Persian Lexicography," Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. xxxvii. pp. 1—72, a work which will be constantly referred to in the following pages. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 131.

The author had studied the Persian poets, as he states in the preface, under Kāzī Burhān ud-Dīn, known as Dahānah, and under Shaikh-Zādah 'Ashik (the author of a dictionary quoted in the Farhang i Jahangiri) He compiled in the present lexicon the matter contained in the following works:-Farhang Namah, by Fakhr Kavvas (mentioned by Firishtah, vol. i. p. 214, as one of the poets of the reign of 'Alā ud-Din Khilji, A.H. 695-716; he is called, in the Farhang i Jahāngīrī, Maulānā Mubārak Shāh Ghaznavī; see Blochmann's list of sources, p. 4, No. 61), Risālat un-Nasīr (ib., No. 19; Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 450), Risālat i Asadī Ţūsī (No. 2), Dastūr ul-Afāzil (No. 17), Lisān ush-Shu'arā (No. 46), and Fava'id i Burhani u Firdausi (No. 40). To the above he added other words, names of kings and countries, etc., collected by him in the Divans, as well as poetical phrases used by Khākānī, Anvarī, Fāriyābī, Firdausī, Sa'dī, and other classical poets.

In A.H. 812 (or, according to Stewart and Blochmann, A.H. 822) he set out from Jaunpür to the end of kissing the threshold of the illustrious prince Kadr Khān B. Dilāvar Khān, خاقان اعظم و خان معظم مسند عالى وزارت, whose fame as a munificent patron of learning had spread far and wide, and he made use of this Farhang Nāmah as an introduction to His Highness.

Dilāvar Khān, the founder of the Ghūrī dynasty in Mālvah, had taken up his residence in the city of Dhār, from which the author's surname, Dhārvāl, is evidently derived. His son Alp Khān reigned, under the name of Hūshang, from A.H. 808 to 838. Another son, Ķadr Khān, was in possession of the province of Chanderī (Thornton's Chandhairee), which, on his demise, was added to the dominions of Hūshang. See Tārīkh Muḥammadī, Or. 137, fol. 428, and Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 462.

The Adāt ul-Fuzalā is divided into two parts (Kism), viz. Kism I., containing single words arranged in alphabetical order, according to the first and second letters of each, fol. 5 b. Kism II., containing compounds and poetical phrases, arranged according to the initial and final letters, fol. 77 b.

The copyist states at the end that his MS. had been written by a blundering scribe, and that he had corrected it to the best of his ability.

Foll. 1—3 contain an extract on Persian particles, and foll. 97—101 a glossary of Arabie phrases in the Gulistān.

Add. 7678.

Foll. 285;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in small Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

شرفنامه احمد منيرى

A Persian dictionary.

Author: Ibrāhīm Ķivām Fārūķī, ابراهیم

بنام خداوند هستی به است سراغاز هر نامهٔ را که هست

A prologue in verse contains a panegyric on a celebrated Shaikh, Sharaf ud-Din Ahmad Munyari, in whose honour the above title was given to the work. It concludes with a prayer that the author may be accounted one of the dwellers in that saint's holy shrine, and may never be removed from it.

Sharaf ud-Din Ahmad B. Yahva Munyari, so called from his native place, Munyar, a village in Bihar, went to Dehli in quest of Nizām ud-Dīn Auliyā, but, finding him dead (Nizām died A.H. 725), became a Murid of Shaikh Najib ud-Din Firdausi, who gave him the investiture of the Chishti order. He spent the latter part of his life in the eity of Bihar (Thornton's Behar), where he died A.H. 782, and where his tomb became the resort of the devout. His letters (Stewart's Catalogue, p. 42) are much admired, as well as his discourses, collected under the title of Ma'dan ul-Ma'ānī (see Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 458). Notices on his life will be found in Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 113, Akhbar ul-Akhyar, fol. 97, A'in i Akbari, vol. ii. p. 219, and Blochmann's translation, p. 48, note.

It may be inferred from the above that the author lived in the city of Bihār. The time of composition is indicated by a quatrain, with which, according to Blochmann's full account, l. e., pp. 7—9, the work concludes, and in which Abul-Muzaffar Bārbak Shāh is mentioned as the reigning sovereign. Bārbak Shāh reigned in Bengal, according to Ṭabakāt i Akbarshāhī and Tārīkh i Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 580, A.H. 862—879. See also Marsden, Numismata, p. 572.

The Sharaf-Nāmah is divided into several Bābs, each of which contain words beginning with the same letter. They are subdivided into Fasls according to the final letters. The pronunciation of words is stated at length, and their meaning illustrated by copious quotations of the poets, from Firdausī to Hāfiz. The author often adduces his own verses, and prefixes to each Bāb a Kaşıdah of his composition. Turki words are given at the end of each Fasl.

The work, which is frequently called, from the name of its author, Farhang i Ibrā-hīmī, is quoted in Tuḥſat us-Saʿādat (see below, p. 493 b) and later dictionaries. Copies are mentioned in the Munich Catalogue, p. 103, and the Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 494. See also Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 325.

The present copy contains little more than the first half of the work, ending with the letter ...

Or. 265.

Foll. 161; 9 in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 19 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; writted in small and neat Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Foll. 2 — 60. Adāt ul-Fuzalā (see p. 491 a).

This copy wants the first page, the dedication to Kadr Khan, and Kism II.

II. Foll. 62-161.

مجمل العجم

A Persian dictionary.

عاصم شعيب, Author: 'Asim Shu'aib 'Abdusi'

درر غرر سپاس و جواهر زواهر بیقیاس Beg.

The work is stated in the preface to be divided into two parts (Kism). The first, which comprises single words and compounds, arranged according to the initial and final letters, is alone extant in the present copy. It is slightly imperfect at the end, breaking off in the compounds the first term of which is نظي. The words are illustrated by copious poetical passages headed نظير, but without the authors' names. The meaning is frequently explained by Indian equivalents.

This is no doubt the work designated as Farhang i 'Aṣimī in the Farhang i Jahāngīrī (Blochmann, No. 34).

Add. 7683.

Foll. 198; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

تحفة السعادت

A Persian dictionary.

Author: Mahmud B. Shaikh Ziya محمود بن شيخ ضيا

ابتدا می کنم بنام حکیم کوست محیی العظام و هی رمیم

The author begins with a prologue in verse, containing enlogies on the reigning sovereign, Sultān Sikandar (Sikandar Lodī, A.H. 894—923), and on his patron and benefactor, Khwājagī Shaikh Sa'īd, also called Sa'īd ud-Dīn. He then states that he had hitherto cultivated poetry, and composed pieces of every kind, mostly in praise of the last personage, but that he had been prevailed upon by some friends to compile the present lexicon, which he completed on the tenth of Ṣafar, A.H. 916, and presented to the patron aforesaid.

He enumerates in the preface the following sources:—Zamīr (Blochmann, No. 33), Dastūr (probably Dastūr ul-Afāzil, No. 17), Farhang i Fakhr i Ķavvās (see p. 492 a), Zufān Gūyā (No. 21), Dastūr ul-Fuzalā (No. 18), Adāt ul-Fuṇalā (p. 491 a), Sharḥ i Makhzan, Farhang i Ķāṇī Zahīr (No. 41), Farhang i Ibrāhīmī (i. e. Sharaf Nāmah i Munyarī, p. 492 a), Ḥusainī (No. 16), and 'Ajā'ib (No. 36). For Arabic words he made use of the Ṣurāḥ, Dastūr, Khulāṣah, Naṣīb ul-Vildān, and Tājain.

The dictionary is divided, according to the initial letters, into two and twenty Bābs, and each Bāb is divided into two sections (Fasl), the first of which contains the single words, arranged according to the final letters, and the second, the compound words and phrases, in the same order. There are no poetical quotations.

Surūrī, who states that he made use of the Tuḥfat us-Saʿādat for the second edition of his dictionary, calls the author Maulānā Maḥmūd B. Shaikh Ziyā ud-Dīn Muḥammad. It is, no doubt, the work mentioned by Firishtah, vol. i. p. 346, under the title of Farhang i Sikandarī, as written in the reign of Sultan Sikandar. See also Blochmann's

On the last page of the present copy is a note stating that it was purchased A.H. 1003 by one Paramanand in Sirhind.

Or. 261.

Foll. 395;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1118 (A.D. 1706).

[Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

مويد الفضلاء

A Persian dictionary.

list of sources, No. 10.

محمد ابن لاد Author: Muḥammad B. Lād, محمد ابن لاد Beg. محامد متواترة و مدایج متكاثرة مر دادار

The author states that he had combined in his lexicon the entire matter of the Sharaf Nāmah (see p. 492 a), and of the Kunyat ut-Tālibīn (Blochmann, No. 42), a work of that most learned master of the science, entitled Kāzīshah, تاليف قدوة الفاضلين امام السالكين استاذ باب قاضيشه خطاب

Besides the above works he enumerates the following sources: for Arabic words the Ṣurāḥ and Tāj, and for those of Fārs, Samar-kand, Māvarā un-Nahr, Turkistān, etc., Lisān ush-Shu'arā (No. 46), Adāt ul-Fuṇalā (p. 491 a), Dastūr ul-Afāṇil (No. 17), Zufān Gūyā (No. 21), Mavā'id ul-Favā'id (No. 64), Sharḥ i Makhzan ul-Asrār, Ṭibb i Ḥakā'ik ul-Ashyā, Farhang i 'Ilmi 'Alī Begī (Nos. 35 and 37) and Fakhr Ķavvās (p. 491 b). A supplement treats of the numerals, arithmetical notation, and Persian grammar.

The words are grouped in books (Kitāb) according to the initial letters, and, in each kitāb, in Bābs, according to the final letters. Each Bāb is subdivided into three sections (Faṣl), containing respectively the Arabic, Persian, and Turkish words.

The Mu'ayyid ul-Fuzalā is described by Blochmann, l. c., p. 9, who calls the author Muḥammad B. Shaikh Lād, of Dehli, and assigns to the work the date of A.H. 925, without, however, stating his authority. It is mentioned as a work of great merit in the preface of Madār ul-Afāzil (p. 496a). See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 132.

The present copy wants the supplement.

Add. 23,575.

Foll. 152; 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 5; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabī II., A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1611). [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

تحفة الاحباب

A Persian glossary.

Author: Ḥāfiz Aubahī, حافظ اوبهى

قضلای فصیم زبان و قصحای بلیغ بان

The author, so called from Aubah, a village near Herat (Mu'jam, vol. i. p. 137), was led to compile this work by noticing the neglect into which the ancient poets had fallen in his day, because many of the words used by them had become obsolete. It is dedicated to a Vazīr of Khorasan زير ملك خراسار,, whose proper name does not appear, and the date of its completion, A.H. 936, is stated in a versified chronogram at the end:

شد رقم تاریخ اتهامش به اتهام الکتاب

From a connection alluded to, in the verse immediately preceding the above, between the title of the work and the name of the Vazīr before mentioned, it becomes probable that the latter was Habib Ullah, apparently the same to whom the Habīb us-Siyar is dedicated.

The words are arranged according to the initial and final letters, and are sometimes illustrated by poetical quotations.

The Tuhfat ul-Ahbāb is quoted in the Farhang i Jahāngīrī and in the Majma' ul Furs. See Blochmann, No. 9, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 439.

Add. 8990.

Foll. 97; 7 in. by 3½; 14 lines, 2 in. long; written in a small and neat Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

The same work.

The latter portion of this copy, foll. 62—97, was written in Ispahan, Rajab, A.H. 1226 (A.D. 1811).

Add. 5611.

Foll. 330; 14 in. by 101; 21 lines, 71 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1106 (A.D. 1695).

كشف اللغات والاصطلاحات

A dictionary of Persian and Arabic words, especially intended to explain the figurative language of the Sufis.

Author: 'Abd ur-Raḥīm B. Alimad Sūr, عبد الرحيم بن احمد سور

الحمد لله ... اما بعد حمد و صلوة ميكويد .Beg. المعف العباد وادم الفقرا

The author desired, as he states in the preface, to free himself of the importunate questions which his friends, brothers, and sons, were ever putting to him, as to the meaning of Sufi phrases. While reading with his son, Shaikh Shihāb, the Divan of Kasim i Anvar, he found that many words were wanting, both in the Farhang of Shaikh Ibrāhīm Kivām (p. 492 a), and in that of Shaikh Muhammad B. Shaikh Lad (p. 494 a), and was obliged to look for them in the Surah, the Tajain, and the Kanz ul-Lughat, all of which, however, he found also deficient. This induced him to compile the present dictionary, in which he omitted for brevity's sake the words in common use. The contents are arranged in Babs and Fasls, according to the initial and final letters. The words of Persian origin are marked with a ....

It has been noticed by Blochmann, l. c., pp. 9, 10, that the author had been personally acquainted with the preceding lexicographer, Muhammad B. Lad, and must consequently have lived in the tenth century of the Hijrah. His work is quoted in the Farhang i Jahangiri, written A.H. 1017, under the name of Farhang i Shaikh 'Abd ur-Rahim Bihari. The statement of Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 214, that the Kashf ul-Lughāt was written about A.H. 1060, can therefore be dismissed. Copies are noticed by Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 317, in the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 25, Munich Catalogue, p. 107, and the Ouseley Collection, No. 390. An edition, now very rare, was printed in Calcutta, about 1840.

Add. 5612.

Foll. 577; 10 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The same work.

Add. 9993.

Foll. 567;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

The same work, with marginal additions.

The MS. bears a Persian seal with the name of Henry George Keene, dated 1802.

Add. 15,100 and 15,101.

Two uniform volumes; foll. 338 and 343; 10 in. by 6\frac{3}{4}; 18 lines, 5 in. long; written in two columns in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

The same work.

Add. 6643.

Foll. 522; 12 in. by 8¼; 19 lines, 5¼ in. long; written in large Indian Nestalik; dated Bā'idpūr, Hūglī, Jumāda II., A.H. 1185 (A.D. 1771).

[J. F. Hull.]

مدار الافاضل

A Persian dietionary.

Author: Ilahdād Faizī B. Asad ul-'Ulamā Alī Shīr Sirhindī, الله داد [8ic] فيضى بن اسد العلماي على شير سرهندي

Beg. The author, who has been already mentioned, p. 253 a, states in the preface, that he had compiled the Arabic words from the Ṣurāḥ, Muhazzib ul-Asmā, Tājain and its commentaries, Niṣāb uṣ-Ṣibyān (Blochmann, No. 65), and Ķunyat ul-Fityān (No. 43), the Persian words from the Zufān Gūyā (No. 21), Adāt ul-Fuzalā (p. 491 a), Tabakhturī, Ḥall i Lughāt ush-Shuʿarā (Blochmann, p. 7), Sharaf Nāmah i Ibrāhīmī (p. 492 a), and two modern works, highly praised by the author, viz., Tuḥfat us-Saʿadat i Sikandarī (p. 493 b), and Muʾayyid ul-Fuzalā (p. 494 a).

The words are arranged according to the initial and final letters, and are marked with a e, a i, or a i, according as they are of Arabie, Persian, or Turkish origin. The author frequently quotes verses, sometimes his own. A Khātimah, foll. 514—522, treats of the meanings of single letters in Persian.

The Madar ul-Afazil is extensively noticed by Bloehmann, l.c., pp. 10, 11. The ehronogram فيف , or A.H. 1001, which, as stated there, gives the date of composition, is not found in the present copy, which, however, according to the criterion indicated by Bloehmann, should be accounted a good MS. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 131, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 109.

Add. 16,750.

Foll. 497;  $13\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Naskhī; dated Kākūrī, province of Lakhnan, A.H. 143 (for 1043 = A.D. 1633-4). [WM. YULE.]

فرهنك جهاذكيري

A Persian lexicon, containing all the words of Persian origin, with copious poetical quotations.

Author: Jamāl ud-Dīn Ḥusain Injū B. Fakhr ud-Dīn Ḥasan, ابن فخر الدين حسن جمال الدين حسين انجو انکه بر لوم زبانها حرف اول نام اوست Beg.

Mīr Jamāl ud-Dīn Injū belonged to a Sayyid family of Shīrāz. Having left his native eity for India, he repaired, after some stay in the Deecan, to the court of Akbar, whose service he entered in the thirtieth year of the reign (A.H. 993—4), and by whom he was sent to the Deccan, A.H. 1013, to negociate the marriage of Prinee Dāniyāl with the daughter of 'Adil Shāh. He rose to high military eommands under Jahāngīr, who conferred upon him the government of Bihār, and later on, A.H. 1027, the title of 'Azud ud-Daulah. He was pensioned off

A.H. 1030, and died some years later in Agrah. His life, extracted from the Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, is given with a translation by Blochmann, l. c., pp. 65—70, and Ain i Akbari, translation, p. 450.

The author says in his preface that, having from early youth upwards devoted himself to the study of the poets, he had found many words and phrases either wanting, or imperfectly rendered, in existing dictionaries. He therefore began to write down for himself the rare words which he met with, and had been for nearly thirty years engaged on that labour when, having been called in Zulka'dah, A.H. 1005, to the presence of Akbar, who then held his court in Srinagar, Kashmir, and had been told of the author's learning, he had received His Majesty's commands for the compilation of the present work. The task, however, was not completed until Akbar had passed away, and been succeeded by Jahangir, after whom the work was named. The date of its completion, A.II. 1017, is fixed by the chronogram زهي فرهنك نور الدين جهانكير. The author revised it, however, to the end of his life. It is stated in the Tuzuk i Jahungiri, p. 359, that he presented a copy to Jahangir in the 18th year of the reign (A.H. 1032).

The preface contains an alphabetical list of forty-four dictionaries or glossaries consulted for the present work. That list has been reproduced, with some additions, by Blochmann, l.c., pp. 4—7.

An introduction (Mukaddimah), divided into twelve sections (A'in), foll 4—18, treats of the extent of ancient Persia, of the Persian language and its dialects, the letters used in Persian, the affixes, suffixes, inflections, and the mode of expressing numbers with the fingers. The dictionary proper, foll. 19—423, is divided into twenty-four Bābs, corresponding to the letters used in Persian, with this peculiarity, that the leading letters in the arrangement are in the first instance the second of each word, and then the first. The appendix (Khātimah), contains the following five special glossaries, called Dar, and similarly arranged: 1. Metaphors and poetical phrases, fol. 423 b. 2. Compound words, fol. 461 a. 3. Words containing any of the letters peculiar to Arabie, fol. 481 a. 4. Zand and Pāzand words, fol. 482 a. 5. Foreign words, mostly proper names, fol. 489 a.

سعد الله ولد شيخ فاضل : Copyist

The Farhang i Jahangiri has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1293. See Blochmann, l.e., pp. 12—15, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 129, Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 24, and Munich Catalogue, p. 105.

Add. 26,128.

Foll. 606; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 19 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in neat Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1033 (A.D. 1624). [WM. ERSKINE.] The same work, without the Khātimah.

Add. 6645.

Foll. 598; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{2}; 21 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two 'Unv\tilde{n}s and ruled margins; dated Sh\tilde{a}h-jah\tilde{n}a\tilde{n}\tilde{a}h, Ramaz\tilde{a}n, A.H. 51 (i. e. 1051, A.D. 1641); partly stained and discoloured by damp.

[J. F. Hull.]

The same work.

The copyist, Muḥammad Fāzil B. Munshī Mūsā, says at the end that the MS. from which this copy was taken had been corrected, for the main part, by the author's own hand.

Add. 5647.

Foll. 618; 10½ in. by 7; 21 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Naskhi, with gold-ruled margins; dated Kashmīr, Rajab, A.H. 1065 (A.D. 1655). [NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The same work.

احمد بن شاء محمد الشيرازي الحسيني : Copyist

Add. 7682.

Foll. 366; 11 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1683). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work, without the Khātimah.

This copy was written for the Vazīr of Kandahār by Ḥasan B. Muḥammad.

Add. 16,749.

Foll. 292;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 27 lines,  $5\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with ruled margins; dated Agrah, Rabi I., A.H. 1090 (A.D. 1679). [WM. YULE.]

The same work, without the Khātimah.

Add. 25,858.

Foll. 508; 12½ in. by 7½; 23 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[ADAM CLARKE.]

The same work.

Add. 23,573.

Foll. 464; 12 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same work, wanting the fifth section of the Appendix.

The latter portion of the volume, foll. 292—464, is written by a later hand, and dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1195 (A.D. 1781).

Add. 25,859.

Foll. 593;  $12\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two columns; dated Calcutta, October, 1815.

[WM. CURETON.]

The same work.

This copy was written by Shaikh Aṣālat 'Alī Bihārī for Captain Thomas Roebuck.

Add. 7681.

Foll. 313; 10 in. by 7; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shavval, A.H. 1057 (A.D. 1647). [Cl. J. Rich.]

مجمع الفرس

A Persian dictionary.

Author: Muḥammad Kāsim B. Ḥājī Muḥammad Kāshānī, poetically styled Surūrī, محمد قاسم بن حاجى محمد كاشانى المتخلص بسرورى ابتداى كلام هر دانشمند مخنور و انتهاى هخن .Beg هر خردمند هنرپرور

The author is not to be confounded with another Surūrī (Mustafā B. Sha'bān), a commentator of the Gulistan, who lived in Turkey, and died A.H. 969 (Arabic Catalogue, p. 479). He is mentioned by his townsman and contemporary, Taki ud-Din Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 26, among the poets of Kāshān. "He was," says Takī, "the son of a shoemaker, had so prodigious a memory as to know upwards of thirty thousand verses by heart, and wrote, besides the present work, a glossary to Nizāmī and other poets. Surūri's habitual residence was Isfahan, where he was seen by Pietro della Valle, A.H. 1032 (see Ouseley's Collection, No. 389). He left it for India, where he stayed some time, in the reign of Shahjahan, and died on his way from thence to Mecca. See Mirāt ul-'Alam, fol. 484, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 217. It will be seen further on (p. 500b) that he had reached Lahore as early as A.H. 1036.

Surūrī states in the preface that, after a diligent study of the classical poets, and an eager search after Persian glossaries, he had at last succeeded, A.H. 1008, in collecting the following sixteen works: Sharaf Nāmah i Aḥmad Munyarī (p. 492 a), Mi'yār i Jamālī, by Shams Fakhrī (Blochmann, No. 58, Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 640), Tuḥfat ul-Aḥbāb (p. 494 b), Risālah i Ḥusain Vafā'ī (No. 14), Risālah i Abu Manṣūr 'Alī B. Aḥmad Asadī Ṭūsī (No. 2), Risālah i Mīrzā Ibrāhīm B. Mīrzā Shāh Ḥusain Iṣfahānī (No. 56), Risālah i Muḥammad Hindūshāh (No. 53), Mu'ayyid ul-Fuzalā (p. 494 a), Sharḥ Sāmī fil-Asāmī i Maidānī (No. 27), Risālah i Abu Ḥafṣ Sughdī (No. 1), Adāt ul-Fuzalā (p. 491 a), Jāmi' ul-Lughāt, in verse, by Niyāzī Ḥijāzī (No. 11), and four other anonymous treatises. Compiling all these, he condensed their substance in the presentwork, eliminating Arabic and common Persian words, and adding examples from the poets. The preface concludes with a dedication to Shāh 'Abbās (A.H. 996—1038).

The words are arranged according to their initial and final letters. A short appendix, foll. 310—313, contains metaphorical phrases, in alphabetical order.

A full account of the Majma' ul-Furs, or Farhang i Surūrī, more especially of its second edition, which will be noticed further on, is given by Blochmann, l.c., pp. 12 and 16—18. See also Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 325, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 130, Uri, p. 290, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 101, the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 96, the Munich Catalogue, p. 104, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iv. p. 498, vol. v. p. 238.

Add. 26,129.

Foll. 380; 93 in. by 53; 21 lines, 33 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1078 (A.D. 1667). [Wm. Erskine.] The same work.

Add. 23,574.

Foll. 236; 11 in. by 7; 18 lines, 45 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670). [ROBERT TAYLOR.] The same work.

Harleian 111.

Foll. 368; 10 in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 25 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 103 (for 1030, A.D. 1621).

An enlarged edition of the same work.

In a preface prefixed to that of the first edition, and beginning: بر ضمير اكسير تاثير, the author states that مطالعه کنندگان که چشمه he had perused in A.H. 1028 (not A.H. 1038, as stated by Blochmann), the Farhang of the noble and illustrious Navvāb Shāh Jamāl .ud-Din Husain Injū (p. 496 b), brought from India in that year, and had added some of its words and observations to his own dictionary. He had read also in the same year the Shāmil ul-Lughah, a Persian dictionary explained in Turkish, by Kara-Hisari (p. 513a), and the Tuhfat us-Sa'ādat (p. 493 b). He adds that his work having for some time past been submitted to a thorough revision, the present edition is far more trustworthy, as well as more complete, than the first.

The following is written on the fly-leaf: "Shamel Lagatt; or Persian Dictionary, written 43 yeeres since, to this yeere 1636." The writer had evidently taken the defective date of this copy, 103, to stand for 1003 = A.D. 1593, a date which, being anterior to the time of composition, is obviously wrong. If 103 be meant for 1030, and it does not appear to admit of any other reading, the present MS. must have been written two years after the completion of the second edition.

Or. 263.

Foll. 476; 10½ in. by 5; 25 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about A.H. 1036 (A.D. 1626).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Another copy of the enlarged edition.

On the first page is a Persian note stating that the preface of the second edition, the marginal notes, and some poetical pieces by Sururi, written on the last page, are all in the author's handwriting. At the bottom of the last page is actually found the following somewhat mutilated subscription, which, if genuine, would show that Sururi had written the above verses in Lahore, A.H. 1036: نمقته بتاریخ ثامن . . . عشر سنه ۱۰۳۱ وانا مواف هذا . الكتاب وناظم هذه الابيات محلة . . . المعاني سرورى كاشاني . . . لأهور صانها الله . . .

Add. 16,751.

Foll. 866;  $10\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan and ruled margins, apparently in the 17th cen-WM. YULE. tury.

برهان قاطع

A dictionary of the Persian language, including words borrowed from the Arabic and other languages.

Author: Muhammad Husain, poetically styled Burhan, B. Khalaf ut-Tabrizi, ابن خلف التبريزي محمد حسين المخلص ببرهان ای راهنها بهر زبان در افواه Beg.

يزدان و كرسطوس و تانكرى و اله

The author states that he had compiled in the present dictionary the entire substance of the Farhang i Jahāngīri, Majma' ul-Furs of Sururi, Surmah i Sulaimāni, and Sihāh ul-Adviyah by Ḥusain ul-Anṣārī (No. 24 and 32), and that he had, for brevity's sake, omitted poetical quotations and superfluous matter. He dedicates his work to Sultan 'Abd Ullah Kutubshāh B.Kutubshāh (who reigned in Golconda from A.H. 1035 to 1083), and fixes the date of its completion, A.H. 1062, by the following كتاب نافع برهان قاطع ,chronogram

Contents: Nine Fa'idahs, or preliminary observations, on the Persian language, its letters, particles, and orthography, fol. 2 b. Twenty-eight Guftars, comprising the dictionary proper, in which the words are arranged according to the first, second, and third letters, as in European dictionaries, fol. 12 b. Guftar 29, or supplement, containing seventy-one words, mostly foreign words and proper names, fol. 862 b.

The Burhan i Kati has been edited by Captain Roebuck, Calcutta, 1818, and reprinted in 1822 and 1834. A Turkish translation has been printed in Constantinople, A.H. 1214, and in Bulak, A.H. 1251. It has been entirely incorporated by Prof. J. A. Vullers into his Lexicon Persico-Latinum. See Blochmann, l. c., pp. 18-20, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 435, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 107.

Add. 26,130.

Foll. 735;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with ruled margins; dated Ramazan, A.H. 1135 (A.D. 1723). [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same work.

Add. 7000.

Foll. 843; 9 in. by 7; about 14 lines, 61 in. long; written on paper water-marked 1815, and on one side of the leaves only, by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, and by him inscribed: "Historical vocabulary of proper names of places, countries, and eminent persons, etc. etc., from the Borhan Katea."

Add. 5555.

Foll. 303;  $11\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 8; 21 lines,  $5\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1129 (A.D. 1717).

[CHARLES HAMILTON.]

فرهنك رشيدى

A Persian dictionary.

Author: 'Abd ur-Rashid B. 'Abd ul-Ghafur

ul-Husaini ul-Madani ut-Tatavi, عبد الرشيد بي عبد الغفور الحسيني المدنى الشتوى ستايشي كه ارايش سرنامه سخن و پيرايش عرايش سرنامه سخن و پيرايش

Mulla 'Abd ur-Raschid, who was born in Tattah of a family of Medinah Sayyids, is known as the author of an Arabic dictionary, entitled Muntakhab ul-Lughāt (p. 510 a), which he dedicated to Shāhjahān A.H. 1046. He is mentioned in the Hamishah Bahar, Oude Catalogue, p. 122, among the poets of that period. A chronogram which he composed on the second Julus of Aurangzib shows that he was still alive in A.H. 1069. See 'Alī Shir, Add. 21,589, fol. 488, who quotes several of his poetical pieces, and says that his two works, known as Rashidi 'Arabi and Rashīdī Pārsī, bear ample testimony to his profound erudition.

The author observes in the preface that the Farhang i Jahangiri and the Farhang i Sururi, although the best existing Persian lexicons, had the following four blemishes: 1. Prolixity and redundance of poetical quo-2. Want of accuracy in defining the meanings and pronunciation of words. 3. Insertion of Arabic and Turkish words as Persian. 4. Wrong entries of mis-spelt words; the last especially observable in Sururi. The present work, he adds, had for its object to combine the matter of those two dictionaries, to eliminate superfluous quotations, and non-Persian words, and to supply a more accurate definition of the meaning and spelling of words. The date of its completion, A.H. 1064, is conveyed by باد فرهنك رشيدي مقبول ,the chronogram

An introduction (Mukaddimah), treating of Persian grammar, occupies foll. 4 a-13 b. The dictionary proper, arranged on the same plan as the Burhan i Kāţi', fills the rest of the volume. A Khātimah, announced in the preface, is wanting in the present and other known copies.

Blochmann speaks very highly of the Far-hang i Rashidi, which he terms the first critical dictionary, and gives the most important portion of the preface in the original with a translation, l.c., pp. 20-24. The same scholar promoted and superintended the edition of the work in the Bibliotheca Indica, Calcutta, 1875, to which is appended a notice on the author. The Mukaddimah of the Farhang i Rashidi has been edited by Dr. Splieth under the title of "Grammaticae Persicae præcepta ac regulæ," Halle, 1846. It is also the foundation of the Persian grammar of 'Abd ul-Vāsi' Hānsavī. It is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 130.

Add. 7001.

Foll. 193; 9 in. by 71; about 20 lines; written on one side only of paper watermarked 1814, by J. Haddon Hindley.

A Persian glossary, containing rare words, proper names, and metaphorical phrases, without preface, title, or author's name.

ایلیا بکسر یکم و سوم قبیله و پبیثینان It is found to consist of extracts from the Farhang i Rashidi.

Or. 264.

Foll. 152; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, about the close of the 18th century.

GEO. WM. HAMILTON.

چراغ هدایت

A poetical glossary.

Author: Sirāj ud-Dīn 'Alī, poetically sur-سراج الدين على آرزو تخلص named Arzū,

اما بعد حمد واضع جميع لغات و صلوات . برافصع

Sirāj ud-Din 'Alī Khān, a well-known Persian and Hindustani poet, born in Akbarābād, A.H. 1101, traced his origin to Shaikh Kamāl ud-Dīn, a nephew of the famous saint Naşîr ud-Dîn Chiragh i Dihlî. He proceeded, A.H. 1132, to Dehli, where he found a powerful patron in Mu'taman ud-Daulah Ishāk Khān, and, after him, in his son Najm ud-Daulah. He made himself conspicuous by his bold criticisms on Shaikh Hazīn, published in a pamphlet entitled "Tanbih ul-Ghāfilīn, and wrote, A.H. 1164, a Tazkirah called Majma' un-Nafā'is. In A.H. 1168 he settled in Lucknow, where he received a pension from Shujā' ud-Daulah, and died shortly after, on the 23rd of Rabi II., A.H. 1169. His life is found in the Khizanah 'Amirah, Or. 232. See also Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 132, Garcin de Tassy, Littérature Hindouï, vol. i. p. 69, and Blochmann, l.c., pp. 25-28.

The author states that this work, which forms, as it were, a second part (Daftar) to his Sirāj ul-Lughah, or glossary of the ancient poets, contains those words and phrases used by modern poets, which are not found in the Farhang i Jahāngīrī, Surūrī, Burhān i Ķāṭiʻ, or other dictionaries. They are of two kinds, viz.: 1. Difficult words, not generally understood in India; 2. Words or phrases, the meaning of which is known, but the correctness of which is questioned. Both are given in one series, alphabetically arranged according to the usual plan.

The Sirāj ul-Lughah was written A.H. 1147. The date is fixed by a chronogram, quoted by Blochmann, l.c., p. 26.

The Chirāgh i Hidāyat is printed in the margins of the lithographed edition of Ghiyāş ul-Lughāt, published by Naval Kishor Kānpūr, 1874.

Or. 259.

Foll. 704; 12 in. ly 8; 17 lines, 43 in long; written in Nestalik; dated January, A.D. 1836. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

A dictionary of the words and idioms used by the Persian poets, ancient and modern, with copious examples.

Anthor: Tekchand Bahār, نیکچند بهار Beg. سپاس و ستایش داننده از که هریکی از افراد انسان

Rāi Tekchand, poetically styled Bahār, was . a Khatrī of Dehli. See Gulzār Ibrāhīm, fol. 29, Garcin de Tassy, Littérature Hindouï, vol. i. p. 100, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 211. Little is known of his life beyond what he tells us in his preface, two draughts of which, partly identical, are found in the present copy, foll. 2-4, 6-7. From his childhood to his fifty-third year, which he had reached at the time of writing, he had devoted himself to the study of Persian poets and their idioms, and was indebted for much of his knowledge to two accomplished scholars, viz. Maulānā Shaikh Abulkhair Khair Ullah, whom he refers to in his work as خير المدققين, and Sirāj ud-Dīn 'Alī Khān Ārzū (see p. 501 b), whom he quotes under the title of سراج المحققين. While engaged on the compilation of his dictionary, in which he had spent fifteen (in the second draught "twenty") years, he had written a treatise on letters جواهر الحروف (lithographed in Kanpur, نوادر المصادر A.H. 1267), and another on verbs (lithographed in Dehli, A.H. 1272).

The date of completion of the present work is then expressed by the chronogram אָט , i.e. 1152 + 10 = A.H. i.e. 1162. The author explains further on his abridged references to his authorities, namely the two scholars above mentioned, Shaikh 'Alī Ḥazīn, the Sirāj ul-Lughah (p. 502b), Mulḥakāt i Burhān i Ķāṭi', and the commentary of Abul-Ḥasan Farāhānī upon the Ķaṣīdahs of Anvarī. He concludes with an extensive list of the poets and glossaries from which the matter of his lexicon is derived.

Of modern works he had used, as stated in the second draught of the preface, only the Tanbīh ul-Ghāfilīn, (see p. 502a), and a Mukhtaṣar by Mīr Muḥammad Afzal Sābit (died A.H. 1150 or 1152; Oude Catalogue, p. 150). But after completing his first edition, he had had access to the Muṣṭalaḥāt ush-Shuʿarā of Vārastah, a treatise of Anand Rām Mukhliṣ (died A.H. 1164; Oude Catalogue, p. 159), and another without author's name.

This mention of Vārastah's work, which was not written before A.H. 1180 (see the next number), gives a date to the second preface. It must have been penned by the author in that very year, and therefore shortly before his death.

Between the two draughts above mentioned is found a preface written by Indarman, who calls himself a pupil of Tekehand, to an abridged edition made by him in A.H. 1180, upon the rough copy left by the author at his death.

Or. 262.

Foll. 232; 11 in. by 63; 19 lines, 43 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1245 (A.D. 1829).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

I. Foll. 3-203.

A poetical glossary, dealing especially with words and phrases peculiar to the modern poets of Iran, with examples. Author: Vārastah, وارسته

Beg. بسم الله مجريها ميخوانم و سفينه كاغذين Vārastah was a native of Lahore. His original name was, according to the preface of Roebuck's edition of Burhān Ķāṭi', p. 12, Siyāl Kotī Mal. His anthology entitled نجنگ رنگارنگ is noticed by Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 146.

The Mustalahāt ush-Shu'arā is mentioned by Tekchand as one of the works of which he became possessed after completing the first edition of the Bahār i 'Ajam. See Blochmann, l.c., p. 30.

II. Foll. 203-206.

تجنيس خط

A versified treatise by Jāmī (sec. p. 17 a), containing such Arabic words, as by a slight change in their punctuation assume different meanings.

بعد توحید وصفات خالق شام و سحر

This tract has been edited by Francis Gladwin in the Persian Moonshee, and by J. H. Hindley, London, 1811. It has been printed in Calcutta, 1818, and 1826.

III. Foll. 206—209. A treatise on Izafat, by Muhammad Ṣāḥib Ķādirī, with the heading: نسخه اضافات از تصنیف حضرت حافظ

IV. Foll. 211-231.

نصاب الصبيان

A versified Arabic Persian vocabulary. Author: Abu Naṣr Farāhī, ابو نصر فراهي

همی کوید ابو نصر فراهی Beg.

Badr ud-Din Abu Naṣr Farāhī wrote, according to Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 559, a poetical version of the Jāmi' uṣ-Ṣaghīr of Shaibānī, in A.H. 617. His vocabulary is a popular school-book, which has been published in Calcutta, 1819, and frequently reprinted in India and in Persia. See Blochmann, l. c., p. 7, Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 346, Fleischer, Leipzig Catalogue, p. 333, Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 112, etc.

Or. 260.

Foll. 724;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ṣafar, A.H. 1258 (A.D. 1842).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

غياث اللغات

A Persian dictionary.

Author: Muḥammad Ghiyāş ud-Dīn B. Jalāl ud-Dīn B. Sharaf ud-Dīn, عمد غياث

الدین بن جلال الدین بن شرف الدین صحاح مواح لالی بیان و صحاح جواهر تبیان

The author, who describes himself as an inhabitant of Muṣṭafā-ābād, commonly called Rāmpūr, Parganah of Shāhābād, Lucknow, states that he had been engaged fourteen years, in the midst of his avocations as a teacher, and other literary labours, upon the compilation of this work, which was completed A.H. 1242. Its object, he says, is to explain all the necessary words, whether of Arabic, Persian, or Turkish origin, as well as the metaphorical phrases and scientific terms, which occur in the standard works of Persian literature commonly read in India.

This is, according to Blochmann, 1. c., p. 30, eminently "the student's dictionary," as the most useful for the reading of classical authors. It has been printed in 1847 by one Mīr Ḥasan from a MS. corrected by the author. A lithographed edition, dated Kānpūr, A.D. 1874, contains the Chirāgh i Hidāyat in the margins.

Add. 26,316.

Foll. 32;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 19th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

منتخب اللغات دنكيني

A Persian glossary.

Author: Muḥammad Ṣādīk Kātib Bahbahānī, محمد صادق كاتب بهبهاني

Beg. سپاس بریقیاس وستایش ابدیت اساس The work takes its name from Jonathan Duncan, امین الملک ممتاز الدوله جان تهین دنگین (Resident at Benares, 1790—4), for whom it was written. The author remarks in the preface that the people of Bahbahān, and the husbandmen of Isfahan, Shūshtar, and Dahdasht, had preserved much ancient Persian in their vernacular, and he professes to have drawn the contents partly from the storehouse of his memory, partly from Persian dictionaries.

There is, however, nothing original in the work; it is transcribed, with a change in the arrangement, from the Farhang i Jahāngīrī. The present copy breaks off at the word عنك.

Sloane 2743.

Foll. 18;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; about 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

A Persian vocabulary.

در احکام دانستن انشا و املائی که ضرورست Beg.

It was written, as stated in a short preamble, at the request of a young student called Naurūz Beg Baghdādī. It consists of two parts, the first of which contains common Persian words in alphabetical order, without any interpretation; the second, Arabic words explained in Persian.

Arabic-Persian Dictionaries.

Or. 18.

Foll. 112; 7 in. by 5; 10 lines, 23 in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 14th century. [J. L. Renouard.]

مصادر

A dictionary of Arabic verbs, explained in Persian.

Author: Al-Kazī Abu 'Abd Illah ul-Ḥu-sain B. Alimad uz-Zūzanī, القاضى ابو عبد الله الحسين بن احمد الزوزني

The author died A.H. 486 (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 755).

The verbs are arranged in several classes, according to the vowel of the media in the past and future tenses. Each class is again subdivided into regular الجوف, concave الجوف, and reduplicate القص , verbs, the arrangement in each section being alphabetical, according to the last radical. The verbs are given under the form of the Maşdar, or verbal noun.

See Fleischer, Leipzig Catalogue, p. 331, where the contents are specified, Dorn, St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 203, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 105, the Upsala Catalogue, p. 9, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 111.

Add. 26,133.

Foll. 84; 10 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in.

long; written in Naskhi and Nestalik, apparently in India, early in the 19th century.

[WM. Erskine.]

The same work, without the preface.

In spite of some discrepancies, the text agrees in the main with the preceding copy. In the subscription the work is termed is the subscription the work is termed in the subscription the work is termed.

Or. 1174.

Foll. 190; 10½ in. by 7; 5 lines, 4½ in. long; written in large Naskhi, with all the vowels, dated Rajab, A.H. 864 (A.D. 1460).

[Alexandre Jaba.]

مقدمة الادب

Introduction to the study of Arabic.

Author: Maḥmūd B. 'Umar uz-Zamakh-sharī, محمود بن عمر الزمخشرى

الحمد لله الذي فضل على جميع الالسنة لسان .Beg العرب

Zamakhshari, the well-known author of the Kashshāf, was born in Zakhmashar, a village of Khwārazm, A.H. 467, and died A.H. 538. See his life and works in Ibn Khallikān, de Slane's translation, vol. iii. p. 321.

The author states in the preface that he had received the commands of the noble Amīr, the Isfahsālār Bahā ud-Dīn 'Alā ud-Daulah Abul-Muzaffar Atsuz B. Khwārazmshāh (who afterwards reigned from A.H. 522 to 551; see pp. 475 a, 467 a) to write for the Amīr's library a copy of his work, Mukaddimat ul-Adab, which had already been favourably received, and had circulated far and wide.

The work is divided into five parts (Kism) as follows:—1. Nouns. 2. Verbs. 3. Particles. 4. Inflexion of the nouns. 5. Inflexion of the verbs. The Preface and the first two of the above parts have been edited with an Arabic index by J. G. Wetzstein, Leipzig, 1850. See also Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 76, Uri, p. 233, Pusey, p. 186, Fleischer, Leipzig Catalogue, p. 332, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 96, and the Upsala Catalogue, p. 11.

The present copy contains only the preface and part 1, which gives the nouns (including adjectives, numerals and pronouns) classed according to subjects. The contents correspond to pp. 1—85 of the lithographed edition. The Arabic is accompanied throughout by a Persian and a Turkish version, written in two separate lines under the text, by the same hand, but in a smaller character, and marked with all the vowels. In some places Greek equivalents have been added.

احمد بن یوسف بن عیدل بن ابرهیم بن : Copyist یعقوب النگیدی

Foll. 184—190, written by the same hand, do not belong to Zamakhshari's work. They contain tables of the Arabic pronouns combined with prepositions, Persian pronouns and adverbs, and some Turkish notes on Persian grammar and on the calendar.

Or. 1175.

Foll. 206;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in large Naskhi with vowels, probably in the 16th century.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

كتاب التعليل

An Arabic vocabulary explained in Persian. Author: Ismā'il B. 'Alī B. Isḥāķ, اسماعيل بين اسحاق

لحمد لله الذي زين العالم بالعلماء و اظهر نور العلم . Beg.

The author, who is not otherwise known, defines his work, in a short Arabic preamble, as a compendium which will be to students an indispensable introduction to a knowledge of Arabic, and divides it into three parts القسم الاول في المصادر القسم :kism) as follows) الثاني في الاسماء القسم الثالث في الحروف

Part 1., containing the verbal nouns, fol. 5 a, is subdivided, according to the various forms of the Maşdar, into twenty-three chapters (Bāb), in each of which the verbs are alphabetically arranged under the first radical. Part 11., fol. 97 a, contains the nouns arranged under the following heads:

1. parts of the body, 2. crafts and tools, 3. food and drink, 4. animals, 5. heaven and earth, and, in each class, in alphabetical order. Part 111., fol. 206 a, contains a few particles.

Each word is followed by its Persian equivalent, written with all the vowels, and Turkish glosses are added in a smaller character between the lines. From the archaïc spelling of the Persian, in such words as آنج داذی شذی for ایجه آ فید و آنج داذی شدی شدی و و آنج دادی و آنج

In a Turkish note on the fly-leaf the writer ascribes the work to al-Bīrūnī, evidently confounding it with the تعليل باحالة الوهم mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 324.

Add. 26,136.

Foll. 45; 12 in. by 7; 9 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; apparently in the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

نصاب الصبيان

A versified Arabic Persian vocabulary (see p. 504 a).

Add. 26,137.

Foll. 34; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same work, slightly imperfect at the beginning.

Add. 7435.

Foll. 438;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 23 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in Naskhī; dated Jumādā I., A.H. 1122 (A.D. 1710). [Cl. J. Rich.]

الصراح من الصحاح

An abridged recension of the Ṣiḥāḥ, or Arabic Lexicon, of al-Jauharī (see the Arabic Catalogue, pp. 227, 467), with the addition of the Persian equivalent to each word.

Author: Abul-Fazl Muḥammad B. Umar B. Khālid, called Jamāl ul-Kurashī, ابو الفضل عمر بن خالد المدعو بجمال القرشي

قال الفقير الى مولاة الغني عما سواة الواثق .Beg

After duly praising the original work, the author states, in an Arabic preface, that he had succeeded, after a long search, in discovering at last in the Madrasah named after the Ṣāḥib Burhān ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, in Kāshghar, a corrected copy of the same in four thick volumes, from which the present abridgment was made. It was completed, as stated at the end of some copies, A.H. 681.

According to Tārīkh i Rashīdī, Add. 24,090, fol. 248, the author gives in his Additions to the Surāh محقات صراح an account of the learned men of Balāsāghūn, and states that his father was one of the Ḥāfiz, or traditionists, of that city.

The Ṣurāḥ has been printed in Calcutta, 1812, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1289. See also Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 101, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 133, Uri, p. 237, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 101.

Add. 5643.

Foll. 452; 143 in. by 9; 21 lines, 51 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated June 1779.

The same work.

It is stated at the end that this copy had been transcribed from the MS. of Mr. (Sir Charles) Wilkins, and collated with the original.

Add. 26,138.

Foll. 40; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 13 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

عقود للجواهر

An Arabic-Persian vocabulary in verse, arranged, like the Niṣāb us-Ṣubyān, by order of subjects.

الحمد لله مبدع البدايع ومنشى الصنايع .

In a short prose preface, the author, who calls himself رشيد الدين القوى عبد الخليل بي عبر (a name bearing a suspicious resemblance to that of the celebrated poet Rashid ud-Din Muḥammad B. 'Abd ul-Jalil Vaṭvāṭ, who died A.H. 578), says that this work consists of fifty sections (Kiṭ'ah) and 578 Baits, and that it was intended as an offering to the library of Mirzā Ulugh Beg Chalabī, son of the Sultan Muḥammad [B.] Bāyazīd B. Murād B. Ūrkhān B. 'Uṣmān (i.e. Muḥammad I., who reigned from A.H. 816 to 824).

An enlarged recension of the same work, comprising fifty-one Kit'ahs and 650 Baits, is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 239, as ascribed to Rashid Vaṭvāṭ, and dedicated to Sultan Murād B. Muḥammad Khān (A.H. 825—855).

Add. 7440.

Foll. 317; 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; 24 lines, 4<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Shavval, A.H. 961 (A.D. 1554). [Cl. J. Rich.]

كنز اللغات

An Arabic dictionary explained in Persian. Author: Muḥammad B. 'Abd ul-Khāliķ B. Ma'rūf, محمد بن عبد لخالق بن معروف

جواهر کنوز لغات حمد و ستایش نثار بارکاه .Beg. حضرت متکلمی

The author states in the preface that, as a knowledge of Arabic, the language of the Coran and the tradition, was incumbent on all Muslims, and, as the best dictionary, the Siḥāḥ, was written in Arabic, and therefore available only to Arab readers, he had been induced to write the present work, containing the most important words of the language and all those which occur in the Coran. It was compiled from the Siḥāḥ, Mujmil, Dustūr, Maṣādir, Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'ī, Lughāt ul-Kur'ān, and Sharḥ i Niṣāb (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 469 b). The preface concludes with a dedication to Sulṭān Muḥammad, and a eulogy upon his son and heir apparent, Mīrzā 'Alī.

It is stated in the Jahān-Ārā, Or. 141, that the Kanz ul-Lughāt was written for Kār Giyā Sulṭān Muḥammad, who reigned in Gīlān from A.H. 851 to 883. His son, Kār Giyā Mīrzā 'Alī, who succeeded him, was put to death by his brother A.H. 911. The latter is the prince to whom a history of Ṭabaristān by 'Alī Rūyānī was dedicated. See Schir-Eddin's Geschichte von Tabaristan, edited by Dr. Dorn, Vorwort, pp. 9—11, Text, p. '4, and Aly Ben Schems-Eddin's Chanisches Geschichtswerk, Vorwort, pp. 6—13.

The words are arranged according to the initial and final letters. The Kanz ul-Lughāt has been lithographed in Persia, A.H. 1283. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 256, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 135, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 202, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 109.

Add. 23,571.

Foll. 258;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 8; 23 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 1059 (A.D. 1649). [ROBERT TAYLOR.] The same work.

Add. 23,572.

Foll. 303;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 17 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in.

long; written in Nestalik; dated Verāmīn, Rabī' II., A.H. 1111 (A.D. 1699.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same work.

ابن حاجي عبد الصهد محمد قاسم الرازي : Copyist

Add. 7443.

Foll. 132; 10 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in large Naskhi, in the village of Sāvukh Balāgh, قريمه ساوخ بلاغ; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1076, and Shabān, A.H. 1083 (A.D. 1664 and 1672). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1-119.

خلاصة اللغات و تفسير المشكلات

A vocabulary of Arabic words used in Persian composition, but not generally understood.

Author: Ismā'il B. Luţf-Ullah ul-Bā-kharzī, اسماعيل بن لطف الله الباخرزي

The words are arranged, according to the initials, in eight-and-twenty books (Kitāb). Each book is subdivided into three Bābs, according to the vowel which accompanies the initial.

This is probably the work mentioned as Khulāṣah among the sources of the Tuḥſat us-Saʿādat; see p. 493 b. A copy is noticed in the Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 493.

II. Foll. 120—123. A short alphabetical vocabulary of difficult Persian words, without author's name.

III. Foll. 124—130. A short vocabulary, giving the Persian equivalents of Arabie words and phrases used in epistolary composition, without alphabetical arrangement.

اما بعد بدانکه این الفاظ اختیار کرده اند که .Beg. در ترسلات بکار آید

Add. 16,752.

Foll. 263; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 29 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastah, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

 Foll. 1—220. Mu'ayyid ul-Fuzalā (see p. 494 a).

An Appendix (Tatimmah), treating of arithmetical notations and some points of Persian grammar, foll. 216 b—220 b, is imperfect at the end.

 Foll. 222—263. Khulāṣat ul-Lughāt, the work described in the preceding MS., art. I.

In this copy a short anonymous preamble has been substituted for the original preface.

Add. 6959.

Foll. 66; 7<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; about twelve lines a page; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1806.

Tajnis i Khatt, by Jāmī, the work described p. 503 b, with an English translation and an alphabetical index.

Add. 5554.

Foll. 358; 15½ in. by 9; 25 lines, 5½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik in the first half of the 17th century.

[CHARLES HAMILTON.]

چهار عنصر دانش

A large dictionary of the Arabic and Persian languages.

Author: Aman Ullah, entitled Khanah-Zad Khan Firuz Jang, son of Mahabat Khan, entitled Khan-Khanan, Sipahsalar, B. Mir Muhammad Ghayur, الله مخاطب بخاف الله عناها الله عناها

نازنین شاهدی که از خلوتکده قدس و Beg. آرامکاه معنی

Aman Ullah Husaini, son of the famous Mahābat Khān Zamānah Beg, served with distinction under Jahangir and Shahjahan. He obtained the title of Khānahzād Khān, by which he designates himself in the present work, together with the post of Deputy-Governor of Kābul, in the seventeenth year of the former's reign (A.H. 1031—2); but he is better known under the title of Khānzamān, which was conferred upon him at the accession of Shahjahan, A.II. 1037. He played a prominent part in the Deccan wars against Sāhū, and died as Governor of the Bālāghāt, A.H. 1046. He left a general history, a Majmū'ah called Ganj i Bādāvard (see p. 489 b), and a Dīvān of great merit, in which he takes the poetical surname of Amani. See Ma'asir ul-Umara, fol. 180, Tazkirat ul-Umara, fol. 45, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 109. The above notices do not mention either the present dictionary, or Amān Ullah's medical work, Umm ul-Ilāj (Egerton 1008).

After dilating upon the merits of the reigning sovereign, Jahängir, the author states that, as the emperor was ever eager to promote learning, and especially the science of language, he had conformed with his desire by compiling from the most esteemed works a dictionary comprising all the important words, either Persian or Arabie, as well as metaphorical phrases and medical terms.

The preface is followed by a statement of the contents of the four parts, termed 'Unṣur, of which the work consists, with some preliminary remarks belonging to each of them, foll. 2—17. In the case of the second 'Unṣur this introduction is of considerable extent. It comprises a list of sources and an account of the Persian language and grammar, the whole of which is textually copied without any acknowledgment from the Farhang i Jahāngīrī, with the only difference that the word via in the headings of, the twelve sections which it comprises. The latter work having been dedicated to the same Jahāngīr less than twenty years before, this is a remarkably bold plagiarism.

The contents of the four Unsurs are stated to be as follows: I. An Arabic dictionary, compiled from the Kāmūs, Surāh, Kanz ul-Lughat (p. 507 b), Kashf ul-Lughat (p. 495 a), and some treatises not specified. II. A Persian dictionary. III. Metaphorical phrases, Zend and Pāzend words, with some Turkī and Hindī words. IV. Medical terms.

The first, and only extant, Unsur occupies the rest of the volume, foll. 17 b—358. It is a very full Arabic dictionary, in which the spelling of the words is accurately determined and their meanings explained in Persian. It is divided into Bābs and Faṣls, in which the words are arranged according to their final and initial letters. The margins are filled with copious additions.

The MS. is endorsed سراج اللغت شاهجهاني. On the first page is a note stating that it had come into the possession of Zuhūr ud-Dīn Muhammad Shīrāzī ul-Ķurashī, A.H. 1068. At the end is a seal with the still earlier date A.H. 1057.

Add. 5556.

Foll. 314;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 8; 21 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Charles Hamilton.]

منتخب اللغات شاهجهاني

A dictionary of Arabic words in common use, explained in Persian.

Author: 'Abd ur-Rashīd ul-Ḥusainī ulaبد الرشيد السيني المدني اصلا , (see p. 500 b)

ستایش و سپاس مالک الملکی که تذکار Beg. آلای می احصای

The preface contains a long panegyric on

Shāhjahān, to whom the work is dedicated, with versified chronograms composed by the author for the emperor's birth and accession. 'Abd ur-Rashīd states further on that he had compiled the present work from the most esteemed lexicons, such as the Kāmūs, the Ṣiḥāḥ, and the Ṣurāḥ, and he enumerates 'nine blemishes noticeable in earlier dictionaries, from which it was exempt.

The date of composition is expressed, in a versified chronogram found at the end of the next copies, by the words منتخب بى بديل i.e. 1092—46=A.H. 1046. The words are arranged according to the initial and final letters.

The Muntakhab ul-Lughāt, also called Rashīdī 'Arabī, has been frequently printed in India, Calcutta, 1808, 1816, 1836, Lucknow, 1835, and A.H. 1286, Bombay, A.H. 1279. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 135, and Ouseley's Collection, No. 386.

Add. 6644.

Foll. 330;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 6; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with ruled columns, probably in the 17th century.

[JAMES GRANT.]

The same work.

This copy has a lacune extending from the word وقيعة to ميطان.

Egerton 1022.

Foll. 249;  $14\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-Amīz; dated Faizābad, Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1229 (A.D. 1814). The same work.

Add. 16,753 and 16,754.

Two uniform volumes; foll. 471 and 392;  $15\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 9; 29 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the latter half of the 18th century. [Wm. Yule.]

قابوس

A Persian translation of the Kāmūs, or Arabic Thesaurus, of al-Fīrūzābādī; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 469.

Translator: Muhammad Habib Ullah,

حمد و نیایش کوناکون معروض حضرت علیم . Beg.

After dwelling on the importance of a knowledge of Arabic, and on the superiority of the Kamus, in point of comprehensiveness, to all other dictionaries, Muhammad Habib Ullah states that in his translation he had followed as much as possible the renderings of the Surāh, Kanz ul-Lughat, Tāj ul-Maṣādir, and Muntakhab ul-Lughat; that, unlike the author of the Surah, he had left no word of the original untranslated, and, lastly, that he had added in many cases words or meanings omitted by the author. This is followed by a full notice on the life of al-Firuzabadi, extracted from as-Sakhavi's work, الضوء اللامع, and other sources, and by a detailed explanation, in the form of questions and answers, of some difficult points in the method adopted in the Kamus.

The translator says that he had completed his work in A.H. 1147, در سنه یکهزار و یکصد , but in a versified chronogram, which immediately follows, he gives a somewhat later date, viz. A.H. 1149. He adds, in conclusion, that, as the original work had been submitted to the inspection of Timūr, it was meet that its translation should be honoured by a glance of the best of his descendants, the reigning emperor, Muḥammad Shāh Pādishāh Ghāzī.

An earlier Persian translation of the Kāmūs, by 'Abd ur-Raḥmān B. Ḥusain, A.D. 1618 (A.H. 1027), is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 134.

Add. 16,755.

Foll. 687;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

The first volume of the preceding work, ending with the letter b.

Turki-Persian Vocabularies.

Add. 6646.

Foll. 52; 8\frac{3}{2} in. by 5\frac{1}{2}; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [James Grant.]

A Turki (Oriental Turkish) vocabulary, explained in Persian.

Author: Fazl Ullah Khān, فضل الله خان Beg. سبحان الله هركاه افصح عرب و عجم

The author designates himself as a cousin of Saif Khān, of the lineage of Chākū, and one whose forefathers had been attached for fourteen generations to the service of the house of Tīmūr. He states that he had written this work by order of the reigning emperor (Aurangzīb), and for the use of the Shāhzādah.

Saif ud-Din Maḥmūd, commonly ealled Faķīr Ullah, was the second son of Tarbiyat. Khān, who came from Tūrān to India, and became Bakhshī of Shāhjahān. He was a descendant of Amīr Chākū, one of the Amīrs of Tīmūr. Having deserted the imperial army under Rājah Jaswant, to pass into the ranks of the rebel Aurangzīb (A.H. 1068), he was rewarded by the latter with the title of Saif Khān, and appointed successively governor of Dehli, of Kashmīr, and Bihār. He died as governor of Ilāhābād, A.H. 1095. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 50, and Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 312.

Contents: Introduction, treating of Turkī suffixes, fol. 2 a. Bāb 1. Verbs, arranged according to the first letters, fol. 5 b. Bāb II. Nouns, arranged according to the initial and final letters, fol. 12 b. Bāb III. Miscellaneous words, viz. numerals, parts of the human body, names of animals, of Turkish tribes, etc.

The work has been printed, at the request of Sir Wm. Ouseley, with an improved arrangement and some additions, by 'Abd ur-Raḥīm, Calcutta, A.H. 1240.

Add. 16,759.

Foll. 94; 9½ in. by 5½; 9 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in large Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins, in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

الفاظ جليه في بيان لغات تركيه

A Turkī vocabulary and grammar, explained in Persian.

Author: Khwājah Ţayyib Bukhārī Naķ-shabandī, خواجه طيب بخارى نـقشبندى

A preface, written partly in Persian, partly in Arabic, and partly in Turkī, the last two with interlinear Persian version, contains a panegyrie, in prose and verse, on the reigning emperor, Nāṣir ud-Dīn Muḥammad Shāh Pādishāh Ghāzī (A.H. 1131-1161), to whom the work is dedicated.

The treatise is divided into fifty chapters (Faṣl) and an appendix (Khātimah). The first twenty-five chapters, fol. 14 b, contain Turkī words classed according to subjects, with the Persian equivalent written under each. The last twenty-five, fol. 35 b, treat of Turkī grammar. The Khātimah, fol. 85 b, contains a hundred moral sentences ascribed to Turkish Shaikhs, with interlinear Persian version.

Egerton 1021.

Foll. 495;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 16 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in.

long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 17th century.

A vocabulary of Turkī verbs, explained in Persian, imperfect at beginning and end.

The verbs are arranged in alphabetical order. Each verb is completely conjugated in tabular form, and constitutes a Faşl, occupying two pages. The Persian equivalent is written under each inflexion.

The MS. begins in the middle of the verb آلدور ماق, the twelfth Fasl, and breaks off in the first line of the verb يياق.

Or. 404.

Foll. 110; 11½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, dated Pūth (District of Mīrath), Rabī' I. A.H. 1253 (A.D. 1837). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

I. Foll. 9—27. A Turkī grammar explained in Persian, entitled in the subscription فوايد تركي.

Beg. الحبد لله الذى خلق الانسان واعطى له اللسان. The author says in a short preamble that he had written this short manual at the request of some students desirous of learning the colloquial Turki.

II. Foll. 28—68. Familiar dialogues in Turkī and Persian, entitled in the subscription كتاب محاورة الاتراك.

Beg. فصل در بیان کلام مرکب ترکی یاد دهانیدن They were written, as stated at the beginning, for the use of the author's pupil, Navvāb Mīr Muḥsin Khān, who, although acquainted with the vocabulary, was not able to speak the language.

III. Foll. 69—79. Fragment of a Turkī poem in Maşnavī rhyme, the hero of which is Hūmān B. Ķaifūr.

IV. Foll. 80-92.

زبدة الاسما التركية

A Turki-Persian vocabulary.

باب في بيان اسماء الاشياء المختلفه في .Beg. لسان الاتراك

It is divided into nine Fasls, under the following heads: 1. Heaven and earth.

2. State. 3. Arts and trades. 4. Names of relationship. 5. Parts of the body. 6. War and arms. 7. Names of animals. 8. Miscellaneous words. 9. Numerals. In each of the above sections the words are in alphabetical order.

V. Foll. 93-110.

نصاب قطبيه

A versified Turki-Persian vocabulary.

Author: Kalimat Ullah, commonly called Khwājah Pādishāh, son of Khwājah Raḥmat Ullah B. Khwājah Ni mat Ullah, مشهور عبداله الله ابن خواجه بعواجه بالله ابن خواجه رحمت الله ابن خواجه نوست الله نوست

اوغان و تنكرى و ايزى خدا ورق يافراغ

It was written, as stated in a prose preface, by desire of a prince of royal blood, Mirzā Ķuţb ud-Dīn, and consists of 274 distiehs.

The Turki words are marked with a written over them in red ink, their Persian renderings with ...

Persian-Turkish Dictionaries.

Add. 7684.

Foll. 110; 9½ in. by 7; 9 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

شامل اللغت

A Persian-Turkish dietionary.

Author: Al-Karā-Ḥiṣārī, القرا حصارى vol. 11.

The words are arranged in Bābs according to the final letters, and in sub-sections called Nau' according to the initials. The latter are again sub-divided according to the vowel of the initial. The Turkish equivalent is written in a smaller character above each word.

In a copy described by Aumer, Munich Catalogue, p. 117, the author is called Ḥasan B. Ḥusain 'Imād, of Ķarā-Ḥiṣār, and the work dedicated to Sultan Bāyazīd B. Muḥammad B. Murād, who reigned from A.H. 887 to 918. The Lughat i Ķarā-Ḥiṣārī is one of the sources of Ni mat Ullah (p. 514 b), and of the second edition of Surūrī (p. 499 b).

The present copy wants a few lines at the end. On the first page is a note stating that the writer had purchased the MS. A.H. 1134 (A.D. 1722).

Harl. 5494.

Foll. 49; 8 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 7 lines about 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Naskhi, with all vowels, A.H. 1062 (A.D. 1652).

تحفه شاهدى

A Persian-Turkish vocabulary, in Maşnavî verse.

Author: Shāhidī, شاهدى

The author, who describes himself as a Maulavi, and a native of Maghlah in the province of Mantashā, states in a poetical prologue that he had written this vocabulary in imitation of the Tuḥſah i Ḥusāmī, which he had read in his childhood with his father Khudā'ī, and by the help of which he had been able to understand the Maṣnavī without a master.

Shāhidī, whose proper name was Ibrāhīm, son of Khudā'ī Dadah, lived in Brusa, as Shaikh of the Maulavis. He is the author of several Maṣnavis and a Dīvān. He died A.H. 957. See Hammer, Geschichte der Osmanischen Diehtkunst, vol. ii. p. 258.

The date of composition is fixed at the end, fol. 48 a, by the following chronogram:

قَلْدى سندن شاهدى نو يادكار which gives A.H. 920. This disposes of the attempted identification of the author with another Shāhidī, 'Abd ul-'Azīz Chalabī, who died A.H. 1021. See the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 428, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 39, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 39.

The Lughat i Shāhidī, as the work is commonly called, is a popular school-book, on which several commentaries have been written. Sec Haj. Khal., vol. vi. pp. 598—9. It has been described by Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 221, Krafft, No. 22, and Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 135.

In a portion of the present copy, foll. 6—31, English equivalents have been written under the text in a hand-writing of the 17th century. On the first page is written "Brian Braxton his Book, 1652."

Other copies will be described in the Turkish Catalogue.

Add. 7887.

Foll. 79; 7 in. by 4; 23 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1-71.

دقائق الحقائق

A treatise on the distinctions existing between Persian synonyms, explained in Turkish, and illustrated by numerous quotations from the standard poets.

سپاس بی قیاس خدای بی همتایه که .Beg. کازار بدایع

The work is dedicated in a short preamble to Ibrāhīm Pāshā, the Vazīr of Sulaimān. The author, not named in this copy, is, according to Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 232, Aḥmad B. Sulaimān, called Ibn Kamāl Pāshā.

This celebrated poet, philologer, and historian, son of a Pāshā of the time of Muḥammad II., accompanied Sultan Salīm, as Ķāzī 'Askar, in the conquest of Egypt, and was promoted under Sulaimān to the dignity of Muftī. He died in Constantinople, A.H. 940 (not 941, as stated by Hammer). The date is fixed by contemporary chronograms, as scient and scient and scient see Hammer, Geschichte der Osmanischen Dichtkunst, vol. ii. pp. 205—211.

The work has been subsequently arranged in alphabetical order, under the title of ترتيب; see Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 232, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 133. An abstract of the contents has been given by Hammer, Mines de l'Orient, vol. iii. p. 47. See also the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 99, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 130, and Upsala Catalogue, p. 19.

II. Foll. 72-79.

رسالة التعريب من التعجيم

An Arabic tract on the alteration of foreign words introduced into Arabic, by the same author.

Add. 7680.

Foll. 236;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines, 4 in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A Persian dictionary explained in Turkish. Author: Ni'mat Ullah B. Aḥmad B. Ķāzī Mubārak ur-Rūmī, نعبت الله بن احبد بن قاضى مبارك الرومي

حمد بی قیاس و شکر با اساس آن مالک .Beg. بی همتای را

The work is called in the subscription

لغة نعمة الله. Haj. Khal., who mentions it under نعمة الله, vol. vi. p. 362, states that the author died A.H. 969.

It was compiled, as stated in the preface, from the following works: 1. Uknūm i 'Ajam (a Persian Turkish Lexicon; see Uri, p. 291, No. 108). 2. Kāsimah i Luṭf Ullah Ḥalīmī (Haj. Khal. reads 🏎 ; see vol. iv. p. 503. The author died A.H. 928; see the Petersburg Catalogue, p. 431). 3. Vasīlah i Maķāṣid (written by Maulavī Rustam about A.H. 903; see the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 197). 4. Lughat i Karā-Ḥiṣārī (see p. 513a). 5. Ṣiḥāḥ i 'Ajam, in two recensions, one early and short, the other later and enlarged (by Hindūshāh Nakhjavānī; see Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 91, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 100).

The author adds that he had explained every word, even the most usual, as he was writing for ordinary readers, براى عوام الناس

The work is divided into the three following parts (Kism):—I. Verbs, fol. 3 a. II. Particles and flexion, fol. 17 a. III. Nouns, fol. 22 b. In the first and third of the above parts the words are alphabetically arranged in Bābs according to the initials. Each Bāb is subdivided into three sections according to the accompanying vowel.

The Lughat i Ni'mat Ullah has been described by Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 182, and by Dorn, Petersburg Catalogue, p. 427. See also the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. pp. 132, 137, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 101.

Add. 7679.

Foll. 176; 8½ in. by 5½; 19 lines, 3§ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

مجمع اللغات

Another recension of the preceding work, with a somewhat different preface, in which the enumeration of the sources is omitted.

In the body of the work, the main difference appears to consist in the absence of numerous poetical quotations, especially from Shams Fakhri, which are found in the preceding copy.

Add. 7686.

Foll. 197; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 7 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work abridged, and written in tabular form.

This copy wants the preface, the latter part of Kism I., and the whole of Kism II., but the last lines.

Add. 7687.

Foll. 21;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in small Naskhi, about the beginning of the 19th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

تحفه هبى

A versified vocabulary containing the most usual Persian words explained in Turkish.

Author: Vahbī Sunbul-Zādah, مبى سنبل زاده

The author, whose proper name was Muhammad B. Rashīd, left his native town, Mar'ash, for Constantinople, and was sent by Sultan 'Abd ul-Ḥamīd on an embassy to the Persian court. He has left a Dīvān which was completed A. H. 1222. See Hammer, Geschiehte der Osmanischen Dichtkunst, vol. iv. pp. 554—73.

It appears, from a prologue in Turkish verse, that he wrote the present work, after a long residence in Persia, and especially in Shīrāz, for his son Luṭf Ullah, and dedicated it to the Grand Vazīr Ibrāhīm Pāshā.

The date of composition is expressed in a versified chronogram at the end by the line, بحمد الله بو زيبا تحفه وهبى تمام اولدى which gives A.H. 1196.

The Tuḥfah i Vahbī has been printed in Constantinople, A.H. 1213, and has been often reprinted there and at Bulak. See Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 143.

Miscellaneous Dictionaries.

Add. 18,889.

Foll. 71;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 13 lines, 4 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Nāgpūr, Rabī' I., A.H. 1215 (A.D. 1800).

شمس البيان في مصطلحات هندوستان

A Hindustani glossary, alphabetically arranged, in which the words and phrases used by the Rekhtah poets of Dehli, and imperfectly understood in other parts of India, are explained in Persian, and illustrated with copious quotations.

Author: Mirzā Jān, poetically surnamed Tapish, مرزا جان متخلص بطیش

Beg. אינג אינגר כשׁעני שאינט ועניט אינען איען אינען אי

The author states in the preface that he had written the present work in Murshidābād, A.H. 1208, at the request of Navvāb Amīr ul-Mulk Shams ud-Daulah Aḥmad 'Alī Khān Bahādur Zulfaķār Jang.

Royal 16, B. 111.

Foll. 23; 12½ in. by 8; a volume of miscellaneous contents. [Thomas Hyde.]

Foll. 7—9; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; about 33 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written by a European hand, apparently in the 17th century.

A short rhymed vocabulary, containing familiar Arabic and Persian words and short sentences, explained in Hindustani.

خالق باری مسرجنهار واحد ایك برا كرتار Beg.

It is commonly called, from its beginning, Khāliķ Bārī, and is ascribed by popular tradition to Amīr Khusrau. It has been lithographed in Lucknow. See Sprenger, Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. xxi. p. 519, and Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1003.

Royal 16, B. XIII.

Foll. 41;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, on English paper, in the 17th century. [Thomas Hyde.]

I. Foll. 2—32. An alphabetical vocabulary containing Persian verbs conjugated through their main forms, with the Hindustani equivalent written under each.

It is called in the subscription کتاب آمدی

II. Foll. 33—41. A list of common Persian words arranged by order of subjects, with interlinear Hindustānī translation.

Add. 5661, A.

Foll. 50; 9¼ in. by 6; 13—15 lines; written in two columns, in the 18th century.

[N. B. Halhed.]

A Bengali-Persian vocabulary, arranged according to the Sauscrit alphabet.

Or. 399.

Foll. 274; 10<sup>3</sup> in. by 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; 17 lines, 3<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1234 (A.D. 1819).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

عجائب اللغات

A Hindustani Pushtu dictionary, explained in Persian.

Author: Ilahyar, son of Hafiz ul-Mulk Hafiz Rahmat Khan Bahadur, الهيار ولد حافظ رحبت خان بهادر

الحمد لله . . . بعد ستایش جناب کبریای . Beg. جل وعلی

The author, a son of the celebrated Rohilla chief, Hafiz Rahmat (see p. 212 b), states in the preface, that, by constant intercourse with the Afghans who flocked to India during his father's rule, he had acquired a familiar acquaintance with the language. At the death of Hafiz Rahmat in A.H. 1188, the Afghans were scattered far and wide. After being confined with his brother, during eight months, in Ilahabad, he was released, upon the death of Shuja' ud-Daulah, and repaired to Lucknow. Three years later he settled with his younger brothers, who knew the language but imperfectly, in Bareli; and, although he frequently visited his elder brother, Navvāb Mahabbat Khān, in Lucknow, he had lost, from want of practice, much of his native tongue. When, however, Mahabbat Khan, who was the head of the family, died in A.H. 1223, the author, seeking some occupation to divert his mind in his bereavement, began collecting all he could remember of the language, and compiled the present work, in order to preserve to his children and other Afghans growing up in India the precious heirloom of the national speech. He adds that the work represents mainly the dialect of the Sarahban tribe, to which he belonged.

Several versified chronograms, by the author's son Muḥammad Ibrāhīm Khān and others, give A.H. 1228 as the date of completion.

The work is divided into an introduction treating of Pushtū grammar, fol. 4 b, and twenty-eight Bābs, which form the dictionary proper, and begin at fol. 11 b.

The Hindustānī and Pushtū words, distinguished by the letters and written over each, are combined into one alphabet, and arranged according to the first and second letters. The Persian and Arabic equivalent is added to each, and all the Pushtū words are spelt at full length.

The present work has been mentioned by Major Raverty in his "Remarks on the Origin of the Afghans," Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. 23, p. 571. Another Afghan grammar and dictionary, entitled Riyāz ul-Maḥabbat, was written A.H. 1221, for Sir Ch. Barlow, by the author's brother, Maḥabbat Khān. See Sprenger, Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vol. xvi. p. 785, and Dr. Dorn's Afghan Grammar. The contents of both works have been incorporated by Major Raverty in his "Dictionary of the Pukhto," London, 1860; see the preface, p. 21.

Add. 12,266.

Foll. 488; 15 in. by 9½; 15 lines in a page; written in Nestalik, on English paper, about the close of the 18th century.

A Persian-Maghi dictionary.

Maghī, مركبي, is the language of the Maghs, or inhabitants of Arracan. The Persian words are taken, with their explanations, from the Farhang i Jahāngīrī, the arrangement of which is generally preserved. The Maghī words are written opposite, both in the original (Burmese), and in the Persian character.

An "Ex-Libris" on the cover shows that the MS. belonged to John Murray, afterwards Sir John M'Gregor Murray, Bart., who attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in the East-India Company's service in 1787. See above, p. 409, note.

Harleian 342.

Foll. 90;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; about 20 lines; written by a European hand, in the 16th century.

I. Foll. 3—72. An alphabetical English-Persian vocabulary, giving, in three columns, the English words, and the Persian equivalents in both the English and original characters, with some remarks on the Persian verb.

At the end is written: "John Banggam his Booke."

II. Foll. 73—78. Some Persian verbs fully conjugated, with the English equivalents.

III. Foll. 79—86. An English-Persian vocabulary, arranged by order of matters, in three columns. Most of the spaces reserved for Persian equivalents have been left blank.

IV. Foll. 87—89. The Lord's prayer in Persian, in the English and original characters. The same in Hindustani, in the English character.

Sloane 2924.

Foll. 123. Miscellaneous papers by Engelbert Kämpfer. The following is Persian:—

Foll. 1—41; 6¾ in. by 4¼; 18 lines. A Persian vocabulary, written by Kämpfer (probably A.D. 1684—8), containing familiar words and short sentences, arranged by order of subjects, in the original character and Latin transcription, with the German or Latin equivalents.

Sloane 2919.

Foll. 87; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; from 21 to 23 lines; written by Engelbert Kämpfer, about the close of the 17th century.

"Het ontwerp van de Persianse Nomenclatour."

A Dutch-Persian vocabulary, arranged by subjects. It is written in three columns, containing the Dutch, the Persian, and the Dutch transcription of the latter. Some classes have been left unfinished. At the end are some notes on Persian grammar, foll. 79—87.

Or. 443.

Foll. 597; 13 in. by 8½; from 20 to 23 lines; written in fair Nestalik, by a European hand, about A.D. 1785.

[Bequeathed by Mrs. L. Roberts.]
"Specimen of a Vocabulary, Persian and English, compiled by [Major] R. E. R[oberts], comprising at least six thousand words, which do not appear in any printed dictionaries, and numerous additional senses," etc.

The character of the work may be judged from the following specimen, taken from the beginning:—

آبا Abhorrence, aversion, ancestors, fathers, broth, refusal, denial, with.

ابدان Bodies; fit, proper.

Prefixed is an autograph letter written by Sir Wm. Jones to Major Roberts, Khānpūr, and dated, Hugli, 26 Oct., 1785, informing him that his supplement to the Persian dictionaries had been communicated by the writer to the Asiatic Society at Calcutta, and encouraging him to continue his labours.

Roger E. Roberts, who had entered the East India Company's service in 1767, attained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in 1794, and retired in 1797. He held for some time the office of Persian interpreter to the governor of Bengal. See the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, vol. xiii. p. 115.

Add. 6999.

Foll. 518; 9 in. by 74; loosely written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1815.

"Historical Vocabulary, from Richardson's Dictionary" (also from Castellus and Meninski), containing proper names of men and places in Persian, with English explanations; to which are added some extracts from Abulfaraj, Pecocke, etc. in Latin and Arabic.

GRAMMAR.

Persian Grammar.

Add. 7691.

Foll. 111;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān, ornamental headings, and gold-ruled margins, probably about the close of the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A treatise on orthocpy and penmanship, without title.

Author: Abul-Kāsim B. Muḥammad Rizā, Majlis-Navīs i Naṣīrī, ابو القاسم بن محمد رضا مجلس نویس نصیری

الحمد لله الذي استنسمع لالواح قلوبنا نسخة .Beg عرفان وحدانيته

The author, who calls himself a born servant of the Shāh, states that his grandfather, his paternal uncle, and his father, having severally written books on surnames, on the rules of letter-writing, and on poetry, در باب القاب, he had chosen for his subject in the present treatise orthography, the rules of correct diction, and penmanship.

It is divided into a Mukaddimah and four Makālahs, as follows:—Mukaddimah. Letters proper to Arabic, Persian, and Turkish, fol. 2 b. Makālah I., in two Bābs, viz. orthography الملا , and rules of correct speech تخافري in Persian, fol. 4 b. Makālah II. Orthography and rules of correct speech in Turkish, fol. 38 b. Although this section deals principally with Oriental Turkish, or, as it is called here, Jaghatāi, the forms of the Kizilbāshī and Rūmī dialects are frequently noticed. Makālah III., in three Babs: 1. Meanings of the single letters, according to the teaching of the Imams, fol. 49 b. 2. Arabic orthography, fol. 62 a. 3. Rules of correct speech in Arabic, fol. 76 a. Makālah IV. On penmanship, in eight Bābs, viz.: 1. Creation of the kalam, fol. 86 b. 2. Invention of the art of writing, fol. 87 b. 3. Writing implements, fol. 90 a. 4. Various writings and characters, fol. 95 a. (The latest of the celebrated penmen here mentioned is Mir 'Imad). 5. How to cut the kalam, fol. 99 a. 6. How to teach and practice penmanship, fol. 102 b. 7. Ligature and proportion of the letters ترکیب و کرسی, fol. 106 a. 8. How to correct writing, fol. 109 b.

In a Persian note written on the first page, and dated A.H. 1117, the writer calls this work رساله، دوران, and appears to take "Davarān" as meaning scribes (Davar = Dabīr?), for he adds a wish that the work may prove useful to the eminent scribes of the period, دُوران نمایان عرصه، روزکار

Egerton 1023.

Foll. 94; 10 $\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the latter half of the 18th century.

جامع القواعد

A treatise on Persian grammar and prosody.

Author: Muḥammad Kulī, poetically surnamed Muḥibb, محمد قلى المتخلص بحب

بهار پیرای کلستان تصانیف و نزهت افزای Beg.

* Mīr 'Imād of Kazvīn, a Nestalik writer of great repute, lived in Ispahan under Shāh Abbās I. (A.H. 996—1038). He was assassinated at the instigation of the Shāh, to whom he was hateful as a Sunni, and had given personal offence. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 312, and Oude Catalogue, p. S9.

The author states that he had compiled this treatise, at the request of some friends, from the standard works of the masters, adding the results of his own observation, so that it might facilitate the study to beginners, and be also useful to proficient scholars. He completed it, as stated in a rhymed epilogue, at the beginning of the reign of Shāh 'Alam, and in the year expressed by the words stie, i.e. A.H. 1174.

It is divided into six books (Makālah), as follows: I. Letters and parts of speech, fol. 4 b. II. Various forms of the infinitive, and formation of the past and future, fol. 6 b. III. Conjugation, fol. 13 b. IV. Meanings of the detached letters, and their permutation, fol. 19 b. V. Syntax and derivation, fol. 36 a. VI. Containing two Bābs, viz., 1. Prosody, عرض, fol. 45 a. 2. Rhyme, fol. 84 a.

On the first page is a note written by a former owner, Aḥmad 'Alī Khān, who states that he had been long searching for that rare and excellent work. He calls the author Muḥammad Kulī Khān.

Add. 25,863.

Foll. 134; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 13 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1229 (A.D. 1814). [WM. CURETON.] The same work.

Add. 10,462.

Foll. 77; 9 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 10 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, on English paper; dated Shabān, A.H. 1243 (A.D. 1828).

قانون نصيري

A treatise on Persian grammar, illustrated with numerous quotations from the poets.

مفدر علی Author: Ṣafdar ʿAlī, صفدر علی صفدر بیجد و شکر بایعد حکیمی را سزاست که .Beg. برای عرایس

The author wrote it, as stated in the preface, for the use of his pupil, Mirzā Muḥammad Naṣīr, son of 'Alī Beg Khān Ṣāḥib, in whose honour he gave it the above title.

It is divided into five Bābs, as follows:

1. Construction of Persian nouns, Izāfat, and composition, fol. 2 b. 11. Pronouns, detached and attached, fol. 9 b. 111. Prefixed particles, fol. 25 a. 1v. Affixed particles, fol. 44 b. v. Figures of speech, fol. 55 b.

Add. 8914.

Foll. 77; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1217 (A.D. 1803).

نهر الفصاحت

A treatise on correct and elegant diction in Persian.

Author : Katīl, قتيل

ترانه سنجی عندلیب قلم در بهارستان Beg.

Mīrzā Ķatīl, who has been already mentioned, p. 64 b, wrote this work, as stated in the preface, at the request of Mīr Muḥammad Ḥusain, the eldest son of his friend, Mīr Amān ʿAlī, as a complement to his previous work Shajarat ul-Amānī.

In the preface of a later composition, Chār Sharbat, Mīrzā Ķatīl states that the present work was written A.H. 1214, eight years after the Shajarat ul-Amānī.

The Nahr ul-Faṣāḥat is divided into ten chapters termed Mauj, or Waves. Its object is chiefly to correct ungrammatical or unidiomatic phrases current in the Persian of India. The last chapter contains some models of epistolary composition.

The work has been printed in Calcutta, 1822, and in Lucknow, 1843. See Bibl. Sprenger., No. 1569, and Blochmann, Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. 37, p. 32.

Egerton 1029.

Foll. 62; 9 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1220 (A.D. 1805).

The same work.

Add. 16,756.

Foll. 68; 84 in. by 5; 17 lines, about 3 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, late in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 2-21.

آمد نامه بديع

A treatise on Persian grammar.

Author: Sukhrāmdās, son of Nilkanth B. Bhagwatīdās Kāyath, سكهرامداس ولد نيلكنته ابن بكوتيداس كايته

منت بی پایان مر خالقی را که بنی نوع .Beg. انسان را

The author, who describes himself as a Kānungo of the Parganah Silak, Lakhnau, compiled this work, as he states in the preface, in order to help children of his caste to acquire the necessary knowledge of Persian. The rules are illustrated by copious quotations from the poets.

This copy breaks off in the 11th Faşl, which contains paradigms of the conjugation.

II. Foll. 22-68. A treatise on Persian grammar.

Author: Nizam ud-Din Ahmad, نظام الدين

This work, which follows the method of Arabic grammarians, is divided into three parts (Bahş), treating severally of the verbs, fol. 22, the nouns, fol. 31, and the particles, fol. 49. Some references to the Hindustānī language and to Indian works, as the Farhang i Jahāngīrī, Farhang i Rashīdī, etc., show yol. II.

that it was written in India. It was completed, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1188.

It is endorsed المجرب البحرين a title which is not found in the text.

Add. 17,965.

Foll. 59;  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; about 13 lines in a page; written about A.D. 1700.

[EDWARD GALLEY.]

A sketch of Persian grammar, written on opposite pages in French and Persian, with the double title عنصرهای زبان فارسی, and "Rudiments, ou Grammaire Française Persienne."

On the fly-leaf is the name of "P. Jaque Villotte," probably the author, and at the top of the second page "Mission Julf. Soc. Jes."

Jacques Villotte, a Jesuit missionary, the author of a Dictionarium Latino-Armenium, resided in Persia, principally at the Jesuit establishment of Julfah, Ispahan, from 1689 to 1708. He died in 1743.

Add. 7002.

Foll. 218; 10 in. by 8; written by John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1802.

Short passages from various poets, illustrating points of Persian grammar or idiom, with English translations and occasional remarks. They are apparently extracted, for the most part, from Lumsden and Gladwin. The volume is inscribed by the compiler: "Selections from Persian Poetry, etc., illustrative of inflexion, syntax and prosody."

Arabic Grammar.

Add. 16,758.

Foll. 78; 8½ in. by 6; 9 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in Naskhī, in Sikrī, apparently in the 16th century. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—54. A treatise on Arabic inflexion, commonly called, from the author's title, Şarf i Mīr, صرف مير

بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في الدارين كه كلمات .Beg. لغة عرب بر سه قسم است

Mir Sayyid Sharif Jurjāni, born A.H. 740 in Tāghū, a village belonging to Astrābād, obtained access in A.H. 779 to Shah Shuja', then encamped in Kasr i Zard, who took him to Shīrāz, and appointed him as teacher in the Dar ush-Shifa. When Timur took Shirāz, A.H. 789, Sayyid Sharif was transferred by him to Samarkand, and stayed there to the end of the conqueror's life, engaged in teaching and in frequent academical disputes with his great rival in learning, Sa'd ud-Din Taftāzānī. He then returned to Shiraz, where he died A.H. 816, at the age of seventy-six. His numerous works, mostly written in Arabic, have become favourite text-books in Muhammadan schools. Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 89, Majālis ul-Müminin, fol. 375, and S. de Sacy, Notices et Extraits, vol. x. pp. 4-12.

The present work, mentioned by Hāj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 304, under the title of تصریف السید الشریف, is a popular school-book in India. It has been printed in a collection of grammatical tracts published in Calcutta, about 1805, pp. 122—164, and lithographed in Lucknow, A.D. 1844, and A.H. 1288.

The first leaves of the present copy are disfigured by holes. The latter portion, foll. 48—54, written by another hand, is dated A.H. 1089 (A.D. 1678).

II. Foll. 55—78. An Arabic treatise on grammar, known as العزى. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 473.

Add. 25,862.

Foll. 56;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 9 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century. [WM. CURETON.]

A tract on Arabic inflexion, without title. Beg. الحمد لله . . . بدان علمك الله تعالى كه كلمات علمك عرب سه قسم بود فعل اسم حرف عرب سه قسم بود فعل اسم حرف The author's name, Sayyid 'Alī Akbar,

The author's name, Sayyid 'Alī Akbar, and the date of his death, A.H. 1091, are recorded in the following verses, written at the end by the same hand as the text, and ascribed to Navvāb Bāķir Khān:

که علم و شرع و دین چون که زیرخاك شد قدسیان را بر فلك زین غم كریبان چاك شد خامهٔ تقدیر زد بر سال تاریخش رقم سید والا علی اكبر شهید پاك شد

The margins and the intervals between the lines are crowded with notes written in a minute character.

This tract has been lithographed in the press of Naval Kishor, with the title فصول See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1069, where the author is called Akbar 'Alī.

Add. 25,861.

Foll. 72; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in small Naskhi; dated Rabī'I, A.H. 1120 (A.D. 1708). [WM. CURETON.]

A treatise on Arabic syntax , without title.

Author: Bahā ud-Dīn Muḥammad ul-Husainī ul-Mukhtārī un-Nā'īnī, مجاء الدين محمد الحسيني المختاري النايني الحمد لله ذى العز والجود والكرم مالك الملك . Beg.

The author describes his work as a compendious manual written for some beginners who came to him for instruction. It is divided as follows: Mukaddimah, on the meaning of , fol. 2 a. Makālah I., ib., subdivided into fourteen Fasls. Makālah II., fol. 25 a, treating of grammatical agents, and similarly subdivided. Lastly a Khātimah, which, although mentioned in the preface, is not found in the body of the work.

محمد صالم ابن وليخان محمد ابادى : Copyist

Add. 23,576.

Foll. 129; 64 in. by 4; 19 lines, 34 in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

An extensive Persian commentary on the Kāfiyah, or Arabic grammar of Ibn Ḥājib; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 230.

The MS. is imperfect at the beginning and at the end. It contains neither title, nor author's name; but it is endorsed شافیه برکافیه

زیرا که جزء لفظ : The first page begins thus و معنی وی مرکب دلاله کند بر جزء معنی پس لفظ و معنی وی مرکب باشد

Add. 26,134.

Foll. 67; 7½ in. by 4¾; 5 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1068 (A.D. 1658). [WM. ERSKINE.]

پنج گنج

"The five treasures," a treatise on Arabic accidence تصریف, without author's name.

The work consists, according to the preface, of five Babs, each of which contains five Fasls. Bab 1., treating of the conjugation of the regular verb, is here omitted, the reader being referred for its contents to the author's being referred for its contents to the author's (i.e., according to a marginal note, the opening chapter of his treatise entitled (acle), which deals with the same subject.

Bāb II., which alone is extant in this copy and in two others, Add. 5566, IV., and Add. 16,757, III., comprises the following five Faşls: 1. Classes of verbs, fol. 4 b. 2. Verbs with a Hamzah, fol. 8 a. 3. Verbs with a weak letter, fol. 11 b. 4. Reduplicate verbs, fol. 55 b. 5. Ta'līlāt, or rules relating to the permutation of letters, fol. 61 b.

The margins contain copious notes extracted from various commentaries.

The Panj Ganj occupies pp. 38—112 of a collection of grammatical tracts printed in Calcutta, about 1805, and beginning with the Mīzān i Ṣarf. It is called in the subscription تصریف. It has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1844; see Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1070.

Add. 26,135.

Foll. 33; 10 in. by 7; 9 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in Sürat, early in the 19th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

قوانين صرف

An elementary treatise on Arabic flexion, by questions and answers.

الحمد لله رب العالمين . . . بدان اسعدك الله في . . . العمد لله رب العالمين علم تصريف كه صبيانرا ضبط آن لابد و ناچار است

The author, whose name does not appear, states in a short preamble that he had written this manual for his brother's son, 'Aṭā Ullah B. Muḥammad Zarīf, براى برادر زاده عطاء الله بن محمد ظریف

This is probably the work described as "a grammar in questions and answers by 'Aṭā Allah, printed in Calcutta, 1244." See Bibliotheea Sprenger., No. 1060.

Add. 5566.

Foll. 81; 9 in. by 6; 15 lines, 3\frac{2}{4} in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Shavval, A.H. 1187 (A.D. 1773).

I. Foll. 1—7. A treatise on the conjugation of the regular verb in Arabic, without author's name.

الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى فى . . Beg. الدارين كه جمله افعال متصرفه و اسماء متمكنه بر سه كونه است ماضى و مستقبل و حال

اله In the subscription the work is called ميزان.

It has been printed with the title ميزان صرف in a collection of grammatical treatises printed in Calcutta about A.D. 1805, and has been lithographed in the Muḥammadī press, A.H. 1258.

N 2

II. Foll. 8—15. A treatise on the various classes of Arabic verbs and on their secondary forms.

الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى في Beg. الدارين كه جمله افعال متصرفه از روى تركيب حروف اصلي بر دو كونه است ثلاثي و رباعي

This treatise, called in the subscription منشعبه, follows the preceding, with the same title, in the above editions.

III. Foll. 16—17. A short tract on the secondary forms of the Arabic verb, in Maşnavî verse.

ما که میکوییم توحید رحیم Beg. باد مقبول صهد واحد علیم

The author's name is stated to be found in the initial letters of the first five hemistichs, which give Mubārak.

IV. Foll. 18—41. Panj Ganj; see above,p. 523 a.

V. Foll. 42—49. A treatise on the laws of permutation which apply to the Arabic irregular verbs.

Author: Zahīr B. Malımūd B. Mas'ūd ul-'Alavī, ظهير بن محمود بن مسعود العلوي

الحمد لله الموصوف بالتصريف المنعوت . Beg. بالتخفيف

This tract occupies pp. 113—122 in the above mentioned Calcutta collection, where it is called, in the subscription, زيدة

VI. Foll. 50—81. دستور المبتدى, a treatise on the same subject, by questions and answers.

Author: Ṣafī B. Naṣīr, صفى بن نصير المجاد الله الذي يصرف الاحوال و يخفف الاثقال. The author wrote it, as he states in the preface, for his son, Abul-Maķārim Ismā'īl, as a sequel to the Panj Ganj (p. 523 a), which the latter had read through.

Add. 16,757.

Foll. 70;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 9 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, early in the 19th century. [WM. YULE.]

Foll. 2—11. The Mīzān; see above,
 Add. 5566, 1.

II. Foll, 12—31. The Munsha'ib; see ib. II.

III. Foll. 32—61. The Panj Ganj; see p. 523 a.

IV. Foll. 62-70. On the laws of permutation in irregular verbs; see Add. 5566, v.

On the first page is written: "In the handwriting of my most excellent friend Aiz ud Deen Khan. Wm. Yule, Farrukhabad."

Add. 26,132.

Foll. 77;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; from 6 to 13 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in. Nestalik and Naskhi, apparently in India, in the 19th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—24. A treatise on the conjugation of the regular Arabic verb, with tabular paradigms.

الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى فى . Beg. الدارين كه جمله افعال بنى آدم بر چهار نوع است ماضى و مستقبل وامر و نهى

II. Foll. 25—48. A treatise on the conjugation of the regular Arabic verbs in their several classes, and of their secondary forms, with the heading: هذا الاوزان في علم الصرف

الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى فى . . Beg. الدارين كه جمله افعال بنى آدم از روى تعدد حروف بر دو نوع است ثلاثى و رباعى

In an English title, written by Erskine on the fly-leaf, the first of the above tracts is called "Destur al Aml," the second "Amal al Serf."

III. Foll. 49-77. Sarf i Mîr; see above, p. 522 a.

Add. 26,131.

Foll. 68; 8½ in. by 6; 11 and 19 lines, about 4 in. long; dated A.H. 1196 and 1204 (A.D. 1782 and 1790). [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—30. Şarf i Mir; see above,p. 522 a.

II. Foll. 31—68. A treatise on the conjugation of the regular and irregular Arabic verbs.

الحمد لله . . . بدان اسعدك الله تعالى فى Beg. العمد لله تعالى فى الدارين كه اين كتابيست دربيان صرف افعال وعلل آن

It is divided into two Babs treating severally of the triliteral and quadriliteral verbs. Each is subdivided into two Fasls, on the simple and secondary forms. The paradigms are given in tabular form.

The title "Dustoor Moobteda" has been written by Erskine on the first page.

PROSODY.

Add. 16,760.

Foll. 89; 7½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated A.H. 1206 (A.D. 1791—2). [WM. YULE.]

معيار الاشعار

An extensive treatise on prosody and rhyme in Arabic and Persian poetry, without author's name.

الحمد لله حمد الشاكرين والصلوة . . . اين . Beg. مختصريست در علم عروض و قوافي شعر تازي وپارسي

It is divided into a Mukaddimah and two Fanns, as follows:—Mukaddimah, in three Fasls. Definition of poetry, fol. 2 b. Variety of metres and rhymes in different languages, fol. 5 a. Arts connected with poetry, fol. 5 b.

Fann I. Component parts of the feet and their modifications, fol. 6 b. The metres, fol. 34 a. Fann II. Rhyme, in ten Faşls, fol. 69 a.

Muftī Muḥammad Sa'd Ullah, who edited the above work, with his own commentary entitled ميزان الانكار, A.H. 1264, and again, in a revised edition, in the press of Naval Kishor, A.H. 1282, ascribes it to the celebrated Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī (born A.H. 597, died A.H. 672; see p. 441 b, where A.H. 692 is an error of the press), and states in a biographical notice of the presumed author, that the Mi'yar ul-Ash'ār had not received the final revision of Naṣīr ud-Dīn, and had not, therefore, become a popular school-book like his other works.

We are not told, however, on what authority that attribution rests, and it may be noticed that no such work is mentioned in the extensive list of the writings of Naṣīr ud-Dīn given by the author of the Majālis ul-Mūminīn.

The last two pages of the present copy do not belong to the original work; they are taken from the corresponding part of the treatise of Jāmī; Blochmann's edition, pp. 6 and 7.

Add. 16,808.

Foll. 68; 8½ in. by 4¾; 13 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 1—48. A treatise on Persian prosody.

Author: Saifī, سيفي

Beg. الحمد لله الذي جعل علم العروض ميزان الاشعار Maulānā Saifī, of Bukhārā, also called 'Arūzī, on account of his mastery in prosody, was a poet of note. He left in early life his native place for Herat, where he stayed some years, in the reign of Sultān Husain, under the patronage of Mīr 'Alī Shīr. Having subsequently returned to his country, he was appointed preceptor to Bāisunghar Mīrzā, with whom he remained three years. After that prince's violent death, he retired to Bukhārā, where he spent the rest of his life. See Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 593, and Haft Iklīm, fol. 593. Mīr 'Alī Shīr states in his Majālis, Add. 7669, fol. 32, that Saifī was addicted to intemperate habits, which he had however lately renounced.

Bāisunghar Mīrzā, seeond son of Sulṭān Maḥmūd Mīrzā, and grandson of Sulṭān Abū Sa'īd, was placed on the throne of Samarkand after his father's death, in A.H. 900, at the age of eighteen years. Driven from thence by Bābar, A.H. 903, he was put in possession of Ḥiṣār by an Amīr of his father, Khusrau Shāh, by whom he was shortly after treacherously murdered, A.H. 905. See Erskine, History of India under Baber, pp. 92, 142, and Memoirs of Baber, pp. 33 and 72. Saifi died, therefore, some time after A.H. 905. The date 99, which is assigned to his death in the Ātashkadah, is probably to be read A.H. 909.

The date of composition, A.H. 896, is expressed in a Rubā'i at the end by the following line: بنویس که هست فیضا تاریخش

The treatise of Saifi, commonly called عروض سيفى, has been edited with an English translation by H. Blochmann, under the title of "Prosody of the Persians," Calcutta, 1872. It is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 419, under رسالة في العروض. See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1572, and King's College, Cambridge, No. 207.

II. Foll. 49—52. Mnemonic verses, containing examples of the Persian metres, followed by their scansion.

هزج را کر تمام ارکان همی خواهی ازو مکذر

III. Foll. 52 b—55. A short tract on the feet used in Arabic metres and their modifications.

بدانکه ارباب صناعت عروض بنائی اصول Beg. اوزان شعر را بر سه کونه نهاده اند

IV. Foll. 55 b—57. On various kinds of composition, in prose and verse.

کلام منثورسه قسم است مرجز وهسجع و عاری .Beg.

V. Foll. 58—62. On the feet, and their various modifications.

فصل در بیان انکه ارکانی که بحور ازان مرکب .Beg است مخصر در هشت ارکانند

This tract contains frequent references to the work of Saifī.

VI. Foll. 63—68. A treatise on rhyme in Persian poetry, by Jāmī (see p. 17 α).

Beg. بعد از تيمن بموزون ترين كلامى كه قافية سنجان. The work, which has no title, is designated in the preface by the words مختصريست وافى It has been edited by Blochmann, with an English translation, in the Prosody of the Persians, pp. 75—86. Haj. Khal. mentions the work, without author's name, under the title ملك علم الرسالة الوافية في علم vol. iii. p. 425.

Add. 7433.

Foll. 123; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik Shikastah-āmīz; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1129 (A.D. 1717).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 113—116. A short tract on the component parts of the feet, and on the sixteen metres used in Persian, without author's name.

Beg. بدانکه بنای شعر براسباب واوتاه وفواصل است. Each metre is illustrated by a distich containing its name, and followed by its scansion.

II. Foll. 117—123. A treatise on rhyme, illustrated by Persian verses.

این رساله ایست در بیان حدود قافیه و .Beg. حروف و حرکات آن

For the rest of the contents, see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 242.

INSHA,

OR, THE ART OF COMPOSITION.

Add. 16,841.

Foll. 493; 103 in. by 613; 17 lines, 31 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. YULE.]

رسائل الاعجاز

A treatise on elegant prose-writing, with copious examples, consisting of official documents of the period, and of the author's own letters.

Author: Amir Khusrau, of Dehli, امير (see p. 240 b).

هذا الكتاب بفضل الله ذى الكرم .Beg. انشأت سحرا لصيد الجن والنسم

After verbose panegyrics on Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad (A.H. 696—716), and his son and successor, Kutb ud-Dīn Mu-bārak Shāh (A.H. 717—721), the author describes at great length nine different styles of Persian prose, to which he adds a tenth, his own, as far superior to all. He states, at the end, that the work was completed A.H. 719. It contains, however, some of the author's earliest compositions, especially in the last section, which includes letters dated A.H. 680 and 682.

The latter part of Risālah vi. (Add. 16,842, foll. 471 b—506 a) is wanting. In the first part of the volume are found some marginal notes and corrections.

A note on the first page states that the MS. had been purchased, in A.H. 1184, by Rāi (afterwards Mahārājah) Tiket Rāi, the Oude Minister.

The work is commonly known as Ijāz i Khusravī. A short account of it will be found in Elliot's History of India, vol. iii. p. 566. Some extracts of historial interest are given in Persian by Nayyir Rakhshān (see p. 446 b) in Or. 1940, foll. 15—36. Others, translated for Sir H. Elliot by a Munshi, will be found in Add. 30,772, foll. 217—254. The first Risālah has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1865, and the entire work in the same place, 1876.

Add. 16,842.

Foll. 544; 10 in. by 5\(\frac{3}{4}\); 17 lines, 3\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long, in a page; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Burhanpūr, from Ramazān, A.H. 1081, to Jumāda I., 1082 (A.D. 1670—1).

[WILLIAM YULE.]

The same work. The several sections begin as follows:—Preface, fol. 1b. Risālah 1., fol. 17b. 11., fol. 84b. 111., fol. 272b. 1v., fol. 327b. v., fol. 507b. In the last there is a lacune extending from the first Harf of Khat 4 to the end of the book. The epilogue is also wanting. Foll. 1—24 have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 22,706.

Foll. 86;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Sir John Campbell.]

مناظر الانشا

A treatise on the art of literary composition. 528 INSHA.

Author: Maḥmūd B. Shaikh Muḥammad Gīlānī, محمود بن شيخ محمد كيلاني

A life of 'Imad ud-Din Mahmud, commonly called Khwajah Mahmud Gavan, written by 'Abd ul-Karim Hamadani, is given in substance by Firishtah, Bombay edition, vol. i. p. 694, Briggs' translation, vol. ii. p. 511. Born in Gilan, where his forefathers had held the post of Vazīr, he spent his early life in travelling as a merchant through various countries, and having reached the Deccan at the age of forty-three years, was taken into the service of 'Alā ud-Din Bahmani, who sent him, A.H. 860, at the head of an army to Tilinga. Humāyūn Shah conferred upon him, after his accession, A.H. 862, the office of Vakil, with the title of Malik ut-Tujjar. He discharged the functions of Vazīr under the reign of Nizām Shāh (A.H. 865—867), and of his successor Muhammad Shāh, who gave him the title of Khwājah i Jahān. Maḥmūd was put to death, on an unjust accusation, by the last king, A.H. 886. His surname is said to be derived from Kāvān قراي, his native town in Gīlān; but an anecdote, quoted by Firishtah, proves that in India it was pronounced Gavan ...!.

Maḥmūd Gāvān was celebrated no less for his literary talent than for his boundless liberalities. He left a collection of letters entitled Riyāz ul-Inshā (Or. 1739; called Rauzat ul-Inshā by Firishtah) and a Dīvān. See Firishtah, Bombay edition, vol. i. pp. 653, 655, 663, 672 and 692, Briggs' translation, vol. ii. pp. 448—511.

The author is mentioned as one of the celebrated men of Gīlān by his contemporary, 'Abd ur-Razzāķ, Maṭla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 380, who calls him Maḥmūd Ķāvān ٽار, of Rasht, son of Khwājah Jalāl ud-Dīn, and who, writing A.H. 875, says that he was known throughout the world as Malik ut-Tujjār, and was then wielding supreme sway in the kingdom of Kulbargah.

The work is divided into an Introduction (Mukaddimah), two books (Makāmah), and a Khātimah, as follows:—Mukaddimah. On the nature and object of the science of Inshā, i. e. the art of literary composition, and on the figures of speech, in eight chapters, (Faṣl), fol. 5 a. Makāmah r. On the different kinds of composition, in verse and prose, and on the rules to be observed in the selection of words in writing, fol. 27 b. Makāmah II. On the various styles of epistolary composition, and on its rules, fol. 60 b. Khātimah. On orthography, fol. 82 a.

The contents are more fully described by Hammer, in the Wiener Jahrbücher, vol. 62, Anz. Blatt, p. 16, and by Flügel, in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 237. See also Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 138, and Hammer, Redekünste Persiens, p. 412.

This copy wants the first page. A table of contents by a later hand is found on the fly-leaf, on which is also written, "John N. N. Campbell, Tabreez, 1831."

Add. 25,865.

Foll. 244;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 30 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the town of Banūr, district of Sihrind, قصبة بنور من اعبال dated Muḥarram, A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1611). [WM. Cureton.]

مخزن الانشا

A treatise on the art of epistolary composition.

Author: Ḥusain B. 'Alī ul-Kāshifī, حسين (died A.H. 910; see p. 9 b).

حمد خداوند سرايم نخست

The preface, which begins with considerations on the value of the art of writing in general, and especially in its application to correspondence, contains eulogies on the reigning sovereign, Abul-Ghāzī (Sulṭān Ḥusain), and on the author's noble patron, Muḥarrab ul-Ḥazrat Mīr 'Alī Shīr, for whom the work was written. It is stated at the end to have been completed on the fourth of Jumāda II., A.H. 907. The date is ingeniously expressed in a rhymed chronogram by the following line:

INSHA. 529

The work is divided as follows: 'Unvān. What a secretary (Kātib) must know, fol. 4 a. Ṣaḥīfah I. Forms of address, خطابیات, fol. 4 b. Ṣaḥīfah II. Forms of-answer, جوابیات, fol. 107 b. Ṣaḥīfah III. On the various matters which have to be stated, fol. 127 b. Khātinah. Forms of prayer used in letters, fol. 233 b. Each part contains a great variety of forms of expression tabularly arranged.

See Haj. Khal. vol. v. p. 466, and Krafft's Catalogue, p. 23. An Arabic and Persian Inshā entitled Ṣaḥīfah i Shāhī, also by Ḥusain Kāshifī, has been lithographed in Lucknow. See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1580.

Add. 6608.

Foll. 140; 9½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1087 (A.D. 1676). [J. F. HULL.]

بدائع الانشا

Forms of letters.

Author: Yasufi, يوسفى

زینت عنوان هر نامه نامی و زیور دیباچه اینات

In the Khulāṣat ul-Inshā, Or. 1750, fol. 158, a work written A.H. 1102, the author of this manual is called Maulānā Ilakīm Yusufi, Munshī of Humāyūn. This would make it probable that he was identical with the physician Yūsuf B. Muḥammad, of Herat, who used also the poetical surname Yūsufī, and lived under Bābar and Humāyūn; see p. 475 b.

The author states in a short preamble vol. II.

that he had compiled this manual for his son Rafi' ud-Din Ḥusain and other students.

The date of its completion is obtained by doubling the numerical value of its title,  $470 \times 2 = A.H.$  940, as expressed in the following chronogram:

The letters are arranged according to the rank and class of the persons addressed, and, in the latter part, according to subjects. This popular work, commonly known as Inshāi Yūsufī, has been lithographed in the Hindu Press, Dehli, without date. It is described in Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1603, as compiled in 1086.

Add. 18,884.

Foll. 134;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1235 (A.D. 1820).

The same work.

Add. 16,846.

Foll. 94; 8½ in. by 5; 11 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Lucknow, Safar, A.H. 1206 (A.D. 1791). [WM. YULE.] The same work, somewhat abridged.

The first page bears the stamp of General Claud Martin (see p. 2a).

Add. 7692.

Foll. 43; 7 in. by 4; 8 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Shafi'ā'i; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1087 (A.D. 1676). [Cl. J. Rich.]

کتاب A collection of royal letters, headed کتاب ترسل منصوری

Author: Mansur B. Muliammad B. 'Ali, منصور بن محمد بن على

حمد ستایش بیقیاس مالك الملكی را که .Beg. انشاء موجودات

530 INSHA.

The author says that he had collected here for the use of students some letters composed by the ministers of the present period, مكتربى چند از انشاء امناء اين زمان. The letters, written in an extremely involved eharacter, and wholly destitute of diacritical points, appear to have been written in the name of Shāh Ṭahmāsp and 'Abbās I. A few of them bear dates, viz. A.H. 954, 961, 971, 972, and 1032. This copy appears to contain a portion only of the work described as limit in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 28, where the author is called Manṣūr B. Muḥammad 'Alī, of Shīrāz.

Royal 16, B. xxIII.

Foll. 17;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1077 (A.D. 1666). [THOMAS HYDE.]

Models of familiar letters addressed to relations, friends, and officials of inferior rank.

Author: Ḥadīķī, حديقي

بعد از انشای حمد و ثنای حضرت آفریدکار .Beg که جمله موجودات را

The work was written in India. The date A.H. 1077, which is found at the end of one of the letters, fol. 16 a, as well as in the subscription, probably denotes the time of compilation.

Add. 26,140.

Foll. 53;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 9 lines, 4 in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-Āmīz, apparently about the beginning of the 19th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

نشاء هركرن

Forms of letters.

Author: Harkarn, son of Mathuradas Kanbū Multani, هركزن واد متهرا داس كنبو ملتاني

بعد از حمد وثنای حضرت ایزد متعال

The author states, in a short preamble, that he had compiled this work at the urgent request of some friends with whom he held converse in Mathurā, and whose plea was that he had been some time Munshī to Navvāb I'tibār Khān, and that he had spent a life in the exercise of that profession.

I'tibar Khan, a eunuch, who had been early attached to the service of Jahangir, was appointed Subahdar of Akbarabad in the 17th year of the reign (A.H. 1031—32), and died about two years later; see Ma'aṣir ul-Umara, fol. 32, and Tazkirat ul-Umara, fol. 4.

The work is divided into seven Bābs, and comprises models of letters and of various kinds of official documents. It has been edited, in text and translation, by Francis Balfour, Calcutta, 1781, and reprinted in 1831. It has been also lithographed in Lahore, 1869. See Mackenzie Collection, vol. ii. p. 136, the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 175, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 28, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 124.

Add. 8913.

Foll. 46;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 6 lines, 3 in. long; written in large Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

ضوابط الانشا

A short manual on letter-writing.

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد جنين كويد احقر العباد . . . Beg. سيد على نقى خان

The author, who describes himself as an inhabitant of Sāndī (a town near Shāhābād, Oude), gives, in seven sections, called Zābitah, various forms of epistolary phraseology, graduated according to the rank of the person addressed. A summary, in tabulated form, occupies foll. 43—45.

Add. 16,857.

Foll. 34; 7½ in. by 4½; 7 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 1213 (A.D. 1799). [Ww. Yule.]

The same work.

CALLIGRAPHY. Add. 26,139.

Foll. 40; 6 in. by 41; 15 lines, 21 in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan and ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2-18.

A treatise in verse on the rules of Persian penmanship, in six characters, viz. Şulş, Tauki', Muhakkak, Naskh, Raiḥān, and Rikā'.

Author: Majnun, مجنون

The author, who here designates himself by his poetical surname Majnun, is better known under his proper name, Maulana Mir 'Ali ul-Kātib, as one of the most accomplished Nestalik writers. Mir 'Ali, son of Mahmud, poetically surnamed Rafiki, and born of a family of Herat Sayyids, grew up in Mashhad, but spent part of his life in Bukhārā. He lived at the court of 'Abd Ullah Khān Uzbak (a son of Küchkunji; he was raised to the Khanship A.H. 946, and died six months later; see p. 103 b), and taught that prince's son, Mumin Khan. See the Tazkirah i Khat by Rāķim, Or. 471, fol. 61, and Or. 235, fol. 11-13, where the present work is called سبعه and is stated to have been written for Shahzādah Sultān Muzaffar.

Mir 'Ali Kātib died, according to the Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 460, A.H. 924. That date, however, which is also given by Blochmann (Ain i Akbari, p. 102, notes) is evidently too early. A contemporary writer, Sam Mirza states, fol. 45, that Mir 'Ali repaired from Khorasan to Māvarā un-Nahr in A.H. 945, when his eye-sight had already been impaired by age; and a chronogram composed by Mir 'Ali on the erection of a Madrasah in Bukhārā A.H. 942, and quoted by Rākim, Or. 471, fol. 62, shows that he was then residing in that city. authors refer his death to A.H. 951 and 957. See Dorn, Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 43.

It must be noticed, however, that Khwānd Amīr, who mentions Maulānā Majnūn, son of Kamāl ud-Dīn Maḥmūd Rafīķī, as a calligrapher and poet who lived in the reign of Abul-Ghāzī Sulṭān Ḥusain, does not identify him with Mīr 'Alī Kātib, the first of Nestalik writers, to whom he devotes a separate notice under the reign of Shāh Ismā'īl. Sce Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 350, and Juz 4, p. 118.

The author says in the preamble that he had put here in verse the teachings of his father Maḥmūd ur-Rafīķī, who had been his instructor both in penmanship and poetry. The title and the date of composition, A.H. 909, are given in the following distich:

The work is dedicated to Sultan Muzaffar (probably an Uzbak prince), who is described as a "rose on the rose-bush of Chingīz Khān," II. Foll. 18 b-36.

A treatise on the rules of the character called Naskh u Ta'lik, by the same author. حمد و سپاس استادی را که کاتب لوح و قلم بیچون . Beg

The author refers in the preface to the preceding work.

III. Foll. 36—40. A treatise in verse on the same subject, رساله وضع نسخ و تعليق, and apparently by the same author.

از وضع خط نسخ و تعلیق Beg. بشنو سخنی زروی تحقیق

The relative proportions of the letters, expressed by various numbers of dots, are shown by figures in the margin.

This is probably the work ascribed to Mīr Alī in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 5, No. xii.

Or. 235.

Foll. 52; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 11 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.D. 1863.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

A treatise on calligraphy, with notices on the penmen who have attained eminence in the divers varieties of the Persian character.

Author: Rāķim Ghulām Muḥammad, writer of seven Kalams, or characters, راتم

غلام محمد هفت قلمي

ای قطعه لطف زیر مشق کرمت Beg.

The author's name occurs incidentally in his notice on Muḥammad Ḥafīz Khān, fol. 41 b. He mentions himself as one of the disciples of that calligrapher, who had served under Muḥammad Shāh as Dāroghah i Yasāvalān, and who died in Dehli, A.H. 1194. That date is fixed by a chronogram of the author's composition in which he uses Rāķim as his Takhalluş.

Khalifah Ghulām Muḥammad Rākim, of Dehli, is mentioned in the Tazkirah of Kāsim, written A.H. 1221. He had proceeded to Lucknow about A.H. 1209, but had subsequently returned to Dehli, where he was then studying medicine. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 280. Several passages of the present work show that the author lived in Lucknow in the time of Asaf ud-Daulah. Of the various dates given in the biographical notices the latest is A.H. 1228.

This treatise, which is called in the subscription رسالهٔ خوشنویسی, contains an account of various characters, and instructions, in prose and verse, as to the choice of a reed, the preparation of ink, etc. But it is chiefly taken up by notices on eminent calligraphers, which are brought down to the author's time, and include several of his pupils. The arrangement, which was originally chronological, has been much disturbed in the present copy, which appears to have been transcribed from a MS. in which some leaves were missing and others transposed.

Or. 471.

Foll. 92;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 19th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

I. Foll. 2—21. Syllabaries showing all possible combinations of letters, with some writing models.

II. Foll. 22—27. Rules for the correct writing of every letter of the alphabet, in Maṣnavī rhyme.

بالای الف سه نقطه باید Beg.

They are due, according to the following subscription, to the pen of Rāķim (see the preceding number):

تهام شد رساله خوشنویسی فقیر راقم بعجاله بطریق مسوده قلمی نمود

III. Foll. 28—54. Calligraphic specimens in various characters, including figures of animals made up of letters. On fol. 39 a is found the signature of Rāķim under his proper name, Maulavī Ghulām Muḥammad.

IV. Foll. 56—92. Notices on celebrated penmen, from the earliest period to A.H. 1239, with the heading: مسوده تذکره خط و دوشنویسان از ابتدای تا زمان اخر سنه ۱۳۳۱

POETRY. 533

Author: Rāķim, راقم

حمدی که قلم از تحریر ان قاصر است

The contents are to some extent identical with those of the preceding MS. The present copy is also incomplete and out of order.

King's MS. 445.

Foll. 70; 9 in. by 6½; 7 lines, 4 in. long; fairly written, with gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1209, March, A.D. 1795.

"Seven alphabets with the combinations of all the letters in each. Written at Caleutta, on the 68th year of his age, by Sha Azeez Ullah of Bochara, Moonshy to Sir John Murray, Bart." (See p. 409, note.)

Contents: Nestalik, fol. 3. Shikastalı-Āmīz, fol. 13. Shikastalı Pur, fol. 22. Shafi'ā'i, fol. 29. Şulş, fol. 38. Ṭughrā'i, fol. 49. Nasklı, fol. 60.

POETRY.

Add. 21,103.

Foll. 297; 13\(\frac{1}{2}\) in. by 10\(\frac{1}{2}\); 29 lines, 8\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in Naskhi, in six columns, ruled with red ink, probably in the 13th century.

[H. Steinschuss.]

شاهنامه

فردوسی Author: Firdūsī, فردوسی Beg. بنام خداوند جان و خرد کزین برتر اندیشه بر نکذرد

Firdusi's great epic has been edited by Turner Macan, Calcutta, 1829, and, with a French translation, by Jules Mohl, Paris, 1829-1878. A third edition, based on the preceding, was commenced by Professor J. A. Vullers, Leyden, 1876. Eastern editions, lithographed in Bombay, 1849, Cawnpore, 1874, Teheran, A.H. 1267, etc., are reprints of the text edited by Macan.

Firdūsi's original name was Abul-Ķāsim Ḥasan, or, according to the preface of Bāisunghar, and later writers, Manṣūr. He was born in Shādāb, near Ṭūs, some time after A.II. 320, and spent thirty-five years on the composition of the Shāhnāmah, which he wrote partly in Ṭūs, partly at the court of Sultan Maḥmūd in Ghaznīn, and completed, as stated at the end, in A.H. 400, when he was nearly eighty years of age. Firdūsī died in his native town, A.H. 411, or, according to others, A.H. 416.

The earliest extant account of Firdūsī is probably that of Aḥmad B. 'Umar un-Nizāmī ul-'Arūzī us-Samarķandī, who states that he visited the poet's tomb A.H. 510. It is quoted at length in Ibn Isfandiyār's History of Ṭabaristān (see p. 202 a), Add. 7633, foll. 185—188. Other notices will be found in the two Persian prefaces contained in some MSS. of the Shālināmah, and in the following works:

Tārīkh Guzīdah, fol. 242; Jāmī's Bahāristān, fol. 59; Tazkirah i Daulatshāh, fol. 25 (translated by S. de Saey, Notices et Extraits, vol. iv. p. 130, and by Vullers, Fragmente über die Religion des Zoroaster); Ḥabīb usSiyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 22; Ḥaft Iķlīm, fol.

290; Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 522; Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 332, and Atashkadah, p. 77. See also the English and Persian prefaces of Macan's edition; the introduction of Mohl's edition; Hammer, Schöne Redekünste Persiens, p. 50; Ouseley, Notices of Persian poets, p. 54; Wallenbourg, Notice sur le Schahnamé, Vienna, 1810; Görres, Heldenbuch von Iran, Berlin, 1820; J. Atkinson, Soohrab, a poem, Calcutta, 1814, and "the Shah Nāmah of Firdausi," London, 1832; Starkenfels, Kej-Kawus in Masenderan, Vienna, 1841; A. F. von Schaek, Heldensagen, 1851; Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 405, and Ethé, Firdusi als Lyriker, Sitzungsberichte der Bayerischen Akademie, 1872, p. 275, and 1873, p. 623.

The archaïc spelling of the present copy, as is for a and if or as, as well as the antique form of the writing, assigns to it a very early date. The last leaf has been supplied by a hand of the 16th century; but the subscription, which professes to have been copied from the original MS., and states that it had been written A.H. 675 (A.D. 1276—7), is probably correct. The first six leaves, and four in the body of the volume, foll. 49—52, are due to the same later hand.

Foll. 1—3 contain a list of the early kings of Persia and a preface to the Shāhnāmah, which begins thus:

mylw e fie, which is preface is found in copies anterior to the recension of the Shāhnāmah completed for Mīrzā Bāisunghar (see p. 77 b), A.H. 829, and may therefore, in contradistinction to the preface of the latter, be called the older preface. It is designated by Mohl, p. xv., note, as preface No. 2, and it has been translated by M. de Wallenbourg in his "Notice sur le Schahnamé."

The number of distichs, in the present copy, amounts to little more than 50,000.

On the fly-loaf is the following note, written by the Rev. H. Sternschuss: "Obtained it about 1848 at Shiraz from a Parsee who brought it from Yezd at my request."

Or. 1403.

Foll. 513;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 27 lines, 5 in. long; written in four gold-ruled columns, in small Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns and gold headings; dated Ramazān, A.H. 841 (A.D. 1438).

[Jules Mohl.]

The same poem.

The learned translator of the Shāhnāmah, who frequently refers to this copy as his MS. No. 5, describes it as follows: "Un autre, fort ancien, est remarquable en ce qu'il offre un excellent exemple de l'état où était le texte avant la révision faite par ordre de Baïsangher Khan." See Mohl's Preface, pp. xvi., xxix., xxxvi., notes, and lxxxv.

Contents: The older preface, foll. 2 b. (It has lost two leaves after fol. 3. The text, although agreeing in the main with other copies, shows an addition probably made in India: towards the end of Firdūsi's life, fol. 5 a, it is stated that, when fleeing from the wrath of Maḥmūd, he had taken refuge in India, and that the king of Dehli, after keeping him some time as an honoured guest, sent him back with rich presents to Ṭūs).

An account of the early kings of Persia, with tables of the dynasties, fol. 5 a, (wanting a leaf after fol. 5).

An alphabetical glossary of the obsolete words occurring in the Shāhnāmah, fol. 7 a.

The Shāhnāmah, consisting of about 51,200 distichs, foll. 10 b—513 a.

The last section differs considerably from the printed texts. It omits the verses in which Firdūsī states that he was nearly eighty years of age, and had spent thirty-five years on the composition of the poem; and it gives a much earlier date for its completion, namely A.H. 384, instead of A.H. 400, as follows:

سر امد کنون قصد، یزدکرد بمالا سفندار مه روز ارد زهجرت شده سیصد از روزکار جو هشتاد و جارازبرش برشمار

A later date is found in an epilogue, consisting of thirty-three Baits, which follows the ordinary conclusion without any break, and is not found in other copies. It begins thus:

جو شد اسپری داستان بزرك سخنهای ان خسروان سترك بروز سیم شنبدی جاشتگاه شده به روزان زماه که تازیش خواند محرم بنام اکر سال نیز ارزوت آمدست نهم سال و هشتاد با سیصدست

The writer relates how, after completing this great history, on the 25th of Muharram, A.H. 389, he had been invited by a governor, I.A. Ahmad B. Muhammad Abu Bakr Ispāhānī by name, who received him in his residence, in Khān Lanjān, الحال المنابع , liberally supplied all his wants, and refused to listen to his slanderers. He concludes by expressing his unbounded gratitude to the governor's youthful son, who had saved his life by dragging him by the hair out of the raging waters of the Zarrīn Rūd, into which he had accidentally fallen.

Khānlanjān is mentioned by Sam'ānī and Yāķūt as a town of the province of Ispahan. It is, according to the Kāmil, vol. viii. p. 367, nine Farsakhs distant from that city. Ouseley states in his Travels, vol. iii. p. 17, that Linjān is the name of a district watered by the Zindah-rūd, some distance above Ispahan.

The above epilogue is followed by a rhymed colophon in the same metre, transcribed from an earlier MS., which is stated to have been written for a noble personage called Khwājah

'Alī Shāh, and to have been completed on the tenth of Muharram, A.H. 779.

This volume contains ninety-five miniatures in Persian style, each of which occupies about a third of the page.

Add. 18,188.

Foll. 500; 13\frac{3}{4} in. by 9\frac{1}{2}; 25 lines, 5\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with gold headings, and a rich 'Unv\(\text{a}\)n; dated Jum\(\text{a}\)day II., A.H. 891 (A.D. 1486).

. The same poem, without preface.

The number of distichs may be roughly estimated at about 45,500.

The volume contains seventy-two miniatures, in fair Persian style, occupying about half a page each.

غیاث الدین بن با یزید صراف : Copyist

Add. 15,531.

Foll. 543; 13½ in. by 8½; 25 lines, 5¼ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with rich 'Unvāns and gold headings; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 942 (A.D. 1536).

The Shāhnāmah, to which is prefixed the following:—

1. An introduction, written in a flowery style, treating of the relative merits of prose and poetry, and concluding with a wordy encomium of the Shāhnāmah, fol. 3 b.

Beg. اسپاس بی قیاس و حمد بیحد و شکر بی فکر 2. The older preface, in a recension, which differs materially from the text of other copies, foll. 4b-9b.

The text, which comprises about 52,000 Baits, is divided into two parts. The second, which has an 'Unvān of its own, fol. 265 b, begins with the reign of Luhrāsp (Macan, p. 1030).

This volume contains three whole-page miniatures, enclosed in rich borders, at the beginning, foll. 2 b, 3 a, 10 a, and forty-five smaller, all in good Persian style. On the fly-leaf is written: "To Maria Graham, from her affectionate friends James and Catherine Mackintosh, Tarala Library, Bombay, 27th Jan., 1810. This MS. belonged to Chiragh Ali Khan, said to have been one of the ablest ministers that Persia ever had, who died a few months ago at Teheraun."

Add. 27,257.

Foll. 540; 18\(^3\) in. by 11\(^1\); 25 lines, 6\(^7\) in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four columns, profusely ornamented with rich Unv\(\bar{a}\)ns, ornamental borders, and illuminated headings, probably in the 16th century; bound in embossed and gilt leather.

[Sir JOHN MALCOLM.]

The Shāhnāmah, with the preface of Bāisunghar, foll. 2b-14a, which begins thus:

This preface, which was written for Mīrzā Bāisunghar in A.H. 829, has been printed almost entirely in Macan's Persian introduction to the Shāhnāmah, pp. 11—61.

The number of Baits in the present copy is not much in excess of 48,000.

This fine volume, which contains fifty-five whole-page miniatures, in good Persian style, was probably executed for some princely personage; but it bears now only private scals of modern date, such as those of Muḥammad Mahdī, A.H. 1110, and Sayyid Murtazā ul-Ḥusainī, A.H. 1153. It passed into the hands of Edward Galley, A.D. 1783, and was purchased by Sir John Malcolm in 1805.

Add. 27,302.

Foll. 622; 19 in. by 12; 25 lines,  $5\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four columns, ornamented and bound precisely in the same manner as the preceding; dated A.H. 994 (A.D. 1586).

The Shāhnāmah, with a preface. .

The doxology of Baisunghar's preface occupies two illuminated pages, foll. 2 b and 3 a. But the preface itself, foll. 3 b—7 a, which begins thus:

is quite distinct from either of those which have been already mentioned. Beginning with an account of Maḥmūd's first attempts to obtain a poetical version of the Book of Kings, it is chiefly taken up with a short and legendary life of Firdūsī, who is called Abul-Ķāsim Ḥasan B. 'Alī, and is said to have had a younger brother, Ḥusain B. 'Alī. It contains the celebrated satire on Maḥmūd (Macan, vol. i. p. 63, Mohl's preface, p. 88), and ends with an account of the deposition of Ḥasan Mīmandī, and of the present which the penitent Maḥmūd sent too late to the slighted poet. A list of the ancient kings of Persia is appended.

The poem consists, in the present copy, of upwards of 56,000 Baits.

زين العابدين الكاتب : Copyist

The volume contains fifty-two whole-page miniatures, in fair Persian style.

On the first page is a Persian note, dated Rabī' II., 1248 (September, 1832), in which the writer states that he was sending this book as a souvenir to the English Prime Minister. وزير مختار دولت عليه انكليس) (Earl Grey). The writer's seal bears the name of Muḥammad Ḥusain, i.e. Ḥājī Muḥammad Ḥusain, Amīn ud-Daulah, the second minister of the Persian court (see p. 392 b, notes).

Add. 5600.

Foll. 585; 12¼ in. by 8; 25 lines, 4½ in. long; written in a small and neat Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with rich 'Unvāns and ornamental headings, apparently in the 16th century; bound in glazed and painted covers.

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

The Shāhnāmah, with a version of the older preface, foll. 2 b-7 b, which differs in some parts from the text of Add. 21,103.

The total number of distichs amounts to about 51,000.

The volume contains ninety miniatures, each of which occupies the larger part of a page. They are executed in the best Indian style, and are signed by different artists. The names of Kāsim, Kamāl, Shimāl, Banwārī, and Bhagwatī, recur frequently.

On the first page is a Persian note stating that this Shāhnāmah had been bestowed by His late Majesty Jahāngīr on the least of his servants, Ilāhvirdī Chelah, in the 8th year of the reign (A.H. 1022), and had been presented by the latter to his brother Khwājah Muḥammad Rashīd. On the opposite page are found the seal and signature of Muḥammad 'Ārif, son of the last named Muḥammad Rashīd, and those of some later owners.

Hāhvirdī, a Turk, who traced his origin to the Saljūks, entered in early life the service of Sultān Parvīz, and afterwards that of Jahāngīr, with whom his skill in hunting soon made him a great favourite. He rose in the reign of Shāhjahān to high military commands; but was put to death by Prince Shujā' in the 32nd year of the reign. See his life in Maāşir ul-Umarā, Add. 6567, fol. 50 b, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, Add. 16,703, fol. 14 b.

Add. 7724.

Foll. 471; 13\(\frac{3}{4}\) in. by 8\(\frac{4}{4}\); 27 lines, 5\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long, in a page; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unv\(\text{an}\); dated Rabi' I., A.H. 1021 (A.D. 1612).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The Shāhnāmah, with the preface of Bāisunghar, foll. 1 b—11 a, the first two pages of which have been restored by a later hand, as well as foll. 135—6, 192—3, 236—7, 319—342.

The number of distichs in this copy is not much over 48,000.

The volume contains ten whole-page miniatures in Persian style, most of which are somewhat rubbed and discoloured.

Copyist: محمد مومن بن كمال الدين

Add. 16,761.

Foll. 525; 11\(\frac{2}{4}\) in. by 7\(\frac{1}{4}\); 25 lines, 4\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in small Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with rich 'Unv\(\text{ans}\) and illuminated headings; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1023 (A.D. 1614). [WM. YULE.]

The Shāhnāmah with the older preface, foll. 1 b-7 a.

To the ordinary conclusion of the poem are added some verses, partly taken from the satire on Sultan Maḥmūd.

The total number of disticlis does not exceed 48,000.

This volume contains forty miniatures, in good Persian style, each of which occupies the greater part of a page.

ابن حسين محمد زمان خاتون ابادي : Copvist

Add. 27,258.

Foll. 660; 14½ in. by 9½; 25 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1037 (A.D. 1628.)

[Sir John Malcolm.]

The Shāhnāmah, with the preface of Bāisunghar, foll. 1 b—11 a.

The poem is divided into four parts, each with a separate Unvān. The first ends with the fight of Rustam and the Dīv Akvān (Maean's edition, p. 753), fol. 243 a; the second with the reign of Kaikhusrau (ibid. p. 1030), fol. 366 b; the third with the reign of Kubād (ib. p. 1617), fol. 529 b; and the fourth completes the poem.

The text is perhaps the longest, or most interpolated, in existence. The total number of distichs is, according to a calculation entered on the first page, 61,266.

This copy is mentioned by M. Mohl in his preface, p. 82, as the main source of the text published by Lumsden, Calcutta, 1811.

The MS. contains sixty-three miniatures, in fair Persian style, each occupying half a page or more.

نظام بن مير على : Copyist

Add. 4943.

Foll. 283;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, with a 'Unvān; dated Rabī' I., A.H. 1054 (A.D. 1644).

The latter half of the Shāhnāmah, corresponding to pp. 1155—2096 of Macan's edition.

On the first page is written: "Presented by Claud Russell, Esq., Oct. 5, 1781."

Add. 6609.

Foll. 611; 11 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{3}{8}$  in. long, in a page; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with several rich Unvāns, apparently in the 17th century. It is partially injured by damp and torn.

[J. F. HULL.]

The Shāhnāmah, in about 48,000 distichs. Prefixed to the poem are:—1. The older preface, in a fuller recension than in Add. 5600, fol. 1 b. 2. An extract from a work on general history, with tabulated lists of the early kings of Persia, fol. 8 a. 3. A short alphabetical glossary of obsolete words, beginning , باب الف في لغة البهاري, fol. 10 b.

The poem, which begins on fol. 13 b, is divided into two parts, the first of which closes with Daķīķī's apparition to Firdūsī in a dream (Macan's edition, p. 1065), fol. 338 a.

Single leaves are missing after fol. 30 verses of the satire on Mahmud.

(Macan, pp. 46—48) and after fol. 583 (ib. pp. 1679—1681).

Five miniatures, in Indian style, more or less defaced, which have been inserted, foll. 61, 81, 219, 398, 446, once belonged to other MSS. The same leaves contain portions of older texts.

This copy was written by Ḥaidar Muḥammad Tabrīzī for an officer called Mīrzā 'Ivaẓ Beg Salmānī. Of the date of transcription the last figure only, 8, is legible. An 'Ivaẓ Beg, afterwards 'Ivaẓ Khān, held a military command at Kābul in the first year of Shāhjāhan (A.H. 1037—8), and died A.H. 1050; see Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 70 b, and Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 377 b.

At beginning and end is impressed the seal of Sayyid Jalāl 'Ālamgīrshāhī (i.e. an Amīr of Aurangzīb's reign), with the date A.H. 1088.

Add. 6610.

Foll. 311; 13 in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with a 'Unvān, probably in the 17th century.

[J. F. HULL.]

The first half of the poem (Macan's edition, pp. 1—1065), with forty-seven half-page miniatures, in a second-rate Indian style.

Add. 18,804.

Foll. 358; 14 in. by  $9\frac{3}{4}$ ; 20 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns; dated Parganah of Rājūr, Rabī' I., and Rajab, A.H. 1131 (A.D. 1719).

The latter half of the Shāhnāmah, divided into two volumes, corresponding to pp. 1028—1587, and 1588—2096 of Macan's edition.

The concluding section contains some verses of the satirc on Maḥmūd.

The MS. was written, as stated in the subscriptions, for a man of rank called Ajagat Singh مبته احکت سنکه جیو, by Khalil Ullah, surnamed Haft-Kalamī. It contains ninety-seven miniatures, in fair Indian style, a few of which only are whole-page.

Add 25,797.

Foll. 131; 11½ in. by 8½; 25 lines, 6½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, apparently early in the 18th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

The first quarter of the Shāhnāmah (Macan's edition, pp. 1-552).

The MS. is dated in the fourth year of the reign, probably that of Bahādur Shāh, A.H. 1121—2.

ميان شيع خليل الله : Copyist

Egerton 682-685.

Four uniform volumes, containing respectively foll. 198, 185, 157, and 142; 16½ in. by 9¾; 23 lines, 6¼ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns; dated Kundapilī (Condapilly, district of Masulipatan), Rabī' I., A.H. 1202 (A.D. 1788); bound in embossed leather covers.

[Adam Clarke.]

The Shāhnāmah, in about 58,500 distichs. The first two volumes contain the first half of the poem, corresponding to pp. 1—1030 of Macan's edition, the third corresponds to pp. 1030—1595, the fourth to pp. 1595—2096, and has the satire on Sultan Maḥmūd, in a recension which differs considerably from the printed texts.

Prefixed to the first volume is an English notice on Firdūsī, extracted from Jos. Champion's "Poems of Ferdosi," Calcutta, 1785.

على أكبر ولد محمد محسن ذكى الحسيني : Copyist

Add. 26,143.

Foll. 272; 12 in. by 9; 25 lines, 5 in.

long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The first half of the Shāhnāmah (Macan's edition, pp. 1—982).

Add. 25,798.

Foll. 201;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. CURETON.]

منتخب شاهنامه

An abridgment of Firdusi's Shahnamah, consisting of copious extracts from the poem, connected by a prose narrative.

Author: Tavakkul Beg, son of Tulak Beg,

توكل بيك ولد تولك بيك

حمد بیغایت و ثنای بی نهایت مر حضرت .Beg. کیریای واجب الوجودرا

It appears from the preface that in the 26th year of Shāhjahān's reign, or A.H. 1063, the author was sent by Prince Dārā Shikūh, then Ṣūbahdār of Kābul, to Ghaznīn, as a confidential agent and news-writer, امين , and that he wrote the present compilation at the request of the governor of that place, Shamshir Khān.

Shamshir Khān Tarīn, whose original name was Muḥammad Ḥayāt, had entered the imperial service in the first year of the reign of Shāhjahān. He was appointed Thānahdār of Ghaznīn in A.H. 1060, and retained that post till A.H. 1069, when he was transferred by Aurangzīb to the command of Kābul. See Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 357, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 59.

The author is called in another copy, Add. 5619, Tavakkul Muḥammad, son of Tūlak Muḥammad ul-Ḥusainī. The work is designated by the above title in three copies; in others it is called Khulāṣah i Shāhnāmah (Add. 6611, 27,269), Tārīkh i Dilkushāi Shamshirkhānī (Or. 371, Add. 5619), and Tārīkh i Shamshirkhānī. The history is brought down to the reign of Ardashīr Bābagān. The work concludes with a dry enumeration of that king's successors, and a notice on the Shāhnāmah and Firdūsī's life, extracted from the older preface.

The Shamshirkhānī is the original of the work published by J. Atkinson, "The Shahnamah of Firdausi," London, 1832. It is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 20, Mohl's preface, p. 79, Ouseley's Travels, vol. ii. p. 540, and the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 540.

Or. 371.

Foll. 232;  $13\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $5\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in large Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Shaban, A.H. 1155 (A.D. 1742).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same work.

By some mistake of the transcriber the first three pages of the notice on Firdūsī, which are found in their proper place, fol. 227 b, have been also written at the beginning of the volume, where they are followed, without any apparent break, by the preface Tavakkul Beg.

This volume contains seventy-six miniatures, in Indian style, each occupying about one third of a page.

It was transcribed by عهد الصافيل, for Mi-yān Sukhan-Fahm Jīv.

Egerton 1105.

Foll. 263; 9¼ in. by 5; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, at Murshidābād, about the beginning of the 18th century.

[ADAM CLARKE.]

The same work.

محمد رضا بیك ولد محمد عارف بیك : Copyist ابن عادل بیك بدخشی

Add. 6939.

Foll. 722; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1811.

A transcript of the preceding MS., with an English translation.

Add. 7725.

Foll. 157;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1198 (A.D. 1784).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work.

باسو لعل منشى ولد بارهمل : Copyist

Add. 6611.

Foll. 270;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines, 5 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, with ruled margins; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1212 (A.D. 1798). [J. F. Hull.]

The same work.

This copy does not contain the life of Firdusi, but ends with an extract from the satire on Maḥmūd, foll. 268 b—270 a.

Add. 27,269.

Foll. 270;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 7; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, in the 18th century.

The same work, ending also with an extract from the satire on Maḥmūd.

On the fly-leaf is written: "From His Highness the Nabob of the Carnatic, to John Macdonald Kinneir."

Add. 5619.

Foll. 214; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

The same work, without the life of Firdusi.

Add. 6949.

Foll. 19; 9 in. by 7½; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley.

A transcript of the first six folios of the preceding MS.

Add. 24,415.

Foll. 160; 10½ in. by 7; 17 lines, 4½ in. long, in a page; written in Indian Nestalik, at Vellore, A.D. 1804. [Sir John Malcolm.]

The same work. At the end, and by another hand, is added a second and different recension of the satire on Mahmud.

محمد تيپو ولد احمد حسين خان مرحوم : Copyist

The above shows that the MS. was written after the death of the transcriber's father, Aḥmad Ḥusain Khān, which, according to a versified chronogram written on the flyleaf, took place in Zulhijjah, A.H. 1218 (April, 1804). A note, in the hand of Dr. John Leyden, states that he perused it in November, 1804.

Royal 16 B. xiv.

Foll. 118;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated in the month of Shahrivar of the year 1040 of Yazdagird (A.D. 1671). [Tho. Hyde.]

شاهنامه نثر

An abridgment of the Shāhnāmah in prose. Beg. سپاس بیقیاس مرایزد بیچون بی مثل بی مثل نمون

It appears from the preface that the author, a Parsee, wrote this abstract by desire of Captain Aungier, ميتان مستر انجي, who had no mind to read the bulky poem.

It may be noticed that the episode of Barzū, which does not belong to Firdūsi's work, is treated here at some length, foll. 70 a-79 a.

At the end are some verses in the epic metre, in which the author records the presentation of his book to Mr. Aungier, and the reward he obtained from him.

On the fly-leaf is found the following note: "This is a most excellent booke and not to be gotten here amongst them. I got it from our worthy President, Mr. Aungier. The learned Herbud was very loath I should part with it before he had taken a coppy of it, but it could not be done, our ships being soe near their departure."

From this it would appear that the MS. contains the original draft, and that the scribe, who in the subscription calls himself Khwurshid, son of Isfandiyar, an inhabitant of the town of Nausari, was the author himself.

This MS. is described by Sir Wm. Ouseley in his Travels, vol. ii. p. 540. See the same scholar's Oriental Collection, vol. i. pp. 218, 359, and vol. ii. p. 45, Hyde, Historia Religionis Persarum, p. 319, and Mohl, Preface to the Shāhnāmah, p. 79.

Add. 6938.

Foll. 171; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley, on paper watermarked 1812.

A transcript of the first portion of the preceding MS., foll. 1 b-95 b, with an English translation extending to the first three quarters of the text.

Add. 7664.

Foll. 72;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated A.H. 1222 (A.D. 1807). [Cl. J. Rich.]

دره چهار پاره

An abridgment, in prose, of Firdūsi's account of the Pishdādis.

Mr. Aungier was President in Surat, where he died in 1677. See Bruce's Annals of the East India Company.

Author; Faridun B. Muḥammad Kāsim Ḥalālkhwur Māzandarānī, فريدون بن محمد قاسم حلالخور مازندراني چون در سنه هزار دویست شانزده هجری Beg.

For this composition we are indebted to the curious taste of Fath 'Alī Shāh, who, as is quaintly stated in the preface, being extremely fond of the Shāhnāmah, gave, in A.H. 1216, the order to turn it into prose. The task was divided, the Kayānis devolving on Mirzā Muḥammad Rizā Tabrīzī, the Ashkānis on Mirzā 'Īsā Farāhāni, the Sāsānis on Mirzā 'Abd ul-Vahhāb Iṣfahānī, and the Pīshdādis on the present writer.

The above title, written at the top of the first page, apparently applies to the aggregate of the four versions.

The present copy breaks off in the account of Kāvah's rising against Zaḥḥāk (Macan's edition, p. 36).

Add. 24,095.

Foll. 16; 16 in. by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ ; 29 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, apparently in the 17th century.

شهريار نامه

Fragments of the Shahriyar-Namah.

Author: Mukhtārī, مختارى

This is one of several poems written in imitation of Firdūsī, and engrafted as episodes on the Shāhnāmah. Its hero is Shahriyār, son of Barzū, the son of Suhrāb, and consequently great-grandson of Rustam. The scene of his adventures is laid in India.

The title and the author's name are found in the concluding lines, which are as follows:

بسر شد کنون نامه شهریار بتونیت یزدان پروردکار شها شهریارا سرا سرورا نکهدار تخت و جهان داورا

چو فرمودیم داستانی بکوی بكفتم باقبال فرهنك جوى سه سال اندریس رنج بر داشتم سخن انچه بد هیچ نکذاشتم بنظم اوريدم باقبال شاة شهى شهرياران وظل اله كه تاجت فروزندة چون هور باد زتیخت جہاں جملہ پر نور باد کل باغ و بستان محمود شاه جهالجوى بخشددة مسعود شاة چومختاری ان باور داستان بذام تو کفت ای شه راستان گرم هدیم بخشی در این بارکاه به پیش بزرکان باعز و جاه شوم شاد و افزون شود جاة تو همان مدم كويم بدركاة تو وكر هديم ندهي ايا شهريار نرنجم که هستنی خداوندکار زبان من از هجو کوتاه باد همیشه ثنا کوی ایس شاه براد ز فردوسی اکنون سخن یاد دار که شد بر سر رزم اسفندیار

It will be seen from the above that Mukhtārī wrote the Shahriyār Nāmah, in the space of three years, by order of Mas'ūd Shāh, not from his own invention, but from a narrative which he had to put into verse. The poet concludes by claiming the reward to which he was entitled, but adds, in evident allusion to Firdūsī's diatribe against Maḥmūd, that, even should none be vouchsafed, he will never think of resorting to satire. The last couplet is a transition which leads back to a passage of the Shāhnāmah, in which Isfandiyār is described as going forth to battle.

The king, who is called in the above verses "the rose of the garden of Mahmud," is apparently Mas'ūd, the son and successor of the great Maḥmūd Ghaznavī. Mas'ūd wrested the throne from his brother Muḥammad in A.H. 422, and was himself expelled from his realm by the Saljūķs, A.H. 432.

There is, however, no record of a poet called Mukhtari at that period. The earliest poet known by that surname is Sirāj ud-Dīn 'Usman B. Muhammad, of Ghaznin, who first used 'Usman as his Takhallus, and adopted towards the end of his life that of Mukhtari. He was in great favour with Sultan Ibrāhīm B. Mas'ūd, who reigned from A.H. 451 to 481 (see the Kāmil, vol. x. pp. 3, 110), lived afterwards in Kirman, at the court of Arslan Shah B. Kirman Shah (A.H. 494-536; Jahānārā, fol. 97), and died in Ghaznīn, according to Taki, Oude Catalogue, p. 16, A.H. 554, or, as stated in the Atashkadah, Add. 7671, fol. 59, A.H. 544. Mukhtārī is said to have excelled in every kind of poetry. He is mentioned with high praise by Sana'i, who calls him his master. Notices of Mukhtari will be found in Daulatshah's Tazkirah, fol. 48, and Hammer's Redekünste, p. 104, Haft Iklim, fol. 137, and Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 405.

If the Shahriyār-Nāmah is to be ascribed to this poet, the Mas'ūd Shāh for whom it was written can be no other than Mas'ūd B. Ibrāhīm, who was, not the son, but the greatgrandson, of Maḥmūd, and reigned from A.H. 481 to 508 (see the Kāmil, vol. x. pp. 111, 353).

It must be remarked, however, that no mention of a similar poem is to be found in the notices on Mukhtari above quoted.

The first and longest of the three fragments included in this volume, foll. 1 a— 11 a, begins with the single combats in which Farāmurz (Rustam's son) engages, first with Raihān, a black giant, and then with the chief of the Indian army, who turns out to be his grand-nephew Shahriyār. After mutual recognition they part, Farāmurz returning to Irān, and Shahriyār proceeding to the palace of Faranak, Queen of Sarandib, whom he enjoins to release her captive Arzang. She feigns submission, but treacherously causes Shahriyar to fall into a well, in which she keeps him in durance.

In the meanwhile Arjāsp, the king of Turān, who was besieging Luhrāsp in the city of Balkh, dispatches the Dīv Arhang, son of Pūlādvand, with an army to Sīstān. Zāl, in the absence of Rustam, then far away in Khāvar land, sends his second son Zavārah to oppose the Dīv, and, after a first encounter in which the latter is worsted, marches forth himself, and puts him to flight.

The next fragment, foll. 12, 13, which probably belongs to an earlier part of the poem, relates the arrival of Zāl at the court of King Salomon. The latter tests the wit of Zāl by means of a riddle relating to the twelve sons of Jacob, and his strength by a fight with a Demon called Ahriman.

Fol. 14 contains the end of the poem, and concludes with the lines quoted above.

The last two leaves of the volume, foll. 15 and 16, contain two detached fragments of the Shāhnāmah, both relating to Isfandiyār. In the first he enters the brazen fortress, and slays Arjāsp (see Macan's edition, pp. 150—1); in the second he claims the crown from his father Gushtāsp (ib. pp. 1163—5).

Twelve out of the above sixteen folios have on one side whole-page miniatures, in a good Indian style of the 17th century.

Add. 6941.

Foll. 197; 9 in. by 7¼; 22 lines, about 3 in. long; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1811.

سام نامه

A poem written in imitation of the Shahnamah, and treating of the exploits of Sam, son of Narīmān, and his love adventures with the Chinese princess Parīdukht.

Author: Khwaju, خواجو

سیاس آن خدای ایزد رهنهای Beg. که از کاف و نون کرد کیتی بیای

The author gives his name towards the end, in the following distich, fol. 197 a:

and describes his poem, in the next-following lines, as a rivulet from the sea of Firdūsī, to whom he is like an atom to the sun, and a drop to the ocean.

The poem begins with a short doxology and an extensive passage of the Shahnamah, relating to the court held by Minuchihr after his accession, and his allocution to Sam, the Pahlavan (Macan's edition, pp. 95, 96). The original composition begins, fol. 6 a, with Sām's setting out on a hunting expedition. The concluding sections relate how Sam, after slaying the emperor of China, and scating the Vazīr's son, Kamartāsh, on his throne, procceds with Paridukht to the land of Khavar, and returns from thence to the court of Minüchihr. The narrative is not drawn from national tradition, but from individual fancy, and has all the features of a Persian fairy tale of the modern type.

Professor Spiegel has given in the Zeitschrift der Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, vol. iii. pp. 245—261, an analysis of the Sām Nāmah, from a MS. belonging to the East India Library, in the subscription of which the author is called Khwājū Kirmānī. This is the name of a well-known poet, who died about A.H. 745, and whose works will be mentioned further on. This identification is confirmed by the substance of the Sām Nāmah, which, as remarked by Spiegel, agrees to some extent with that of the Humāi Humāyūn, a poem undoubtedly due to Khwājū Kirmānī. It must be observed, however, that the biographical notices of the latter poet make no mention of the Sām Nāmah.

Jules Mohl gives a short account of the Sām Nāmah, without naming the author, from a complete copy in his possession, which contained 11,000 distichs. See the preface to the Shāhnāmah, p. 59. Another copy, containing 30,000 distichs, is mentioned by Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 594. See also Aumer, Munich Catalogue, p. 7.

The present copy contains no more than 4200 distichs. It has been transcribed from a MS. dated the tenth of Rajab, A.H. 1084.

In an English notice, prefixed to the volume by J. H. Hindley, the work is described as "the first historical poem of the Shah Namu by the celebrated Abool Kausim Firdoosee of Toos."

Or. 346.

Foll. 275; 8 in. by 5; about 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, probably in the 18th century.

[Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

Another copy of the same poem, wanting both beginning and end.

It begins in the midst of the account of the first meeting of Sām with the princess Parīdukht (Add. 6941, fol. 8 b.)

The text differs considerably from that of the preceding copy. It is more copious, and contains much additional matter. The latter part deals with Sām's warlike deeds in the Maghrib, and comes abruptly to an end after his victory over 'Auj the 'Adite, king of Ṭanjah, when the latter sends a message to his mother Khātūrah, imploring the aid of her witcheraft against his foe.

The poet's name occurs in the following verse, fol. 85 a:—

سراینده خواجوی موبد نواد چنین کرد از ماه بیمهریاد The corresponding verse in the preceding copy, fol. 99 b, is,

The present MS., in its imperfect state, contains upwards of 8000 distichs.

It bears the stamps of the kings of Oude.

Add. 24,093.

Foll. 222; 10½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 1055 (A.D. 1645); bound in neatly painted covers. [WM. II. MORLEY.]

يوسف و زليخا

Yūsuf and Zulaikhā, a poem.

Author: Firdusi, فردوسي

It is stated in Bāisunghar's preface to the Shāhnāmah (Macan's Persian preface, p. 55, and Add. 7724, fol. 10), that Firdūsī composed this poem in Baghdād in order to ingratiate himself with the Khalif, who saw with displeasure the praises bestowed in the Shāhnāmah upon heathenish kings. Macan asserts, however, in the English preface, p. 52, and on the authority of a copy of the Yūsuf u Zulaikhā in his possession, that Firdūsī "wrote it at the instigation of the gövernor of Irak."

The prologue of the present copy makes no mention of the latter personage; but it contains a short panegyrie on a prince, designated in the heading as "Sovereign of Islamism," , by which is meant, no doubt, the reigning Khalif, al-Kādir Billah (A.H. 381—442). In the next-following section Firdūsī says, in evident allusion to the Shāhnāmah, that he had hitherto sung the fabulous deeds of ancient kings, but that now, that old age held him tight in its elaw, مرا سخت بكرفت پيرى بچنك, he turned to a truer and more holy theme.

The Yusuf u Zulaikhā is mentioned by 'Alī Kuli Khān in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 332, and by Lutf 'Ali Khān in the Atashkadah, p. 82. Both allow that it is worthy by its style of the great master; but the former takes objection to its metre, as one unsuited to any but heroic subjects, while the latter remarks that it shows a genius enfeebled by ago and grief. See also Mohl, preface to the Shahnamah, pp. 42, 46, Ouseley's Biographical Notices, p. 91, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 55, Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 519, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 407. Two lithographed editions of the poem are mentioned in the Fihrist i Kutub, or list of books issued from the press of Naval Kishor, p. 61.

نصر الله کاتب ابن مرحومی مغفوری ملا : Copyist طاهر بکری

Further down, and in the same handwriting, is a note dated the ninth of Rabī' I., A.H. 1055, stating that the MS. had been collated and corrected in the town of Patnah by Mullā Ķāsim and Ķāzī 'Abd ul-Majīd Sivistānī.

The number of Baits in the present copy searcely exceeds 6500, while the MSS. of T. Macan and Sir Gore Ouseley are said to contain 9000. Peneilled notes in the margins show that the late owner, W. H. Morley, had compared it with the former of those MSS., and had found important differences.

The following notice on the fly-leaf is signed by the last-named scholar, and dated 1840: "This poem was for a long time supposed to be lost. There are but four MSS. of it now known to exist—one in the library of the College of Fort William in Bengal; a second in the collection of N. Bland, Esq., which is probably copied from the last, and was purchased at Major Macan's sale; a third in the library of the Royal Asiatic Society, which is correct, but imperfect at the beginning and the end; and the present MS., which is more correct than Mr. Bland's MS., and more copious than either that or the MS. of the Royal Asiatic Society."

Prefixed to the volume is a short note signed Kazimirski, from which it appears that the MS. owes its elegant binding to Ḥasan 'Alī Khān, the Persian ambassador at the French court, to whom it had been lent.

Or. 330.

Foll. 109;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 8 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in large Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century. [Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

Quatrains of 'Umar Khayyām, arranged in alphabetical order.

The author, who calls himself in his Arabic works Abul-Fath 'Umar Ibn Ibrāhīm al-Khayyāmī, is no less celebrated as mathematician and astronomer, than as the writer of the witty, often cynical, epigrams called Rubā'iyāt.

Nizām ul-Mulk, who was born A.H. 408, states in a passage of his Vaṣāyā (see p. 446 a), which has been quoted at length in the Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, vol. iv. p. 61, abridged in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 2, p. 69, and translated by S. de Sacy, Notices et Extraits, vol. ix. p. 143, that Ḥakīm 'Umar Khayyām of Nīshāpūr, was of the same age as himself, and had attended with him the lessons of the Imām Muwaffak in that city. When Nizām ul-Mulk was raised by Alp Arslān to the office of Vazīr, he bestowed upon his former schoolmate a pension of 1200 tūmāns. In the reign of Malak, Shāh 'Umar Khayyām came to Marv, and soon reached the highest station to which a man of science can attain.

'Umar Ibn Ibrāhīm al-Khayyāmī is mentioned in the Kāmil, vol. x. p. 67, as the first of the astronomers who were summoned by Malak Shāh in A.H. 467 to institute astronomical observations, and he was the editor of the Zīj in which they were recorded; see Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 570. According to Daulat Shāh he also enjoyed the favour of Sultan Sanjar, who used to give him a seat by his side on the throne. 'Umar Khayyām is stated to have died in Nīshāpūr, A.H. 517. See Hyde, De Religione Veterum Persarum, Oxon., 1700, p. 498, Oude Catalogue, p. 464, and Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 496.

His treatise on algebra has been published, with a French translation, by F. Woepeke, Paris, 1851. The quatrains have been edited in Teheran by Sanjar Mīrzā, A.H. 1278. The same text has been reproduced with a few additions, and accompanied with a French version, by J. B. Nicolas, Paris, 1867. Some select Rubā'is, 101 in number, have been rendered in English verse by Edward Fitzgerald, London, 1859, 1872 and 1879, others in German, by A. F. von Schack, Stuttgart, 1878.

Notices on 'Umar Khayyām are to be found in Daulatshāh, Or. 469, fol. 110, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 312, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 155, and Ātashkadah, p. 124. See also the Calcutta Review, No. 59, Reinaud, Géographie d'Aboulféda, préface, p. 101, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 80, and Jahrbücher, vol. 66, Anzeigeblatt, p. 29, Garcin de Tassy, Journal Asiatique, 5° Série, vol. ix. p. 548, and Sédillot, ib., vol. ii. p. 323.

The present copy contains 423 quatrains, and ends with No. 400 of M. Nicolas' edition.

The last three pages contain some verses composed by Shāh 'Alam Pādishāh during his captivity. On the fly-leaf is a seal bearing the name of 'Abd ul-Majīd Khān, with the date 1143; also a note stating that the MS. is in the handwriting of Mīr Abul-Ḥasan.

Or. 331.

Foll. 92; 4½ in. by 2½; 12 lines, 1¾ in. long; written in small Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, dated Kūl تصيد كول, Ramazān, A.II. 1033 (A.D. 1624).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Another copy of the Rubā'iyāt, slightly imperfect in the beginning, and containing 540 quatrains. The first is No. 11 of M. Nicolas' edition, the last, No. 426.

A modern title on the fly-leaf, رباعیات سرمد, wrongly ascribes the work to Sarmad, a later poet, also renowned for his Rubā'is. This Sarmad was a Jew, born at Kāshān, and whose original name was Sa'id. He embraced Islamism and went to India, where he led the life of a Faķir. He incurred the displeasure of Aurangzīb, who put him to death shortly after his accession (A.H. 1068), on the charge of infidelity. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 220 b., Mirāt ul-'Alam, fol. 483 b, Atashkadah, p. 204, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 96, 112.

Add. 27,318.

Foll. 57; 9½ in. by 5; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān, apparently in the 16th century. [Duncan Forbes.]

ديوان ابو الفرج روني

The Divan of Abu'l-Faraj Rûnî.

سپهر دولت ودين آفتاب هفت اتليم .Beg البيم المظفر شاه مظفر ابراهيم

Abul-Faraj B. Mas'ūd Rūnī was, according, to 'Aufī (Oude Catalogue, pp. 5 and 308), born and educated in Lahore. He is also mentioned among the natives of that city in the Haft Iklīm, fol. 14, and his Nisbah is derived, according to Badaoni, Muntakhab ut-Tavārīkh, vol. i. p. 37, from Rūn, an ancient village, now ruined, of the district of Lahore, a statement confirmed by the Farhang i Jahangiri and the Burhan i Kati', which call Run a town of Hindustan. The Atashkadah, however, p. 122, derives it from Rūnah, in Dasht i Khāvarān, while the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 5, and the Khulasat ul-Afkar, fol. 5, place the poet's native town Rūn in Sīstān, owing apparently to a confusion with an earlier poet of the same name, Abul-Faraj Sijzi, or Sijistānī, who lived under the Amir Abu 'Ali Simjur in the fourth century of the Hijrah; see Daulatshah, Or. 469, fol. 28, and Hammer, Redekünste, p. 45.

Abul-Faraj Rūnī lived in the latter part of the fifth century, under Sultan Ibrāhīm Ghaznavī, and his son and successor Mas'ūd B. Ibrāhīm, to both of whom several pieces of his Dīvān are addressed. Sultan Ibrāhīm succeeded to his brother Farrukhzād A.H. 450 or 451, and died, according to the Kāmil, vol. x. p. 110, and the Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, vol. iv. p. 43, A.H. 481, or, as stated in the Ṭabaķāt i Nāṣirī, Nizām ut-Tavārīkh, and Guzīdah, A.H. 492. Mas'ūd, who succeeded immediately to his father, reigned till A.H. 508.

If the latter, and more probable, date for the accession of Mas'ūd be adopted, the statement of the Mir'āt ul-'Alam that Abul-Faraj Rūnī died A.H. 482 is necessarily incorrect, for he addresses Mas'ūd B. Ibrāhīm in several poems as the reigning sovereign.

Abul-Faraj has been highly praised and imitated by Anvarī, and other poets of a subsequent period. A contemporary poet, Mas'ūd i Sa'd i Salmān, prides himself, in a verse quoted in the Haft Iķlīm, on being his pupil.

The Divan is not alphabetically arranged. It consists almost entirely of Kaṣīdahs, which are in praise of the two sovereigns above-mentioned, of the Vazīr 'Abd ul-Ḥamīd (who held that office, as stated in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii. Juz 4, p. 32, during the latter part of Ibrāhīm's reign), of the Ṣadr ul-Islām, Manṣūr B. Sa'īd, and other dignitaries of the court of Ghaznīn. At the end, foll. 51—57, are found some Ķiţ'alıs and Rubā'is; among the former, a piece on a palace ibelonging to the above-named poet, Mas'ūd i Sa'd, and the latter's answer in praise of Abul-Faraj.

Egerton 701.

Foll. 201;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 16 lines,  $2\frac{1}{8}$  long; written in a small and neat Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with two Unvāns; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1008 (A.D. 1600).

[ADAM CLARKE.]

ددوان مسعود سعد سلمان

The Divan of Mas'ad B. Sa'd B. Salman. شاد باش ای سپهر آینددار که کشادی جو آیند اسرار

'Aufī says that Mas'ūd was born in Hamadān, while in the Tazkirah of Daulatshāh and the Atashkadah he is called a native of Jurjān. Both statements are contradicted by the poet himself, who says in the following lines, fol. 162, that the envious can only reproach him with being a youth and a native of "this city":

به چوجه کسناهی دکر نسیدانند جزانکه مارا[در] این شهر مولد و منشاست اکر بر ایشان سحر حلال بر خوانم جزاین نکوبند آخر نه کودك و برناست

The poem contains a eulogy on Maḥmūd Saif ud-Dīn, the son of Sultan Ibrāhīm, and was apparently composed in the royal residence, Ghaznīn. After rising to a position of high rank at the Ghaznavi court, Mas'ūd incurred the displeasure of Ibrāhīm, who suspected him of plotting with his son, prince Saif ud-Dīn Maḥmūd, and sent him a prisoner, A.H. 472, to the hill-fort of Nāi. There Mas'ūd underwent a long period of captivity in the life-time of Ibrāhīm, and again during the reign of his successor, Mas'ūd B. Ibrāhīm. After his final release he adopted a religious life, and died, according to Nizāmī 'Arūzī, quoted in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, A.H. 515, or, as stated by Taķī Kāshī, A.H. 525.

Daulatshāh gives under the name of Mas'ūd B. Sa'd B. Salmān (Or. 469, fol. 39, and Redekünste, p. 42) the life of a poet who lived at the court of Minuchihr B. Ķābūs (A.H. 409—424). He has evidently confounded, with his usual inaccuracy, Mas'ūd with his father, Sa'd B. Salmān. The two lives are curiously blended into one in a notice prefixed to the present copy of the Dīvān, foll. 1—6.

Notices on Mas'ūd i Sa'd will be found in the Haft Iklīm, fol. 416, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 407, Badāonī's Muntakhab, vol. i. p. 36, Atashkadah, p. 147, Subḥat ul-Murjān, Or. 1761, fol. 98, Haft Āsmān, p. 19, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 282. The story of his chequered life has been told at some length by Dr. Sprenger, Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. xxii. pp. 442—4, and by N. Bland, Journal Asiatique, 5° Série, vol. ii. pp. 356—369.

'Aufi's statement regarding three Dīvāns left by Mas'ūd, namely in Arabic, Persian, and Hindī, is confirmed by Amīr Khusrau in his preface to the Ghurrat ul-Kamāl, Add. 21,104, fol. 175 a.

The present Dīvān, which is not alphabetically arranged, consists chiefly of Kaṣīdahs in praise of three sovereigns of the Ghaznavi dynasty, viz. Ibrāhīm, Mas'ūd B. Ibrāhīm, and Bahrām Shāh, who reigned, according to the Kāmil, vol. x. p. 356, vol. xi. p. 124, from A.H. 512 to 548. Others are addressed to prince Maḥmūd, son of Ibrāhīm, to the poet's master Abul-Faraj Rūnī, and to some dignitaries of the court of Ghaznin. Several pieces contain the author's laments on his protracted captivity.

The latter part of the volume contains a Maṣnavī, fol. 149 b, some Marṣiyalıs, fol. 174 a, Mukaṭṭaʿat, fol. 182 b, and Rubāʿiyāt, fol. 193 a.

An extract from this Divan is mentioned in the Munich Catalogue, p. 8.

Add. 7793.

Foll. 244; 74 in. by 44. [Cl. J. Ricii.]

I. Foll. 1—164; 14 lines, 23 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1005 (A.D. 1597).

Another copy of the preceding Divan, containing about two thirds of the poems found in the last, but in a different order.

The first Kasidah, which begins thus:

is found at fol. 67 of the preceding MS.

II. Foll. 165—244; 12 lines, 23 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ḥaidarābād, Ramazān, A.H. 1021 (A.D. 1612).

Another copy of the Divan of Abu 'l-Faraj Runi (see p. 547 a).

The contents are nearly the same as in the first copy, but the arrangement is somewhat different.

محمد مقيم بن اميري الاسترابادي Copyist:

Add. 16,777.

Foll. 386; 10% in. by 6%; 15 lines, 3% in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1076 (A.D. 1665).

[WM. YULE.]

حديقة الحقيقه

The "Garden of Truth," a poem on ethics and religious life.

Author: Sana'i, سنائی

ای درون پروری برون آرای Beg. وی خرد بخش پخرد بخشای

Abul-Majd Majdūd B. Adam Sanā'ī was, as he states in the present poem, fol. 372, ورجه ورجه مرا زغزنين است, a native of Ghaznīn, and lived in the reign of Bahrām Shāh (A.H. 512—548). A great part of the fourth book is devoted to a panegyric on that prince and a description of his court. The Ḥadīkah was completed; as stated in the concluding lines, A.H. 525:

شد تمام این کتاب در مه دی که در آذر فکند اورا پی پانصد و بیست و چار رفته ز عام پانصد وبیست و بیج کشته تمام

Some copies however have A.H. 535. The former date is adopted by Jami, Nafahat, p. 693, who adds that Sana'i died in the same year. See also Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 33, Haft Iklim, fol. 132, Majālis ul-Ushshāk, fol. 53, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 300, Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 40, Haft Asman, p. 20, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 201. Jāmī's statement is fully confirmed by a preface preserved in Or. 358, and noticed further on. Taki Kāshī, in spite of his usual accuracy, places Sanā'i's death in A.H. 545 (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 558), and Daulatshāh, a very unsafe guide, in A.H. 576. The former is followed by the Atashkadah, fol. 53, and the latter by Hammer, Redekünste, p. 102, and by Ouseley, Biographical Notices, p. 184.

Khwand Amir points out, l.e., the glaring anachronism committed by Jami, who represents Sana'i as composing in his youth poems in praise of Sultan Maḥmūd, who died A.H. 421. The author of the Khulaṣat ul-Afkar states, fol. 105, without quoting his authority, that Sana'i was born A.H. 437.

Ḥakīm Sanā'ī, as the author is generally called, is the earliest of the great Sufi poets. The greatest of all, Jalāl ud-Dīn Rūmī, refers to him as his master in spiritual knowledge, and his Ḥadīkah is one of the favourite text books of the sect. It is divided into ten books (Bāb), the contents of which are stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 65, Anzeigeblatt, pp. 1—5. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 57, the Oude Catalogue, p. 557, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 326, the Munich Catalogue, p. 7, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 498.

At the end of the poem, fol. 384 b, is found an epilogue written in the same metre. It is addressed to the Imām Burhān ud-Dīn Abul-Ḥasan 'Alī B. Nāṣir, surnamed Biryāngar, الدلقب ببريان , a doctor of Ghaznīn, who was then staying in Baghdād. The author beseeches him, for old friendship's sake, to state fairly his opinion on the preceding poem, and to shield him from the malignant aspersions of some ignorant pretenders in Ghaznīn.

On the first page of the present copy is found the seal of Sultan-Muhammad, a servant of Pādishāh 'Ālamgīr, with the date 1080.

Add. 25,329.

Foll. 298;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with gold headings; dated Ṣafar, A. H. 890 (A.D. 1485). [ADAM CLARKE.]

The same work, wanting the latter part of the epilogue.

On the first page is the Persian seal of Archibald Swinton, dated A.H. 1174.

Or. 358.

Foll. 317; 63 in. by 33; 17 lines, 2 in. long; written in small Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with two 'Unvāns, apparently in the 16th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The same poem,

This copy contains two prefaces in prose. The first, foll. 2 6—12 a, which begins thus: الحبد لله الخبير بخفيات الضمائر البصير بخبيات السراير is due to Muhammad B. Ali Rakkām, who calls himself the humblest of Sana'i's disciples. He states that the present sovereign, Yamin ud-Daulah Bahrāmshāh B. Mas'ūd, informed of the holy life of Sana'i, had offered him a post at his court, but that the latter, who had led for forty years a life of retirement and poverty, had begged leave to retain his independence. As a token of his gratitude for the Sultan's acquiescence, Sanā'ī began to write for him the present work, to حديقة الحقيقة والشريعة which he gave the title of . While he was yet engaged upon its composition, some portions were abstracted and divulged by certain ill-disposed persons, and the author determined to complete it without further delay. The writer of the preface had made, by order of Bahrāmshah, a fair transcript of the few thousand lines of which it consisted, when the poet's soul took its flight to a better world. The preface concludes with a rhymed table of the ten books of the Hadikah.

This preface is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 40, who calls the writer Muḥammad B. 'Alī ur-Raffā. See also the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 498.

The second preface, foll. 12 b—15 a, which is by Sanā'ī himself, and begins: سپاس مبدعیست که بسخن دان و سخن دان و سخن دان و بسخن بناک سخن دان و بسخن بناک سخن کوی را

Sanā'ī says that, while he was immersed in sadness at the thought that he should depart from this world without leaving any good work behind, he had been accosted by a loving friend, Aḥmad B. Mas'ūd Mustaufī, who endeavoured to comfort him, and, probably, suggested to him the composition of the Ḥadīķah. But here the preface breaks off after the sixth page.

The last four leaves of the MS. have been supplied by a later hand.

The first page bears the seal of Shāh Ināyat Ullah, with the date A.H. 1178.

Add. 16,778.

Foll. 301; 10 in. by 5½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1040 (A.D. 1631). [WM. YULE.]

The same work, with marginal notes and additions. The date of composition in this copy is A.H. 535, which has been corrected in the margin to 525.

[WM. YULE.]

Add. 26,150.

Foll. 246; 10 in. by 5½; 19 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with ruled margins and a 'Unvan, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. Erskine.]

The same poem, with a few marginal notes and additions in the first pages. The date of composition at the end is A.H. 535.

Add. 27,311.

Foll. 302; 83 in. by 43; 20 lines, 23 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Duncan Forbes.]

ديوان سنائي

The Divan of Sana'i.

بس که شنیدی صفت روم وچین .Beg. خیز و بیا ملك سنائی به بین

It contains Kasidalis, Ghazals, and Rubā'is, without alphabetical arrangement, or any apparent system, except that the Rubā'is are placed at the end, foll. 277—302. It includes some pieces in praise of Bahrāmshāh.

The Divan of Sana'i comprises, according to Daulatshah, thirty thousand couplets. The present copy does not exceed eleven thousand.

Or. 269.

Foll. 75; 9½ in. by 5¾; 15 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century. [Geo. Ww. Hamilton.]

ديوان احدد جام

The Divan of Ahmad of Jam.

ای یاد تو بر دل و زبانها انتاده جو روح در روانها .Beg

Abu Nasr Ahmad B. Abul-Hasan, surnamed Zhandahpīl ژنده پيل, was called Nāmaķī from his birth-place, Nāmaķ, a village of the district of Jam, but his usual designation is Shaikh ul-Islām Ahmad i Jām. His countryman Jami devotes to him a long notice in the Nafahāt ul-Uns, pp. 405—417, an abstract of which has been given by Sprenger in the Oude Catalogue, p. 323. He was born A.H. 441, adopted a religious life in his twenty-second year, brought thousands to repentance, and died in great renown of sanctity A.H. 536, a date fixed, as stated in the Javāhir ul-Asrār, fol. 148, by the chronogram احمد جامي قدس سرة Although illiterate, he composed several Sufi tracts, the best known of which is entitled سراج السائرين. Other notices will be found in the Majālis ul-Ushshāk, fol. 57, Haft Iklim, fol. 282, Habib us-Siyar, II., Juz 3, p. 71, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 9, Khulaşat ul-Afkar, fol. 4, and Atashkadah, p. 73.

The Divan comprises Ghazals alphabetically arranged, a few Maşnavis, fol. 43 a, and some Rubā'is, foll. 54 a—60 a. The poet calls himself mostly Jāmī, and, in a few places, Ahmad i Jām.

The latter part of the volume contains—

1. A letter written by Jahāngīr to his son Sultan Khūram (Shāhjahān), when he suspected him of treasonable plots, and Khūram's answer, the latter in Maṣnavi rhyme, fol. 60 b. 2. A love-poem, entitled عبت نامه صور و کدار

The poem appears to have been written in the reign of Akbar, at the request of Prince Dāniyāl. The author designates limself by the name of برهمن زاد محبت; see fol. 71 a. On the first page of the volume are the stamps of the kings of Oude.

Or. 327.

Foll. 70;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 17 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان اديب صابر

The Divan of Adib Şabir.

ای زمین را در رخت جون آسمان فر و بها Beg.

Adib Sabir, a native of Tirmiz, was one of the favourite poets of Sanjar, and his great contemporary, Anvari, ranked him, in a verse quoted in Jāmi's Bahāristān, above himself. Historians state that Adib Sābir was sent by Sanjar with a friendly message to Atsiz, and retained by the latter in Khwarazm. Having frustrated by a timely warning an attempt of that crafty vassal on the life of his sovereign, he thus incurred his anger, and was drowned by his order in the waters of the Jihun. This event is placed in the Guzidah, fol. 137, and the Rauzat us-Safa, vol. iv. p. 107, before A.H. 542, and by Taki Kāshi, Oude Catalogue, p. 16, in A.H. 540. Later dates are given in some Tazkirahs, viz. A.H. 546, in Daulatshah, fol. 47, and the Atashkadah, fol. 152, and A.H. 547 in the Haft Iklim, fol. 248. See also Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 104, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 10, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 6, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 121, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 313.

The Divān consists chiefly of Ķasīdahs; it includes also a Tarjī'-band, fol. 55 a, Muķatṭa'āt, fol. 59 b, and Rubā'iyāt, fol. 68 b.

Some of the laudatory poems are addressed to the Sultans Sanjar and Atsiz (see foll. 23 a, 34 a, 15 a); but most of them are devoted to the praises of the poet's earliest patron, Sayyid Majd ud-Din Abu 'l-Ķāsim 'Alī B. Ja'far, Ra'īs of Khorāsān, whom, as is stated, fol. 55 a, Sultan Sanjar used to call his brother. The same personage is called in some of the above notices Abu Ja'far 'Alī B. ul-Ḥusain ul-Mūsavī, Ra'īs i Khorāsān.

This copy bears the stamps of the kings of Oude.

Add. 10,588.

Foll. 227;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

ديوان معزى

The Divan of Mu'izzi.

اغاز بتوحید کن ای مرد سخن دان .Beg. کاسوده بتوحید شود مرد مسلمان

Amīr Mu'izzi's original name was Muhammad B. 'Abd ul-Malik. His birth-place is not ascertained. Daulatshāh names Nasā, the Haft Iklim, fol. 309, Nishāpur, Taķī Kāshī (Oude Catalogue, p. 16), and the Atashkadah, Nizāmī 'Arūzī, who fol. 157, Samarkand. knew him personally, relates, as quoted in the Haft Iklim, and the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 409, the following particulars of his life:-After the death of his father, Burhani Samarkandi, a poet of the court of Alp Arslan, he lived some time in obscurity, until he was introduced to the notice of Malak Shāh by the Amir Ali B. Faramurz (a vassal of the Saljūkis, who ruled Yazd from A.H. 443 to 488, and to whom Alp Arslan had given his sister in marriage; see Jahanara, fol. 66). The king, charmed with some impromptu verses of the poet, bestowed upon him a princely reward and the surname of Mu'izzi, derived from his own title, Mu'izz ud-Din. Mu'izzī rose still higher under Sanjar, who conferred upon him the title and office of Malik ush-Shu'arā. He was accidentally killed by a stray arrow from the bow of Sanjar, A H. 542. See also Guzīdah, fol. 242, Ḥabīb us Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 103, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 260, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 77, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 501.

The Divan of Mu'izzī contains, according to the Haft Iķlîm, 15,000 couplets. The present copy does not exceed 8000. It consists chiefly of Kaṣīdahs, not alphabetically arranged, a few Ghazals and Kiṭ'ahs, fol. 216 a, and Rubā'is, fol. 224 a.

The first and last pages have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 16,791.

Foll. 176; 9½ in. by 4¾; 19 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold ruled margins and a 'Unvān; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1063 (A.D. 1653). [WM. YULE.]

ديوان رشيد وطواط

The Divan of Rashid Vatvat.

Rashid ud-Din Muhammad B. 'Abd ul-Jalil ul-'Umari (i.e. a descendant of the Khalif 'Umar), a native of Balkh, surnamed Vatvat or "swallow," on account of his dwarfish size, held the post of chief secretary under two sovereigns of the Khwārazm Shāhī dynasty, viz. Atsiz (A.H. 535-551), and his son Il-Arslan (A.H. 551-568). The author of the Guzidah, fol. 137, quotes verses composed by him on the accession of Atsiz, on his death, and on the accession of Tukush, which took place in A.H. 568. He died in his 97th year, A.H. 578, and left, besides the present Divan, a treatise on poetry حدائق السحر, a work entitled and a metrical translation of the sentences of 'Ali ترجمه صد کلمه. Notices on his life will be found in the Guzidah, fol. 243, Jāmi's Bahāristān, fol. 63, Daulatshāh, fol. 45, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, pp. 169, 174, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 243, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 178, Ātashkadah, fol. 138, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 100. See also Hammer, Redekiinste, p. 119, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 541.

This Divān consists of Ķaṣidahs in alphabetical order. At the end are found some Tarjī'- and Tarkīb-bands, fol. 136 a, and further on, Mukaṭṭaʿāt and Rubāʿis, fol. 158 b. Most of the pieces are in praise of Sultau Atsiz, hero called Abu l-Muzaffar 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad; a few are addressed to Il Arslān, to the Vazīr 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad, and some other personages of the court of Khwārazm.

Or. 283.

Foll. 130; 10 in. by 5‡; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The poems of Rashid Vatvat, not alphabetically arranged. The first Kasidah, which is the second of the preceding copy, begins thus:

This volume bears the stamps of the kings of Oude.

Add. 16,826.

Foll. 29;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 6 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Naskhi, with gold and with blue ink, and in neat Nestalik, with a rich 'Unvān and illuminated borders, probably in the 16th century. [WM. YULE.]

A hundred maxims of 'Alī B. Abu Ṭālib ماية كلمه عليه عاليه مرتضويه, with a paraphrase in Persian quatrains by Rashīd ud-Dīn Vaṭvāṭ. See tho Arabic Catalogue, p. 511.

ترجهه This is the work above mentioned as مد کله, and edited by Fleisher in 1837. It forms the fourth part of a collection including the sayings of the first four Khalifs, which was dedicated A.H. 559 to Sulṭān Shāh Abul-Ķāsim Maḥmūd, son of Il Arslān Khwārazm Shāh. See Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 125, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 192.

Four leaves are wanting after fol. 12. Copyist: عبد القادر بن عبد الوهاب الحسيني

Add. 25,019.

Foll. 360; 9 in. by 5; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Aḥmadābād, Gujrāt, Shavvāl, A.H. 1083 (A.D. 1672).

ديوان انورى

The Divan of Anvari.

مقدري نه به آلت بقدرت مطلق Beg. کند زشکل بخاری چو کنبذ ازرق

Auhad ud-Dīn Anvarī, the first of Ķaṣīdah writers, was born in Mahanah (Yākūt's Maihanah), in the district called Dasht i Khāvarān, near Abīvard, and took from his native province the poetical surname of Khāvarī, which he afterwards exchanged for Anvarī. In early life he applied himself to the pursuit of science in the Madrasah Manṣūriyyah of Ṭūs, but subsequently embraced the more lucrative profession of courtpoet, and became a great favourite of Sultan Sanjar, to whom most of his Ķaṣīdahs are addressed.

An incident related in the Tārīkh i Guzīdah, and repeated in the Rauzat uṣ-Safā and Ḥabīb uṣ-Siyar, shows that he lived on to the reign of Sultan Ṭughrul B. Arslān. A conjunction of the seven planets in the third degree of Libra was expected in the month of Rajab, A.H. 581, and some astronomers, first and foremost of whom was Anvarī, predicted a terrific convulsion of nature, so that people fled in alarm to mountains and caves. When the dreaded day came, there was not enough wind to winnow corn or blow out a lamp. The historian remarks that the prophecy was fulfilled in another sense, for in that year Chingizkhan became the chief of his people; while the prop of the empire, Atabak Muhammad, was laid low. However, the discomfited astronomer, finding himself the butt of satirists, retired to Nīshāpūr, and afterwards to Balkh, where he spent the rest of his life. Various dates are assigned to Anvari's death. Takī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 16, gives A.H. 587, Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 474, A.H. 592, and Daulatshah, A.H. 547. This last date is refuted by the fact recorded in the Guzidali, and by the evidence afforded by several passages of the Divan, that the poet had survived Sanjar (see fol. 108 a).

Notices on Anvarī will be found in Jāmi's Bahāristān, fol. 62, Guzīdah, fol. 238, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 103, Haft İklīm, fol. 228, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 536, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 16, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 11. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 88, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 331.

The Dīvān is divided as follows: Ķaṣīdahs, without systematic arrangement, fol. 1 a. Shorter Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 202 b. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, in alphabetical order, fol. 205 a. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, without alphabetical arrangement, fol. 287 a. Ghazals, not in alphabetical order, fol. 295 a. Maṣnavis, fol. 333 a. Rubāʿis, fol. 338 a.

The names which recur most frequently in the laudatory poems are those of Sultan Sanjar, and the Vazīr of the latter part of his reign, Nāṣir ud-Dīn Abul-Fatḥ B. Fakhr ul-Mulk, who was a grandson of the great Nizām ul-Mulk, and died A.H. 548 (see Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 121, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii. Juz 4, p. 103); of Ṭughrultigīn and ʿImād ud-Dīn Fīrūz Shāh, who both held sway in Balkh, of the Vazīr of Balkh, Ziyā ud-Dīn Maudūd B. Aḥmad ʿUṣmī, the Khwājah i Jahān Majd ud-

&lt;sup>a</sup> A conjunction of five planets in Libra took place, according to the Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 348, on the 29th of Jumāda II., A.H. 582.

Din Abul Ḥasan Imrāni, and Ķāzī Ḥamīd ud-Din Balkhi, the author of the Maṣāmāt.

The same Dîvān, alphabetically arranged, has been lithographed in Tabrīz, A.H. 1266. Copies are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 56, Mackenzie Collection, vol. ii. p. 139, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 319, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 502, the Münich Catalogue, p. 10, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 83.

Add. 7732.

Foll. 329; 9½ in. by 6; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, about the beginning of the 17th century. [Cl. J. Ricu.]

The same Divān, in alphabetical order; containing—Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 1 b. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 174. Maṣnavis, fol. 235 b. Ghazals (not alphabetically arranged), fol. 240 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 273. Rubāʿis, fol. 309 a.

This beginning is by a later hand, and only imperfectly supplies the deficiency of the original MS., which has lost all the Kasidahs in Alif but the last two. Foll. 11-31, 64-76, and 329 have been written by the same modern hand, A.H. 1200.

The margins contain some additional pieces of Anvarī, and, on foll. 126—217, the Tuḥfat ul-'Irāķain and some other poems by Khākānī, written in the same handwriting as the text, and dated Ispahan, Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1011 (A.D. 1603).

Add. 22,381.

Foll. 259; 9½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

Another copy of the Divān of Anvarī, containing Kaṣīdahs, fol. 1 a, and Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 163 a, without alphabetical arrangement.

It wants sixteen leaves at the beginning, a few in the body of the volume, and some at the end.

Add. 5617.

Foll. 280; 10½ in. by 6: 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins and two 'Unvāns, dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1087 (A.D. 1677).

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The Divan of Anvari, containing Kaşidalıs, fol. 1 b, and Mukatta'at, fol. 195 b, both in alphabetical order, with the exception of the first Kaşidalı, which begins:

مقدری نه بآلت بقدرت مطلق

This copy was written, as stated in the subscription, for Shams ud-Dîn Muḥammad, Vazīr of the Ṣūbah of Tatah, by 'Abd ul-Majīd Kātib Tata'ī.

Add. 16,763.

Foll. 202; 9½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated the 6th year of Farrukhsiyar, A.H. 1129 (A.D. 1717).

[WM. YULE.]

قصائد انوري

The Kasidahs of Anvari, in alphabetical order, beginning like the preceding MS.

A curious feature of this collection is that, while consisting for the most part of anthentic poems of Anvari, it includes some Kaṣīdahs which are not found in the preceding copies, and which, according to what is known of the poet's life, cannot be attributed to him; for they bear internal evidence of having been composed in India, and many years after the latest date assigned to Anvari's death. Thus we find a Kaṣīdah addressed to Shams ud-Dīn Iltatmish, who reigned in India from A.H. 607 to 633, fol. 60 b; four poems in praise of his son Rukn ud-Dīn Firūz Shāh, who succeeded to his father, and was deposed after a reign of six months, A.H. 634, foll. 40 b, 42 a, 62 a, 135 b; one containing the name of another son of Iltatmish, Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Muḥammad, who at the time of his father's death was in possession of Oude, fol. 43 a; lastly, three Ķasīdahs addressed to the Vazīr of Iltatmish and his successor, Nizām ul-Mulk Muḥammad Junaidī (see Ṭabakāt i Nāṣirī, Raverty's translation, pp. 613, 639), foll. 44 a, 46 b, 62 b.

To the first of the above poems a precise date can be assigned; for it records the reception by Shams ud-Dīn Iltatmish of a robe of honour sent to him by the Abbaside Khalif Mustanşir, an event which is stated by a contemporary historian to have taken place A.H 626; see Ṭabaṣāt i Nāṣirī, translation, p. 616.

The poet, whose name does not appear, says in the following lines, fol. 45 a, that he had come to India from Khorasan:

Badāunī mentions in his Muntakhab, vol. i. p. 65, two poets who repaired from Iran to the court of Iltatmish, namely Nāṣirī and Amīr Rūḥānī.

Or. 362.

Foll. 153; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

شرح قصائد انوری

A commentary on the Kaṣīdahs of Anvarī. Author: Muhammad B. Dā'ūd 'Alavī Shādiyābādī, حجد بن داود على شادى آبادى

Beg. ستایش بیعد ونیایش بیعد مرصانع قدیمیرا The author states in the preface that, having once recited a poem of Anvarī before the exalted throne of Sultan Nāṣir ud-Dīn, who deigned to admit him to his assemblies, he received His Majesty's command to write a commentary upon the difficult verses of that poet. Hence the present work.

The author was apparently a native of Shādī-ābād, commonly called Mandū, the capital of Mālvah, and the above-named sovereign is, no doubt, Nāṣir ud-Dīn Khiljī, who reigned in Mālvah from A.H. 906 to 916. See Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 509.

The commentary does not follow the alphabetical order. The first three Kaṣīdahs commented upon are those which begin as follows: مقدرى نه به آلت بقدرت مطلق, Tabrīz edition, p. 124, تفاست الكرمحول حال جهانيان نه قضاست الكبير ib., p. 26, and خودرا دوش ميكفتم كه اى اكسير ib., p. 197. The last is a Kiṭʿah beginning الى راى ماك شه معظم, ib., p. 222.

Add. 25,820.

Foll. 129;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1232 (A.D. 1817).

[WM. CURETON.]

The same commentary, with some marginal additions.

Or. 361.

Foll. 92;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

شرح قصائد انوری

A commentary on some Kasidahs of Anvari.

Author: Abul-Hasan, ابو للسن

Tāhir Naṣīrābādī, who in his Tazkirah, composed A.H. 1089, mentions Mīr Abul-

Hasan, a Husainī Sayyid of Farāhān, as a contemporary poet and the author of a commentary upon Anvarī, states that after staying some time in Naṣīrābād, a suburb of Ispahan, Abul-Ḥasan settled in Shīrāz, where he entered the service of the governor Imām Kulī Khān, but was eventually put to death. See Add. 7087, fol. 208, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 332, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iv. p. 54.

The author states in a short preamble that he had confined himself to the explanation of the difficult verses and of some rare words. In conclusion he claims the readers' indulgence for what he ealls the first literary attempt of his youth, and adds that the work had been circulated before he had intended to make it public.

The commentary follows the alphabetical arrangement, beginning with the first Kaṣī-dah of the Tabrīz edition, and ending with the poem beginning سكندر ثانى, ib. p. 205.

Or. 298.

Foll. 56; 6% in. by 3; 14 lines, 1% in. long; written in small Nestalik, probably in the 16th century. [Geo. Ww. Hamilton.]

ديوان عمادى

The Divan of 'Imadi.

The best account of 'Imādī is to be found in the Haft Iklīm, foll. 436—439, where he is called 'Imādī Shahriyārī, and placed among the natives of Rai, Shahriyār being the name of one of the richest Bulūks of that eity. Some of the best authorities, we are told, identify him with 'Imādī Ghaznavī, while others hold that there are two distinct poets of that name. 'Aufī knows only one 'Imādī, whom he classes with the poets of Ghaznin, although the verses he quotes under his name are, in some good copies, ascribed to 'Imādī Shahriyārī. The original Dīvān of Imādī is lost; but about two thousand Baits have been preserved. Among the numerous pieces inserted in the Haft Iklim, several of which are found also in the present copy, are two in praise of Sultan Tughrul, the second of which contains, according to Ahmad Razi, an allusion to Kizil Arslan. It was evidently written after Tughrul had thrown off the yoke of the Atabaks, as he did after the death of Jahan Pahlavan, A.H. 582; see the Kāmil, vol. ix. p. 437. The date assigned by Taki Kāshi, Oude Catalogue, p. 16, to the death of 'Imadi, namely A.H. 573, is accordingly too early.

Other notices on 'Imādī will be found in the Rīyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 294, the Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 173, and the Ātashkadah, p. 102. See also Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 439. In the first of the above works the poet is called Ḥakīm 'Imādī Ghaznavī, and described as the panegyrist of 'Imād ud-Daulah Dailamī. It is added that he was also called Sulṭānī and Shahriyārī, and that he was, according to some authors, a son of Mukhtārī Ghaznavī (see p. 543 a),—a very doubtful statement, repeated in the Ātashkadah.

The present collection, which contains little more than 1400 Baits, consists principally of Kasīdahs, arranged without any apparent system, with some Ghazals, Kiṭ'ahs and Rubā'is. It affords no evidence of the poet's connexion with Ghaznīn, but much of his residence in Māzandarān and the adjoining countries. Two Kaṣīdahs are in praise of Sultan Tughrul, who was the nominal sovereign of Irak from A.H. 573 to 582, and an independent ruler from the latter date to his death in A.H. 590 (Kāmil, vol. xi. pp. 265, 347, vol. xii. p. 70). One is addressed to Jahān Pahlavān (the Atābak Muḥammad B. Ilduguz), who reigned

A.H. 568—582 (ib. vol. xi. pp. 255, 582), and another to Tughān (i. e. Tughān Shāh B. Muayyad, who ruled in Nīshāpūr A.H. 568—581 or 582; see Journal Asiatique, 4° Série, vol. vii. p. 446).

But by far the greater number of the laudatory poems are in praise of a prince of Māzandarān called Saif ud-Dīn 'Imād ud-Daulah B. Farāmurz, who appears to have been the poet's special patron, and from whose title he took, no doubt, his Takhallus 'Imādī. He is thus designated, fol. 19 a.

شاه فرامرز زاد دولت و دین را عماد خسرو مازندران سایه نیك اختری and fol. 19 b.

شاة سيف الدين عماد الدوله

In a Rubä'i composed after his benefactor's death, fol. 54 b, the poet wonders at his beholding laid low in the dust him who had raised him from it:

اکنون که عماد دوله در خاك آسود از دیده من خاك شود خون آلود در خاك نهاده چون توانم دیدن آنرا که مرا زخاك بر داشته بود

In a poem in praise of Farāmurz, apparently the father of 'Imād ud-Daulah, the poet describes himself as a humble follower in the prince's army, fol. 10 a:

سرمایه داد دین فرامرز در لشکر او کمینه مائیم

Of 'Imād ud-Daulah no record has been found. His father was perhaps the same Farāmurz, who is mentioned by Zahīr ud-Dīn, Geschichte von Tabaristān, p. 223, about A.H. 512, as the nephew of the reigning Iṣpahbad, 'Alā ud-Daulah 'Alī.

Another prince called 'Abd ur-Rahmān, described as a powerful sovereign in no less than three pieces, foll. 17, 36, 37, has not been identified.

The poet designates himself throughout by the Takhallus of 'Imādī; but he réfers in two passages, foll. 30 a, 34 b, to the change of that surname to Sulṭānī, as consequent upon his entering the service of Sultan Tughrul.

The first page bears the stamps of Tiket Rāi, the Oude minister, and of the kings of Oude.

Add. 25,808.

Foll. 386; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{2}; 19 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. Cureton.]

ديوان خاقاني

The Divan of Khakani.

دل من پیر تعلیم است ومن طفل زبان دانش . Beg.

Afzal ud-Dīn B. 'Alī Najjār, or son of 'Alī the carpenter, a native of Shirvān, adopted in the first instance the poetical surname of Ḥakā'ikī, but received subsequently that of Khākānī from his master Abul-'Alā Ganjavī. His original name was, according to most biographers, Ibrāhīm. But he says himself, in the following verse, quoted in the Haft Iklīm, fol. 529, that he had been called by his father Badīl, or "Substitute," because he filled the vacant place of Sanā'ī, the great mystic:

بدل من امدم اندر جهان سنائیرا از آن سبب پدرم نام من بدیل نهاد and he adds in another place, Add. 16,772, fol. 264, that one magician (Sanā'ī) had just been buricd in Ghaznīn when Shirvān gave birth to another (Khāķānī):

چون بغزنین ساحری شد زیر خاك خاك شروان ساحری نو بر بزاد

Hence it may be inferred that he was born about A.H. 525 (see p. 549 b).

His life was principally spent at the court of two successive sovereigns of Shirvan, namely Khākān Kabīr Minūchihr, from whose title the poet's surname is derived, and his son Akhsatān (in our MSS. Akhtashān اختشان)," who died after a long reign in, or shortly after, A.H. 584, the year in which Nizāmī dedicated to him his Majnūn u Lailā. (See also Khanykov, Bulletin de la Classe Historique, tome xiv. pp. 353—370). Most of Khāķānī's laudatory poems are addressed to Akhsatān.

Hamd Ullah says in the Guzidah that Khākāni died in Tabriz A.H. 582, and that statement has been repeated by Daulatshah, fol. 76, by Ahmad Razi, Haft Iklim, fol. 529, and in the Atashkadah, fol. 18. But there is in his Divan ample evidence that he lived on to a later period. He survived his patron Aklısatan (see Khanykov, l.c. p. 356); he composed several poems in praise of the Atābak Nusrat ud-Din Kizil Arslān, who reigned from A.H. 582 to 587; finally, as has been noticed by Khwand Amir, Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii. Juz 4, p. 176, he addressed a Kasidah to Sultan Tukush Khwarazm Shah after the taking of Isfahan, A.H. 590. The date assigned to his death in Mir'at ul-Khayāl, fol. 23, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 78, and Natā'ij ul-Afkār (in the margin of Ḥabīb us-Siyar, l.c.), viz. A.II. 595, is probably correct.

Other notices on Khākānī will be found in Jāmī's Bahāristān, fol. 65, Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 707, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 534, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 23, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 153. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 125, Ouseley's Notices, p. 157, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 461, and Khanykov, Mémoire sur Khacani, Journal Asiatique, 6° Série, vol. iv. p. 137, vol. v. p. 296, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 114.

The Divan is arranged according to subjects. The following are the principal divisions:—Poems on religious or moral topics. Laudatory poems addressed to princes, vazīrs, and men of rank, fol. 55 b. Tarj'-bands, fol. 182 b. Maraṣi, or funeral poems, fol. 204 a. Short pieces of ascetic character, epigrams, satires, etc., fol. 246.

Copies are described in the Jahrbücher, vol. lxvi., Anzeigeblatt, p. 26, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 508, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 328, etc.

Add. 16,773.

Foll. 379; 9½ in. by 5¾; 19 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. YULE.]

The same Divan.

Add. 7726.

Foll. 310; 9\frac{2}{3} in. by 6; 15 lines, 1\frac{7}{8} in. long, with about 30 half-lines written round the margins in continuation of each page, in neat Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Ricii.]

The same Divan.

Add. 7727.

Foll. 329; 10 in. by 53; 21 lines, 31 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Divan, slightly imperfect at the end.

نثار اشك من هرشب كهر ريزست پنهاني . Beg.

The first Kaşidah of this copy is the second of the preceding MSS.

Add. 25,809.

Foll. 402; 10 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

The same Divan, slightly imperfect at the end, with many marginal notes, especially in the first half of the volume.

On the fly-leaf at the end, and in a later

In Armenian, "Akhsartan." See Dorn, Caspia, p. 304.

hand, is written a ghazal popularly ascribed to Khākānī, beginning:

لاله رخا سمن برا سرو روان کیستی

It has been printed at the end of Dr. Forbes' Persian Grammar.

Add. 16,772.

Foll. 283; 123 in. by 612; 25 lines, 33 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

Another copy of the Divan of Khākanī, in which the Kasīdalıs are alphabetically arranged.

جوشی صورت برون کن در صف مردان درا Beg. دل طلب کز دار ملك دل توان شد پادشا

Add. 25,018.

Foll. 358;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, with about 24 half-lines in the margins; written in neat Nestalik, with Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

كليات خاقاني

The complete works of Khāķānī, namely his Dīvān and the Tuḥfat ul-ʿIrāķain. The MS. is divided into the following sections, each of which has a separate 'Unvān: I. Ķaṣīdahs in alphabetical order, with the exception of the first, which begins:

دل من پیر تعلیمست ومن طفل زبان دانش

Mukatta at in alphabetical order, fol.
 206 b.

ياصفوة الرحمن شافع خلقه Beg. انى اتبتك عبد رزق عانيا

III. Ghazals in alphabetical order, with some Rubā'is at the end, fol. 239 b.

جام می تا خط بغداد ده ای یار مرا

IV. Preface ديباجه of the Tuḥfat ul-Irākain, fol. 296 b.

خبر ما اعتصم المر بحباله كلمة العجز لقصور باله Beg.

The preface concludes with a dedication to the Vazīr Jamāl ud-Dīn. This was the title of Muḥammad B. 'Alī ul-Iṣpahānī, who was at the head of the government of Mauṣil from A.H. 541 to 558, when he was deposed by the Atābak Ķuṭb ud-Dīn Maudūd. See the Kāmil, vol. xi. pp. 74 and 202, and Ibh Khallikān's translation, vol. iii. p. 295.

V. Tuhfat ul-'Irakain، تحفة العراقين, fol. 299 b.

Beg. مائيم نظاركان غمناك زين حقه سبز ومهرة خاك. The "Present to the two Iraks" is a Maşnavi poem, in which the poet describes his journey from Shirvān to Mecca and his return. Its precise date is not stated; but in his ode to Ispahan (Journal Asiatique, 6° Série, vol. v. p. 329) Khāķānī says that he was in Mauṣil, where he stayed some time on his return journey, in A.H. 551.

An abstract of the contents has been given by Khanykov, Journal Asiatique, 6° Série, vol. iv. pp. 173—179. See also the Jahrbücher, vol. 64, Anzeigeblatt, pp. 16—18, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 506. A selection from the Tuḥfat ul-Trāķain has been printed in Lahore, 1867.

Add. 7728.

Foll. 124; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $2\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Tuḥfat ul-ʿIrākain. See the preceding MS., art. v.

Add. 25,810.

Foll. 118; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ḥaidarābād, Deccan, Muḥarram, the 20th year of 'Alamgīr, A.H. 1088 (A.D. 1677). [WM. CURETON.]

The same work, with marginal annotations in the hand of the copyist.

Add. 23,553.

Foll. 103; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{1}; 17 lines, 2\frac{7}{8} in. long, in a page; written in Nestalik; dated R\tilde{ajp\tilde{u}r}, district of K\tilde{alp\tilde{l}}, Rajab, A.H. 1096 (A.D. 168\tilde{5}). [Rob. Taylor.]

The same work, with corrections, various readings, and glosses, in the same hand-writing as the text.

Foll. 2—8 a contain extracts from Hafiz and other poets.

Add. 16,776.

Foll. 93; 7\frac{2}{4} in. by 4; 17 lines, 2\frac{2}{5} in. long; written in a cursive hand, apparently in the 17th century. [Wm. Yule.]

The same poem, imperfect at the beginning and wanting a few lines at the end.

Add. 16,775.

Foll. 116; 7½ in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. YULE.]

The same poem, with the prose preface noticed p. 560 a.

This copy belonged to Muhammad Shāhid, son of Raḥmat Khān Dā'ūdzai, whose seal and signature are found on the last page.

Add. 16,774.

Foll. 114; 7 in. by 4; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Wm. Yule.]

The same work, with marginal notes.

The prose preface, written by a later hand, occupies foll. 1 b-6 b.

Add. 25,811.

Foll. 235; 8½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3½ in.

long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1080 (A.D. 1670).

[WM. CURETON.]

شرح ديوان خاقاني

A full commentary on forty-four Kaşīdahs from the Dīvān of Khākānī.

Author: Muḥammad B. Dā'ūd B. Muḥammad B. Maḥmūd Shādiyābādī, محمد بن داود بن محمد بن محمود شاديابادي جواهر زواهر سپاس بی تیاس نثار Beg.

The author, who has been already mentioned, p. 556 a, says that he had acquired considerable skill in unfolding the abstruse meaning of ancient poets, and had been urged by some intimate friends to write the present commentary. The Kasidahs selected for explanation do not follow the alphabetical order, nor the usual arrangement of other copies. The first three are those which begin as follows:

دل من پیر تعلیم است و من طفل زباندانش شب روان از صبح صادق کعبه جان دیدة اند صبح خیزان بین بصدر کعبه مهمان آمده Sec Add. 25,808, foll. 1, 21, 29.

Or. 363.

Foll. 357;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Another copy of the same commentary, including about twenty minor poems not found in the preceding.

On the first page are some seals of the reign of Shāhjahān, the earliest of which is dated A.H. 1045.

Add. 27,315.

Foll. 210; 83 in. by 5; 19 lines, 31 in.

long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1107 (A.D. 1696).

[DUNCAN FORBES.]

A commentary on some Kaşīdahs of Khākānī.

Author: 'Alavi Lahiji, علوى لاهجى.

حمدی که تصاویر مبدعان سراپرده غیبی Beg.

The author, who calls himself in the preface an old servant of Jahāngīr, says that at the time of the Emperor's accession he was staying in Mecca. After a long sojourn there he returned to India by way of Irak and Khorasan, and presented to His Majesty the above commentary, together with some Kaṣīdahs in his praise.

This preface is the only part of the work which is 'Alavi's original composition. For the commentary is simply transcribed, with some trifling alterations, and without any acknowledgment, from the preceding work. It contains, however, towards the end, some minor poems and a few verses from the Tuhfat ul 'Irāķain, which are not to be found in Add.' 25,811, and which differ from the additional pieces of Or. 363.

A Kaṣīdah in praise of Jahāngīr, with which, according to the preface, the work was to conclude, is not found in the present copy.

Add. 8993.

Foll. 44;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines, 2 in. long, in a page; written in minute Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1016 (A.D. 1607).

ديوان مجير الدين بيلقاني

The Divan of Mujîr ud-Din Bailaķanī.

Mujīr ud-Dīn, born in Bailaķān, a town of the province of Arrān, was a dependent of the Atābaks of Azarbāijān, namely Ilduguz, and his son Ķizil Arslān, who is the principal object of his panegyrics. He left the latter, however, according to the Haft Iklīm, fol. 543, to attach himself to Sultan Tughrul. In the latter part of his life he was employed in the revenue collection in Isfahan, where he made fierce enemies by his satires. He was finally assailed in a bath by an infuriated mob, and put to death. 'Aufi, quoted in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 403, states that Ķizil Arslān, displeased by Mujīr's remissness in his attendance, called two rival poets, Aşīr' Akhsīkatī and Jamāl ud-Dīn Ashharī, to his court, and bestowed his favour upon them.

Mujīr's death is placed by Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 16, in A.H. 594, and by the author of the Riyāz, l. c., in A.H. 568. As his Dīvān contains, fol. 27, an elegy on the death of Kizil Arslān, which took place A.H. 587, the latter date is evidently wrong.

Other notices on Mujīr will be found in Daulatshāh, fol. 99, Ātashkadah, fol. 14, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 267. Sec also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 129, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 503. Amīr Khusrau, who mentions Mujīr in the preface of his Ghurrat ul-Kamāl, places him above Khāķānī, who is generally called his master.

The present copy, which is imperfect at the beginning, contains Kasīdahs, which are not in alphabetical order, with a few Kit'ahs and two Rubā'is at the end. The first complete Kasīdah, probably the second of the Dīvān, begins thus:

مساز حجره وحدت درین مضیق خراب که روی صبح سلامت بهاند زیر نقاب محمد میرك فراهی :Copyist

Add. 19,498.

Foll. 115;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, on gold-sprinkled paper, with gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

The Divan of Zahir ud-Din Faryabi.

ستاره سجده برد طالع منیر ترا Beg. زمانه بوسه زند پایه سریر ترا

Zahīr ud-Dīn Abul-Fazl Tāhir B. Muhammad, born at Faryab, in the province of Balkh, applied himself to the sciences, especially to astronomy, as well as to poetry. He composed in early life poems in praise of Tughan Shah, who ruled in Nishapur from A.H. 569 to 581, and of Husam ud-Daulah Ardashir, who reigned in Mazandaran from A.II. 567 to 602 (see Ibn Isfandiyar, Add. 7633, fol. 69). From the latter country he proceeded to the court of the Atabaks of Azarbāijān, and lived in great honour under Muhammad B. Ilduguz (A.H. 568-582), and under his brother and successor, Kizil Arslan (A.H. 582-587), whom he left to attach himself to the former's son, Nusrat ud-Din Abu Bakr. He ended his life in retirement, and died, according to the Guzidah, fol. 211, in Tabriz, A.H. 598.

He is noticed in Jāmi's Bahāristān, fol. 66, Daulatshāh, fol. 95, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 127, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 245, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 280, and Ātashkadah, fol. 144. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 130, Ouseley's Notices, p. 154, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 16 and 579.

Contents: 1. Ķasīdahs in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. 2. Two Tarjī'bands, fol. 86 b. 3. Ghazals, not alphabetically arranged, fol. 90 a. 4. Mukaṭṭa'āt, fol. 93 b. 5. Rubā'īs, fol. 110 a.

Copies of the Divan are mentioned by Krafft, p. 62. in the Upsala Catalogue, p. 102, and in Bibliotheea Sprenger., No. 1523.

The first page bears the Persian seals of Mr. Henry Vansittart, and of Mr. Charles Boddam.

Add. 7733.

Foll. 140; 64 in. by 34; 14 lines, 23 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Shavval, A.H. 1035 (A.D. 1626). [Cl. J. Ricu.]

The same Divan, differently arranged. Beg. سفيدة دم كه شدم محرم سراى سرور شنيدم آيت توبوا الى الله از لب حور

This copy comprises the following classes in which the alphabetical order is not observed:—1. Kasidahs, fol. 1 b. 2. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 90 b. 3. Ghazals, fol. 127 b 4. Rubāʿīs, fol. 131 a.

Or. 268.

Foll. 188;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in fine Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 15th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان اثير اخسيكتي

The Divan of Aşir Akhsikati.

جہانرا هم جہان بانیست بیدا بین بنہان دان .Beg. کے زیر کنبد نیلی بدید اورد جار ارکان

Asir ud-Din, a native of Akhsikat, a town of Farghanah, is placed by most Persian critics in the same rank of excellence as his great contemporaries, Anvarī and Khākānī. The fame of the latter attracted him to Irak, and he soon became a favourite court-poet of Sultan Arslan B. Tughrul, who reigned from A.H. 555 to 571. After a time he retired to Khalkhāl, a mountainous canton of Azarbāijan, whither he had been called by the local ruler, and where he spent the remainder of his life in seelusion. See Daulatshah, fol. 101, and Haft Iklim, fol. 602. Taki Kashi places his death in A.H. 608. He is noticed in the Guzidah, fol. 239, the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 8, and the Atashkadah, fol. 147. See also Hammer, Redekünste, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 16 and 345.

The Divan contains Kasidahs, arranged according to the persons to whom they are addressed, Ghazals, fol. 84 a, Mukaṭṭa'āt, and some additional Kasidahs, fol. 140 b. In the first class are found poems in praise of Arslān B. Ţughrul, (see foll. 9 a, 11 a, 11 b, 71 b, 73 a, etc.), of Ķizil Arslān, son of Atābak Ilduguz (see fol. 63 a), and of 'Alā ud-Daulah Fakhr ud-Dīn Shāh, who is styled king of Ķuhistān, and appears to have been the poet's special patron (see foll. 16 b, 18 a, 19 b, 22 a, etc.). The last is probably the ruler of Khalkhāl mentioned in the above notices.

Add. 7729.

Foll. 316;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 22 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in small Persian Naskhi, in four columns, with six 'Unvāns; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 802 (A.D. 1400). [Cl. J. Rich.]

خمسه نظامي

The five poems of Nizāmī.

Nizāmī (Nizām ud-Dīn Abū Muḥammad Ilyās* B. Yūsuf) is universally acknowledged as the greatest of Masnavi-writers, and his poems have remained to the present day the classical standards of that kind of composition. He is mentioned in the Haft Iklim, fol. 398, among the poets of Kum; and the Atashkadah, fol. 102, names Tafrish, in the province of Kum, as the birth-place of the poet, or of his father. Nizāmī himself refers, in the Iskandar Nāmah, to the hilly district of .ولى از كهستان شهر قهم Kum as his place of origin, ولى از كهستان شهر قهم But he spent nearly the whole of his life in Ganjah, a town of Arran, the modern Elisabetpol, where he died in great renown for sanctity. It is said of him that he never courted the favour of kings, but that kings vied with each other for the honour of being named in his poems. His writings show, however, that, although he shunned the courts, he lavished praises with no sparing hand on those princes from whom he expected some return.

Most conflicting statements have been made regarding the date of Nizāmi's death. Daulatshāh, fol. 104, gives A.H. 576, the Atashkadah, A.H. 586, the Jahānārā, fol. 111, A.H. 597, Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 176, A.H. 596, the Ṣubḥ i Ṣādiķ (marginal note to Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 112), A.H. 602, and Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, A.H. 606.

An ingenious attempt to reconstruct Nizāmi's life from his own writings has been made by Dr. Wilhelm Bacher, in his Memoir on the poet, published in German, Leipzig, 1871, and in an English translation, London, 1873. Although his results, owing to the insufficiency of his materials, are not free from errors of detail, it cannot be denied that he has succeeded in establishing the chronology of the poet's life and writings on a safe basis.

Of several references made by Nizāmī in various passages to his age the most precise is found in the prologue of Majnūn u Lailā, fol. 90  $\alpha$ , where he says that he counted then seven times seven years:

As the whole poem was written in the course of A.H. 584, it follows that the poet was born in A.H. 535.

We have, on the other hand, a contemporary record of Nizāmi's death in a short rhymed epilogue added to the second part of the Iskandar Nāmah by an unknown person, who evidently stood in a close relation to the poet, and witnessed his last moments. It is there stated that he did not long survive the completion of that poem, and that, at the time of his death, he had reached the age of sixty-three years and six months. See fol. 313 b, Add. 25,900, fol. 317 b, and Sprenger's edition, p. 182:

a Nigāmī gives his proper name Ilyās in the prologue of Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 90 b.

نه بس روزکاری برایس بر کذشت که تاریخ عمرش ورق در نوشت فزون بود شش مه زشصت و سه سال که بر عزم ره بر دهل زد دوال

If Nizāmī was born A.H. 535, and lived 63½ years, he must have died A.H. 598 or 599.

Besides the works above referred to Nizāmī is noticed in the Guzīdah, fol. 243, Bahāristān, fol. 66, Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 708, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 112, the Riyāz ush-Shuʿarā, fol. 449, and Ḥaft Āsmān, pp. 25—44. See also Ḥammer, Redekünste, p. 105, Ouseley's Notices, p. 43, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 519.

The Khamsah of Nizāmī, which is often called Panj Ganj, "The Five Treasures," has been lithographed in Bombay, 1834 and 1838, and in Teheran, A.H. 1261. Copies are described in Fleischer's Dresden Catalogue, p. 1, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 503, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 32, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 34, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 10.

It contains the following poems :-

I. Fol. 1 b.

"The Storehouse of Mysteries," a Sufi poem, in which moral and religious maxims are illustrated by anecdotes.

The poem is divided into twenty sections (Makālat), the subjects of which have been stated by Hammer, l.c., p. 106. It was, as stated by Nizāmi in the Iskandar Nāmah, the author's first composition. The prologue contains, fol. 5, a dedication to Fakhr ud-Dîn Bahrām Shāh, son of Dā'ūd, who is described as king of Armenia and Rūm.

This Bahram Shah, a grandson of a Saljūķi

Amīr, Mangūchak Ghāzī, was the hereditary ruler of the principality of Arzanjān, and a vassal of Ķilīj Arslān (A.H. 558—578), who had given him a daughter in marriage. He died after a long reign A.H. 622. See the Kāmil, vol. xii. pp. 279, 312, Jahānārā, fol. 111, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 399.

The poet refers in the same passage, fol. 6 b, to two books bearing the name of Bahrām Shāh, namely, his own, and another (the Ḥadiķah of Sanā'i; see p. 549 a), dedicated to a sovereign of the same name, who reigned in Ghaznīn. The allusion has not been understood by Dr. Bacher, who translates, l. c., p. 20: "Two letters came to me from two renowned places," etc.

One of the following copies, Or. 1216, fol. 31, contains in the conclusion two couplets stating that the poem was completed on the 24th of Rabi' I., A.H. 559:

The same lines are given in a full notice on the Makhzan ul-Asrār by Aghā Aḥmad 'Alī, in the Haft Āsmān, pp. 53—63, and the date has been also recorded by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 365. Another copy, Add.19,500, has in the last line A.H. 582: پانصد و هشتاه دو انزون ازان. The correct reading is probably پانصد و هفتاه دو Rhusrau u Shīrīn, dated A.H. 576. It must be noticed, however, that these verses, which are wanting in the best copies, are of very doubtful authenticity. The earlier date is, besides, highly improbable; for it ean hardly be supposed that Bahrām Shāh, who died A.H. 622, had begun to reign sixty-three years before.

A safer indication of the time of composition is to be found in Nizāmi's allusion to his age in the prologue, fol. 8 a: درس جهل سالكي اكذون . If the poet was then about forty years old, the poem cannot have been written much before A.H. 575.

The Makhzan ul-Asrār has been edited by Nathaniel Bland, London, 1844, and lithographed in Cawnpore, 1869. An English translation by J. Haddon Hindley is preserved in manuscript, Add. 6961.

II. Fol. 29 b.

خسرو و شيرين

Khusrau and Shīrīn.

خداوندا در توفیق بکشای Beg. نظامی را ره تحقیق بنمای

In the present copy the prologue occupies only three pages, and has no dedication. But in Add. 25,900, 16,780, in the Teheran edition, and other copies, it contains extensive eulogies on the reigning Sultan Tughrul, Add. 25,900, fol. 33 b, on Shams ud-Din Abu Ja'far Muhammad, in whom, the poet says, fol. 34 b, the departed soul of his mighty father, Atabak Ilduguz, اتابك الدكـز, had come to life again, and thirdly, fol. 35 a, on Kizil Shah, قزل شه evidently meant for Kizil کاخرش بالای ماهست Arslan, the brother, and afterwards successor, of Atabak Muhammad, whose full name could not be made to fit into the metre. The work is dedicated to the second of the abovementioned personages, to whom the poet offers apologies for not attending his court in person.

The poem must, therefore, have been written between the accession of Sultan Tughrul B. Arslān, in A.H. 573, and the death of the Atābak Muḥammad, surnamed Jahān Pahlavān, who ruled in the Sultan's name, and died A.H. 582. The following lines in the conclusion of the poem, fol. 81 a, contain its precise date, A.H. 576:

The same reading is found in Add. 25,900, fol. 97 b, Add. 27,260, fol. 109 b, and other old copies, as well as in the Teheran edition.

In an epilogue, which must have been subsequently added, foll. 81—83, Nizāmī, after referring to the death of Atābak Muḥammad, relates how he was summoned to the presence of his successor, Ķizil Arslān (A.H. 582—587), and describes the gracious reception he met there, and the favours conferred upon him by the new sovereign. He concludes with a eulogy on the heir-apparent, Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Abu Bakr B. Muḥammad.

The Khusrau u Shīrīn has been lithographed in Lahore, A.H. 1288. See for the contents Hammer's "Schirin, ein persisches romantisches Gedicht nach morgenländischen Quellen," Leipzig, 1809.

III. Fol. 83 b.

ليلي و مجنون

Lailā and Majnūn.

ای دام تو بهترین سراغاز Beg. بی نام تو نامه کی کنم باز

The author had received, as he states in the prologue, a letter from the Shirvānshāh, requesting him to take for his next theme, after the completion of his Khusrau and Shīrīn, the loves of Lailā and Majnūn. He hastened to comply with the king's desire, and wrote, as he states in the introduction, fol. 88 a, the present poem, consisting of upwards of four thousand couplets, in the space of four months. He adds that it was completed at the end of Rajab, A.H. 584:

کاراسته شد به بهترین حال در سلخ رجب بثنی و فا دال تاریخ عیان که داشت با خود هشتاد و جهار بعد بانصد

Further on is found a panegyric on the above king and his presumptive heir Minūchihr. The king's name is given in full as follows: Jalāl i Daulat u Dīn Abul-Muzaffar Akhtashān اختشان (in Add. 16,780, fol. 109, اختسان), son of Minūchihr. This king of Shirvān, whose real name appears to have been Akhsatān, has been already mentioned, p. 559 a, as the special patron of Khāķānī.

The Lailā u Majnūn has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1286, and an English translation has been published by James Atkinson under the title "Laili and Majnun, a poem from the original of Nazami," London, 1836.

IV. Fol. 136 b.

"The seven images," a poem comprising seven tales told by the seven favourites of the king Bahrām Gūr.

It is stated in the concluding lines, fol. 192 b, Add. 16,780, fol. 211 a, Add. 25,900, fol. 205 a, Or. 1363, fol. 224 a, that the poem was completed on the 14th of Ramazān, A.H. 593.

از بس بانصد و نود سه قران کفتم ایس نامدرا جو ناموران روز بر جارده ز ماه صیام جار ساعت زروز رفته تمام

It was composed, as stated in the prologue, fol. 139 a, at the desire of a sovereign called 'Alā ud-Dīn Karb [?] Arslān, the pride of the lineage of Aķsunķur:

عمدة المسلكت علام الديس حافظ و ناصر زمان وزميس شاء كرب ارسلان كشوركير به زالب ارسلان بتاج وسرير نسل اقسنقرى مويد ازو جد و ابا كسال امجد ازو

The name is written as above in some of the earliest copies, as Add. 25,900, fol. 154 a, and Add. 27,260, fol. 174 b, كربه ارسلان, in Add. 23,547, fol. 163 b, and به ارسلان in Or. 1363, fol. 165 b. In other copies the more familiar names الب ارسلان (as in the present MS.), and قرل ارسلان, have been substituted for it. Towards the end of the chapter devoted to his praise his two sons are also mentioned. The first is called Nusrat ud-Din Muhammad, the second Ahmad.

The main branch of the line of Aksunkur, to which he belonged, was represented at that period by the Atābak of Mausil, Nūr ud-Dīn Arslān, who succeeded to his father, 'Izz ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, A.H. 589, and died A.H. 607. See the Kāmil, vol. xii. p. 191, and Ibn Khallikān's translation, vol. i. p. 174.

It has been stated by Sir G. Ouseley, Flügel, and others, that the Haft Paikar was dedicated to Kizil Arslān. But a comparison of dates suffices to disprove it; for the poem was written A.H. 593, while the Atābak died A.H. 587. Dr. Bacher's assertion that it was written for the Atābak Nuṣrat ud-Dīn is not confirmed by any of our copies.

The Haft Paikar has been lithographed in Bombay, 1849, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1290. One of the seven tales has been published with a German translation by F. von Erdmann, "Behramgur und die Russische Fuerstentochter," Kasan, 1844.

V. Fol. 193 b.

اسكندر نامه

The Book of Alexander.

خدایا جهان باد شاهی تراست خدایا جهان باد شاهی تراست زما خدمت اید خدائی تراست

The poem consists of two distinct parts. The first treats of the career of Alexander as a conqueror. The second describes him in the character of sage and prophet; it relates also his journeys to the end of the world and his adventures at sea. That those two parts form only one and the same poem is shown by a line at the end of the first, in which Nizāmī says that he has now completed ne half of the book, جو از نیمه نامه برداختم

The Iskandar Nāmah is frequently designated by the titles of Sharaf Nāmah and Ikbāl Nāmah i Iskandarī. The first is taken from شرف نامهٔ خسروای, a name applied by Nizāmī in the prologue to a poem which he once contemplated writing as a complement to the Shāhnāmah, and from another passage in the beginning of the second part (fol. 275 a, Sprenger's edition, p. 8) شرفامه را المنامه والمنامة والمنا and from another passage in the epilogue of the second part, fol. 314 b, in which he designates it by the name of Ikbāl.

Much confusion has been created by the arbitrary application of those titles by transcribers to one or the other of the two parts of the poem. The second part has also been called Khirad Nāmah, from the word with which it begins.

The prologue of the first part contains a glowing eulogy on a king designated by his title, Nuṣrat ud-Dīn,

جهان بهلوان نصرت الدین که هست بر اعداء خود جون فلك جيرة دست who had desired the poem to be dedicated to him:

جو فرمان جنین امد از شهربار که بر نام ما نقش بند این نکار

The prince's proper name (ابو بكر) is only alluded to as one consisting of six letters:

كوالا سخن نام شش حرف تست

Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Abu Bakr, son of Jahān Pahlavān Muḥammad, succeeded to his uncle the Atābak Ķizil Arslān, in Tabrīz, A.H. 587, and died A.H. 607.

The date of composition, A.H. 597, is stated in the following verses quoted in the Haft Asman, p. 29, but which the author thinks to be of doubtful authenticity:

بکفتم من این نامه را در جهان که تا دور اخر بود درجهان بتاریخ پانصد نود هفت سال چهارم محرم بوقت روال

The same date is found in some late copies, as Add. 26,147, fol. 226, Add. 26,146, fol. 143, and Add. 25,799, fol. 176.

There can be no doubt, however, that the Iskandar Nāmah, or at all events the present recension, was written subsequently to the Haft Paikar, viz. after A.H. 593; for that poem is mentioned in the prologue, fol. 203  $\alpha$ , as the last of the previous compositions of Nizāmī:

There are, however, some copies, as for instance Add. 26,144, fol. 169 b, in which the enumeration of the former poems concludes with Lailā u Majnūn.

The second part of the Iskandar Nāmah begins on fol. 273 b, as follows:

خرد هر کجا کنجی ارذ بدید زنام خدا سازد انرا کلید

It is called in the heading شرف نامه. The prologue contains in the present copy, fol. 276 b, a panegyric addressed to the ruler of Mausil, Malik Kāhir 'Izz ud-Dīn Abul-Fath Mas'ūd B. Nūr ud-Dīn (Arslān):

طرفدار موصل بمردانکی قدر خوان شاهان بفرزانکی سر سرفرازان و کردنکشان ملك عنر الدیس قاهرشه نشان بطغرای دولت جو طغرل تکین ابو الفتح مسعود بن نور الدین

The same verses are found in Add. 16,780, fol. 214 b, and in Add. 6613, fol. 267 b.

Nür ud-Din Arslän Shäh died on the 28th of Rajab, A.H. 607. His son al-Malik al-Kähir 'Izz ud-Din Mas'üd, who was then seventeen years of age, was immediately seated on the throne. He died A.H. 615. See Ibn Khallikän's translation, vol. i. p. 174, vol. iii. p. 361, and the Kämil, vol. xii. pp. 191, 217.

If the above lines were really written by Nizāmī, it follows that he was still alive at the close of A.H. 607. The death of his former patron, the Atābak Naṣr ud-Dīn Abu Bakr, which took place in that very year (Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz. 4, p. 127), would naturally account for his dedicating the poem to the youthful sovereign who had just been seated on the throne of Mauṣil; and the recurrence of the same name, 'Izz ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, in the epilogue which will be presently mentioned, would not require any other explanation.

On the other hand, the great weight of evidence in favour of an earlier date for Nizāmi's death must throw some doubt on the authenticity of that dedication. It is wanting in most of the early copies, as well as in the printed texts, and a suspicious circumstance is that it is found on examination to be almost entirely transcribed, with the exception of the proper names, from the eulogy on Nuṣrat ud-Dīn prefixed to the first part of the Iskandar Nāmah.

In other copies the second part is dedicated, like the first, to Nuṣrat ud-Dīn. The prologue contains also, fol. 273 b, a mournful reference to the death of Shāh Arslān, i.e. Kizil Arslān, the uncle and predecessor of Nuṣrat ud-Dīn, who died A.H. 587.

جو شاه ارسلان رفت و در خاك خفت سخن جون تران در جنين حال كفت and the description of a recent earthquake (Sprenger's edition, p. 16). We learn from the Kāmil, vol. xii. p. 72, that a destructive earthquake took place in Irac and the neighbouring countries in the month of Rabī I., A.H. 590.

At the end of the second part, fol. 314 a, is found an epilogue addressed to a king called 'Izz ud-Din, whose proper name Mas'ūd is given further on, fol. 315 a, جو نام شهش فال مسعود باذ .

ملك عز الدين انكه جرخ بلند باو داذ اورنك خودرا كمند

After describing the splendours of 'Izz ud-Din's court, the poet says that he sends to the king "two pearls brought up from his ocean," namely his son and his poem, here designated by the names of Mukbil and Ikhāl, and claims for both a favourable reception.

'Izz ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, son of Ķuṭb ud-Dīn Maudūd, succeeded to his brother Saif ud-Dīn Ghāzī on the throne of Mauṣil A.H. 576, and died in Sha'bān, A.H. 589. See Ibn Khallikān's translation, vol. iii. p. 356, and Kāmil, vol. xii. p. 66.

Dr. Bacher looks on the above epilogue as a fragment of an earlier recension of the Iskandar Nāmah, and finds its date in an incidental reference to the age of Nizāmi's son, who was then seventeen years old هفده ساله بدین سان که هست. As the same son is described in Lailā u Majnūn, A.H. 584, as a youth of fourteen, fol. 90 b, العين العين العين العين , the present epilogue must have been written three years later, viz., in A.H. 587, the very year in which Kizil Arslān was found murdered in his bed. It was apparently the unsettled state of Azarbāijān after the Atābak's death which induced Nizāmī to look for a new patron in the neighbouring state of Mauṣil.

Passages of later dates, however, have been mixed up with that earlier epilogue. Thus in the following verse, fol. 315 a, and Add. 25,900, fol. 319 a, Nizāmī says that he had reached the age of sixty years: بشست آمد

In other copies, as Add. 26,144, fol. 280 a, Add. 17,329, fol. 367 b, and in the Calcutta edition, p. 182, the epilogue is addressed, as well as the prologue, to Nuṣrat ud-Dīn. In the Calcutta edition, it is stated in one of the last lines, p. 190, that the poem had been completed on the tenth day of Ayār, A.H. 599. The same date is found in Add. 16,782, fol. 117: نرد نه کذشته زبانصد شیار.

The first part of the Iskandar Nāmah has been edited with a commentary in Calcutta, 1812, and reprinted in 1825. The text alone has been printed in Calcutta, A.H. 1269, and lithographed editions with marginal notes have been published in Lucknow, A.H. 1282, and in Bombay, A.H. 1277 and 1292. Extracts will be found in Franz von Erdmann's work, "De Expeditione Russorum Berdaam versus," Casan, 1826, and in Charmoy's "Expédition d'Alexandre contre les Russes," St. Petersburg, 1829. See also Spiegel, "die Alexandersage bei den Orientalen," Leipzig, 1851, pp. 33—50.

The second part has been edited under the title of Sikandarnāmah i Bahri, by Dr. Sprenger, Calcutta, 1852, and 1869. A short statement of the contents will be found in Erdmann's work, vol. i. p. 24, and a fuller abstract in Bacher's Memoir, pp. 101—171. See also Dr. Ethé, Alexander's Zug zum Lebensquell, Sitzungsberichte der Bayerischen Akademie, 1871, pp. 343—405.

Add. 25,900.

Foll. 316; 7½ in. by 4¾; 25 lines, 2⁵ in. long; written in a minute and elegant Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with illuminated borders and headings, dated A.H. 846 (A.D. 1442); bound in painted covers.

The five poems of Nizāmī, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 5 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 31 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 101 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 151 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, called Sharaf-Nāmah i Iskandarī, fol. 206 b; Part 2, fol. 279 b.

The MS. contains twenty whole-page miniatures in Persian style, of the highest degree of finish, on foll. 1, 2, 16, 39, 42, 68, 75, 118, 112, 119, 138, 159, 171, 187, 230, 233, 244, 249, 268, 279. Four pages at the beginning are covered with rich ornamentation.

On the fly-leaf is found the last owner's name, "James R. Ballantyne, Nov. 1837."

Add. 16,780.

Foll. 326; 10¼ in. by 7; 23 lines, 4 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with a rich border enclosing the first two pages, five smaller 'Unvāns and ornamental headings; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 936 (A.D. 1529). [WM. YULE.]

The same poems, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 1 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 27 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 104 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 155 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, fol. 211 b; Part 2, fol. 254 b.

The second part of the Iskandar Nāmah contains, fol. 214 b, the dedication to Malik Kähir 'Izz ud-Din Mas'üd, which has been noticed p. 569 a.

ابو طاهر الكاتب : Copvist

Sixteen miniatures in Persian style occupy about half a page each.

It appears from a Persian note, dated A.H. 1183, that this MS. came from a library in Kashmir, and was given to the writer in Dehli. It bears the seal of the Oude minister, Mahārājah Tiket Rāi.

Or. 1216.

Foll. 391; 9 in. by 5\(\frac{3}{4}\); 18 lines, 3\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in four gold-ruled columns, in small Nestalik, with five 'Unv\(\text{un}\) and ornamented headings; dated Ramaz\(\text{an}\), A.H. 961 (A.D. 1554).

[ALEX. JABA.]

The same poems, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār (wanting the first three pages), fol. 1 a. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 32 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 122 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 186 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, headed شرف نامه اسكندرى, fol. 245 b; Part 2, entitled القبال نامه اسكندرى, fol. 339 b.

The last lines of the Makhzan, fol. 31 a, written in a different handwriting, apparently in the 15th century, include the date of composition, A.H. 559, mentioned p. 565 b. The Haft Paikar is dated A.H. 598 in the following lines, fol. 245 a:

از بس تا [ثا] وصاد وحا هجرت كفتم اين نامه را جو العجزت

The volume contains fifteen miniatures in Persian style, occupying about two-thirds of a page, on foll. 11, 17, 49, 57, 80, 135, 149, 160, 201, 220, 231, 279, 301, 323, and 354.

نانى الكاتب : Copyist

Add 26,144.

Foll. 282; 9½ in. by 7; 21 lines, 4½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with five 'Unvans; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 968 (A.D. 1561).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The four following poems of Nizāmī: Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 4 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 32 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 104 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, endorsed Sharaf-Nāmah, fol. 160 b; Part 2, endorsed Khirad Nāmah, fol. 238 a.

In the record of the author's death, fol-280 a, his age is stated to have been sixtytwo years and six months,

فزون بود شش مه زشست و دوسال مقصود کاتب : Copyist

Add. 17,329.

Foll. 369;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 7; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with six Unvāns, and gold-ruled margins; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 994 (A.D. 1585).

The five poems of Nizāmī, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 1 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 32 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 107 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 169 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, fol. 234 b; Part 2, entitled Khirad Nāmah, fol. 324 b.

The Iskandar Nāmah is dated at the end, fol. 369 a, A.H. 590:

جهان بر دهم روز بود از ایار نود در کذشته ز پانصد شهار

رمضان بن سلطان محمد مروى : Copyist

Add. 27,260.

Foll. 362; 12 in. by 7; 21 lines, 4 in. long, in a page; written in a small and neat Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with six rich 'Unvāns, and ornamental headings, apparently in the 16th century. Bound in gilt and stamped leather.

[Sir JOHN MALCOLM.]

The same poems, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 2 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 32 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 113 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 171 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, with the heading Sharaf-Namah i Iskandarī, fol. 235 b; Part 2, fol. 292 b. Owing apparently to a transposition in the MS. from which this copy was taken, the latter half of the first part of Iskandar Nāmah is followed, without any break, by the latter half of Part 2, foll. 270 b—292 a, and, vice versa, the former half of Part 2 by the latter half of Part 1, foll. 315—362.

There are eighteen miniatures, in good Persian style, occupying about two-thirds of a page each.

Or. 1363.

Foll. 347; 113 in. by 63; 22 lines, 4 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with six 'Unvāns and gold-headings, apparently in the 16th century.

[Sir CHARLES ALEX. MURRAY.]

The same poems, as follows: Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 3 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 30 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 106 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 162 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, fol. 224 b; Part 2, fol. 310 b.

The volume contains twenty-nine wholepage miniatures in Persian style.

Add. 23,547.

Foll. 307;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with five Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century. [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same poems, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 2 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 31 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 107 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 160 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1 only, fol. 224 b.

Add. 26,145.

Foll. 375;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines, 4 in. long, in a page; written in cursive Nestalik, in three columns; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 1042 (A.D. 1632). [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same poems, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 2 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 39 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 121 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 194 b. Iskandar-Nāmah, Part 1, slightly imperfect at the end, fol. 273 b.

Add. 6613.

Foll. 300; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 25 lines, 3\frac{5}{8} in. long; written in fine Nestalik, with five double-page 'Unv\tau ns, gold-ruled margins, and gold-headings; dated Rab\tau' II., A.H. 1076 (A.D. 1665).

[J. F. Hull.]

The same poems: Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 1 b. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 28 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 90 b. Haft Paikar, fol. 138 b. Iskandar Nāmah, Part 1, fol. 196 b; Part 2, fol. 264 b.

The MS. contains forty-one miniatures, in fair Persian style, each of which occupies about two-thirds of a page.

It was written for Tājā Mīrzā Abul-Ḥasanā الله المين by a copyist who calls himself ابن ابراهيم محمد موخر المعلم الكاتب الشيرازي.

Add. 25,800.

Foll. 112; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 21 lines, 4\frac{3}{8} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two Unvans and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 15th century. [WM. CURETON.]

This volume, which is endorsed خيسه شيخ, contains only the first two poems of the Khamsah, viz. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 2 b, and Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 31 b.

At the end is impressed the seal of a court librarian, بنده وركاه زرتوم كتابدار, with the date A.H. 934. The first page is covered with 'Arz-Dīdahs of the time of Aurangzīb.

Add. 25,801.

Foll. 36;  $12\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 8; 18 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in four columns, in fine Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gilt headings, and goldruled margins; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 865 (A.D. 1461). The broad margins are covered with designs of flowers and animals in gold and colours. [WM. CURETON.]

The Makhzan ul-Asrār by Nizāmī (see p. 565 a).

سلطان على المشهدى : Copyist

This celebrated calligrapher died in Herat A.H. 919. See Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 344.

There are two miniatures in fair Persian style at the end, and two more in unfinished outline at the beginning.

Add. 16,781.

Foll.76; 73 in. by 43; 13 lines, 23 in. long; written in plain Indian Nestalik; dated Rabī' I., A.H. 1028 (A.D. 1619). [WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

In the concluding verses A.H. 559 is given as the date of composition (see p. 565 b).

Add. 19,500.

Foll. 168; 8 in. by 5; 7 lines, 23 in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Muḥarram, the 29th year of Aurangzib, A.H. 1097 (A.D. 1686).

The Makhzan ul-Asrar, with copious marginal notes.

In the concluding lines the poem is said to have been completed on the 24th of Rabi'I., A.H. 582 (see p. 565 b).

بود حقیقت بشهار درست بیست و چهارم زربیع نخست از سنه هجرت تا ایس زمان پانصد وهشداد دو افزون ازان

Add. 23,548.

Foll. 95; 84 in. by 5½; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, about the close of the 18th century.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same poem.

Add. 26,149.

Foll. 227; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

شرح مخزت الاسرار

A commentary upon the Makhzan ul-Asrār.

Author: Muḥammad B. Kivām B. Rustam etc., ul-Balkhī, commonly called Karkhī, محمد بن قوام بن رستم بن احمد بن محمود بدر حرائة [خزانه] البلخي المعووف بكرخي حمد و سپاس مر فتاحی را که فاتحه کتاب او . Beg. The author, who states that he had previously written glosses to the Sikandar-Namah, professes to explain in the present work 1310 difficult dystichs, out of 3263 of which the entire poem consists. He appears to have lived in India, and quotes a poetical extract on Nizāmi's writings from the Badi' ul-Hikāyāt by Mughīş ud-Din Hānsavī, whom he calls the most eminent man of the age. According to the Oude Catalogue, p. 521, the time of composition is expressed in a زهی شرح versified ehronogram by the words A.H. 1091. The present MS. must contain an earlier recension; for it bears on the first page a note of purchase dated A.H. 1089.

The text breaks off fol. 216 b, shortly before the end of the thirteenth Makālat.

The next following leaves, foll. 217—229, contain miscellaneous extracts.

Add. 6966.

Foll. 82; 7\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; written by John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1806.

"Instructive Apologues from Nizāmī."

This volume contains twenty short narratives, all from the Makhzan ul-Asrār, with an English version written under the text. Another MS. by the same hand, Add. 6963, contains the English of the first eleven stories, with the same title, to which is added "by a young student."

Or. 1578.

Foll. 71;  $13\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines, 4 in. long; written in minute and elegant Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with gold headings, and gilt designs on the margins; dated A.H. 952 (A.D. 1545).

[Sir Henry C. Rawlinson.] Haft Paikar by Nizāmī (see p. 567 a).

This fine copy is the work of a known calligrapher, who signs Shāh Maḥmūd Nishā-

.شاه محمود نشابوری piiri,

Shāh Maḥmūd of Nīshāpūr was a pupil of his maternal uncle Mullā 'Abdī, who was himself a pupil of the famous penman Sulṭān-'Alī Mashhadī, and died about A.H. 955. Shāh Maḥmūd, who took in verse the poetical surname of Mukhlis, was still alive in A.H. 957. See Tuḥfah i Sāmī, fol. 76. Shāh Maḥmūd is also mentioned in the Ā'īn i Akbarī, Blochmann's translation, p. 102.

The MS. having lost eleven leaves, viz. foll. 1, 28, 39, 40, 43, 47, 49, 51—54, which apparently contained miniatures, they have been replaced by a clever imitation of the original writing. We learn from a note on the first page, and from the subscription, that this was done A.H. 1264 by Alimad Khān B. Abd ul-Ḥusain Khān, grandson of Muḥammad Ḥusain Khān Ṣadr i A'zam Iṣfahānī, for the owner of the MS., the deputy-governor Farhād Mīrzā, son of the heir apparent.

Harleian 503.

Foll. 199;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in plain Nestalik about the close of the 16th century.

The first part of the Iskandar-Nāmah (see p. 568 a).

Add. 26,147.

Foll. 226; 9\frac{1}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 15 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; apparently in the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same part, wanting about three leaves at the beginning.

Foll. 224—226 have been supplied by another hand. They contain the date of composition, بتاریخ پانصد نود هفت سال (see p. 568 b), and, at the end, the date of transcription, 7 Rabi I., A.H. 1090 (A.D. 1679).

Add. 26,146.

Foll. 143;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 24 oblique lines in the margins; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Kūnjarī, Jumādā I., A.H. 1117 (A.D. 1705).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The first part of the Iskandar Nāmah, with the same date of composition, A.H. 597, as in the preceding copy.

Add. 6614.

Foll. 202; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 17th century. [J. F. Hull.]

The same part.

Some leaves at beginning and end have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 16,783.

Foll. 162; 9 in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 13 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

The same part, wanting some leaves at the end.

Add. 26,148.

Foll. 226; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in a cursive Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

The same part, wanting about five leaves at the beginning.

Add. 25,799.

Foll. 176;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in plain Nestalik; dated Sūrat, Zulhijjah, A.H. 1227 (A.D. 1816).

[WM. CURETON.]

The same part.

This copy was written for Lieut. Rigby by Munshi Ghulam Muhammad.

Add. 16,782.

Foll. 117; 8½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in plain Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

The second part of the Iskandar Namah (see p. 569 a).

Add. 7731.

Foll. 57; 74 in. by 5; 10 lines, 23 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, on gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unvān, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century; bound in gilt and stamped leather covers. [Cl. J. Rich.]

خلاصة الخمسة

Select verses from the Khamsah of Nizāmī, with a short preface in prose.

The verses are arranged under thirty-seven heads according to the religious or moral sentiments they express, and under each head in the order of the poems from which they are taken.

Copyist : محدد توام

See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1476.

Add. 7730.

Foll. 48; 81 in. by 51; 12 lines, 31 in.

long, in a page; written in plain Nestalik; dated Baghdād, Şafar, А.Н. 1231 (А.D. 1816). [Сl. J. Rich.]

The same work, without preface.

This copy was written for Mr. Rich by his Munshi Muḥammad 'Alī ul-Ḥasanī ul-Lārījānī.

Grenville xxxviii.

Foll. 39;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a fine Nestalik, with illuminated borders on every leaf, apparently in the 17th century.

Another recension of the same work.

The table contained in the preface enumerates thirty-five chapters, which, however, are not distinguished in the body of the work.

Copvist: عماد الحسنى

Appended is a letter of Lord Clare, dated April 18th, 1831, from which it appears that the MS. had been sent to him by the Imaum Muscat.

Add. 27,270.

Foll. 158;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 17 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, in a page; written in Indian Nestalik, on coarse Indian paper, about A.D. 1815.

[JOHN MACDONALD KINNEIR.]

سرود خسروي

The story of Khusrau and Shīrīn, after the poem of Nizāmī (see p. 566 a), told in easy Persian prose, interspersed with poetical extracts, by Ghulām Ḥusain Khān Munshī, غلام

حسین خان منشی

حمد صانعی که چراغ عشق و محبت در .Beg دلهای عاشقان بر افروخته

The author states in a short preface that he had written the present work at the request of some English officers in the reign of Muḥammad 'Azīz ud-Dīn Pādishāh Ghāzī, A.H. 1230, A.D. 1815.

On the first page is written: "From Gholam Hussein [the author] to John Macdonald Kinneir."

Add. 16,787.

Foll. 413; 9 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns; dated Shabān, A.H. 1191 (A.D. 1777). [WM. YULE.]

سته فريد الدين عطار

Six Maşnavî poems by Farīd ud-Dīn 'Aṭṭār (see p. 344 a), as follows:—

I. Fol. 3 b, منطق الطير, "The language of birds," an allegorical poem.

The contents have been described by Hammer, Redekünste, pp. 141—154, and Jahrbücher, vol. 65, Ang. Bl. p. 5. The text has been edited by Garcin de Tassy, Paris, 1857, and lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1288.

II. Fol. 64 b, آلهيي نامة, Ilāhī Nāmah, a Sūfī poem.

در کنج سعادت باز کردم (In other copies)

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 357, and Stewart's Catalogue, p. 61.

III. Fol. 144 b, اسرار ذامه, "The book of mysteries."

بنام آنکه جافرا نور دین داد خردرا در خذادانی یقین داد

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 358, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 510, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 332.

IV. Fol. 184 b, مصيبت نامه, "The book of affliction."

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 349, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 85, and the Upsala Catalogue, p. 100, elxii., where the same work is noticed under the title of Nuzhat Nāmah.

V. Fol. 277 b, خسرو وکل , "Khusrau and Gul," an abridgment of 'Attar's previous poem, خسرو نامع

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 352.

VI. Fol. 370 b, ختار نامه, "Mukhtār Nā-mah" (see p. 577 b).

Three of the above poems, viz. Ilāhī Nāmah, Mukhtār Nāmali, and Manṭik uṭ-Ṭair, are to be found in a volume entitled Kulliyāt i Farīd ud-Dīn 'Aṭṭār, lithographed in Lucknow, 1872. They occupy respectively pp. 771—943, 946—1047, and 1050—1165.

The MS. bears the seal of Mahārājah Tiket Rāi, the Oude minister, with the date 1203.

Or. 353.

Foll. 240; 13 in. by 10; 25 lines, 7<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long, with two transversal lines in the margin; written in fair Naskhi; dated Safar, A.H. 877 (A.D. 1472).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Three poems by 'Attar, viz.:-

I. Fol. 2.

جوهر الذات

A Maşnavi poem, treating of mystic love, and correctly described by Hammer, Redckünste, p. 154, and by Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 351, as a rhapsody full of the most tedious repetitions.

The Jauhar uz-Zāt occupies pp. 2—582 in the Lucknow edition of the Kulliyāt. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 60, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 518, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 351.

The present copy wants five pages at the beginning, corresponding to pp. 2—8 of the printed text, and two pages at the end, corresponding to pp. 686—770. The deficiency at the beginning has been supplied, in appearance only, by foll. 2 and 3, written by a modern hand in imitation of the original character, and containing the beginning of the Ilāhī Nāmah (p. 576 a, ii.).

This poem, the title of which occurs in the following line, fol. 191 a, کنون عطار کفتی جوهر, is also designated more than once by the name of Javāhir Nāmah, as in this line, Lucknow edition, p. 581:

II. Foll. 200—234 a. The latter half of the Hailāj Nāmah, هيلاج نامه , a Maşnavi poem.

The Hailaj Namah occupies pp. 583-770 of the Lucknow edition, where it begins thus:

The present fragment corresponds to pp. 686—770. The poem treats of the absorption of the soul into the Divine essence, and is a complement to the Jauhar uz-Zāt, in the conclusion of which it is announced. Hailāj, which is, according to the Būrhān Ķāṭi', a Greek word meaning "water of life," is here an arbitrary alteration of the name of the famous mystic, Manṣūr Ḥallāj, whom 'Aṭṭār introduces in the prologue as the revealer of divine mysteries, and to whose inspiration the poem is by him ascribed. Thus we read, pp. 599 and 600:

مرا شد منکشف اسرار حلاج نمودم نام او درعشق هیلاج جوابم داد من منصور حلاج مرا نامست در آفاق هیلاج

See "Hellaj Nameh," Stewart's Catalogue, p. 60.

III. Foll. 4—234, in the margins, and foll. 234 b—240, in the body of the page.

مختار نامه

A collection of Rubā'is (see p. 576 b), with a prose-preface, foll. 2—15.

In the preface, which wants a few lines at the beginning, the author enumerates his previous works, apparently in the order of composition, viz. Khusrau Nāmah, Asrār Nāmah, Manṭik uṭ-Ṭair, Muṣībat Nāmah, and a Dīvān. They are designated as follows: اسرار نامه منتشر شد و بزبان مرغان مقامات طيور اسرار نامه منتشر شد و بزبان مرغان مقامات طيور نامه از حد و غايت در كذشت و ديوان ديوان ساختن نامه از حد و غايت در كذشت و ديوان ديوان ساختن بتمام داشته شد كه شرح القلب هر دو منظوم بردند از بسر سوداى نا منظوم ماند كه جرى و على بدان هر دو راه دافت

He adds that the Divan had not yet been properly arranged, and that the six thousand Rubā'is which it comprised had been reduced by him to five thousand, out of which he made, at the request of some friends, the present selection. The preface concludes with a table of the fifty sections (Bāb) into which the work is divided. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 353.

Add. 7735.

Foll. 208; 9½ in. by 6½; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik on gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

Mantik ut-Tair (see p. 576 a, i.).

The volume contains nine whole-page miniatures in Persian style.

According to a note written on the first page, and dated A.H. 1117, this MS. had been the property of Allah Verdī Khān, the late Beglerbegi of Shirvān.

Or. 1227.

Foll. 165; 6 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Alexandre Jaba.]

The same poem.

Seven leaves at the beginning and five at the end have been supplied by later hands.

Some additional verses at the end give the date of composition, A.H. 573, as follows:

روز سه شنبه بدوقت استوا بیستم روزی بد از ماه خدا پانصد و هفتاد و سه بکذشته سال هم ز تاریخ رسول ذو الجلال

Add. 16,788.

Foll. 149; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1051 (A.D. 1641). [WM. YULE.]

The same work.

The date of composition at the end is A.H. 570:

Harleian 3285.

Foll. 178; 9 in. by 6; 15 lines, 23 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

The same poem.

Add. 7089.

Foll. 148;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 12 lines, 2 in.

long, in a page, with 26 half-lines round the margins, in continuation of each page; written in Indian Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

Ilāhī Nāmah (see p. 576 a, ii.).

The usual beginning is preceded by four couplets, the first of which is:

بنام آنكه ملكش بى زوالست بوصفش عقل صاحب نطق لالست

At the end are found twenty additional distichs beginning thus:

شبی یحیی معاذ ان مرد مردان

Or. 332.

Foll. 185; 9¾ in. by 6¼; 25 lines, 4¼ in. long; written in small Nestalik, in four columns, with three 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Balkh, A.H. 1000—1004 (A.D. 1592—1596).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Three Masnavi poems by 'Attar, as follows:—

I. Fol. 2 b. Ilāhī-Nāmah (see p. 576 a, ii.).

II. Fol. 67 b. Musibat-Nāmah (see p. 576 b, iv.).

III. Fol. 150 b. Asrār-Nāmah (see p. 576 a, iii.)

Add. 7736.

Foll. 172;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, in two columns; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 968 (A.D. 1532).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

Two Maşnavi poems by 'Aṭṭār, as follows:-

I. Fol. 2 b.

اشتر نامه

Ushtur-Nāmah, or the Book of the Camel.

The poem has in the present copy the heading کتاب خردنامده شيخ عطار; but its real title occurs in the following line, fol. 21 a:

It treats of mystic love, and its name is derived from a comparison of the yearning soul with the pilgrim's camel represented as longing for the Ka'bah. In the introduction 'Aṭṭār mentions some of his previous works, namely Manṭiķ uṭ-Ṭair, Muṣībat Nāmah, Khusrau u Gul, and Ilāhī-Nāmah, adding that, although these had been circulated, the present work was to be kept secret. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 352, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 114.

II. Fol. 130 a.

"Vaşlat-Nāmah, or the Book of Union," a Sufi poem.

The title of the poem is found in the following line, fol. 132 b:

كوش كن تو رمز وصلت نامه را See the Oude Catalogue, p. 355.

Add. 6621.

Foll. 74; 12½ in. by 7½; 25 lines, 4½ in. long, in a page; written in four columns in small and fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

"The theatre of marvels," a Sufi poem by Attar.

The title of the work, which is given in the following line of the prologue, fol. 3 a, alludes to 'Alī, the true "theatre of marvels," to whom the poem is dedicated:

In the same passage the author refers the reader to several of his previous works, namely Jauhar uz-Zāt, Ushtur-Nāmah, Mantik uṭ-Ṭair, Asrār Nāmah, Muṣībat-Nāmah, Khusrau u Gul, Ilāhī-Nāmah, Pand-Nāmah, and Tazkirat ul-Auliyā. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 353.

This MS. has been evidently detached from a larger volume. It is folioed with Arabic figures from 77 to 149, and at the end is a separate leaf numbered 558, containing the concluding part of a poem probably due to the same author. It treats of the feelings of a true devotee, and the last section begins thus:

The first page bears the Persian scal of Archibald Swinton, with the date 1174.

Sloane 3588.

Foll. 94; 8 in. by 5\(^2\); 19 lines, 2\(^3\) in. long; written in a cursive Turkish character; dater Zulhijjah, A.H. 1083 (A.D. 1673).

The "book of advice," or moral precepts in Mașnavi rhyme, by Farid ud-Dîn 'Aṭṭār.

حدد بی حد آن خدای پاك را Beg. انكه ایمان داد مشتی خاك را

This is the most popular of the poems of 'Attar. It has been repeatedly printed in Calcutta, Lahore, Bulak, and Constantinople. It has been edited by J. H. Hindley, London, 1809, and translated into French by S. de Sacy, Paris, 1819, and into German by G. H. F. Nesselmann.

II. Foll. 25—94. A Turkish commentary on the above work by Sham'i. See Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 68.

Sloane 3264.

Foll. 221; 12 in. by 7; 12 lines, 4 in. long; written on one side of the paper, in large Naskhi, about the beginning of the 18th century.

The Pand-Nāmah of 'Aṭṭār, with a Latin translation by Salomon Negri. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 335.

Add. 7734.

Foll. 52;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 9 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Turkish Naskhi; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1193 (A.D. 1779).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The same work, with Turkish glosses.

Harleian 5447.

Foll. 60;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 and 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in a Turkish hand, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 1 b—29 b. The Pand-Nāmah of 'Attār (see p. 579 b).

II. Foll. 31 α-60 b.

A translation of the above in Turkish verse.

ابتدا کردم بنام ان کریم مسلطان قدیم مسدع کونین و سلطان قدیم

The translator, whose name does not appear, states in the introduction, fol. 32 b, that he had written this version in obedience to the behest of his benefactor, the Pādishāh Bāyazīd B. Sulaimān Khān.

On the fly-leaf is a short notice of the Pand Nāmah written in Latin by Salomon, Negri.

Add. 6960.

Foll. 133; 10¼ in. by 8; 15 lines in a page; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1802.

I. Foll. 5—34. The Turkish version of the Pand-Nāmah [transcribed from the preceding MS.]

II. Foll. 35—44. Collation of three copies of the Persian Pand-Nāmah, namely Harleian 5447, Harleian 5464, and Sloane 3264.

III. Foll. 45—109. The Pand-Nāmah, [transcribed from Sloane 3264], with English glosses.

IV. Foll. 110—133. Glossary to the Turkish version, and alphabetical list of words occurring in the Persian text.

Prefixed to the volume, foll. 1—4, are Sylvestre de Sacy's notices on the Pand-Nāmah and the Bulbul-Nāmah, translated into English.

Or. 473.

Foll. 361; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1007 (A.D. 1598).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان كمال اصفهاني

The Divan of Kamal Isfahani.

Beg. ای جلال تو بیانهارا زبان انداخته عزت ذاتت یقین را در کمان انداخته

Kamal ud-Din Isma'il, surnamed, on account of the fertility of his fancy, Khallak ul-Ma'ani, or "the great inventor of concetti," was the son of a poet of note, Jamal ud-Din Muḥammad B. 'Abd ur-Razzāk Isfahānī, who died, according to Takī Kāshānī, A.H. 588. He was, like his father, a panegyrist of the noble Said family, especially of Rukn ud-Din Sa'id B. Mas'ūd, the Sadr of Isfahan. He perished, according to Daulatshah, in a general slaughter of the inhabitants of Isfahān by the Moghul army under Oktāi Kā'ān, A.H. 635. His death is placed, however, by the Mirat ul-'Alam, fol. 691, in A.H. 639, and by the Khulasat ul-Afkar, fol. 229, in A.H. 628. Other notices will be found in the Guzidah, fol. 242, Bahāristan, fol. 67, Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 190, Haft Iklim, fol. 356, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 356, and Ataslikadali, fol. 80. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 156, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 454.

This Divan, which is not alphabetically arranged, contains Kaşidahs and Kit'ahs, fol. 2 b, Ghazals, fol. 300 a, and Rubā'is, fol. 344 b.

Some Ķaṣīdahs in the early part of the Dīvān are addressed to the following sovereigns: Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn Tukush, who reigned in Irak from A.H. 590 to 596, and his grandsons Jalāl ud-Dīn (A.H. 621—628) and Ghiyāṣ ud-Dīn, the Atābak Sa'd B. Zingī (A.H. 599—623), and his successor Abū Bakr B. Sa'd (A.H. 623—658), lastly the Ispahbad Ḥasan of Māzandarān. Most of the laudatory poems are in praise of the above mentioned Ṣadr, Rukn ud-Dīn Ṣā'id.

Add. 18,414.

Foll. 443; 8¼ in. by 4¾; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1029 (A.D. 1620). [WM. YULE.] The same Dīvān.

Add. 7092.

Foll. 312; 9¼ in. by 5¼; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1036 (A.D. 1627).

The same Divan.

This copy contains only fourteen Rubā'is. Copyist: نظام الدين تنوجي

Add. 7748.

Foll. 365; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{2}; 19 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Dīvān, wanting the first page. This copy contains a more copious text than any of the preceding. It is furnished through the first half with headings.

The last page of the MS. contains records of the birth of the owner's children, the earliest of which is dated A.H. 1043.

Or. 287.

Foll. 174; 9¼ in. by 6; 15 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Muharram, A.H. 1007 (A.D. 1598). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان سيف اسفرنكي

Dīvān of Saif ud-Din Isfarangi.

اشك را زانرا نهم در كفه و ميزان خويش . Beg. تما پديد آيد بوقت اصحان معيار من

The poet's native place Isfarang, or Isfarah, is, according to Amīn Rāzī, a hilly tract nine farsangs to the south-west of Marghīnān. As to the period in which he lived there is a wide divergence in the statements of biographers. Daulatshāh says that he flourished in the reign of Ilarslān B. Atsiz Khwārazm Shāh (A.H. 551—567). He is followed by the Haft Iklīm, fol. 599, and also by the authors of the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 206, and the Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 206, who place Saif ud-Dīn's death in A.H. 573 and 583. On the other hand, Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, states that he was born A.H. 581 and died A.H. 666. We read in the Atashkadah, fol. 147, in agreement with the last writer, that Saif ud-Dīn of Isfarang, surnamed al-A'raj, or the lame, grew up in Khwārazm, attended in his youth the court of Sultan Muḥammad B. Tukush (A.H. 596—617), and died A.H. 666, at the age of eighty-five years. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 123, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 561.

The evidence of the Divan is altogether in favour of the later date; for it contains poems addressed to 'Ala ud-Din Muhammad Khwārazm Shāh, and designating him by the title of Sanjar, a surname which the Sultan assumed in consequence of his victory over the Karā Khitāis, A.H. 606 (D'Ohsson, Histoire des Mongols, vol. i. p. 182). There are also Kasīdahs in praise of Nizām ul-Mulk Muhammad B. Sālih, who was Vazīr to the same Sultan during the latter part of his reign, A.H. 606-613 (see Habīh us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 183), and of Kutb ud-Din Mir 'Amid Habash, who was at the head of the government of Mavara un-Nahr under Chaghatāi Khān and his successors, Karā Hulagū and Bisū-Mungā, A.H. 617—649 (see Jahānkushāi, fol. 81, and Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 46).

The Dīvān contains Ķaṣīdahs and some Tarjī'-bands arranged according to subjects, and a few Rubā'is at the end. Copies are mentioned in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 330, and in the Bibliotheea Sprenger, No. 1514.

Add. 7790.

Foll. 283;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

Another collection of the poems of Saif Isfarangi, richer than the preceding, endorsed زبدة القصايد سيف الدين اسفرنك

شب جو بردارد حجاب از هودج اسرار من خفته کیرد صبح را چشم و دل بیدار من

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 1 b. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 207 a. Ghazals, fol. 247 a. Rubāʿis, fol. 269 a.

Add. 7766.

Foll. 109; 10 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $5\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in four columns in small Persian Naskhi; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 863 (A.D. 1459). [Cl. J. Rich.]

كتاب كليله و دمنه

A poetical version of the book of Kalīlah and Dimnah, in the epic metre, the author of which is called in the heading and in the subscription, Ahmad B. Maḥmūd uṭ-Ṭūsī, known as Kāni'ī, احمد بس محمود الطوسى المشهور قانع

خدایا توئی زنده، جاودان Beg. فرازنده، ایس سپهر روان

The work was composed for a king called Kā'ūs, to whom a few laudatory verses are addressed at the end of each section. He is designated as the sovereign of Rūm, and the worthy successor of Kaikhusrau and Kaikubād.

'Izz ud-Dīn Kaikā'ūs, who is here meant, succeeded as the eldest son to his father Kaikhusrau, at the time of the Moghul invasion of Asia Minor, A. H. 642, and carried on for about twenty years a fitful rule under the control of the Moghul sovereigns, and in a state of constant struggle with his brother Rukn ud-Dīn Ķilij Arslān, with whom he had to divide the kingdom. Ousted at last by the latter he repaired to Constantinople, and was shortly after, A.H. 662, confined by the emperor Michael Paleologus in the eastle of Ænos. Ho was subsequently released by the Moghul Berekāi Khān, and obtained from him a principality in the Crimea, where he died A.H. 678. See Abulfaraj, Historia Dynastiarum, pp. 319—332, Abulfeda, vol. v. p. 11, D'Ohsson, Histoire des Mongols, vol. iii. pp. 92, 479, and Hammer, Geschichte der Goldenen Horde, pp. 174—181.

The author gives in the prologue, fol. 8 b, a brief account of his career. He lived, he says, in Khorasan in joy and comfort, a matchless poet sought after by all,

من آن روزها در خراسان بدم زایام شاد و تن آسان بدم سخن کوی مانند من کس نبود نبد کس که جوینده من نبود

when the Moghuls overran the country, shedding blood by torrents, and drove the Khwārazm Shāh in wild flight to the sea of Māzandarān (A.H. 617). Having escaped to India, he took ship to 'Adan, and, after visiting Medina and the holy shrines of Meeca, and passing through Baghdād, he repaired to Rūm, where "in his distress his heart was rejoiced by the sight of the sovereign of the world, Kaiķubād" (A.H. 616—634):

دران بی نوائی دلم کشت شاد بدیدار شاه جهان کیقباد

He became his panegyrist, lived, thanks to his bounty, in great opulence, and composed a poetical record of the dynasty, entitled Saljūķ Nāmah, the bulk of which was not much less than a camel's load. He enjoyed also the favour of Kaikubād's glorious successor, Kaikhusrau (A.H. 634—641).

The poet says in two other passages, foll. 95 a, 108 a, that he had, during forty years, celebrated the praises of three sovereigns of the house of Saljūķ (Kaiķubād, Kaikhusrau, and Kaikā'ūs), that his poems filled thirty volumes, and amounted to about three hundred thousand distiehs:

که جون تیغ بران کشادم زبان چهل سال در مدے این دودمان چنان مدے سه شاه کفتم بهبر که تحسین کند برفلک ماه و مهر همانا بود سی مجلد سخن بمدے سلاطین بکفتار من همانا جهل سال باشد تمام که مداح سلجوتیان ام مدام بمن زنده شد نام شاهان داد بمن زنده شد نام شاهان داد بمن زنده شد نام شاهان داد بمن بندر بهن مجلد سخن بیشتر بود سی مجلد سخن بیشتر که ماند زکفتار من یادگار کی ماند زکفتار من یادگار بود قرب آن بیت سیصد حزار

If, therefore, the arrival of Kāni'i at the court of Kaikubād took place, as appears probable, in A.H. 618, the composition of the present work must be placed about A.H. 658.

The author's name is preceded in the heading by the pompous titles امل الشعرا and in the subscription he is ealled ملك الشعرا و انصع العصحا . He was still living in Kūniyah A.H. 672; for he is mentioned by Aflaka, the author of Manakib ul-'Arifin, Add. 25,025, fol. 142, who calls him Amīr Bahā ud-Din Kāni'i Malik ush-Shu'arā, as one of those who paid a last tribute to the saint Maulana Jalal ud-Din Rumi, deceased in that year. He may be identical with a Kāni'i called like him Bahā ud-Din Ahmad, and also entitled Malik ush-Shu'ara, who is mentioned in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 68, as the author of a Kābūs Nāmah. The latter, however, is designated as Kāzarūnī, or native of Kazarun, while our author came from Khorasan.

The prologue of Kani'i treats at considerable length of the virtues and accomplishments which befit a king, of each of which the author shows his royal master to be the true paragon. An easy transition to Nüshirvan, the traditional pattern of a just and wise ruler, introduces, fol. 9 b, the main subject of the work. At his court appears an Indian envoy bringing the tribute of his country. Questioned by Nüshirvan about a wonderful herb said to grow in India and to give eternal life to those who eat it, he explains its true nature. The herb is but an emblem of the book of wisdom which the kings of India keep as a sacred heirloom in their treasury." He entreats the king, however, not to betray to his master that he has disclosed his secret. Here follows, fol. 10 b, a detailed account of Barzūyah's mission to India, and of the means by which he succeeded in obtaining a copy of the precious book.

The work proper begins on fol. 13 a with اغاز كتاب كليله و داستان برزوبه طبيب the rubric The first section contains the life of Barzūvah, the physician, as told by himself, and drawn up by Buzurjmihr. The nature and arrangement of the remainder of the contents will appear from the following headings: The ox and the lion, fol. 17 a. Damnah and the lion, fol. 20 a. The lion repents killing the ox, fol. 40 a. The merchant's wife, the parrot, the slave, and the men of Balkh, fol. 49 a. The pigeon with a collar, fol. 50 b. the crows دوستان ابنای زمان , خانی زمان (the crows and the owls), fol. 61 b. The ape and the tortoise, کبی و سنك پشت, fol. 74 a. hermit and the weasel, إهد و راسوا, fol. The mouse and the cat, fol. 80 a. The king and the bird Kabrah, ملك و قبرة, fol. 83 b. The lion and the jackal, fol. 87 a. The lion, the jackal, and the huntsman, fol. 93 a. The hermit and the traveller, fol. 97 a. The dream of the king of India, fol. 97 a. The snake, the ape, the leopard, and the well, fol. 102 a. The king's son and his companions, fol. 103 a.

The arrangement is very similar to that of the Persian version of Nasr Ullah. But the author does not give any information as to the original which he had followed. He merely says that he was turning prose into verse:

من انرا کنون خواهم آغاز کرد برآرم بنظم از سر نــــثر ڪرد

Add. 27,263.

Foll. 417;  $13\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 9; 17 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with rich 'Unvāns and gilt headings, apparently in the 16th century. Bound in stamped leather.

[Sir John Malcolm.]

The Maşnavî of Jalāl ud-Dīn Rūmī.

Maulānā Jalāl ud-Din Muhammad Rūmī, the founder of the order of Darvishes called after him Maulavis, is by general consent the greatest of the Sufi poets of Persia. His life forms the main subject of Manakib ul-'Arifin (see p. 344 b), from which the following particulars are extracted. He was born in Balkh on the sixth of Rabi' I., A.H. 604, and died in Kuniyah on the fifth of Jumāda II., A.H. 672. His father, Muhammad B. ul-Husain ul-Khatībī ul-Bakrī (a descendant of the Khalif Abu Bakr), commonly called Bahā ud-Din Valad, son of a daughter of Sultan 'Ala ud-Din B. Khwārazm Shāh, had acquired by his learning and his religious character so much influence in Balkh as to rouse the jealousy of the Sultan, and was obliged in consequence to leave his native city. He proceeded with his son Jalāl ud-Dīn, who was then five years old, by way of Baghdād to Meeca, from thence to Malaṭiyah, where he stayed four years, and to Lārindah, where he sojourned seven years. Subsequently, yielding to the instances of the Sultan of Rūm, 'Alā ud-Dīn Kaikubād, he settled in the royal residence, Kūniyah, where he died on the 18th of Rabī' II., A.H. 628.

A similar answer is recorded in the preface of Nasr Ullah's Persian version, where it is put in the mouth of a Brahman in India. See Notices et Extraits, vol. x. p. 107.

After Bahā ud-Dīn's death Jalāl ud-Dīn received his spiritual instruction from Sayvid Burhān ud-Dīn Tirmizī, a disciple of his father, who joined him in Kuniyah in A.H. 629, and, afterwards, from a wandering Sufi, Shams ud-Din Tabrizi, who from A.H. 642 to his death in A.H. 645, was Jalal ud-Din's constant companion, and whose name the poet adopted, as a Takhallus, in his Ghazals. In the latter part of his life Maulana was worshipped as a saint by a crowd of devoted disciples, and was treated with the utmost regard by the Moghul governor, Mu'in ud-Din Parvanah, who was at that time the virtual ruler of the Saljuki empire. The only son who survived him was Baha ud-Din, better known as Sultan Valad, born A.H. 623, who became, ten years after his father's death, the head of the Maulavis, and died A.H. 712.

Other notices will be found in Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 530 (translated in Mines de l'Orient, vol. vi. p. 429), Daulatshāh, fol. 96, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 66, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 330, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 235, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 400, and Ātashkadah, fol. 142. See also Ouseley, Notices, p. 112, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 163, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 489, and George Rosen's Mesnewi, preface, pp. 13—26.

The Maşnavī, or, as it is often called مثنوى, the "Spiritual Maşnavī," is the favourite text book of the Sufis. It is a vast, and somewhat rambling, collection of moral precepts and religious reflexions, with comments on texts from the Coran, and sayings of the Prophet, illustrated by numerous anecdotes.

Chalabi Husam ud-Din, whom the author addresses by name in several passages of the Masnavi, was his favourite disciple. His proper name was Hasan B. Muhammad B. Akhī Turk. He had been appointed Khalīfah after the death of Salah ud-Din Zarkub in A.H. 657, and remained for ten years, from the decease of Maulana to his own death, which took place A.H. 383, the acknowledged head of the order. Husam ud-Din had no small share in the production of the poem. It was he who, having noticed with how much delight the disciples read the Masnavis of Sana'i and Farid ud-Din 'Attar, suggested to his master the composition of a poem similar to the Ilāhī Nāmah of Sanā'ī (sic), but in the measure of the Mantik ut-Tair of 'Attar, and who, when Maulana carried out that idea, wrote down the poem from his master's dictation, reading it aloud to him after each sitting, and correcting the text. The work was interrupted during two years, in consequence of the death of Husam ud-Din's wife; but it was resumed, as stated at the beginning of Daftar II., in A.H. 662, and continued to the end. See Manakib ul-Arifin, fol. 176.

The poem, which is divided into six books called Daftars, has been the text of many commentaries enumerated by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 375. It has been repeatedly printed in the East, viz. in Bombay, A.H. 1262, 1266, 1273, 1280, and 1294, in Lucknow, A.H. 1282, in Tabriz, A.H. 1264, in Bulak, with a Turkish translation, A.H. 1268, and in Constantinople, A.H. 1289. The contents have been stated by Hammer, Jahrbücher, vol. 65, Anz. Blatt, pp. 7-26. Portions have been translated into German verse by M. V. Hussard, Mines de l'Orient, vol. ii. p. 162, etc., and by George Rosen, Leipzig, 1849. A version in English verse, by J. W. Redhouse, Esq., is being prepared for publication.

In the present copy the six Daftars begin respectively on foll. 2 b, 69 b, 131 b, 212 b, 275 b, and 347 b. A rich border enclosing the beginning of the poem contains the following lines in its praise:

تا قیامت کر پی صورت روی تا قیامت بوی معنی نشنوی جان جاویدان اکر خواهی بخوان مشنوی معندوی مولوی

The volume contains nineteen whole-page miniatures, in fair Persian style.

Add. 26,151.

Foll. 471;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, and 20 lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The same poem.

This copy contains short prose prefaces to the several Daftars. Those of the first, third, and fourth are in Arabic, the others in Persian. They are to be found on foll. 2 b, 73 b, 138 b, 235 b, 304 b, and 383 b.

At the end of Daftar IV. is a subscription stating that the MS. had been written near the shrine of the holy Shāh of Ghaznī نزدیك , by Sayyid Kabīr B. Sayyid Rājā B. Ḥusainī.

On the first page are the Persian seal and the signature of Edward Galley.

Or. 1211.

Foll. 506;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 27 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in a large and cursive Persian character, in two columns, probably early in the 15th century. [Alex. Jaba.]

The Maşnavi, with the prose prefaces. The six Daftars begin respectively on foll. 1 b, 80 b, 154 a, 248 b, 324 b, and 409 b.

Foll. 1—5, and 502—506, have been supplied by a later hand.

Or. 1364.

Foll. 313;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 8; 23 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in small and neat Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with six 'Unvāns; dated Rajab, A.H. 982 (A.D. 1574). Bound in stamped leather covers.

[SIR CHAS. ALEX. MURRAY.]

The Maşnavî, with the prefaces, beginning respectively on foll. 3 b, 50 b, 94 b, 150 b, 197 b, and 254 b.

Add. 26,153.

Foll. 205;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 32 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik, A.H. 1043 (A.D. 1633).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

Daftars I.—III. of the Maşnavi.

The MS. was written, according to the subscription, by Ilahyār for Minuchihr Beg.

Add. 16,767.

Foll. 318;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{4}$ ; 23 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four goldruled columns, with six 'Unvāns; dated A.H. 1049 (A.D. 1639); bound in stamped and gilt leather. [WM. YULE.]

The same work, with three prefaces, viz. . those of Daftar II., fol. 52 b, Daftar V., fol. 205 b, and Daftar VI., fol. 258 b.

Egerton 1107.

Foll. 362; 14<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 9<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>; 21 lines, 5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, in four columns; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1077 (A.D. 1666). [ADAM CLARKE.]

The Maşnavī, with the same prefaces as in the preceding copy.

The copyist, Muḥammad Shafī', describes himself as tutor to the son of Farīdūn Beg, Vāķi'ah-Navīs to Amīr Khān, Sūbahdār of Kābul.

Add. 7740.

Foll. 241; 14½ in. by 7¼; 31 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns; dated Shāhjahānābād, Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1077 (A.D. 1667). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Masnavi, with all the prefaces but that of Daftar I.

The transcriber, الله نعمت الله, states in the subscription that he had written this copy for Mir Muhammad Vāzih, son of Irādat Khān.

At the end of Daftar IV. it is stated that the text had been corrected, A.H. 1083, on the copy of Shāh 'Abd ul-Fattāḥ Gujrātī, who had collated a large number of MSS.

Add. 5605.

Foll. 324; 11½ in. by 7; 22 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns; dated Rabī' I., A.H. 1082, the 13th year of [Aurangzīb's] reign (A.D. 1671).

[N. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The Maşnavi. The prefaces of Daftars II.—VI. have been added by another hand.

Add. 5606.

Foll. 434; 10\frac{1}{2} in. by 6\frac{3}{4}; 19 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long, in a page, with 32 half-lines in the margin, in continuation of each page; written in two columns, in common Indian Nestalik; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1185 (A.D. 1771).

The same poem. [N. Brassey Halhed.]

Add. 26,152.

Foll. 583; 10 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns; dated the 24th year of Aurangzīb (A.H. 1091-2, A.D. 1680-1).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The Maşnavi, with the prefaces of Daftars IV. and VI., and copious notes written partly in the margins, partly on inserted slips.

Add. 16,769.

Foll. 229; 9 in. by 5½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long, with 30 lines in the margins; written in small Nestalik, in two columns; dated Ujjain, Mālvah, Rabī' II., A.H. 1093 (A.D. 1682.)

Daftars III—V. of the Maşnavī, with the first five folios of Daftar VI. Daftar III. wants sixteen folios at the beginning.

Add. 25,802.

Foll. 275; 11½ in. by 6¾; 25 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Naskhi, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns, probably in the 17th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

The Maşnavi, with all the prefaces but that of Daftar V.

Add. 16,768.

Foll. 255; 13 in. by 7\(^2\); 27 lines, 4\(^3\) in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, in four columns; apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

The Maşnavī, with the prefaces, and marginal additions.

According to a Persian note on fol. 1, this MS. was bought in Jainagar, A.H. 1203.

Or. 1214.

Foll. 24; 9 in. by 7; 21 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written on four columns in small Nestalik, probably in the 18th century.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

The seventh Daftar of the Maşnavi, with a prose preface.

ای ضیا الحق حسام الدین سعید Beg. الحق دولتت پاینده فقرت بر مزید

This seventh Daftar, which has been printed at the end of the Bulak edition, was first brought to light, A.H. 1035, by a commentator of the Maşnavî, Ismā'il Dadah (Rusūkh ud-Dīn Ismā'il B. Aḥmad ul-Anķiravī), who gave out that he had found it in a copy dated A.H. 814, and who stood out for its genuineness, which, however, was generally disbelieved. See Haj. Khal. vol. v. p. 377, Hammer Redekünste, p. 167, and Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 518.

محمد شریف بین داملا محمد سلیم : Copyist مرحوم بخاری

Add. 14,051.

Foll. 508; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670).

جواهر الاسرار وزواهر الانوار

The first volume of a commentary on the Maşnavî, by Ḥusain B. Ḥasan, حسین بن حسن Beg. بیعد و نهایت

The author, whose full name is Kamal ud-Din Husain B. Hasan Khwarazmi, has been already mentioned, p. 144 b. He states in the preface that he had, from his youth upwards, eagerly studied the Masnavi, and that he was constantly consulted by the learned as to its meaning. He had already Written on that subject a work entitled كنوز and was at length الحقايق في رموز الحقائق induced by his friends' prayers, as well as by the desire of the ruler of Khwarazm, to write a fuller commentary, the present work. He frequently mentions, as still living, his spiritual guide Khwājah Abu'l-Vafā (a celebrated Sūfī, who died A.H. 835; see Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 499, and Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 144). The work is mentioned by Haj. Khal. vol. v. pp. 375, 376, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 493.

Contents: Preface, fol. 1 b. Ten preliminary discourses, as follows:—1. On the great Ṣūfīs from 'Alī to Jalāl ud-Dīn, fol. 8 a. 2. On Ṣūfī terms, fol. 36 b. 3. On the degrees of spiritual knowledge, fol. 41 a. 4. On the essence of the Divinity, fol. 43 b. 5. God's names and qualities, fol. 48 a. 6. On the worlds, fol. 49 b. 7. On creation, fol. 51 a. 8. On the great spirit, fol. 52 b. 9. On the soul's return to the spirit, fol. 55 a. 10. On the essence of love, fol. 64 a. Commentary on Daftar II., fol. 71 b; on Daftar II., fol. 203 b; on Daftar III., including the Arabic preface, fol. 314 b.

On the first page is written, "Geo. Jervis, Ahmudabad, 1814."

Add. 25,804.

Foll. 497;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 22 lines, 6 in. long; written in large Naskhi, with ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

كشف اسرار معنوي در شرح ابيات مثنوي

A full commentary on the first two Daftars of the Maşnavi, with the text.

Author: 'Abd ul-Ḥamīd B. Mu'in ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Muḥammad Hāshim ul-Ḥu-sainī ul-Ḥatālī ur-Rifā'i ut-Tabrīzī, عبد الحمين الدين محمد بن محمد هاشم الحسيني القتّالي الرفاعي التبريزي

The commentary is preceded by a short preamble and nine preliminary chapters (Mukaddinah), foll. 5—17, treating of the principles of theosophy and the definition of its technical terms. The entire text is inserted by paragraphs. Each of these is followed by short verbal explanations of rare words words, and by extensive comments. The most recent authors quoted appear to be Khwājah Abul-Vafā, who died A.H. 835 (see the preceding no.), fol. 139a, and 'Abd ul-

Karim ul-Jili, author of al-Insān ul-Kāmil, who was born A H. 767 (Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 459), fol. 143 b. At the end of Daftar I., fol. 265, is found a transcript of the subscription of the author's original draft.

The first part of the same commentary is described by Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 493.

On the first page is a seal of Muḥammad Mahdi dated A.H. 1141, and the Persian seal of Archibald Swinton.

Or. 1213.

Foll. 222; 12 in. by 8\frac{1}{4}; 31 lines, 5\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in a small Turkish hand, probably in the 17th century.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

A Turkish commentary upon the fourth Daftar of the Maşnavî, by Sham'i شبعى, with the text.

حمدهای متوافره مدق آمبز و شکرهای متکاثره Beg.

The author states, in the preamble, that he had undertaken the work by order of Sultan Murād Khān B. Salīm, and, at the end, that he had completed the present portion on the 15th of Jumādā II., A.H. 999. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 375.

Or. 1210.

Foll. 464; 11½ in. by 6½; 19 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, with 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

نسخه ناسخه مثنويات سقيمه

A revised edition of the Maşnavî, by 'Abd ul-Laţif B. 'Abd Ullah ul-'Abbāsī, عبد اللطيف with marginal notes.

Mulla 'Abd ul-Laţif, a native of Gujrāt, was a dependent of Lashkar Khān Mashhadī, Dīvān of Kābul under Jahāngīr, and afterwards Ṣūbahdār of the same province under Shāhjahān. He passed into the imperial service in the fifth year of the latter reign as Dīvān i Tan, with the title of 'Aķīdat Khān, and was some time employed as court-chronieler. He died in old age in the 12th year of the reign (A.H. 1048—9). See 'Amal Sāliḥ, fol. 708, where his commentary on the Maṣnavī is mentioned with praise, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 70.

In a preface entitled , and ديباجه لطيف انصرام dated by the chronogram i. e. A.H. 1032, foll. 10-19, the editor gives an account of the labour he had bestowed upon the text. He collated it with an authenticated copy in Kābul, A.H. 1024, and with several MSS. in Yūlam Guzar, near Pashāwar, A.H. 1025, subjected it to a critical examination, with the help of a friend, while on a journey to the Decean in A.H. 1030, and collated it again with four copies in Burhanpur, A.H. 1031. He also verified the passages of the Coran and the Hadis referred to by the poet, and gave their original text with interpretation in the margin, corrected the Arabic prefaces which he found sadly corrupt, and explained all the rare words and difficult verses. He adds that his comments had been compiled in a detached shape, and formed two separate works, entitled Lata'if ul-Ma'ānī and Laṭā'if ul-Lughāt.

Tables of contents, drawn up by the editor, are prefixed to the several Daftars. The preface is repeated in a condensed form at the beginning of Daftars II.—VI.

It is stated, at the end of Daftars III. and IV., that the MS. had been collated in Burhanpur, A.II. 1100.

Add. 25,803.

Foll. 312;  $12\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 8; 25 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns;

dated Katak (Bengal), A.H. 1113 (A.D. 1701). [Wm. Cureton.]

The same revised text, with the editor's preface and marginal notes.

Add. 16,766.

Foll. 240;  $15\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{4}$ ; from 25 to 27 lines, 5 in. long, with as many lines in the margin; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvāns, probably in the 17th century; bound in stamped and gilt leather. [WM. YULE.]

The Maşnavī, with copious marginal notes extracted from the Latā'if ul-Ma'navī (see p. 589 b).

This MS. contains the following prefaces: Persian preface to Daftar II., fol. 38 a. Arabic prefaces to Daftar III. and IV. with Persian paraphrase, foll. 70 a, and 112 b.

The preface of 'Abd ul-Laṭīf to his recension of the Maṣnavī is prefixed to Daftar V., fol. 148 b, and again to Daftar VI. fol. 192 b. It is followed in each place by his statement of the contents of the respective Daftars.

Add. 16,770.

Foll. 206;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in plain Nestalik; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1080 (A.D. 1669).

لطائف المعنوي من حقائق المثنوي

A Commentary on the Maşnavī, by 'Abd ul-Laṭīf B. 'Abd ullah ul-'Abbāsī (see p. 589 b), slightly imperfect at the end.

شرح بعضی ابسیات مشکله فارسی

The commentator states that he had brought together in this work, with some additions, the explanations of difficult verses and Arabic texts, written in the first instance on the margins of his revised copy of the Maşnavī.

An edition lithographed in Cawnpore, 1876, contains a dedication to Shāhjahān, which is not found in the present copy. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 59.

Royal 16 B. xix.

Foll. 324; 7¾ in. by 5¼; 14 and 15 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Sūrat, Sha'bān, A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1670). [Thomas Hyde.]

لطائف اللغات

A Glossary to the Maşnavî, by the same 'Abd ul-Laţīf.

این فرهنکیست مشتمل بر حل لغات غریبه Beg. The author, who calls himself 'Abd ul-Latīf B. 'Abd Ullah Kabīriyyah کبیری, enumerates in the preface some well known Arabic and Persian dictionaries, and the Sufi glossaries of Ibn 'Attar, and 'Abd ur-Razzāk Kāshī, which he had used, and states that the present work was the result of twelve years of study, and had been compiled in view of his revised edition of the text (see p. 589 b). It comprises all the words found in the Masnavi, with the exception of those which belong to common speech, and is alphabetically arranged according to the initial and final letters. 'Abd ul-Latif adds that he had been assisted in the compilation by his friend Maulana Ibrāhīm Dihlavī, who had attended his lectures.

This glossary, known as Farhang i Masnavi, has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1877. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 132, and Ouseley's Collection, No. 384.

Add. 6612.

Foll. 162; 14 in. by  $10\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 and 23 lines, 6 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabī' I., the first year of Jahāndār Shāh, A.H. 1124 (A.D. 1712). [J. F. Hull.]

I. Foll. 1—94. The first two Daftars of the Maşnavî, with marginal notes.

II. Foll. 95—162. The glossary described under the preceding number.

Or. 369.

Foll. 175; 9 in. by 5½; 23 lines, 3 in. long; written in small and close Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1100 (A.D. 1689).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

An extensive commentary, entitled Mughnī, مغنى, upon the third Daftar of the Maşnavī, by Muḥammad 'Abid.

-الدفتر الثالث من المثنوى للمولوى اقاض الله .Beg بركاته

The author's name and the title are found in this endorsement, حضرت مخمد عابد مولوی قدس الله سرة حامل المتن از شرح محمد عابد رحمة الله عليه مسمى بمغنى

In a Persian note on the same page it is stated that this MS. is the author's first draught of the thick of the same page it is stated that this MS. is the author's first draught, and that he began to write the commentary on Daftar I. in A.H. 1100. Many mistakes, however, corrected in the margins, show this copy to be the work of a scribe. Extensive marginal additions in a more cursive character may have been written by the author.

The commentary of Shaikh 'Abd ul-Latif (p. 590 a), is frequently quoted. Reference is also made to the Muntakhab ul-Lughat, which was written A.H. 1046 (see p. 510 a).

Or. 370.

Foll. 141; 8½ in. by 4½; 21 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, the 36th year of the reign (of Aurangzib, i.e. A.H. 1104, A.D. 1692).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

A Commentary on the Maşnavi, by Muhammad Na'im, عمد نعيم

This commentary, which is confined to the explanation of some difficult verses, is slightly imperfect at the beginning; the first line quoted is the ninth of the poem:

آتش است این بانك نای و نیست باد هر که ایس آتش ندارد نیست باد یعنی این بانك نی آتش عشق و سوز جدا گیست نه افسانه و باد پیمائی

Daftars II.—VI. begin respectively on fol. 34 a, fol. 56 b, fol. 83 a, fol. 104 b and fol. 133 b. The last line commented upon is دلوهاي (Bulak edition, vol. vi. p. 171).

The author's name appears in the subscription:

تمام شد مسوده و چند ابیات مثنوی مولوی از دست امیدوار کرم کریم فقیر حقیر محمد نعیم

عبد الله بن شيخ لطف الله لاهوري : Transcriber

A leaf prefixed to the MS. by a later hand contains the beginning of the preface of 'Abd ul-Laţīf to his revised text of the Maşnavī (see p. 589 a).

This MS. bears the seals of the kings of Oude.

Or. 367.

Foll. 230; 12 in. by 8½; 23 lines, 6 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ramazān, the 50th year of Aurangzīb (A.H. 1117, A.D. 1705). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

A full commentary upon the Maşnavī, with the text. On the first page is found the following title: فتوحات المعنوى تصنيف مولانا, and the name of the author, Maulānā 'Abd ul-'Alī Ṣāḥib, has been written by the same hand at the end of Daftar I., fol. 137 b.

It begins with the first verse of the poem, followed by a poetical paraphrase, the first line of which is:—

یعنی اندر قصهای مثنوی مینهایم شرح حال معنوی

The commentator quotes frequently Jāmi's Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, and occasionally the commentary of his predecessor, Shaikh 'Abd ul-Latif (p. 590 a).

The present volume contains the first two Daftars.

Or. 368.

Foll. 125;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $8\frac{1}{2}$ ; 26 and 23 lines, from 5 to 7 in. long; written by two different hands, in cursive Nestalik; dated A.H. 1103 (A.D. 1692). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The same author's commentary upon Daftar VI., endorsed شرح مير عبد العلى بر مجلد ششم مثنوى معنوى

This volume contains only short portions of the text, preceded by the word قوله.

Add. 16,771.

Foll. 328;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1143, the 15th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.D. 1731). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—176. A Commentary on the Maşnavi, by Muḥammad Nūr Ullah Aḥrāri, محمد نور الله احرارى

الحمد لله العلى الاعلى الوهاب الذى انزل على .Beg. عبده الكتاب

The author, who is called in the subscription Mīr Nūr Ullah Akbarābādī, states in the preface that, having applied himself from his youth upwards to the study of the Maṣnavī, he had been in the habit of putting down on the margins of his copy any new meaning that occurred to him, until, yielding to the solicitations of his friends, he wrote out those notes in a connected form.

The commentary deals only with detached passages. The author frequently quotes his predecessor 'Abd ul-Latīf (p. 590 a), mostly in order to correct him.

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 495, where the author, who is called Shāh Mir Muḥammad Nūr Ullah Aḥrārī, is said to have resided in Arcot.

حل مثنوى . 328. II. Foll. 177—328

Another commentary on the same poem, by Afzal, of Ilāhābād, انضل الهابادي

A summary of the contents of Daftar I. is 'followed by a prologue in verse beginning thus:

مرخدا را شکر کز لطف قوی داد تـوفـدقم بحـل مثـنوی

The author says that he wrote this work as a supplement to the commentaries of his predecessors, 'Abd ul-Latīf 'Abbāsī (p. 590 a), and Mīr Nūr Ullah Ahrārī.

The present copy contains only the commentary on the first Daftar, including the Arabic Preface.

Or. 1212.

Foll. 144;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in two columns; dated Ramazān, A.H. 923 (A.D. 1517).

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

انتخاب مثنوي

Select verses of the Maşnavī, beginning with the first verse of Daftar I., and ending with the last of Daftar VI.

علیخان برهانی : Copyist

Add. 9999.

Foll. 112;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

كلشن توحيد

The "Rose Garden of Unity," a selection from the Maşnavī.

Author: Shāhidī Maulavī, مولوى (see p. 513 b).

حمد لا یحمی ثنای بی قسیاس Beg. بی نهایت منت و بی حد سیاس

The author had extracted, as he states in the prologue, some detached lines, six hundred in number, from the Maşnavī. At the request of a friend he connected them by means of additional verses, inserting five distichs of his own between each two of the original. The date of composition, A.H. 937, is conveyed by the following chronogram, fol. 2 b:

بلبلی کو کلش توحید جو

See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 232, where A.H. 927 is given as the date of composition, Orientalia, vol. i., p. 319, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 429, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 112.

Add. 7738.

Fol. 365; 13 in. by 7; 19 lines, 3½ in. long, with 36 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان جلال الدين رومي

The Dîvān of Jalāl ud-Dîn Rūmī, often called "Dīvān i Shams i Tabrīz," because the poet takes in it the name of his spiritual guide, Shams ud-Dîn Tabrīzī (see p. 585 a), as his takhalluş.

The contents of the present copy, which is slightly imperfect at beginning and end, are—Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 a. Tarji'-bands, fol. 346 b. Rubā'is, foll. 352 b—359 b.

Foll. 360—365 contain a portion of the editor's preface. It is extremely wordy, confused, and, moreover, very incorrectly written. The editor, whose name does not appear, describes himself as a devoted admirer of Jalal ud-Din, whom, however, he had never seen. He says that he had spent a vol. II.

year or twe in collecting the scattered poems written by scribes from Maulānā's dietation, revising them, and arranging them in alphabetical order, adding that the collection comprised thirty thousand distichs.

Copies of the Dīvān are described by Hammer, Redekünste, p. 172, by Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 522, by Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 497, and Bibl. Sprenger., No. 1458. For extracts, see Krafft, p. 65, Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 113, Gotha Catalogue, p. 69, Munich Catalogue, p. 16, and St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 214. Select poems have been edited, with a translation in German verse, by V. von Rosenzweig, Vienna, 1838.

Or. 289.

Foll. 255, leaves 17 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Persian Naskhi; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 824 (A.D. 1421).

[Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان شمس تبريز

The latter part of the same Divan, with the heading, جدد دویم دیوان حضرت شمس تبریز

چشم تو با چشم من هر دم بی قبل وقال Beg. پشم تو با چشم من هر دم بی قبل وقال یا الله علی در some

It contains the Ghazals from J to &, some Tarji'-bands, fol. 246 a, and a few Rubā'is, fol. 253 a.

غیاث الدین بن خواجه شرف الدین :Copyist

Add. 7749.

Foll. 193; 5\frac{3}{4} in. by 3\frac{1}{2}; 15 lines, 2 in. long; written in a small and neat Shikastah-Amiz; dated Baghdād, Zulka'dah, A.H. 1208 (A.D. 1794).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The following works of Fakhr ud-Din

Fakhr ud-Dîn İbrâhîm B. Shahriyar Traķī

left at the age of eighteen his native city Hamadan, went in the guise of a wandering kalandar to India, and attached himself in Multān to Shaikh Bahā ud-Dīn Zakariyyā, with whom he stayed twenty-five years. After his master's death, which took place A.H. 666 or 661, he performed the pilgrimage, and proceeded from Mecca to Kūniyah, where he found another spiritual guide in the well-known mystic, Sadr ud-Din Kūniyavī, who died A.H. 672 (Arabic Catalogue, p. 779 b). It was there, and while attending Sadr ud-Din's lectures on the Fusus ut-Hikam, that he composed his Sufi tract, Lama'at, which was approved by his Shaikh. He left Rum after the death of his patron Mu'in ud-Din Parvanah (A.H. 677; see Geschichte der Ilchane, vol. i., p. 299), and spent his latter years in wanderings through Egypt and Syria. He died in Damaseus, A.H. 686, according to the Guzīdah, fol. 241, or A.H. 688, as stated in the Nafahāt ul-Uns, p. 700, Majālis ul-'Ushshāk, fol. 91, Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 760, Haft Iklim, fol. 413, and Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 291. Daulatshah, however, followed by Takī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, places his death in A.H. 709. See Hammer, Redekünste, p. 226, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 440.

 Fol. 1 b. A Dīvān, containing—1. Kasīdahs and some Tarjī'-bands, without alphabetical arrangement.
 Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 46 b.
 Rubā'is, fol. 125 b.

ای جلالت فرش عزت جاودان انداخته .Beg کوی در میدان قصدت کامران انداخته

Some of the Kaṣīdahs are in praise of the poet's Shaikh, Bahā ud-Dīn Zakariyyā.

II. Fol. 138 b. عشاق نامه, the "Book of Lovers," a poem in Maşnavī verse, varied by Ghazals, treating in ten sections (Faşl) of mystic love.

هر که جان دار در روان دارد واجیست آنکه درد جان دارد The prologue contains a eulogy on the celebrated Vazīr, Shams ud-Dīn Muḥammad Ṣāḥib Dīvān.

III. Fol. 176 b. لبعات, "Lama'āt," a tract in prose and verse on mystic love (see the preceding column, and Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 333.

الحمد لله الذي نور وجه حبيب بتجليمات. Beg. الجمال

Add. 16,822.

Foll. 84;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in small and neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century. [WM. YULE.]

اشعة اللمعات

A commentary on the preceding work, "Lama'āt," by Nūr ud-Dīn 'Abd ur-Raḥmān Jāmī (see p. 17 a).

لولا لمعات برق نور القدم . Beg. من محو حمى الجود وحى الكرم

The commentator says in his preface that he had been, like many others, prejudiced against the soundness of the Lama'at, until, requested by his friend, Amīr 'Alīshīr, to revise the text, he had found in it a rich storehouse of spiritual truths, which he undertook to elucidate in the present work. The date of composition, A.H. 886, is expressed in a versified chronogram at the end by the word واذ قال اتبته قد بدا با قال تاریخ اتباهه: اتباهه:

This work is generally called شرح اللبعات. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 335, and Dorn, St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 371.

خسرو : Copyist

Add. 24,944.

Foll. 357;  $14\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{2}$ ; 9 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 22 lines in the margin; written in clegant Nestalik, with rich 'Unvāns, ornamental headings, and illuminated borders on every page; dated A.H. 974 (A.D. 1566); bound in gilt and stamped leather.

G. LIBRI.

کایات سعدی

The Kulliyat, or complete works of Sa'di. Sa'di, the most popular of Persian poets, took his name from the Atabak of Fars, Sa'd B. Zingi, who died A.H. 623, after a reign of twenty-three years, and to whose service his father was attached. He is generally called Muslih ud-Din; but there is reason to believe that his original name was Musharrif ud-Din, and that Muslih ud-Din was the name of his father. In a copy of the Kulliyat, dated A.H. 905, lately belonging to Col. C. S. Guthrie, there is a subscription to the Bustan, purporting to have been transcribed from the author's autograph, in which he calls himself مشرف بن مصلم السعدى. In an early collection of his works, Add. 18,411, in Or. 5601, and in the present copy, his name is written مشرف الدين بي مصلم, and in Bisu-مشرف الملة والحق و الدين مصلح الاسلام tūn's preface . In the Guzidah the names are inverted مصلح بس مشرف, while in the Nafahat ul-Uns they are combined, with a شرف الدين مصلم trifling alteration, to Sa'di refers frequently to Shīrāz as his native place. The date of his birth is not accurately known. In the Būstān, which he wrote A.H. 655, he addresses himself as septuagenarian, from which it may be inferred that he was born about A.H. 585. But if the Shaikh Shams ud-Dīn Abul-Faraj B. Jauzī, whom he mentions in the Gulistān, Bāb ii., 20, as the preceptor of his youth, is really identical, as has been asserted, with the celebrated doctor Jamāl ud-Dīn Abul-Faraj Ibn ul-Jauzī, who died in Baghdād A.H. 597, a still earlier date must be adopted.

بیا ای که عبرت بهفتاد رفت مکر خفته بودی که بر باد رفت

After completing his studies in Baghdad, Sa'di entered upon a long course of distant travels, which took him through the length and breadth of the world known to the Muslims, from Tartary to Abyssinia, and from India to Barbary. He visited Kāshghar, as he states in the Gulistān, Bāb v., 15, in the year in which Sultan Muhammad Khwārazm Shāh had made peace with the Khiṭāis. This must have been shortly after the great victory which the Sultan won over the Karā Khiṭāis A.H. 606 (see the Kāmil, vol. xii. p. 177), and the aneedote shows that even at that early period the fame of the young poet of Shīrāz had spread to that remote region.

Sa'di returned to his native city shortly before A.H. 655, and composed in that year and the next his two most popular works, the Büstan and the Gulistan, in both of which he immortalized the name of the reigning Atābak, Abu Bakr B. Sa'd B. Zingī (A.H. 623-658), whose wise rule had restored peace and prosperity to Fars. There he spent in peace and seclusion the latter part of his long life, treated with respect by the Moghul governors who had superseded the Atābaks and receiving frequent marks of the regard and liberality of the great Vazir, Shams ud-Din Sahib Divan, who from the reign of Hulagu to the accession of Arghun, A.H. 683, was at the head of the civil administration of the Moghul empire.

Ziyā i Baranī states that Muḥammad Sulṭān, son of Sultan Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Balaban, who in the seat of his government at Multān (A.H. 670-683) surrounded himself with poets, twice sent messengers to Shīrāz for the purpose of inducing Sa'dī to settle in Multān, but that the poet, excusing himself on the plea of old age, sent to the prince some autograph verses. See Tārīkh Fīrūzshāhī, p. 68.

Sa'dī died on the seventeenth of Zulhijjah, A.H. 690. This is the date given by Ḥamd Ullah Mustaufī in his Guzīdah written forty years later. Daulatshāh and Jāmī give A.H. 691, and the former adds that the poet had reached at his death the age of one hundred and two lunar years. Amīn Rāzī states that he was then one hundred and ten years old, an estimate which, according to what has been above stated respecting the probable date of his birth, must be nearer the truth.

The principal notices on Sa'di are those of Daulatshah (translated into English by J. H. Harington, Works of Sadee, pp. ii.-x., and into German by K. H. Graf, Rosengarten, pp. 229-234), of Jāmī, Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 699, Habib us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 130, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 332, Haft Iklīm, fol. 92, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 198. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 204, Ouseley's Notices, p. 5, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 545, Defrémery, Nouvelle Biographie Générale, vol. xlii., p. 1002, and, above all, Dr. W. Bacher, who in his introduction to "Sa'di's Aphorismen und Sinngedichte, Strassburg, 1879," has ingeniously combined all the information which was to be extracted from a careful perusal of the poet's works.

The Kulliyāt have been edited by J. H. Harington, Calcutta, 1791—1795. Many other editions have since appeared in the East, as in Bombay, A.H. 1267 and 1280, Dehli, 1269, Cawnpore, 1280, Lucknow, 1287, Tabriz, 1257, and Teheran, 1268. The contents have been stated in the Vienna Jahrbücher, vol. 64, Anz. Blatt., p. 5, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 527, Oude Catalogue, p. 546, and, with great fullness and accuracy, by Dr. W. Bacher, in his Sa'di-Studien, Zeitschrift der D. Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, vol. xxx. pp. 81-106.

Contents: Preface of 'Ali B. Ahmad B. Abu Nasr [in other copies Abu Bakra] B. Bisutun, fol. 3 b.

شکر و سیاس معبودی را جلت قدرته

The writer states that in A.H. 726 he had arranged the Ghazals of Sa'di alphabetically according to the initial letters, and had subsequently, A.H. 734, compiled an alphabetical index to the same, based on the letters of the rhyme. It is added at the end that the Majlis i Hazl, or mock-homily, had been transferred to the section inscribed Khabīşāt. An English translation of the preface will be found in the Introduction of Harington's edition, pp. 24-26.

I. Fol. 8 b, رساله اول در تقرير ديباجه, Sa'di's preface. See Bacher, Sa'dī-Studien, p. 84.

سیاس بی غایت و ستایش بی نهایت Beg.

II. Fol. 17 b, ساله ٔ ثانی در مجلس جارکانه (read "the five sittings or homilies."

الحمد لله الذي خلق الوجود من العدم The fifth Majlis has been translated by James Ross, Bombay Transactions, vol. i. pp. 146—158.

III. Fol. 58 b, سالنده صاحب ديوان, "The questions of the Lord of the Divan," i.e. the Vazir Shams ud-Din Muhammad Juvaini, to Sa'dī, with the answers of the latter.

This tract, which was not drawn up by Sa'dī, has been translated by Harington, Introduction, pp. 14—17, and by Graf, Lustgarten, vol. ii. pp. 136-142.

IV. Fol. 62 a, رساله م چهارم در عقل و عشق, a Sufi tract on reason and love, in answer to a question of Maulānā Sa'd ud-Dīn.

سالك راه خدا پادشه ملك سخن العجن

رساله ً پنجم در نصیحت ملوك ، V. Fol. 67 α "Advice to kings."

الحمد لله تعالى وهو اولى من حمدة . Beg.

This tract was written, as Sa'dī states in یکی ,the beginning, at the request of a friend باز دوستان, whom he addresses further on as "son," فرزند. According to Dr. Bacher, "Sa'dī-Studien," pp. 93-102, and "Aphorismen und Sinngedichte," Vorwort, it was addressed to the Sāhib Dīvān, together with the collection of ethical poems known as Ṣāḥibiyyah (see art. xviii.). It is, however, highly improbable that Sa'dī should have familiarly referred to the all-powerful Vazīr as "one of his friends," or that he should have presented him with a work avowedly composed for another person. In an early recension of the Kulliyāt, Add. 18,411, the Risālah i Ṣāḥib Dīvān (art. iii.) is found to precede immediately the Kitāb i Ṣāḥibiyyah.

* Shī'ah seribes frequently substitute Abu Nasr for the hateful name of Abu Bakr.

VI. Fol. 88 b. Three short pieces, as follows: 1. رسالم سلطان اباقا, Sa'di's interview with Sultan Abaka, drawn up from the poet's oral relation by an anonymous writer. It has been translated by Harington, Introduction, pp. 17-19, and by Graf, Lustgarten, vol. ii. pp. 142-146. 2. رساله دوم , Sa'di's advice to a ruler, addressed to Ankiyanu, who was Moghul governor of Fars, A.H. 667-670. See the Shirāz-Nāmah, fol. 75, and Hāfiz Abrū, fol. 98. 3. حكايت ملك شمس الدين. An aneedote relating to Malik Shams ud-Din, and the remonstrances made to him by Sa'dī, told by an anonymous writer; translated by Harington, pp. 19-21, and by Graf, Lustgarten, vol. ii. pp. 146-148.

Malik Shams ud-Din B. Mālik was placed, A.H. 676, at the head of the revenue collection ماحب مقاطع in Fārs. See the Shirāz Nāmah, fol. 76, and Ḥāfiz Abrū, fol. 98.

VII. Foll. 98 b—284 a. ڪاتان, the Gulistān.

منت خدایرا عز و جل که طاعتش Beg.

This is the most popular Persian work in the East, and the best known in Europe. Two of the latest and most correct of its innumerable editions have been published by Dr. Sprenger, Calcutta, 1851, and by Mr. John Platts, London, 1874. It has been translated into Latin by Gentius, 1651, into English by Fr. Gladwin, 1806, by Dumoulin, 1807, by Eastwick, 1852, and by Platts, 1873, into German by Graf, 1846, into French by A. du Ryer, 1634, D'Alégre, 1704, Gaudin, 1789, and C. Defrémery, 1858.

The following articles, viii.—xvii., are written in the margins.

VIII. Fol. 4 b. بوستان, the Būstān, a moral poem, scarcely less known than the preceding work.

بنام خداوند جان آفرین Beg.

The Būstān has been printed in Calcutta, 1810 and 1828, in Lahore, 1863, Cawnpore, 1868, and Tabrīz, A.H. 1285. It has been edited, with the Turkish commentary of Surūrī, by Graf, Vienna, 1850, translated into German by the same scholar, Jena, 1850, and by Schlechta Vszerd, Vienna, 1852, and into English by H. W. Clarke, London, 1879.

IX. Fol. 108 a. تصائد عربى, the Arabic Kasidahs.

X. Fol. 116 b. قصائده فارسی, the Persian Kaşıdalıs, in alphabetical order.

XI. Fol. 147 a. مراثى, elegies, or funeral poems. Some pieces of this and the preceding section have been translated by Graf, Zeitschrift der D. Morg. Gesellschaft, voll. ix., xii. and xv.

XII. Fol. 151 b. Assidahs in alternating Persian and Arabic verses.

XIII. Fol. 157 a. ترجيعات, poems with refrains.

XIV. Fol. 164 a. طبات, Ghazals called Tayyibāt, or "pleasant," in alphabetical order. Some of these have been translated by Graf, Zeitschrift, voll. xiii. and xv.

XV. Fol. 262 b. بدائع, Ghazals composed in the ornate or artificial style, also alphabetically arranged.

XVI. Fol. 306 a. خراتيم, Ghazals called Khavātīm, or signets, in alphabetical order.

XVII. Fol. 322 b. غزليات قديم, the early Ghazals, alphabetically arranged.

XVIII. Fol. 284 b. كتاب صاحبيه, short moral and epigrammatic poems, in the form of Mukatta'āt, called Ṣāḥibiyyah, from their dedication to the Ṣāḥib Dīvān (see above, art. v.). They have been edited, with a translation in German verse, by Dr. W. Bacher, under the title of "Sa'di's Aphorismen und Sinngedichte," Strassburg, 1879.

الحمد لله على نعمة زايدة المستزيدة من كرمه .Beg.

In the present copy, contrary to what is found in most MSS., the Mukaṭṭaʿāt of the Kitāb Ṣāḥibiyyah are arranged in alphabetical order. They are followed by some pieces in Maṣnavī, foll. 322—335.

XIX. مقطعات, Mukaṭṭaʿat. This section, which in most copies, and in the printed editions, follows the Ṣāḥibbiyah, and comprises a few pieces in alphabetical order, does not appear as a separate section in the present copy; but its contents are found distributed according to their rhymes in the alphabetical series of the preceding book.

XX. Facetious and licentious pieces in verse and in prose, viz. 1. مطائبات, jocular poems, generally called خبيثات, or "wicked," foll. 339 b—340 a, margins. 2. مضح كات, comic pieces in prose, consisting of three mock homilies, called مجالس هزل, foll. 335 b—355 a.

XXI. Fol. 340 b, margins. رباعیات, Rubā'is, or quatrains.

XXII. Foll. 350 a—355 a, margins. فرويات, detached distichs.

محمد القوام الكاتب الشيرازي : Copvist

This MS. contains two whole-page miniatures at the beginning, two at the end, and sixty-seven of smaller size in the body of the volume. They are in the Persian style and of the highest degree of finish. The first two pages contain a table of contents, disposed in two ornamental circular designs. The last two pages, also richly illuminated, contain versified chronograms giving A.H. 974 as the date of transcription, and A.H. 976 as the year in which the ornamentation was completed.

On the last page is a note of purchase dated Dehli, A.H. 1149.

Add. 7741.

Foll. 337;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 12 lines in the margin; written in neat Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 901 (A.D. 1496).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The Kulliyāt of Sa'dī, with the preface of Ibn Bīsutūn.

This copy contains the Mukatta at alphabetically arranged, foll. 320 b, 322 a; but it wants the sixth of the prose works (see above, art. vi.), and has two lacunes, viz. one of about thirty-four leaves after fol. 213, extending from the latter part of the Tarjiband to the Tayyibāt in c, Calcutta edition, vol. ii. pp. 259—300, and another of about fifteen leaves after fol. 229, extending from to of the same section. A portion of the Rubā'is and Fardiyyāt is also wanting. The first thirty-one leaves are in a later hand, and want the rubrics.

منعم الدين الأوحدى : Copyist

Or. 1365.

Foll. 459; 15 in. by 9¼; 12 lines, 3¾ in. long, with 24 lines in the margin; written in fair Nestalik, with rich 'Unvāns, and marginal ornaments on every page, apparently in the 16th century; bound in stamped leather. [Sir Charles Alex. Murray.]

The Kulliyat of Sa'dī.

Contents: Preface of Ibn Bisutūn, fol. 3 b. The five prose works, fol. 7 b. Gulistān, fol. 82 b. Būstān, fol. 3 b, margins. Arabic and Persian Kaṣīdahs, and Elegies, foll. 238 b—245 a, margins. Mulamma'āt, wrongly headed غـزليات قديه, fol. 238 b. Tarji'āt, fol. 244 b. Tayyibāt, fol. 251 b. Badā'i', fol. 347 b. Khavātīm, fol. 383 b. Ghazaliyyāt i Kadīm, without heading, fol. 399 a. Ṣāḥibiyyah, with the heading, fol. 399 a. Ṣāḥibiyyah, with the heading مالية ألم المنابعة عليه ألم المنابعة ألم ال

عنايت الله الكاتب الشيرازي :Copyist

The MS. contains a richly illuminated table of contents, and two whole-page miniatures in Persian style at beginning and end. In a note written on the fly-leaf by Sir C. A. Murray, it is stated to have belonged "to Zulfekar Khan, the commander-in-chief of the army in the reign of Fath Ali Shah." In the margin of fol. 9 is found an entry relating to the birth of a grandson of that officer in A.H. 1236. At the end is found the seal of Bābā Khān (afterwards Fath 'Alī Shāh; see Malcolm, vol. ii. p. 184).

Add. 16,764.

Foll. 377; 9½ in. by 5¾; 12 lines, 2½ in. long, with 24 lines in the margins, written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān, illuminated headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated (fol. 99 a) Zulķa'dah, A.H. 984 (A.D. 1577).

[WM. YULE.]

The Kulliyat of Sa'di, wanting the Arabic Kaşidahs. The Şahibiyyah, foll. 338 b—353 a, and the following sections, are not, as in the preceding copies, alphabetically arranged. Fol. 134 has a whole-page miniature in the Persian style.

Add. 5601.

Foll. 349; 15½ in. by 10¼; 9 lines, 3 in. long, with 20 lines in the margins, written in neat Nestalik, with fifteen rich 'Unvāns, and ornamental borders on every page, apparently in the 16th century; bound in stamped and gilt leather.

The Kulliyat of Sa'dī.

This copy contains the Mukatta'āt, foll. 312 b—316 a, but wants the Ṣāḥibiyyah. It has four whole-page miniatures at beginning and end, and twenty-one of lesser size in the body of the volume. They are finely executed in the Indian style. Foll. 2 b and 3 a contain the first words of Bisutūn's preface, and a table of contents written within richly illuminated borders with the heading:

ightharpoonup in the size of the same in the size of the size

On the first page is an 'Arzdidah dated Lucknow, the first year of Shāhjahān II. (A.H. 1173).

Add. 17,961.

Foll. 426; 12<sup>3</sup> in. by 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; 11 lines, 3 in. loug, with 24 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and ruled margins, about the close of the 16th century.

The Kulliyāt of Sa'dī, wanting the Fardiyyāt. At the beginning is the first half of a table of contents, richly illuminated. On the first page is a partly obliterated note, in which the name of Ibrāhīm 'Adilshāh (A.H. 988—1037), and lower down the date A.H. 1014, are still legible.

Add. 7742.

Foll. 376; 12 in. by 72; 18 lines, 3 in. long, with 14 lines in the margin; written in fair

Nestalik, with 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[CL. J. RICH.]

The Kulliyāt of Sa'dī, wanting the Rubā'is-It has a whole-page miniature in Persian style at the beginning.

Add. 7743.

Foll. 399; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{2}; 18 lines, 2\frac{1}{8} in. long, with 12 lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvans, illuminated headings, and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The Kulliyāt of Sa'dī, wanting the Arabic Ķaṣīdahs, the Mukaṭṭa'āt, and the comical pieces in prose.

Add. 18,412.

Foll. 233; 10 in. by 6; 21 lines, 23 in. long, with 18 lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1076 (A.D.1666).

[WM. YULE.]

A portion of the Kulliyāt, containing—the Būstān, fol. 1 b. The Persian Ķaṣīdahs, without alphabetical arrangement, fol. 62 b. The Tarjī'-band, fol. 82 b. The Ṭayyibāt, fol. 87 b. The preface of Ibn Bisūtūn and the six prose tracts, fol. 152 b. The Gulistān, fol. 179 b.

Add. 18,411.

Foll. 197; 11¼ in. by 6; 20 lines, 2½ in. long; with 44 lines in the margin, written in minute Nestalik, with illuminated headings and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

[WM. YULE.]

An earlier collection of the works of Sa'dī, differing from the preceding in the number and order of the works included, and in the entire absence of alphabetical arrangement in the poetical sections.

The editor, whose name does not appear, states in a short preface beginning حمد بيت وثناى بي غايت خالقي المعلى, that, after in that, after an unremitting study of the works of the most eminent writers in prose and verse, he had found none brighter or more delightful than the writings of the late (مرحوم) Musharrif ud-Dīn Sa'dī, whom he styles "king of the Imāms and divine sages, Sultan of the poets and philosophers," ملك الائمة والعارفيين and, as they were scattered piecemeal in people's hands, he had deemed it a stringent duty to bring them together, and had spared no trouble till he had collected them in the present volume.

Contents: The five sittings (Majlis; see p. 596 b, art. ii.), fol. 1 b. The Būstān, fol. 8 b. The Gulistan, fol. 54 b. The Tayyibat, , fol. 89 b. Badā'i', اول دفتر بنام ایسزد دانا . fol. اڪر بتحفيه جانان هزار جان آري . beg يارب از ماچه فلاح . Khavātīm, beg. يارب از ماچه . fol. 138 b. Persian Ka- ايد اكر تو نيذيرى بقكر و سياس و منت , fol. 142 b. Mulamma'at, beg. اى هو النفس يعدل العقال, fol. 156 a. Tarjī'āt, fol. 158 a. The tract on reason and love (p. 596 b, art. iv.), fol. 160 b. Nasihat ul-Mulūk (art. v.), foll. 161 b-166 a. The tract of Ankiyanu, (art. vi. 2), fol. 178 b. Questions of the late إ.(art. iii.) سوال صاحب ديوان ماضي (art. iii.) fol. 179 b. Sāhibiyyah (art. xviii.), beg. . fol. 180 a. سخن بذكر تو آراستن مراد آنست Muță'ibat in verse (art. xx. 1), fol. 188 b. Mukatta'āt (art. xix.), fol. 193 a. Rubā'iyāt, fol. 193 b. Mufradāt, fol. 195 b.

Foll. 166 a—178 b contain a work which is not Sa'dī's. It is a wordy contest between Baghdād and Isfahan, مناظرات بغداد و اصفهای, written in ornate prose, alternating with Arabic and Persian verses.

الحمد لله على نعمايه و الصلوة و السلام على .Beg. محمد خير انبيايه

The author, 'Abd us-Salām B. Abil-Mājid, surnamed Kamāl ul-Iṣfahānī, ابى الباجد البلقب بكال الاصفهاني, is not to be confounded with the well-known poet Kamāl Isfahānī (p. 580 b), whose proper name was Ismā'ıl. He belongs to a later period (probably to the eighth century of the Hijrah); for he mentions Auḥad ud-Din Kirmānī, who died A.H. 697, as one of the holy men that lay buried in Baghdād.

He had long been, he says in the preamble, wandering from place to place in pursuit of knowledge, and having found Baghdad and Isfahan fairer than all other cities, was at a loss to which he should give the preference, when a friend helped him out of his perplexity by communicating to him the debate which follows. It is a dialogue in which each of the contending cities hoasts in turn, its glories, privileges, and attractions. Eventually Baghdad yields the palm to its rival as being the abode of the illustrious Vazīr, Shihāb ul-Ḥakk vad-Din Mubārakshāh, الصاحب المعظم الدستور المكرم . . . شهاب الحق والدين نظام الاسلام و عنون المسلمين ... مخدوم , who is styled the master of Iran, and described as a wise and powerful ruler, and a munificent patron of letters.

In conclusion the author resolves to return to his native city, hoping to introduce himself by means of that "contest" to the notice of the noble Vazir, to whom he sent at the same timea laudatory poem rhyming in the letter ...

تم ديموان افضل الشعرا والفضلا : Subscription قدوة المحققين مشرف الدين مصلم السعدى قدس الله روحه العزيز على يد العبد الضعيف پيارة بن شيخ جدال ساكن قنوم

On the first page are two 'Arzdidahs of the reign of 'Alamgir, dated respectively the second and forty-sixth year (A.D. 1069 and 1113).

Add. 25,812.

Foll. 217; 93 in. by 53; 17 lines, 33 in. vol. 11.

long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Herat, Shavvāl, A.H. 995 (A.D. 1587).

[WM. CURETON.]

The Divan of Sa'di.

Contents: I. Foll. 2 b—12 a. The Persian Kaşīdahs arranged in alphabetical order. The contents correspond with the first portion only of the same section in the Calcutta edition, vol. ii. pp. 214—220, the latter part of the alphabet being only represented by the nos. 31 and 34 of the same edition.

II. Foll. 12 a—152 b. Ghazals alphabetically arranged, not, however, as usual, by the rhyme-letters, but by the first letter of each piece. This is precisely the arrangement which was adopted by Ibn Bisutūn A.H. 734 (see p. 596 a), but which is not followed in the copies of the Kulliyāt. The contents are principally derived from the Kitāb i Ṭayyibāt; but the first part of the series includes some Ķasīdahs, and such strophes of the Tarji'-band as begin with the letter 1.

III. Foll. 152 b—208 a. Another series of Ghazals, alphabetically arranged by the rhyme-letters, and, under each of these, by the initial letter of each piece. Most of the Ghazals included belong to the Kitāb i Badā'i'.

IV. Foll. 208 α—217 α. Rubā'is arranged according to the rhyme-letters.

Copyist: الكاتب زرد

The MS. is endorsed ديوان شيخ سعدى. On the same page are several 'Arzdidahs of the reign of Shāhjahān, the earliest of which is dated of the 17th year (A.H. 1053—4).

Add. 17,330.

Foll. 13; 8½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with two 'Unvūns, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 871 (A D. 1467).

The Būstān, foll. 2-124, and the Gulistān, foll. 127-213; see p. 597.

The following inscription written at the beginning of each work, within illuminated borders, states that the MS. was written for Sultan Muhammad II. (A.H. 855—886).

برسم خزانه السلطان الاعظم مالك رقاب الامم خليفة الله في العالم السلطان محمد خان بن سلطان مراد خان خلد الله تعالى ملكه وسلطانه

بالى سلطاني الكاتب : Copyist

Add. 16,811.

Foll. 202;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 10 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 24 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvān, gold headings, and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 15th eentury.

[WM. YULE.]

The Gulistān, written in the centre of the page, and the Būstān, written in the margins from fol. 1 b to fol. 185 b.

Sloane 2951.

Foll. 172;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long, with 24 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik, with a rich 'Unvān, and with illuminated headings and borders throughout, probably in the 16th century; bound in stamped and painted eovers.

The Gulistān written in the centre of the page, and the Būstān written in the margins from fol. 6 b to 172 a. There are two wholepage miniatures at the beginning, and six of smaller size in the body of the volume, all in Persian style.

قوام بن محمد شيرازى : Copyist

On the fly-leaf is written: "Daniel Walde his booke. April the 9th, 1704. Bought att Suratt in the East Indies."

Add. 7744.

Foll. 163;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $1\frac{3}{4}$  in. long, with 24 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān, illuminated headings, and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Gulistan, with the Bustan in the margins.

At the beginning are two whole-page miniatures, with illuminated borders, in Persian style.

Or. 1416.

Foll. 147;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, and 26 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik, as stated, in Kashmīr, apparently about the middle of the 19th century.

The Gulistan, with the Bustan in the margins.

Or. 1219.

Foll. 142;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century. [Alexandre Jaba.]

The Būstān.

Add. 26,158.

Foll. 129;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Turkish Naskhi; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1038 (A.D. 1629).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The Büstan, with marginal notes, partly Turkish.

Add. 27,262.

Foll. 175; 15 in. by 10½; 12 lines, 5¾ in. long; written in a large and elegant Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gold headings, interlinear gilding and gold designs on the margins throughout; dated Agrah, Rabi' I., A.H. 1039 (A.D. 1629); bound in painted and glazed covers. [Sir John Malcolm.]

The Būstān of Sa'dī.

This fine copy, ornamented with ten miniatures in Indian style, and of exquisite finish, is due to the penmanship of a well-known physician and poet, who signs Ḥakīm Rukn ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, commonly called Ḥakīm Ruknā, حكيم ركن الدين معود الشهير بحكيم

Rukn ud. Din Kāshī, who adopted the takhallus of Masih, was the son of Hakim Nizām ud-Din 'Ali, of Kāshān, and began his poetical career at the court of 'Abbas I. He repaired to India in the reign of Akbar, and became one of the favourite poets of Shāhjahān, whose court he left, at an advanced age (according to Rivaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 424, one hundred and five lunar years), to return to his native country, where he died. The Mirat ul-'Alam, fol. 482, gives A.H. 1057 Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151, Atashkadah, fol. 111, and Khulasat ul-Afkar, fol. 283, A.H. 1066, as the date of his death. See also Padishah Namah, vol. i. p. 349.

On the first page is written: "This book was purchased at Kermanshah in 1810 by Sir John Malcolm from a prince of the Zund family, whose eyes had been put out, and who wandered as a mendicant over the country his ancestors and relations had so long governed."

Fol. 168 b has been reproduced by photography in the Oriental Series of the Palæographical Society, No. 50.

Add. 26,157.

Foll. 158; 9 in. by 5; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1098 (A.D. 1687). [WM. ERSKINE.]
The Būstān.

Add. 14,346.

Foll. 120; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 17th century. [J. Crawfurd.]

The Būstān, imperfect at the end. A leaf appended to the MS. by a later hand, to make it appear complete, is dated A.H. 1185.

Add. 16,765.

Foll. 108; 8½ in. by 5½; about 20 lines, 4 in. long; written in a rude Indian character; dated Mednīpūr, Orissa, Jumāda II., 17th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 1147, A.D. 1734).

[WM. YULE.]

The Būstān.

Add. 9696.

Foll. 169; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 13 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, in the 18th century.

The Büstan.

Add. 5631.

Foll. 193; 7½ in. by 5½; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1180 (A.D. 1766).

[N. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The Bustan.

Add. 25,813.

Foll. 141; 9 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

The Bustan.

Add. 6630.

Foll. 202; 9 in. by 6; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik on European paper water-marked 1799. [J. F. Hull.]

The Būstān.

Add. 25,814.

Foll. 56;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]

A commentary on the Būstān, by 'Abd ur-Rasūl B. Shihāb ud-Dīn, etc., al-Ķurashī, عبد الرسول ابن شهاب الدین ابن عبد الله بن طاهر بن حسن القرشي

حمد بیحد خالقی را که بقطرات مطرات وانزلنا .Beg

This short commentary, in which the Farhang i Jahāngīrī is frequently quoted, deals chiefly with the explanation of proper names, rare words, and a few detached passages.

The author states in the preface that he wrote it in A.H. 1073, at the request of his elder brother, Shaikh 'Abd Ullah, and that he submitted it to the inspection of his master, Mīr Nūr Ullah.

'Abd ur-Rasūl has also written a commentary upon the Gulistān. See the Oude Catalogue, pp. 550, 552.

Add. 6627.

Foll. 179;  $5\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [J. F. Hull.]

The Gulistān, with some marginal notes in Arabic. Some lacunes of the original MS. have been supplied by later hands.

Sloane 2953.

Foll. 107; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

كلستان

The Gulistān; see p. 597 a.

At the end is a seal bearing the name of Ni'mat Ullah with the date A.H. 1082.

From an endorsement in the handwriting of Humphrey Wanley, dated A.D. 1724-5, this MS. appears to have once belonged to the Harleian Collection.

Add. 26,155.

Foll. 77;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 5; 19 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The Gulistan, with some marginal notes. It wants the Khatimah.

Add. 26,154.

Foll. 116;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines, 3 in. long, in a page; written in a coarse Indian character, about the close of the 17th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The Gulistān, with copious marginal notes. The notes have been written by Ibrāhīm B. Ķāzī Ḥusain, who also transcribed the last six leaves, which supply a defect of the original MS., and are dated Aurangābād, Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1160 (A.D. 1747).

Add. 6658.

Foll. 97;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in large Indian Nestalik; dated Sūrat, Jumāda II., A.H. 1193 (A.D. 1779).

The Gulistan.

تلجارام ولد جكجيونداس :Copyist

Add. 19,274.

Foll. 122; 10 in. by 7; 11 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in.

ong; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Safar, A.H. 1197 (A.D. 1783).

The Gulistan, wanting the Khatimah.

On the first page is written, "John Dawson, 1798."

Add. 14,345.

Foll. 215; 12½ in. by 8½; 9 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Muharram, the 25th year of 'Alam Shāh (probably for Shāh 'Alam, i.e. A.H. 1198, A.D. 1783). [John Crawfurd.]

The Gulistan.

Copyist: اغا مرزا

Or. 349.

Foll. 144; 9 in. by 5½; 13 lines, 3½ in. long; written in large and fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 18th century. [Geo. Ww. Hamilton.]

The Gulistan, with seven miniatures in fair Indian style.

The following subscription, purporting to have been transcribed from the author's autograph, states that the MS. was completed in the last decade of Muḥarram, A.H. 662, on the day in which Shīrāz was taken (by Hulāgū's army), and the kingdom passed from the house of Salghur to other masters:

تم الكتاب بحمد الله عز و جل و هي نسخه الاوله بخط المصنف عفا الله تعالى عنه يوم السبت في العشر الاخير من محرم سنة اثنين وستين و ستهاية يوم فتح شيراز وانتقال الملك من ال سلغر الى غيرهم

Add. 6626.

Foll. 112; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 14 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century.

[J. F. HULL.]

The Gulistan.

Add. 16,812.

Foll. 85; 8 in. by 53; 15 lines, 33 in. long; written in fair Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

The Gulistan, wanting a few lines at the beginning.

Add. 17,962.

Foll. 110; 8½ in. by 6; 13 lines, 4 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; apparently in the 18th century.

The Gulistan, transcribed, as stated in a Persian note at the beginning, for Lieut. O'Shea.

Add. 6967.

Foll. 21; 7<sup>3</sup> in. by 6<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>; 15 lines in a page; written by John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1806.

A few extracts from the Gulistan, with English translation.

Add. 5973.

Foll. 82; 8 in. by 5½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in a small Turkish Naskhi; dated Rabi' I., A.H. 360 (probably for 960, A.D. 1553).

A Turkish commentary upon the preface of the Gulistan, with the text.

Author: Maḥmūd B. 'Uşmān B. 'Alī ul-Lāmi'i, محمود بن عثمان بن علي اللامعي

يا من تعالى عن ثناء الخلايق جناب قدسك Beg.

The author, a Turkish poet, who was born in Brusa, and died A.H. 938 (Hammer, Geschichte der Osmanischen Dichtkunst, vol. ii. p. 20), states at the end that he completed this work in A.H. 910. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 231, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 541, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 94, No. 65.

Or. 1366.

Foll. 159;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in small Naskhi, apparently in the 16th century.

[Sir Chas. ALEX. MURRAY.]

An Arabic Commentary upon the Gulistān, with the text.

يعقوب بن ,Author: Ya'kūb B. Sayyid 'Alī, يعقوب بن سيد على

الحمد لله على ما اولانا من النعم و رزقنا Beg.

It is stated by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 230, that, according to some, the real author of this commentary was Munīrī (Osmanische Dichtkunst, vol. i. p. 304), and that Sayyid-'Alī-Zādah had appropriated it by putting his name in the preface. But a later commentator, Surūrī, frequently refers to the present work as Ibn Sayyid 'Alī's commentary, in order to correct its mistakes.

At the beginning of the present copy is an Arabic note stating that the author, Ya'kūb B. Sayyid 'Alī, died on his return from a pilgrimage to Mecca, A.H. 931. The same date is given by Haj. Khal. l. c., and vol. iv. p. 402, where the same writer is said to have dedicated a commentary on the فرائض السجاوندي to Sultan Sulaimān.

See Uri, p. 96, the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 355, the Upsala Catalogue, p. 60, Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, Nos. 33, 242, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 549.

Harleian 5451.

Foll. 208; 7 in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long, in a page; written in small Nestalik; dated A.H. 982 (A.D. 1574).

An Arabic commentary upon the Gulistān, with the text.

Author: Surūrī, سروري

Beg. الحمد لله الذي جعلني من علماء البيان Muslih ud-Din Mustafa B. Sha'ban, poetically surnamed Surūrī, was the son of a Gallipoli merchant. After teaching at several Medresehs in Constantinople he was appointed tutor to Prince Muṣtafā, son of Sultan Sulaimān, over whom he acquired unbounded influence. His royal pupil having been put to death by his father (A.H. 960, see Hammer's Geschichte, vol. iii. p. 315), Surūrī spent the rest of his life in retirement, and died A.H. 969, at the age of seventy-two years. He had made a special study of Persian poetry, and left, besides the present work, commentaries on the Maṣnavī, the Būstān, the Dīvān of Ḥāfiz and the Shabistān i Khayāl. See Zail ush-Shaķā'īk, Add. 18,519, fol. 10 α.

The author says in his preface that he wrote the present work for the use of his pupil, Sultan (i.e. prince) Muṣtafā, son of Sultan Sulaimān, because the Gulistān required a commentary, and he wished to supply the deficiencies of a former one written by some Maulā (in the margin, "known as Ibn Sayyid 'Alī'), who was unacquainted with Persian idioms, and had frequently mistaken the sense. He says in conclusion that he had completed the work in Amasia, at the end of Rabī' II., A.H. 957.

See Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 242, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 539, the Upsala Catalogue, p. 59, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 343, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 549.

Add. 7745.

Foll. 203;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Turkish Naskhi; dated A.H. 1116 (A.D. 1704). [Cl. J. Rich.] The same commentary.

Sloane 2651.

Foll. 188; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in small Naskhi, apparently in the 18th century.

A Turkish commentary upon the Gulistan, with the text.

Author: Sham أ, شبعي

سپاس بی پایان اول صانع بی نظیره Beg.

Maulānā Sham'i, whose original name was Muṣtafā Darvish, has commented several other Persian poems, as the Maṣnavī (p. 589 a), Makhzan ul-Asrār, Manṭiķ uṭ-ṭair, Pand-Nāmah, Būstān, the Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, etc. He died, according to Haj. Khal., some time after A.H. 1000. His commentary on the Subḥat of Jāmī is stated, vol. iii. p. 575, to have been written in A.H. 1009. See also Dorn, St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 333.

The author states in the preface that he had written this commentary at the request of his pupil in Persian, the intendant of the Imperial Gardens, Muhammad Chalabi, and had completed it within five months. It was written, as stated in a transcript of the author's autograph, described in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 48, in A.H. 977, or, according to the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 540, A.H. 979. Compare the Gotha Catalogue, p. 93.

Add. 7746.

Foll. 202; 8 in. by 5½; 21 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1224 (A.D. 1809). [Cl. J. Rich.] The same commentary.

Add. 19,509.

Foll. 251; 7½ in. by 5½; 19 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1058 (A.D. 1648).

The same commentary.

Harleian 5485.

Foll. 239; 8½ in. by 4½; 21 lines, 2½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, with ruled margins; dated Constantinople, A.H. 1000 (A.D. 1591).

The same commentary.

The margins of foll. 3—23 contain the beginning of the same author's commentary upon the Būstān.

Beg. حمد بي حد وثناء بي عد اول صانع See the Upsala Catalogue, p. 99, the Leyden Catalogue, p. 114, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 69.

Add. 26,156.

Foll. 120; 9 in. by 6\(\frac{1}{4}\); 15 lines, 3\(\frac{3}{8}\) in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-\(\text{amīz}\), apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

شكرستان

A commentary on the Gulistan.

The beginning of the preface is wanting, and the author's name does not appear. The remaining portion contains the above title, and the work concludes with some verses, stating that it was written in A.H. 1095.

The margins contain copious notes, in the same handwriting as the text. The fly-leaf has the title "Kilid e Gulistán" in the handwriting of Mr. Erskine.

The marginal notes of a copy of the Gulistān, Add. 26,154 (p. 604 b), include several extracts from the present commentary.

Or. 366.

Foll. 284; 11 in. by 7; 17 lines, 43 in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in the 18th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

بہار عمر

A commentary on the Gulistan.

غنجه کاستان کذت کنزاً که از کلبانك

The author does not state his name, but gives to understand, in the conclusion, that it is connected with the words and act it may be عبد الحي عادل.

It is stated in the preface that the work was written in the town of Palval (Thornton's Pulwul, 41 miles south of Dehli), where the author lived in retirement.

The date of composition, A.H. 1119, is conveyed in a versified chronogram at the end of the words كستانم بهار عمر. The work concludes, foll. 279—283, with a summary of the moral bearings and logical connection of all the tales of the Gulistān.

The margins contain copious notes in the same handwriting as the text. From those of the last page it appears that the author had previously written commentaries on the Gulistân and the Maşnavī, respectively entitled كابن اعتدال and موجة معنوى.

Sloane 3587.

Foll. 55;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1118 (A.D. 1706).

زاد المسافرين

"Store of the wayfarers," rules of religious life, illustrated by ancedotes and fables.

Author: Amir Ḥusainī, امير حسيني

Mīr Ḥusainī Sādāt, a native of Ghūr, became in Multān a disciple of Rukn ud-Dīn Abul-Fatḥ, grandson and successor of the famous Shaikh, Bahā ud-Dīn Zakariyyā (Rukn ud-Dīn died, according to Akhbār ul-Akhyār, fol. 57, shortly after A.H. 725). He afterwards settled in Herat, where he died, as stated by Jāmī, Nafaḥāt, p. 705, on the 16th of Shavvāl, A.H. 718. He left many Sufi works in prose and verse; the following are especially mentioned: Kanz ur-Rumūz, Zād ul-Musāfirīn, Nuzhat ul-Arvāḥ, Rūḥ ul-Arvāḥ, Ṣirāṭ Mustaķīm, Sī Nāmah, and Ṭarab ul-Maḥāsin. See above, p. 40 a, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 74, Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 762, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 116, and Atashkadah, fol. 60.

The work is divided into eight Makālahs, which, however, are not distinguished in the present copy. The date of composition, A.H. 729, which Dr. Sprenger gives from his MS., Oude Catalogue, p. 430, is not found in any of the Museum copies.

See Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 528, the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 116, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, pp. 356, 438, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 10.

Add. 7750.

Foll. 51; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 878 (A.D. 1473). [Cl. J. Rich.]

كلشى راز

"The rose-bed of mystery," a Sufi poem. Author: Maḥmūd, هبره.

Maḥmūd B. 'Abd ul-Karīm B. Yaḥyā ash-Shabistarī (or, as in the subscription of the present copy, Chapistarī), from Shabistar, a village at eight farsangs from Tabrīz, wrote, beside the present work, three Sufi tracts entitled Ḥaķķ ul-Yaķīn (Add. 16,832, i., and Mélanges Asiatiqués, vol. v. p. 229), Risālah i Shāhid, and Sa'ādat Nāmah (Add. 27,261, xxiv). He died A.H. 720. See Majālis ul-'Ushshāķ, fol. 97, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 508, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 405, and Ātashkadah, fol. 17.

The author states in the prologue that he had written this work in answer to some questions in verse, received by messenger, in A.H. 717, from some eminent personage of Khorasan, whose name is not given. (It was, according to Jāmī, Nafaḥāt, p. 705, Amīr Ḥusainī, mentioned under the preceding No.). Although he had composed numerous works in prose, he had never attempted poetry. Yielding, however, to the instances of his friends, he wrote the answers in the same form as the questions, i.e. in Maṣnavī rhyme, and completed them in the space of a few hours. The questions, which relate to the meaning of some Sufi terms, are given in their original form, and each is followed by the answer.

The work has been edited, with a German version, by Hammer, "Rosenflur des Geheimnisses," Pesth, 1838. It is noticed in the Jahrbücher, vol. 66, Anzeige-Blatt, p. 26, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 425, Krafft, p. 66, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, pp. 212, 349.

Add. 8992.

Foll. 48; 6 in. by 4; 11 lines, 2½ in. long; written in small Shikastah-āmīz; dated A.H. 1220 (A.D. 1805).

The same work.

Add 21,104.

Foll. 892; 9½ in. by 6½; 19 lines, 3 in. long, with 34 lines in the margins; written in small Nestalik, with 'Unvān, illuminated headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi' I., A.H. 923 (A.D. 1517).

[H. STEINSCHUSS.]

كليات امير خسرو

The complete poetical works of Amīr Khusrau, who died A.H. 725; see p. 240 b.

The works of Amīr Khusrau are mentioned by Sir Gore Ouseley, in his Notices, pp. 148 —163, by Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 467—470, and by Dr. Dorn, St. Petersburg Catalogue, pp. 350. In the last work they are stated to have been collected by the poet Saifi, whose preface is preserved in one of the MSS. there described. An account of their contents by Raushan 'Alī (Ziyā ud-Dīn Khān) is preserved in Or. 1869, foll. 3—16, and a detailed analysis, with translated extracts, by Sir Henry Elliot, of such of Khusrau's poems as are of historical interest, will be found in the History of India, vol. iii. pp. 524—566.

The contents are as follows:

I. Fol. 5 b. عفة الصغر, Poems of adolescence, with a prose preface by the author.

Khusrau speaks in the preface of his precocious taste for poetry, and quotes a Rubā'i extemporized by him in his childhood in the presence of Khwājah 'Izz ud-Dīn, from whom he received the poetical surname of Sulṭānī, adopted in his early compositions. Much against his will, he states further on, some poems composed by him from his fifteenth to his nineteenth year had been collected by his brother Tāj ud-Dīn Zāhir, who, moreover, forged a chain ("Silsilah") for the fastening of that ship (or anthology, "Safīnah").

The links of that chain are distichs prefixed to each of the separate poems. All have the same measure and rhyme, so as to form one connected poem, binding together the loose contents of the Divan. A similar Silsilah is found in each of the next-following four collections.

The Tuhfat us-Sighar consists of Kasidahs and Tarji'-bands. They are in praise of Sultan Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Balban (A.H. 664—686), of his son Sulṭān-Muḥammad Kā'ān, commonly called Khān i Shahīd, of some great personages of Balban's court, and finally of the poet's spiritual guide, Shaikh Nizām ud-Dīn Auliyā.

In this, as well as in the four following Divans, every piece has prefixed to it the name and scansion of its metre. II. Fol. 51 b. وسط الحيوة, Poems of middle life, with a prose preface.

حمدي كه از ميان جان برايد و ثغاى .Beg.

The pieces here collected were composed by Khusrau, as stated in the preface, Add. 25,807, from his twentieth to his thirty-fourth year (in other copies "from his twenty-fourth to his thirty-second year"). They are Kaṣīdahs and Tarjī'-bands, in praise of Nizām Auliyā, of Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Sulṭān Muḥammad, the eldest son of Balban, and the poet's special patron, whose death in battle in the month of Zuhḥijjah, A.H. 683, is here recorded. Others are addressed to Mu'izz ud-Dīn Kaikubād, who reigned A.H. 686—689, to Ikhtiyār ud-Daulah B. Kishlī Khān, and other Amīrs of that period.

III. Fol. 139 b. غرة الكال, Poems of maturity, with preface.

غره ع كمال انساني از ديباجه حمد

In the preface the author discourses at great length on the excellence of poetry in general, on the superiority of Persian to Arabic poetry, on the different kinds of poetical talent, and on his own rank among Persian poets. He names, as his great models. Sanāi and Khākānī in contemplative poetry, Razī and Kamāl in invention, Nizāmī and Sa'dī in Maşnavī and Ghazals. He then goes on to state that he had been urged to collect the present Divan by his brother, the eminent penman, 'Alā ud-Dīn 'Alīshāh, and expatiates on the great variety of poetical figures or ornaments oise which he had originated, concluding with a sketch of his life. The poems included in the present collection, he states, had been written from his thirty-fourth to his forty-third year, or from A.H. 685 to to the end of A.H. 693.

This Dīvān, which exceeds the others in bulk, consists of Kaṣīdahs, fol. 190 b, Tarjī-bands, fol. 286 b, and Kiṭāhs, fol. 297 b.

The poems are in praise of Nizām ud-Dīn

Auliyā, of the Sultans Mu'izz ud-Dīn Kaiķubād (A.H. 686—689) and Jalāl ud-Dīn Fīrūz Shāh (A.H. 689—695), of the latter's successor, Rukn ud-Dīn Ibrāhīm (A.H. 695), of 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 695—715), lastly of the Amīrs Ikhtiyār ud-Dīn 'Alī B. Aibak, Saif ud-Daulah Bārbak, Tāj ud-Dīn Alp Khān Ghāzī, Tāj ud-Daulah Malik Chhajū, and some others.

IV. Foll. 317 b. بقيم نقيم, Select remnants, or poems of old age, with preface.

حمدی که بقیم نقیم حیات در تحریرآن Beg.

The author treats in the preface of the different kinds of Ghazals, and illustrates by copious and fanciful images the distinctive characters of each of his four Dīvāns. The date of compilation is not given, but from the fact of an elegy on the death of Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn, A.H. 715, being included, it may be inferred that the Dīvān was completed but a few years before the poet's death.

The collection consists of Kaṣīdahs, fol. 331 a, Tarjī'-bands, fol. 377 b, and Mukaṭṭa'āt, fol. 386 a. Most of the poems are addressed to Muḥammad Shāh ('Alā ud-Dīn), others to his sons, Kuṭb ud-Dīn Mubārak Shāh and Khizr Khān, and to various Amīrs of his court.

The preceding four Dīvāns have been printed with the title of Kulliyāt i Amīr Khusrau in the press of Naval Kishor, Lucknow.

V. Fol. 393 b. ديوان امير خسرو, A collection of Ghazals and Rubā'is.

ای زخیال ما برون در تو خیال کی رسد

The contents originally formed part of the preceding four Divans. With the exception of the first twelve pieces, which are in praise of God and the prophet, the Ghazals are arranged in alphabetical order according to the rhyme-letters, and, under each letter, those which have the same measure are grouped together, the name and scansion of the metre being prefixed to each class. At the end, foll. 861 b—871 a, are Rubā'is without alphabetical arrangement.

VI. Foll. 871 b. مفتاح الفترح, "The key of victories," a poetical account in Maşnavî rhyme of the campaigns of Jalāl ud-Dīn Fīrūz-Shāh during the first year of his reign, i.e. from his accession, A.H. 689, to his return to Dehli in Jumāda II., A.H. 690, the time at which, as stated in the conclusion, the poem was written.

This Maşnavî was originally included in the Ghurrat ul-Kamāl. An abstract of its contents is given by Sir H. Elliot, History of India, vol. iii. pp. 536—541.

The following works are written in the margins:-

VII. Fol. 5 b. مطلع الانوار, A moral and religious poem, written in imitation of the Makhzan ul-Asrār of Nizāmī, and in the same measure.

The poem is dedicated to Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad Shāh. The author states in the concluding lines, fol. 105 b, that it contains 3310 distichs, and was written in two weeks, A.H. 698.

VIII. Foll. 106 b. شيرين و خسرو, Shirīn u Khusrau, an imitation of Nizāmī's Khusrau u Shīrīn.

It is also dedicated to 'Alā ud-Din, and contains a chapter of advice to the author's son, Mas'ūd, then in his tenth year. It is stated, towards the end, fol. 232 b, that this was the second poem written in imitation of Nizīmī's Khamsah, and that it was completed at the beginning of Rajab, A.H. 698. It is added that the poem consists of 4124 distichs.

IX. Foll. 233 b. مجنون ليللي, Majnūn Lailā, in imitation of Nizāmī's Lailā u Majnūn.

ای دادهٔ بدل خزینه راز عقل از توشدهٔ خزینه پرداز

This poem, which is also dedicated to Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn, is stated to contain 2660 distichs, and was written, like the two preceding, in A.H. 698; see fol. 312 b. The text has been lithographed in Calcutta, A.H. 1244, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1286.

X. Fol. 313 b. آئيند، سكندرى, The mirror of Alexander, a counterpart to the Iskandar Nāmah of Nizāmī.

This poem is also dedicated to 'Alā ud-Dīn. It is stated at the end, fol. 445 a, to have been written in A.H. 699, and to contain 4450 distichs.

In some copies, as Add. 24,983, 22,699, etc., the beginning is

XI. Fol. 447 b. هشت بېشت, The eight paradises, a poem on the loves of Bahrām, written in imitation of Nizāmī's Haft Paikar.

The author states at the end, fol. 540 b, that this poem was completed A.H. 701, and that it contains 3352 disticls. He adds in an appendix, ¿¿, that the whole Khamsah (the five preceding poems, artt. vii—xi.) had been completed in the space of three years, and that it had been revised and corrected by Kāzī Shihāb ud-Dīn, whom he describes as the most accomplished scholar of the age.

XII. Fol. 544 b. قران السعدين, The conjunction of the two lucky planets, a poetical account of the meeting of Sultan Mu'izz ud-Dīn Kaiķubād and his father Nāṣir ud-Dīn Bughrā Khāu), Sultan of Bengal, which took place in Dehli, A.H. 688.

It is stated towards the end, fol. 647 b, that the poem was written in three months, and completed in Ramazān, A.H. 688, the author being then in his 36th year.

See the analysis of the poem by Sir H. Elliot, History of India, vol. iii. pp. 524—534, and the extracts by Prof. Cowell, Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. xxix. pp. 225—239.

The Kirān us-Sa'dain has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1259, and edited, with a commentary, by Maulavī Kudrat Ahmad, Lucknow, A.H. 1261.

XIII. Fol. 660 b. نه سپېر, The nine spheres, a poetical description of the court of Kuth ud-Dīn Mubārak Shāh, with an account of the principal events of his reign.

In the prologue, which contains a dedication to Kutb ud-Din, Khusrau says that his age was then over sixty, and he names the three Sultans who had successively been his patrons, and the objects of his panegyrics, namely, Mu'izz ud-Din Kaikubād, Fīrūz Shāh, and 'Alā ud-Dīn.

See the analysis of this poem by Sir H. Elliot, History of India, vol. iii. p. 557. The poem is there stated to have been completed on the 30th of Jumāda II., A.H. 718, when the poet was sixty-five years of age. Compare Stewart's Catalogue, p. 63.

XIV. Fol. 790 b. دولرانی خضر خای, "Duvalrānī Khizr Khān," a poem on the love adventures of Khizr Khān, son of Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn, with Deval Rānī, the daughter of Rāi Karn of Gujrāt.

This poem, which is dedicated to Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn, was written at the request of prince Khizr Khan, from a narrative penned by himself. But it was not finished until after the death of 'Alā ud-Dīn and Khizr Khān. It is often called خصر خانى, and sometimes عشقية; but the above is the title given to it by the author in the introduction, fol. 809 a.

Khusrau states in the same passage that the heroine's name, which was originally the heroine's name, which was originally, had been changed by him, for convenience's sake, to دولانی, pronouncing the first part like the plural of Daulat—

The text breaks off at the end of the section in which is recorded the tragic end of Khizr Khān and Deval Rānī. In the conclusion, as found in other copies (Add. 7776, fol. 119 a, Or. 335, fol. 154 b), the poet states that he wrote this poem in the space of four months and a few days, and that he completed it on the 6th of Zulka'dah, A.H. 715. He adds that it consisted originally of 4200 verses; but that 319 lines added after the death of Khizr Khān, brought up the total to 4519.

An abstract of the poem is given by Sir H. Elliot, History of India, vol. iii. pp. 544—557. See also E. Thomas, Pathan Kings, p. 176, and Aumer, Münich Catalogue, p. 22.

The MS. contains two whole-page miniatures at the beginning, and fifteen of smaller size in the body of the volume, all in Persian style. On the first page is an illuminated shield enclosing a table of contents.

Add. 25,807.

Foll. 521; 11½ in. by 7; 17 lines, 3 in. long, with 24 lines in the margin; written in fair Nestalik, with three Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

ديوان امير خسرو

The five Divans of Amir Khusrau in their original shape, that is to say, including the Ghazals and Maşnavis. The MS. has some lacunes and transpositions, and the text is far from correct.

The contents are :-

I. Fol. 2 b. وسط الحيوة, the second Divan (p. 610, art. ii.), first half.

The preface, which agrees with that of the preceding copy, is preceded by two lines in Arabic beginning:

بفضل الله قد سطرت هذ الصفحات

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 7 b. Tarji'-band, fol. 42 a.

This second section breaks off in the beginning of the last Tarji'-band (Add. 21,104, fol. 132 b).

II. Fol. 52 b. بقيه نقيه, the fourth Divan (p. 610, art. iv.), wanting the preface, and some lines at beginning and end. It begins with the following verse of the Silsilah:—

Contents: Kasīdalis, fol. 52 b. Tarjī's, fol. 77 b. Masnavīs, fol. 82 a. Ķiţ'ahs (most of which are not found in the preceding copy), fol. 85 a. Ghazals, fol. 99 a. Rubā'īs, fol. 130 a.

The Ghazals, in this and the following Divans, are not in alphabetical order.

III. Fol. 141 a. تحفة الصغر, the first Divān (p. 609, art. i.) wanting the preface and about three pages at the beginning.

Contents Kaşidalıs, fol. 141 a. Tarji's, fol. 163 a. Ķiţ'ahs, fol. 167 b. Ghazals, fol. 169 a. Maşnavīs, fol. 184 a. Rubā'īs, fol. 187 a.

The Kit als and Masnavis are not found in the preceding copy.

IV. Fol. 193 a. A series of Ghazals, probably from the Ghurrat ul-Kamāl (p. 610, art. iii.), imperfect at beginning and end.

بازان بلا عاشقان انك بصحرا مي رود . Beg.

V. Fol. 223 a. The latter half of the second Divān, وسط الحيرة, beginning with the last Tarjī'-band, and containing Ķiţ'ahs, fol. 223 a, Maṣnavīs, fol. 227 a, Ghazals, fol. 236 a, and Rubā'īs, fol. 307 b.

VI. Fol. 327 b. غرت الكمال, the third Divan, with the preface, to which is prefixed the following line in Arabic:

الله اطلع اهلة الغرر من هذه غرة الكمال

Contents: Ķaṣidahs, fol. 359 a. Tarji's, fol. 417 b. Ghazals, 423 a. Rubā'is, fol. 425 a.

There is a gap, apparently of considerable extent, after fol. 422; the latter part of the Tarji's, the whole of the Kit'ahs and Maşnavis, and the greater part of the Ghazals are wanting.

VII. Fol. 442 b. نهايت الكمال, the fifth of the author's Divāns, comprising the poems of the last years of his life, with a preface.

The preface, which is confined to the praises of God, the prophet, and the author's spiritual guide, Nizām ud-Dīn, gives no elue to the date of the compilation. But the Dīvān includes an elegy on the death of Sultan Ķuṭb ud-Dīn Mubārak Shāh, A.H. 720, fol. 464 b, several poems addressed to Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Tughluķ (A.H. 720—725), and to his son and presumptive heir Fakhr ud-Dīn Ulugh Khān, foll. 465, 466, and even a poem on the festive entrance of the latter into Dehli after his accession as Muḥammad Shāh, A.H. 725, fol. 467 a, an event which took place a few months before the death of the poet.

Contents: Preface, fol. 442 b. Kasidahs, fol. 444 a. Tarji's, fol. 464 b. Masnavis, fol. 469 a. Kit'ahs, fol. 473 b. Ghazals, fol. 475 b. Rubā'is, fol. 519 a.

The Nihāyat ul-Kamāl is mentioned in the Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 111, as the last of the five Dīvāns of Khusrau.

Add. 23,549.

Foll. 290;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [ROBERT TAYLOR.]

غرة الكمال

The third Dīvān of Amīr Khusrau (p. 610, art. iii.), with some lacunes.

Contents: Preface, fol. 2 b (wanting about seven leaves after fol. 33, corresponding to Add. 21,104, foll. 165 b—171 a). Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 59 b. Tarjī's, fol. 150 b. Ghazals, fol. 161 b (Add. 25,807, foll. 205 a—208 b). Ķiṭ'ahs, fol. 170 a. Maṣnavīs (imperfect at the end), fol. 190 a. Ghazals, foll. 228 a—253 b (imperfect at beginning and end, corresponding to Add. 25,807, foll. 196 b—205 a, 208 b—218 a). Rubā'īs, foll. 254 a—291 b, (also imperfect at beginning and end, corresponding to Add. 25,807, foll. 427 a—438 a).

The Maşnavīs include Miftāḥ ul-Futūḥ (p. 611, art.vi.), a narrative of the poet's journey to Oude with the Sultan's army (A.H. 687), addressed to his brother Zāhid (see Elliot, vol. iii. p. 535), and a few shorter poems.

Add. 22,700.

Foll. 475; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with Unvān, ornamented headings, and gold-ruled margins, dated Ramazān, A. H. 890 (A.D. 1485). [Sir John Campbell.]

ديوان امير خسرو

A collection of Ghazals from all four Divans of Amir Khusrau, arranged in one alphabetical series.

The arrangement differs from a similar collection described p. 610, art. v., and the number of poems is much smaller. After the Ghazals are found some Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 453 a, not in alphabetical order, and some Rubāʿīs alphabetically arranged, fol. 465 a.

جلال الدين محمد : Copyist

Or. 1215.

Foll. 326; 10 in. by 6; 12 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in an elegant Nestalik, with a rich 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and ornamental headings throughout; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 895 (A.D. 1490); bound in stamped and painted covers.

Another copy of the Dīvān of Amīr Khusrau, substantially agreeing, in both contents and arrangement, with the preceding MS. It contains also some Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 313 b, and Rubāʿīs in alphabetical order, fol. 319 a.

نعيم الدين بن حاجى صدر الدين : Copyist

Add. 7757.

Foll. 452; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines, 2\frac{2}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan of Amir Khusrau, containing Ghazals in alphabetical order, and, at the end, Mukatta at, fol. 434 a, and Ruba is, fol. 440 b, both without alphabetical arrangement.

The contents differ considerably from those of the two preceding copies.

Add. 7756.

Foll. 174; S<sup>1</sup> in. by 5<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>; 14 lines, 3<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan of the same poet, containing Ghazals in alphabetical order, a Tarji', fol. 163 a, some Kit'ahs, fol. 164 a, and Ruba'is, fol. 166 b, the last two sections without alphabetical arrangement. All the Ghazals in 1, but the last seventeen, are wanting, and the MS. is also imperfect at the end. The number of Ghazals is considerably less than in the preceding copies.

Or. 474.

Foll. 267; 7\frac{3}{4} in. by 4\frac{1}{4}; 13 lines, 2\frac{2}{5} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

Ghazals selected from the four Divans of Amir Khusrau (p. 609, artt. i.—iv.), and alphabetically arranged.

Each Ghazal has a heading showing from which of the four Divans it was taken.

The collection is much smaller than Add. 21,104, v., and differently arranged.

The first two leaves, and the last two, which contain sixteen Rubā'is in alphabetical order, are by a later hand.

Foll. 260—267 contain Jami's preface to his Haft Aurang, fol. 260 b, and the beginning of the Silsilat uz-Zahab.

Add. 24,983.

Foll. 136; 10½ in. by 7¼; 22 lines, 3½ in. long, with 48 lines in the margin; written in four gold-ruled columns, in a minute Nestalik, with rich 'Unvāns and marginal ornaments; dated Herat, A.H. 917 (A.D. 1511); bound in stamped and gilt leather.

خمسه امير خسرو

The Khamsah, or five poems of Amīr Khusrau (p. 611, artt. vii.—xi.), viz.: Maţla' ul-Anvār, fol. 2 b. Shīrīn u Khusrau, fol. 28 b. Majnūn u Lailā, fol. 60 b. A'īnah i Sikandarī, fol. 80 b. Hasht Bihisht, fol. 113 b.

An illuminated shield on the first page contains the following inscription: كتاب خسره عليه الرحمة برسم خزانة السلطان الاعظم المخاقان الاعدل الاكرم ابو الغازي سلطان حسين بهادر خان خلد ملكه

"The five Poems of Amîr Khusrau of Dehli, mercy be upon him; for the library of the great Sultan, the just and noble Khā-kān, Abu-l-Ghāzī Sultān Husain Bahādur Khān, may his reign last for ever."

Abul-Ghāzī Sulṭān Ḥusain died in A.H. 911. It is strange to find him designated as the reigning sovereign in a MS. written six years after his death, and at a time when Herat and all Khorasan had passed into the possession of Shāh Ismā'īl Ṣafavī.

At the end of the Maţla' ul-Anvār is found the following subscription: تمت الكتاب بيد الكتاب الدة الهرات تراب اقدام الفقرا محمد على بن درويش على ببلدة الهرات حفظه الله عن الافات و البليات في شهر جمادي الاخر سنة سبع عشر و تسعمايه

Similar colophons, bearing the same date, are appended to the fourth and fifth poems.

On the first page is impressed the seal of Kābil Khān, servant of 'Alamgīr Pādishāh, with the date 1097. Kābil Khān was appointed imperial librarian about the middle of 'Alamgīr's reign. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 82.

Add. 22,699.

Foll. 209; 13\frac{1}{4} in. by 8\frac{3}{4}; 22 lines, 5\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, with five rich 'Unvāns, gold headings and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 978 (A.D. 1571). [Sir John Campbell.]

The same Khamsah.

Two whole-page miniatures, in fair Persian style, are prefixed to each of the five poems.

محسن بن لطف الله معاد الحسيني : Copyist

Add. 7752.

Foll. 188; 9 in. by 64; 25 lines, 4 in. long; written in small Nestalik, in four columns, with five 'Unvāns; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 981 (A.D. 1573). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Khamsah.

عبد الحسين بن جمشيد : Copyist

Add. 7751.

Foll. 245;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{2}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with five Unvāns; dated A.H. 982, (A.D. 1574); bound in painted covers.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The same Khamsah.

The volume contains eleven whole-page miniatures, in the Persian style of the 18th century. A note on the first page states that it was given by Muḥammad Kāzim B. Jalāl ud-Dīn Muḥammad Māzandarānī to his son Muḥammad Hāshim. The former's seal bears the date 1100.

Add. 26,159.

Foll. 232;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with five 'Unvāns; apparently early in the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same Khamsah.

Add. 21,976.

Foll. 92; 2 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān; dated Rāndījah, district of Aḥmadābād, Gujrāt, Zulḥijjah A.H. 995 (A.D. 1587).

Matla' ul-Anvār (see p. 611, art. vii.). Copyist: مظفر قلی ابن شاه قلی ارلات

Add. 24,054.

Foll. 150; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold headings; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 885 (A.D. 1480).

A'inah i Sikandari (see p. 611, art. x.).

Add. 16,785.

Foll. 99; 5½ in. by 3¾; 13 lines, ½ in. long, with 8 lines in the margin; written in small Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 15th century. [WM. YULE.]

Hasht Bihisht (see p. 611, art. xi.).

Foll. 83, 84, and 97—99, have been supplied by a later hand.

A note on the first page states that the MS. was purchased for the library of the Kādiriyyah in A.H. 1050.

Add. 16,784.

Foll. 110;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 15 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Fathābād, Rabī' I., the 9th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 1139, A.D. 1726). [WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

محمد نجم الدين حسيني : Copyist

Add. 7753.

Foll. 145; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, on gold-sprinkled paper, with a rich 'Unv\(\text{an}\), and illuminated headings throughout; dated Herat, Rajab, A.H. 921 (A.D. 1515). [Cl. J. Rich.]

Kirān us-Sa'dain; see p. 611, art. xii. The MS. is endorsed زبدة التمثيل خسرو دهاوي It contains four whole-page miniatures in Persian style.

The transcriber, سلطان محمد خندان, Sultān Muḥammad Khandān, is mentioned in the Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 350, as a skilled penman then (A.H. 930) still living in Herat.

Add. 26,160.

Foll. 119; 8$ in. by 5; 17 lines, 2$ in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1000 (A.D. 1591). [Wm. Erskine.]

The same poem.

قطب الدين محمود الحسيني : Copyist

Add. 18,413.

Foll. 104; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines, 3\frac{3}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shāhjahānābād, in the reign of Muḥammad Shāh (A.D. 1719—1748). [WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

مير محمد على سيالكوثي : Copyist

Add. 16,786.

Foll. 161; 9½ in. by 5; 12 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

The same work.

The first page bears the stamp of General Claud Martin.

Egerton 1033.

Foll. 144; 10 in. by 61; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in a rude Indian hand, at Rāmnagar, apparently in the 18th century.

The same work.

غلام حسن رضا ولد شیخ محمد حیات : Copyist انصاری

Or. 364.

Foll. 65; 9 in. by 54; 20 lines, 38 in. vol. II.

long; written in small Nestalik; dated Şafar, A.H. 1136 (A.D. 1723).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

A commentary on the Kirān us-Sa'dain. Author: Nūr Muḥammad, called Kāzī Nūr ul-Ḥakk Dihlavī, نور محمد المدعو بنورالحق دهلوى خطبه كبريا وجلال مر بادشاهي را Beg.

The work is dedicated to Majd ud-Dīn Maulānā Shaikh 'Abd ul-Ḥaķķ, the author's father and instructor. Both have been already mentioned. See pp. 14 a and 224 b.

The date of composition, A.H. 1014, is ingeniously indicated in the following chronogram:—

It is obtained by deducting from the total produced by the title شرح قران السعدين, namely 1084, the "eye" of the word عيب "fault," that is to say, the value of the letter و, viz. 70.

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 471.

Or. 335.

Foll. 158; 9 in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 14 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 982 (A.D. 1574). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

Duvalrāni Khizr Khān (see p. 612, xiv.), with three whole-page miniatures in the Persian style.

Add. 7754.

Foll. 153; 9½ in. by 6; 12 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik on gold-sprinkled paper, with a rich 'Unvān, and illuminated borders, probably early in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same poem, with six whole-page miniatures in fair Persian style.

شاه محمد الكاتب : Copyist

Harleian 414.

Foll. 120;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, in Sultanpūr, apparently in the 17th century.

The same poem, called in the subscription کتاب عشیقه

محمد لطیف بن محمد شریف ابن : Copyist باداشاه بردی بلخی

Add. 24,952.

Foll. 260;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines, 2 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 922 (A.D. 1526).

ديوان حسن دهلوي

The Dîvān of Mîr Ḥasan, of Dehli.

ای حاکم جهان و جهان داور حکیم .Beg. محدث همه بدایع و تو مبدع قدیم

Klıwajah Hasan, or Amir Hasan, surnamed Najm ud-Din, son of 'Alā'i Sanjari, was a native of Dehli, and an intimate friend of Amir Khusrau, with whom he stayed five years in Multan, A.H. 678-683, at the court of Muhammad Sultan, the eldest son of Ghiyas ud-Din Balban. Like Khusrau, he was one of the court-poets of Sultan 'Ala ud-Din Khilji (A.H. 695-715) to whom most of his laudatory poems are addressed. At the age of fifty-three he joined, through Amir Khusrau's influence, the circle of disciples which surrounded Nizām ud-Dīn Auliya, and soon became one of the favourite Murids of the holy Shaikh, whose teaching he attended from A.H. 707 to 722, and whose utterances he wrote down from day to day under the title of Fava'id ul-Fu'ad (Or. 1806, 2001). When Sultan Muhammad B. Tughluk, in A.H. 727 (see Badaoni, vol. i. p. 226), laid Dehli waste, and forcibly removed its inhabitants to his new capital Deogir, or Daulatābād, Amīr Hasan went with them, and died, according to the same author, p. 201, in the same year. Taķī Kāshī, however, gives A. H. 745, and the Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 65, A.H. 738, as the date of Mīr Ḥasan's death.

The historian Ziyā Baranī, who was the constant associate of Mīr Ḥasan, and of Amīr Khusrau, speaks with enthusiasm of the former's gifts and moral character, and says that he was called the Sa'dī of Hindustān. See Tārīkh i Fīrūzshāhī, pp. 67, 359. Other notices will be found in Nafaḥāt ul-Ūns, p. 711, Akhbār ul-Akhyār, fol. 87, Firishtah, vol. i. p. 214, vol. ii. p 737, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 153, and Daulatshāh, fol. 168. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 232, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 418.

Contents: Kaşidahs, not alphabetically arranged, fol. 2 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 35 b. Kiţ'ahs, fol. 244 a. A Maşnavī, in praise of Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn, fol. 246 b. Rubā'is, fol. 248 a.

The Kaṣīdahs are nearly all in praise of Sultan 'Alā ud-Dīn Khiljī (A.H. 695—715). Two are addressed respectively to Ulugh Khān (afterwards Sultan Muḥammad), and Khizr Khān, the sons of Sultan Ghiyāṣ ud-Dīn Ṭughluk (A.H. 720—725).

A note on the first page states that the MS. belonged to Kātib Zādah Muḥammad Rafī', the first court physician, سراطبای خاصه

Copies of the Dīvān are mentioned in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 356, Ouseley's Collection, No. 178, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 73, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 22.

Add. 7747.

Foll. 304;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 16 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, probably in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان اوحدي

The Divan of Auhadi.

Rukn ud-Din Auhadi, sometimes called Maraghi, from Maraghah, which appears to have been his birthplace, and sometimes Isfahani, from his habitual residence, Isfahan, took his poetical surname Auhadi from his spiritual guide, Shaikh Auhad ud-Din Hāmid Kirmani, who died A.H. 697 (see Oude Catalogue, p. 48, and Nafahāt, p. 684). He left, besides his Dîvan, a poem called Jam i Jam, composed A.H. 733, and another entitled Dah Nāmah, dedicated to a grandson of Nasīr ud-Din Tūsī (Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 334, and Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 239). Auhadi died in Maraghah, near Tabriz, and the date of his death, A.H. 738, was engraved upon his tomb. See Nafahat ul-Uns, p. 706, Lubb ut-Tavarikh, Add. 23,512, fol. 107, and Rivaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 20.

Daulatshāh, who with his usual inaccuracy confounded Auhadī with his master Auhad ud-Dīn, makes him die A.H. 697. He has been followed by Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, and the Haft Iklīm, fol. 362. Compare Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 360.

Contents: Kaşidahs and Tarji'-bands, fol. 1 a. This section, which contains religious and Sufi poems, without alphabetical arrangement, is imperfect at the beginning. The first complete piece begins thus:—

Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 48 a, also imperfect at the beginning. The first complete Ghazal begins thus:—

Rubā'is, without alphabetical arrrangement, fol. 297 a.

In a poem included in the first section, fol. 16 b, Auhadi addresses Khwājah Salmān (p. 624 b), a contemporary poet, whose pride and ambition he severely reproves.

The Divan of Auhadi is mentioned by Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 264, and an extract from it is noticed in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 72.

Add. 7090.

Foll. 156; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines, 25 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sirhind, Zul-ka'dah, A.H. 1038 (A.D. 1629).

جام جم

"The Cup of Jamshīd," a poem in the style of the Ḥadīķah of Sanā'ī (p. 549 a), and in the same measure, by Auḥadī.

The prologue contains eulogies upon the reigning Sultan Abu Sa'id, (A.H. 716—736), and his Vazīr Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Rashīd (A.H. 728—736), to the latter of whom the poem is dedicated. It is divided into three sections, called ,c, or "circles." It was composed, as stated in the conclusion, fol. 155 a, in the space of one year, and completed in A.H. 733:—

عبد القدوس : Copyist

See Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 498, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 362, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 543.

Or. 333.

Foll. 114; 8 in. by 4½; 17 lines, 23 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The same poem, wanting the last four lines.

In this copy the date of composition is A.H. 732, fol. 113 b:

The last four distichs are wanting.

On the first page are the stamps of the kings of Oude, and some earlier seals, dated A.H. 1111—1117.

Add. 18,113.

Foll. 93; 12¾ in. by 9¼; 25 lines, 5 in. long; written in a small and elegant Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with three rich 'Unvāns, and gold headings; dated Baghdād, Jumāda I., A.H. 798 (A.D. 1396).

خواجوى Three poems by Khwaja Kirmani, خواجوى

Kamāl ud-Dīn Abul-Atā Mahmūd B. Alī, poetically surnamed Khwājū, was a native of Kirman. He states in the epilogue of Gul u Naurūz (a passage not found in the Museum copy, but quoted by Erdmann in his "Chudsehu Germani," Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. ii. pp. 205-215) that he was born on the fifth of Shavval, A.H. 679. According to the Tarikh i Ja'fari, quoted in the Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, Add. 23,512, fol. 118, he began his poetical career as a panegyrist of the Muzaffaris, but having left them, in consequence of some slight, he repaired to the court of Amir Shaikh Abu Ishāk (who ruled in Shīrāz from A.H. 742 to 754), in whose praise he composed many poems, and died there A.H. 753. The date assigned to his death by Taki Kāshi, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, A.H. 745, is too early; for it will be seen further on, p. 621 b, that the poet was still alive in A.H. 746.

It is said that Khwājū had followed for some years the teaching of the great Ṣūfī, 'Alā ud-Daulah of Simnān, who died A.H. 736. He has left a Dīvān, and a Khamsah written in imitation of the five poems of Nizāmī, and beginning with the Rauzat ul-Anvār. The Khamsah was completed A.H. 744, as stated in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 24. See also Ḥaj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 175. That date is indeed found at the end of Kamāl-Nāmah, which must have been the last poem of the Khamsah. Notwithstanding that undoubted fact, Daulatshāh gives A.H. 742 as the date of the poet's death, an error which has been blindly copied by the 'Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 172, and the Ātashkadah, fol. 62. Other notices are to be found in Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 543, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 119. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 248, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 471, and Dorn, St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 357.

I. Fol. 1 b. هماى هماي هماي, the love adventures of Shahzādah Humāi, prince of Zamīn Khāvar, and Humāyūn, a daughter of the Faghfūr, or emperor of China; a Maṣnavī in the same metre as the Iskandar Nāmah of Nizāmī.

In the prologue, after duly praising the reigning sovereign Abu Sa'īd Bahādur Khān, and his Vazīr Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Muḥammad (son of the historian Rashīd ud-Dīn), the author says that he had been induced to compose this poem by the illustrious Ṣadr, Abul-Fatḥ Majd ud-Dīn Maḥmūd, who had supplied him with a genuine Persian theme, and had urged him to "sing to the Muslims a Magian spell," فسون مغان بر مسلمان بخوان

From the epilogue we learn that the poem was composed in Baghdād, where Khwājū was pining for his native Kirmān, and that it was completed in A.H. 732, a date expressed by the chronogram in the following lines:—

The contents have been stated by Erdmann, l.e., p. 213, and, from a Turkish imitation, by Krafft, Handschriften der Orientalischen Akademie, p. 71. See also Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 504, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 544.

II. Fol. 50 b. كمال نامع, the "Book of Perfection," an ethic and religious poem, in the metre of Haft Paikar.

The greater part of the prologue is taken up by an invocation to Shaikh Abu Ishāk Ibrāhīm B. Shahriyār Kāzarūnī, the patron saint of Kazarun (who died A.H. 426; see above, p. 205 a, Nafahat ul-Uns, p. 286, and B. de Maynard, Dict. Geographique, p. 472). The poet states that he was staying as a devout worshipper at the Shaikh's holy shrine. In the epilogue he addresses a panegyric to the sovereign of Fars, Amir Shaikh Abu Ishak (A.H. 742-754), and some advice to his own son, Mujir ud-Din Abu Sa'id Ali. He adds that he had read the poem to his spiritual guide (Murshid), then just arrived in the land, who being pleased with it, had conferred upon him the holy investiture (Khirkah), and upon his work the title of Kamal Namah. The date of composition, A.H. 744, is stated in the following lines :-

The same verse is quoted in the Habib ut-Siyar as giving the date of the completion of the Khamsah.

The poem is divided into sections (B.h), which in another copy, Add. 7758, are numbered from 1 to 12. The present MS. has lost a leaf after fol. 50.

iII. Fol. 71 b. روضة الاندوار, the "Garden of Lights," a Sufi poem in twenty sections (Makālahs).

It is dedicated to Shams ud-Din Mahmud B. Şā'in, to whom the poet had been recommended, as he states in the epilogue, by his patron, Tāj ud-Din Ahmad 'Irāki.

Shams ud-Din Mahmud B. Sa'in was first attached to the Chūpānī princes Amīr Pīr Ḥusain and Malik Ashraf, by whom he was put in possession of the fortress of Sīrjānu. He surrendered it, A.H. 744, to Amīr Muḥammad Muzaffar. Sent by the latter to Shīrāz on a mission to Amīr Shaikh Abu Ishāk, he deserted his patron to enter the service of his rival, by whom he was appointed Vazīr. He died in an encounter with the Muzaffaris on the 4th of Ṣafar, A.H. 746, a date recorded by Khwājū in verses quoted by Ḥāfiz Abrū; see Or. 1577, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 18.

Tāj ud-Dīn Trāķī, a wealthy inhabitant of Kirmān, was one of the first who came out of that city, then besieged by Amīr Muḥammad Muzaffar, to submit to the conqueror (A.H. 741). Raised by him to the Vazirate, he incurred his anger some years later, and was put to death. See Dastūr ul-Vuzarā, fol. 121.

In the prologne the poet introduces his beloved, who suggests to him that, his Gul u Naurūz being finished, he should now turn to his admired Nizāmī, and try to surpass the Makhzan ul-Asrār.

Khwājū says in the epilogue that the poem had been written at the shrine of Shaikh Abu Ishāķ Ibrāhīm Kāzarūnī, and completed A.H. 743:—

A leaf is wanting after fol. 79.

The Rauzat ul-Anvār is considered as the first poem of the Khamsah. See Haj. Khal. vol. iii. pp. 175, 498, and Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vol. xvi. p. 234.

This fine MS. is due to the pen of a celebrated calligrapher, Mir 'Ali Tabrīzī, who signs مير على بن الياس التبريزي الباورچي.

In some lines quoted in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 486, Sultān 'Alī Mashhadī, a penmanof great repute (see p. 573a), calls Mīr 'Alī Tabrīzī the inventor of the Naskh-Ta'līķ, and says that he was a contemporary of Kamāl Khujandī (who died A.H. 803). See also Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 458, and Blochmann, Ain Akbari, p. 101, where he is said to have lived under Tīmūr.

At the beginning of the Rauzat ul-Anvar, which appears to have held originally the first place in the volume, is an illuminated shield with an inscription showing that the MS. had been written for the library of a royal personage called Abul-Fath Bahrām:

The MS. contains nine whole-page miniatures in a highly finished Persian style.

Add. 7758.

Foll. 178; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 21 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with four 'Unv\(\text{ans}\); dated Rab\(\text{i}\) I., A.H. 934 (A.D. 1527). [Cl. J. Rich.]

Five poems by the same author, as follows:

I. Fol. 1 b. Humāi and Humāyūn; see the preceding MS., Art. I.

This copy contains an epilogue, foll. 54 b—56 a, which is a later addition. The Sultan, we are told, having succumbed to fate, and the Vazīr having soon followed, the poet had lost the expected reward. (Abu Sa'īd died on the 13th of Rabī' II., A.H. 736, and Ghiyāş ud-Dīn was put to death in Ramazān of the same year.) Subsequently, however, his patron, Tāj ud-Dīn Aḥmad 'Irākī (see p. 621 b), having proceeded from Kirmān to the royal camp to kiss the threshold of the Khūkān, obtained for Khwājū and his work the favourable notice of the Vazīr, Shams ud-Dīn Maḥmūd B. Ṣā'in (see p. 621 a), who recompensed him beyond his hopes.

II. Fo'. 57 b. کل و فرروز, the love-story of Naurūz, son of the king of Khorasan, and Gul, daughter of the emperor of Rūm, a Maşnavī in the metre of Khusrau u Shīrīn.

It is dedicated to the same Vazīr, Tāj ud-Dīn Trāķī, whose generous reward is thankfully recorded in the epilogue. The date of composition, A.H. 742, is stated in the following lines:—

An abstract of the poem has been given by Erdmann, l.c., p. 212. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 234.

III. Fol. 118 b. Kamāl-Nāmah; see the preceding MS., Art. II.

IV. Fol. 142 b. گرفرنامه, the "Book of Jewels," a Maşnavî in praise of the Vazīr Bahā ud-Dīn Maḥmūd and his ancestors.

The prologue contains eulogies on the reigning prinee of Kirmān, Amīr Muḥammad Muzaffar, and on his Vazīr, the abovenamed Bahā ud-Dīn Maḥmūd. The entire poem is devoted to the glorification of the latter, who was a lineal descendant in the sixth generation of the celebrated Vazīr of the Saljūk empire, Nizām ul-Mulk (see p. 444 a), and of his forefathers. Each of these becomes in turn the theme of hyperbolical laudations of the most tedious sameness, from which little is to be learned as to their real history. Their filiation is, from father to son, as follows:—

The great Nizām ul-Mulk. Ḥamīd ul-Mulk Maḥmūd, who died in Tabrīz, and was buried in Jarandāb. Ķivām ul-Mulk Nūr ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, Vazīr of Ķizil Arslān, also buried in Jarandāb. Fakhr ud-Dīn Aḥmad, who died in Sīvās. Zakī ud-Dīn Maḥmūd, who became Vazīr of the Khāķān of Turkistān, and was called Atā Maḥmūd. He died in Azarbāijān. 'Izz ud-Dīn Yūsuf, who served Yūsuf Shāh and Amīr Muzaffar, and died in Rūm. Bahā ud-Dīn Maḥmūd, for whom the poem was written.

Kaşīdahs in praise of the same personages, and in the same order, are mentioned by Erdmann, l.e., p. 215, as forming part of the Dīvān of Khwājū.

The present copy wants the conclusion, in which occurs, according to Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 473, the following line, giving A.H. 746 as the date of composition:

V. Fol. 155 a. Rauzat ul-Anvār (see the preceding MS., III.), wanting two leaves at the beginning.

على بن حسين بن عماد الدين الحسيني : Copyist

Or. 28.

Foll. 86; 7 in. by 5½; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Naskhi; dated Rajab, A.H. 881 (A.D. 1476).

[G. C. RENOUARD.]

مونس الارواح

The Divin of Haidar, حیدر ای زهستی غلغلی در ملك جان انداخته عکس نور نات خود برانس و جان انداخته

The poet, no record of whom has been found, uses Haidar as his takhallus, and is ealled in the heading and subscription Haidar ush-Shīrāzī. The Divān shows that he lived in Shīrāz, his birthplace, and occasionally in Yazd, about the middle of the eighth century of the Hijrah. It contains, fol. 35, an elegy on the death of Sultan Abū Sa'id, which took place A.H. 736, and, fol. 78, two satires against a contemporary poet, Khājū Kirmānī (see p. 620 a), whom the author charges with disparaging Sa'dī, while plundering his Dīvān, and declares unable to compete in poetry with himself:—

مبر در پیش شاعر نام خواجو که او دردیست از دیوان سعدی چو نتواند که با من شعر کوید چرا کوید سخن در شان سعدی

The other satire, beginning

خواجو درد کابلی از شهر کرمان می رسد موریست او در شاعری نزد سلیمان می رسد was composed when Khwājū came from Kirmāu to Shīrāz, and is stated, in the heading, to have been recited in the presence of Amīr Shaikh Abū Isḥāķ (A.H. 742—754).

There are also three Kaṣīdahs addressed to Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Shāh Yaḥyā, of whom the poet says, fol. 27, that he had, in the presence of Sultan Muḥammad, gloriously vanquished Akhī at the gate of Tabrīz, and had received as his reward the sovereignty of Yazd, the seat of his father:—

نصرة دنیا و دین کردون نواز شرق و غرب شاه یحیی مظفر سایم پروردکار

در بر سلطان محمد پهلوان شرق و غرب بر در تبرینز بشکستی اخی در کارزار چون چنین نام آوری کردی بهنگام نبرد سنجق نام اوری دادت خدیو نامدار تا بسلطانی نشینی بر سر تخت پذر آمدی و یزد بکرفتی بعزم استوار

Shāh Muzaffar, the eldest son of Amīr Muhammad Muzaffar, the founder of the Muzaffari dynasty, had died in his father's life-time, A.H. 754 (see Maţla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 91). His eldest son, Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Shāh Yaḥyā, was only fifteen years old when he fought by the side of his grandsire in the battle referred to in the above lines, in which Akhī Jūķ, a Chūpānī Amīr, who had made himself master of Azarbāijān, was completely routed before Tabrīz, A.H. 759 (ib. fol. 101, and Price's Retrospect, vol. ii. p. 690).

Having been confined, A.H. 760, by his uncle Shāh Shujā', in the fortress of Shīrāz, Shāh Yaḥyā was re-instated by him as viceroy of Yazd A.H. 764. But he took the first opportunity to assert his independence, and, being of a restless and ambitious disposition, carried on for years a constant struggle with his relatives. Placed by Tīmūr, after his conquest of Shīrāz, A.H. 789, at the head of the government of Fārs, he was dispossessed a few months later by his brother Shāh Manṣūr, and was eventually involved, A.H. 795, in the general slaughter of the Muzaffarī princes by the ruthless conqueror.

Another Kaṣīdah, composed in Yazd, fol. 43, is in praise of Sharaf ud-Dīn Shāh Ḥusain:—

شرف دنیا و دین بحر هنر شاه حسین آنك كیوانش غلامست و فلك خدمتكار مثل این شاه جهان كیر نباشد هركـز نه در این مملكت یزد كه در هیچ دیار

Shāh Ḥusain was the third son of the above-mentioned Shāh Muzaffar, and apparently succeeded his elder brother, Shāh Yaḥya, in the principality of Yazd, but the exact period is not recorded.

The Dīvān, which begins with seven Ķaṣīdahs in praise of God and the prophet, contains, besides the pieces above mentioned, little else than Ghazals, and is without any systematic arrangement. Its title is found in a short prologue, headed سبب نظم كتاب, in which the following dialogue is carried on with an imaginary interlocutor:—

چه کفت کفت که حیدرکتاب عشق بساز کزان کتاب بود کاربسته را مفتاح بکفتمش که کتاب مرا چه نام نهی بکفت نام کتاب تو مونس الارواح

Transcriber: عبد الله النكساري عبد الله

Add. 27,314.

Foll. 400; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in India, in the 17th century. [D. Forbes.]

سلمان ,The poetical works of Salman Savaji

Khwājah Jamāl ud-Dīn Salmān, son of Khwājah 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad, was born in Sāvah, where his father held a high financial appointment, and followed in early life the same profession, which he afterwards gave up for poetry. He was, according to Jāmī, Bahāristān, fol. 67, a successful imitator of the great Ķaṣīdah writers, especially of Kamāl Ismā'īl, whom he often surpassed, but did not reach the same eminence in the Ghazal.

In his Firāķ Nāmah, which he composed, as stated in the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 136, A.H. 761, Salmān says that he had completed his seventy-first year:

He must therefore have been born about A.H. 690.

His earliest poems are apparently those which he addressed to the celebrated Vazir, Ghiyas ud-Din Muhammad, who died A.H. 736. But his brilliant career as court-poet commenced in the time of the founder of the Ilkani dynasty, Amir Shaikh Hasan Buzurg, who rose to power after the death of Sultan Abu Sa'id, A.H. 736, held his court in Baghdad, and died A.H. 757. He was in high favour with that prince, and afterwards with his son and successor, Shaikh Uvais (A.H. 757-776), who established his residence in Tabriz, as also with the latter's mother, the accomplished Dilshad Khatun. Having survived Shaikh Uvais, who died on the 2nd of Jumada I., A.H. 776 (Matla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 148), Salman maintained for some time the same influential position under his son and successor, Sultan Husain

(A.H. 776—784), to whom several of his poems are addressed. He composed also, as has been noticed in the Maţla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 152, two Ķaṣīdahs in honour of Shāh Shujā', during that king's temporary occupation of Tabrīz in A.H. 777. It is said that he passed his last years in retirement in his native place.

It will be seen from the above facts that the date A.H. 769, assigned by Daulatshāh to Salmān's death, and adopted by most later writers, is by at least eight years too early. The Ṭabaķāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 38, places that event in A.H. 778, Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 389, in A.H. 779, and Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, in A.H. 799 (an obvious error for 779).

The notices of Daulatshah and Atashkadah have been edited in text and translation by Erdmann, Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vol. xv. pp. 758—772. Other notices will be found in Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 547, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 408, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 208. See also Hammer, Redekūnste, p. 260, Ouseley's Notices, p. 117, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogne, p. 555.

The contents are as follows:

I. Fol. 1 b. جمشيد و خورشيد, the lovestory of Jamshid and Khwurshid, a Maşnavi poem in the measure of Khusrau u Shirin.

After a panegyric addressed to Sultan Uvais, the poet relates in the prologue how he had been summoned to the presence of his royal patron, and told that, Nizāmi's book on Farhād and Khusrau having become old and obsolete, he should compose on the tale of Jamshīd, a new poem dedicated to his sovereign:

In obeying the king's behest, he says, further on, he found a welcome opportunity of discharging a debt of gratitude for fifty years' favours:

In the epilogue Salman regrets his departed youth, and complains of the infirmities of age. His figure is bent like a bow, nothing but skin and bones.

The poem was completed, as stated in the following lines at the end, in the month of Jumada II., A.H. 763:

The Jamshid of Salman is not the mythical king of Persian tradition, but an imaginary prince, son of the Faghfür, or emperor of China. The heroine is a daughter of the Kaisar of Rüm.

II. Fol. 85 a. فراق نامه, the "Book of Separation," a Maşnavi.

It was written, like the preceding, for Sultan Uvais, who had desired Salman to compose a poem on the pangs of absence.

It is stated in the Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 136, that Sulṭān Uvais was then pining for his minion Bairām Shāh, who, in consequence of some quarrel, had left the court and gone to Baghdād, A.H. 761.

The heroes of the tale are called Malik and Maḥbūb. See Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 389. III. Fol. 117  $\alpha$ . Ķasīdalis and Tarjī-bands.

This section is slightly imperfect at the beginning. The poems are arranged according to the personages to whom they are addressed, as follows: Muhammad and 'Alī, fol. 117 a. Sultan Uvais, fol. 128 b. Jalal ud-Din Shaikh Husain (A.H. 776-784), fol. 222 a. Nuyan A'zam Shaikh Hasan Beg (Ḥasan Buzurg), fol. 228 a. Dilshād Khātun (wife of the preceding), fol. 248 b. Dundi Sultan (wife of Sultan Uvais), fol. 268 a. Shams ud-Din Zakariyyā (Vazīr of Sultan Husain), fol. 272 b. Shah Mahmud (the Muzaffari, who died A.H. 776), fol. 277 α. Shāh Shujā' (A. H. 759—786), fol. 279 b. Sāḥib Ghiyās ud-Dīn Muḥammad (who died A.H. 736), fol. 282 a.

IV. Fol. 285 α. Marşiyahs, or funeral poems, including elegies on the death of Sultan Abu Sa'id (A. H. 736), Amīr Ilkān, Shaikh Ḥasan, Sultān Uvais, and Dūndī Khātūn.

V. Fol. 295 α. Mukaṭṭaʿat, without alphabetical arrangement. Several of these relate to contemporary events, fixing their dates, as, for instance, the death of Shaikh Ḥasan Chūpānī in A.H. 744, and a destructive inundation at Baghdād in A.H. 775. At the end is a Tarjīʿ-band.

VI. Fol. 329 a. Ghazals, and Rubā'is, also without alphabetical arrangement.

This volume bears the seal of the college of Fort William. On the first page are several 'Arzdīdahs, one of which is dated A.H. 1062.

Add. 7755.

Foll. 134;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two goldruled columns, with Unvān, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

Jamshīd u Khwurshīd. See above, art. i.

The volume contains three whole-page miniatures in the Persian style.

Add. 6619.

Foll. 186; 8 in. by 5; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān and gilt headings; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 876 (A.D. 1472).

[J. F. HULL.]

مهر و مشتري

The tale of Mihr and Mushtari, a Maşnavi poem.

عصار ,Author: 'Assar

بنام پادشاه عالم عشق اBeg. که نامش هست نقش خاتم غشق

Maulānā Muḥammad 'Aṣṣār, of Tabrīz, is mentioned in the Lubb ut-Tavārīkh as one of the panegyrists of the Īlkānī Sultan Shaikh Uvais (A.H. 757—776). He died, as stated in the same work, A.H. 779, or, according to Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, A.H. 784. Very meagre notices of him are found in the Bahāristān, fol. 68, Haft Iklīm, fol. 513, and Ātashkadah, fol. 18. See also Hammer, Redekünste, p. 254, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 311.

'Assar refers in several passages to the numerous poems which he had composed in praise of princes, and which often had remained unread. Thus in the epilogue:

بسته از کهرهای قصاید بکردن بادشاهانرا قالاید بمداحی بسی کوهر فشانده قصاید کفته و برکس نخوانده

Finding poets neglected and scorned, he had retired, as he says in the prologue, to solitude and silent contemplation. From this torpor he is roused by a friend, who urges him to complete his poetical works by adding to them a Masnavi, the only kind of composition which he had not yet attempted:

کنون از هرجه زین معنی دهد دست بغیر از مثنوی در دفترت هست دران نیزت بباید ساخت مدخل که تا کردد ازو دیاون مکیل

After urging two objections, the absence of any patron of poetry, especially in "this town of Tabrīz," and the unapproachable standard of perfection held up by Nizāmī, the author yields, and relates to his friend the tale of Mihr and Mushtarī, "the story of a love free from all weakness, pure of all sensual desire."

پس انکه کردم از رای درایت زمهر و مشتری بروی حکایت ازآن عشقی ز هر علت معرا وزان مهری ز هر شهوت مبرا

The author states in the conclusion that the poem was completed on the tenth of Shavvāl, A.H. 778:

بروز واو و دال از ماه شوال زهجرت رفته حا و عین با دال [ذال] and that it consisted of 5120 distichs, بکویش پنم الفست و صد و بیست

The above date, which had been arbitrarily changed to A.H. 674 by C. R. S. Peiper, Commentatio de libro Persico Mihr o Muschteri, Berlin, 1835, has been vindicated with overwhelming evidence by Prof. Fleiseher, Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vol. xv. pp. 389—396. The contents of the poem have been stated by Peiper in the above quoted work, and by Sir Gore Ouseley in the Biographical Notices, pp. 201—226. See also the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 547, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 359, and the Upsala Catalogue, p. 111.

Transcriber: مرشد

This copy contains eight whole-page miniatures in the Persian style.

Add. 7759.

Foll. 141; 6¾ in. by 4¼; 14 lines, 2¼ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, on glazed, tinted, and gold-sprinkled paper; dated Ramazān, A.H. 855 (A.D. 1451). [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان حافظ شيرازي

The Divan of Hafiz Shirazi.

الا يا ايسها الساقى ادر كاسا وناولها .Beg. كه عشق آسان نبود اول ولى افتاد مشكلها

Hāfiz Shīrāzī, originally called Shams ud-Din Muhammad, who is by common consent the greatest of Persian lyrics, ranks also high as a Sufi; a spiritual symbolism is generally supposed to underlie, in his most Anacreontic strains, the expression of sensuous ideas. Jāmī says in the Bahāristan that he is as great in the Ghazal as Zahīr Fāryābī in the Kasidah. The whole of his long and uneventful life was, with the exception of short absences, spent in his beloved Shīrāz. Such of his poems as bear upon contemporary events are frequently quoted by the historians of the period. Their dates range from the reign of Amir Shaikh Abu Ishak (A.H. 742-751), which he extols as a glorious epoch for his native city, to the short-lived rule of the last of the Muzaffaris, Shah Mansur (A.H. 790-795). The latter took possession of Shiraz towards the end of A.H. 790, about six months after the first invasion of Timur. Two poems in his praise, quoted in the Matla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 198, are probably the latest compositions of Hafiz, who died A.H. 791, or, according to less trustworthy authorities, A.H. 792.

The first is the date recorded by Muhammad Gul-andām, the friend of Ḥāfiz, and collector of the Dīvān. It is engraved, according to Sir Gore Ouseley, Notices, p. 40, on the poet's tombstone, and is conveyed by the words خاك مصلى in the following chronogram, found in some copies of Gul-andām's preface:—

چو در خاك مصلي ساخت منزل بجـو تـاريخـش از خــاك مــصلى

It has been followed by the Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 117, and by Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19.

The second date, A.H. 792, is expressed by another chronogram, which, although contradicting the direct statement of Gulandām, has found its way into most copies of the same preface:

بسال با و ضا و دال ابجد زروز هجرت میسون محمد بسوي جنت اعلى روان شد فرید عهد شمس الدین محمد

It has been adopted by Jāmī, Nafaḥāt, p. 715, and, after him, in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 47, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 334, and Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 272.

Daulatshāh, whose account of Ḥāfiz has been translated by S. de Saey, Notices et Entraits, vol. iv. p. 238, stands alone in placing his death as late as A.H. 794, and commits a further anachronism in representing a supposed interview of Ḥāfiz with Tīmūr as having taken place after the death of Shāh Manṣūr, who fell in battle A.H. 795.

Firishtah has a circumstantial account of a message sent by the king of Deccan, Maḥmūd Shāh Bahmanī (A.H. 780—799), to Ḥāfiz to induce him to come to his court. The poet, probably anxious to escape from the approaching hosts of Tīmūr, accepted the invitation, as well as the funds provided for the journey, and proceeded as far as Hormuz, where he went on board the king's ship. But, frightened at the sight of a rough sea, he landed again, and made all speed back to Shīrāz. See the Bombay edition, vol. i. p. 577.

Notices on Hāfiz will be found in Hammer's Redekünste, p. 261, Ouseley's Notices, pp. 23—42, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 415, and Defrémery, Journal Asiatique,5° Serie, pp. 406—425.

The Divān was first edited by Abū Ṭālib Khān (see p. 378 b), in Calcutta, 1791, and re-printed in 1826. It has been printed in Bombay, A.H. 1228 and 1277, Dehli, 1269, Cawnpore, 1831, Lucknow, A.H. 1283, Teheran, A.H. 1258, Bulaķ, A.H. 1250, 1256 and 1281, and Constantinople, 1257. An excellent edition of the text, with the Turkish commentary of Sūdī, has been published by H. Brockhaus, Leipzig, 1854.

A German translation of the Dīvān by J. von Hammer was published in Tübingen, 1812. Select poems have been translated into German by Bodenstedt, Berlin, 1877, and into English by J. Riehardson, 1774, J. Nott, 1787, J. H. Hindley, 1800, H. Bieknell, 1875, S. Robinson, 1875, and W. H. Lowe, 1877.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Masnavīs, fol. 132 a. Ķiţ'ahs, fol. 134 b. Rubā'is, fol. 138 b.

سليمان الفوشنجي : Copyist

Add. 7760.

Foll. 179; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unv\(\bar{a}\)ns, illuminated headings, and gold designs on the margins, dated A.H. 921 (A.D. 1515), bound in painted covers. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, with the preface of Muḥammad Gul-andām, عبد كل اندام, which begins حبد بيعد و شاي بيعد و سپاس بى قياس After some remarks on the charm and pregnant sense of Ḥāfiz's poetry, and on the wonderful speed with which it had spread to the most distant lands, delighting kings and Sufis alike, the writer of the preface, who describes himself as an old friend of Ḥāfiz, says that during his life the poet was so busy lecturing on the Coran, giving instruction to the Sultan, writing glosses to the Kashshāf and the Miftān, studying the Maṭāli' and the Miṣbāh, etc., that he found no leisure to collect his scattered poems; and although Muḥammad Gul-andām, who often held converse with him in the college, الحرس الله والله من والله وال

The above preface is printed in the Bombay edition of the Dīvān.

Contents: Preface, fol. 3 b. Ķaṣidalıs, beg. زدلبري نقوان لانت زد باساني, fol. 6 b. Maṣnavīs, fol. 12 a. Tarjī-bands, fol. 18 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 23 b. Mukaṭṭa'āt, fol. 170 a. Rubā'is, fol. 174 a.

The copyist, Sultan Muhammad Khandan, was a pupil of the famous calligrapher Sultan 'Ali Mashadi, and one of the scribes of Mir 'Ali Shir (see p. 617 a).

Of four miniatures in Persian style, placed at the beginning and end of the volume, two are of modern date.

The first page is covered with 'Arzdidahs of the reign of Shāhjahān and Aurangzīb.

Add. 7761.

Foll. 228; 10½ in. by 6; 14 lines, 3½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two goldruled columns, with 'Unvans, and gold headings; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 983 (A.D. 1575). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, with the same preface. Contents: Ghazals, fol. 5 b. Ķaṣīdahs, beg. شد عرصه جهان جو بهشت برین جوان , fol. 192 b. Maṣnavīs, fol. 199 a. Tarjī'-bands, fol. 206 a. Ķiṭ'ahs, fol. 212 a. Rubā'is, fol. 220 b.

ابراهیم حسین بن محمد امین الکاتب : Copyist

Or. 1220.

Foll. 194; 7 in. by 3\frac{3}{4}; 12 lines, 2 in.

long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, ornamental headings, and six miniatures in the Persian style, apparently in the 16th century.

[Alex. Jaba.]

The same Divan, without the Kaşidahs.

Grenville xli.

Foll. 258; 5 in. by 3; 10 lines, 15 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century; bound in painted covers.

The same Divan, wanting about forty leaves at the beginning, and not including the Kasidahs.

It contains nineteen miniatures, in the Indian style, and of a high degree of finish, but partly defaced.

Prefixed is a letter of Wm. Marsden to the Hon. Thomas Grenville, describing the MS.

Add. 8890.

Foll. 147; 4½ in. by 3; 15 lines, 1¾ in. long; written in small Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda, A.H. 1020 (A.D. 1611).

The same Divan, without the Kasidahs.

ابو الفتح بن شيخ محمد بني اسراييل : Copyist ساكن كول

On the cover is written: "Given by Sr. R. C. to At'her Ali Khan, and by him bequeathed to Sir W. Jones."

Add. 26,161.

Foll. 154; 8 in. by 43; 15 lines, 23 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with a rich 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated the fourth year of Shāhjahān (A.H. 1040—41, A.D. 1631). [WM. ERSKINE.]

A copy of the same Dīvān, containing, besides the Ghazals, only one Maşnavī, with a few Kitals and Rubā'is.

عبد الله تبريزي : Copyist

The first page contains several 'Arzdīdahs and seals of the reign of Shāhjahān.

Add. 16,762.

Foll. 200; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two goldruled columns, with 'Unvān; dated Rabī' I., A.H. 1053 (A.D. 1643). [WM. YULE.]

The same Divan, without the Kasidahs.

عبد الر شید بن مولانا عبد اللطیف: Copyist ترکان دهلوی

The volume contains eleven miniatures, partly in Indian, and partly in Persian style, which did not originally belong to it.

On the fly-leaf is written: "Wm. Yule, from his friend Col. D. Ochterlony, Dehli, 10 Sept., 1805."

Add. 5625.

Foll. 213;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvāns and ruled margins; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1082, (A.D. 1672).

The same Divan, with the preface of Muhammad Gul-andam, and the Kasidahs.

Copyist: محمد مقيم لاهوري

Add. 7762.

Foll. 195;  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in a cursive character; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1109 (A.D. 1698).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The same Divan.

حيدر بن ولي : Copyist

Add. 25,815.

Foll. 270; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda I., A.H.

1161, the first year of Ahmad Shāh (A.D. 1749). [WM. CURETON.]

The same Divan, with the preface of Muhammad Gul-andam, and the Kasidahs.

At the end, foll. 268—270, is an anonymous tract on the spiritual meaning attached by Sufis to the names of sensual objects, substantially agreeing with the treatise of Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī, mentioned further on.

شيخ فيض الله ساكن قصبد سيالكوت : Copyist

Add. 7763.

Foll. 404;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns, illuminated borders, and 112 miniatures in the Indian style; written apparently in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Dīvān, to which are prefixed—
1. The Preface of Muḥammad Gul-andām, fol. 1 b. 2. Exposition of the spiritual meaning of words in the Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, by Amīr Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī (see p. 447 b), fol. 7 b—12 a.

ترجمه مرادات دیوان حضرت خواجه حافظ شیرازی علیه الرحمت نقل است از حضرت امیر کبیر امیر سید علی همدانی

Add. 27,264.

Foll. 252;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1226 (A.D. 1811).

[Sir John Malcolm.]

The same Dīvān, with the preface of Gulandām, and the Ķaṣīdahs. Prefixed are some observations on the spiritual meaning of some words in the Dīvān, partly taken from Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī, fol. 1 a, and a notice on the life of Ḥāfiz, from the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, and Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, fol. 4 b.

Add. 4946.

Foll. 153;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [CLAUD RUSSELL.]

Another copy of the same Dīvān, containing only the Ghazals, a few Ķiţ'ahs, and a short Maşnavī.

Add. 23,550.

Foll. 209; 7½ in. by 5½; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [Rob. Taylor.]

The same Divan.

Or. 1367.

Foll. 309; 12½ in. by 8½; 11 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century. [Sir Chas. Alex. Murray.]

The same Divan, imperfect at the end.

Add. 6620.

Foll. 200; 7 in. by 3\frac{3}{4}; 11 lines, 2\frac{1}{8} in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

The same Divan, slightly defective at beginning and end.

Add. 7764.

Foll. 219; 7 in. by 4; 14 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with an 'Unvān, illuminated borders, and sixteen miniatures in the Indian style; dated Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1215 (A.D. 1801); bound in painted covers. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Divan.

Or. 1417.

Foll. 170; 12 in. by 63; 15 lines, 33 in. long; written in Nestalik, as stated, in Kashmir; dated A.H. 1264 (A.D. 1848). The same Divān.

Add. 7765.

Foll. 264; 81 in. by 53; 20 lines, 31 in.

long; written in a cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

A Turkish commentary upon the Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, by Surūrī, سرورى (see p. 606 a).

Beg. المحمد لله الذي حفظ الذكر عن تحريف
The author states, in a short Turkish preface, that he had written this commentary for some religious friends, with the object of fully disclosing the spiritual sense of the Divān.

This copy breaks off in the middle of the letter w

See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 273, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 26.

Or. 29.

Foll. 239; 8½ in. by 5½; 23 lines, 3½ in. long; written in a small Turkish Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

[G. C. RENOUARD.]

A commentary upon the Divan of Ḥāfiz by Maulānā Sham'i Efendi, مولانا شبعى انندي انندي (see p. 607 a).

Beg. In a short Persian preface the author informs us that he had written the present work by desire of his protector, Aḥmad Faridūn. It contains the text, followed by a Turkish paraphrase and a few verbal explanations.

The subscription, apparently transcribed from the author's own, states that the commentary had been completed at the end of Zulhijjah, A.H. 981. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 273, and Krafft's Catalogue, p. 67.

Or. 312.

Foll. 113; 9% in. by 6; 15 lines, 3% in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, on silver-sprinkled paper; dated Patnah, Jumāda II., A.H. 1072 (A.D. 1661).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

نور اليقين

The Divan of Mas'ud of Bak, مسعود بك .

Beg. الحمد لله الذي نور فواد العارفين بانوار ذات

The author, who sometimes uses Mas'ud i Bak (but still oftener Mas'ud) as his Takhallus, was so called, according to Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, p. 84, followed by the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 410, from Bak, a dependency of Bukhārā. He was, as stated in the Akhbār ul-Akhyār, fol. 137, a relative of Sultan Firūz Shāh (A.H. 752-790), and bore in his early life the title of Shir Khan. When he renounced the world, he took for his spiritual guide Shaikh Rukn ud-Din B. Shaikh Shihāb ud-Dīn, Imām of Nizām ud-Dīn Auliyā, and became a fervent adept of the Chishti order. By his mystic exaltation and reckless utterances he made himself obnoxious to the Ulama, by whom he was sentenced to death, as stated in Tabakāt i Shāhjahānī, A.H. 800. He was buried near the tomb of the famous saint Kuth ud-Din, in old Dehli. He left, besides his Dīvān, a treatise entitled Tamhidat on the plan of a work of the same name by 'Ain ul-Kuzāt Hamadānī (p. 411 b), and another called Mir'at ul-'Arifin. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 486.

The author says, in a short preamble, that he had composed this work called Nūr ul-Yakīn at the request of his brother Naṣīr ud-Dīn Muḥammad, that it might give light to the eyes of friends and serenity to the bosom of the godly.

The Dīvān, which is entirely of a religious and mystic character, contains Kaṣīdahs, fol. 3 a, Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 19 b, and Rubā'is similarly arranged, fol. 95 a.

Several of the Kaṣīdahs are in praise of the author's spiritual guide Rukn ud-Dīn, whose proper name, 'Uṣmān, appears in the following lines, fol. 13 b:

> شیخ رکنا دین عثمان ابن قطب الحق شمار کنر جمال اوست بسطی در دل مستور من

Other poems are addressed to Shaikh Nasīr ud-Dīn, no doubt the celebrated Chirāgh i Dihlī (see p. 41 b), who was also, according to Ilāhī, a religious instructor of Mas'ūd. His name occurs on fol. 24 b:

Add. 19,496.

Foll. 177;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

The Divan of Kamal Khujandi.

Shaikh Kamal was born and grew up in Khujand, a town of Māvarā un-Nahr; but, after performing a pilgrimage to Mecca, he settled in Tabriz, where Sultan Husain B. Shaikh Uvais (A.H. 776-784) built for him a monastery (Khānkāh), and where his renown as a devotee and religious teacher drew to him numbers of disciples. Tughtāmish, Khān of Kipchāk, when returning from his raid upon Tabrīz in Zulka'dah, A.H. 787 (see Matla us-Sa dain, fol. 185), took him to his capital Sarai, where Kamal remained four years. He afterwards returned to Tabriz, then the residence of Mīrān Shāh, son of Timur, by whom he was treated with considerate attention. There he died, according to Jami, Nafahat, p. 712, in A.H. 803, a date adopted by Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 90, Haft Iklim, fol. 601, Tabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 35, Mirāt ul-Khayāl, fol. 41, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 383.

Daulatshāh places the same event in A.H. 792. But this is inconsistent with his own account; for, according to him, Kamāl lived many years after his return from Sarāi, which cannot have taken place earlier than A.H. 791 or 792. According to the Majālis ul-Ushshāk (see p. 352 b), Kamāl Khujandī died A.H. 808.

Jāmī says in the Bahāristān that Kamāl imitated the style of Ḥasan Dihlavī (p. 618 a), but surpassed him in subtlety of thought. He is said to have been much admired by his contemporary Ḥāfiz.

Notices on his life have been given by Hammer, Redekünste, p. 255, Ouseley, Notices, pp. 192 and 106, Bland, Century of Ghazals, iii., and Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 454.

The present copy contains Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 a, Kit'ahs, fol. 169 a, and a few Rubā'is, fol. 176 b. It wants all the Ghazals in the letter; but the last seven. Among the Kit'ahs is found one in which the poet compares himself with his namesake Kamāl Iṣfahānī (Oude Catalogue, p. 455), and another relating to the invasion of Tughtamish, fol. 174 a:

Copies are mentioned in Fleischer's Dresden Catalogue, p. 7, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 557, Münich Catalogue, p. 27, and Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1428.

Add. 7739.

Foll. 104; 5½ in. by 3¾; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan Maghribi.

Maghribī, whose original name was Muḥamınad Shīrīn, was born, according to Taķī Auḥadi, quoted in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 413, in the town of Nāin, province of Isfahan, and took his poetical name from a Maghribī VOL. II. Shaikh by whom he had been invested with the Khirkah of the Sufi order of Ibn ul-'Arabī. He was a disciple of Shaikh Ismā'il Sīsī, lived in Tabrīz on terms of friendship with Kamāl Khujandī, and was, like him, better known as a Sufi than as a poet. He is said to have been in great favour with Mīrān Shāh, until he was supplanted by his more celebrated contemporary. According to Jāmī, Nafaḥāt, p. 713, followed by the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 91, and by Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19, Maghribī died in Tabrīz A.H. 809. Taķī Auḥadī and the Majālis ul-'Ushshāk (p. 252 b) give a somewhat earlier date, A.H. 807.

See Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 476; compare Ouseley's Notices, p. 106, and Hammer, Redekünste, p. 78, where three poems of Maghribi are wrongly ascribed to Amīr Mu'izzī.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Tarji'-bands, fol. 80 b. Rubā'is in alphabetical order, fol. 100 b.

The Divān, which is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 315, and in the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1444, has been printed in Persia, A.H. 1280. See Dorn, Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 524.

Add. 6623.

Foll. 80; 9½ in. by 5; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1177 (A.D. 1763). [J. F. Hull.]

The same Divan, somewhat differently arranged.

Foll. 75—80 contain some poetical extracts and a fragment of an Arabie-Persian vocabulary.

Add. 25,824.

Foll. 35; 8½ in. by 5; 18 lines, 3¼ in.

long; written in Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1096 (A.D. 1685). [Wm. Cureton.]

كنز الاشتها

"The treasure of appetite," a collection of poems, with a prose preface by the author.

Author: Jamāl ud-Dīn Abu Isḥāķ, surnamed Ḥallāj, جمال الديس ابو اسحاق المعروف بحلاج

سیاس بی قیاس و حمد بی حد رازق بی Beg. سیاس بی سیاس

Ḥakīm Jamāl ud-Dīn Abu Isḥāk, commonly called ابو اشحاق الاطعية, or Abu Isḥāk the gastronomer, designates himself in his verses by the takhallus بسحق, a contraction of ابو اسحاق. He was a native of Shīrāz and a favourite of Sulṭān Iskandar B. 'Umar Shaikh, grandson of Tīmūr and viceroy of Fārs, A.H. 812—817. He died, according to the Ṭabaḥāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 75, A.H. 819, or, as stated in the Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 475, A.H. 827. See also Taḥī Kāshī and Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, pp. 19, 68, Haft Iḥlīm, fol. 99, and Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 44.

He says in the preface that he was in his youth ambitious to achieve renown in poetry, but, coming after so many great poets, as the latest of whom he names Kamāl Khujandī and Hāfiz, he was at a loss what new theme to select, when his beloved came in and suggested one by complaining of the loss of her appetite, for the restoration of which he wrote the present work.

The poems, which are in the form of Ghazals and Rubā'is, describe, in a eurious travesty of the lyric style, various products of the culinary art. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 248, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 415.

Foll. 33—35 contain a fragment of a description of Kashmīr by Faizī.

Add. 7811.

Foll. 319; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written partly in Naskhi, and partly in Nestalik; apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان نعمت الله

The Divan of Ni'mat Ullah, commonly called Ni'mat Ullah Vali.

Amīr Nūr ud-Dīn Ni mat Ullah, who was, according to his own statement in this Divan, fol. 309, a son of Mir 'Abd Ullah, and a descendant of the Imam Bakir, is revered, especially by Shī'ahs, as a great saint, and worker of miracles, and was the founder of a religious order, called after him Ni'matullāhī. It is stated in a contemporary Manākib, written for 'Ala ud-Din Shah Bahmani (A.H. 838—862), Add. 16,837, foll. 339— 355, that he was born in Halab, A.H. 730 or 731, but grew up in Irak, and went in his twenty-fourth year to Mecca, where he stayed seven years, and became a disciple and Khalifah of Shaikh 'Abd Ullah Yāfi'i (who died A.H. 768; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 427). He lived afterwards successively in Samarkand, Herat, and Yazd, attracting everywhere crowds of disciples, and finally settled in Māhān, eight farsangs from Kirmān, where he spent the last twenty-five years of his life, and died on the 22nd of Rajab, A.H. 834, at the age of 103 or 104 lunar years. In a later, but much more circumstantial account of his life, the Jami'i Mufidi, Or. 210, foll. 2-36, the same day and year are given as the date of his death, which is confirmed by several contemporary chronograms.

'Abd ur-Razzāķ, who visited the saint's tomb A.H. 845, says in the Maţla' us-Sa'dain, fol. 167, that Ni'mat Ullah Valī died on the 25th of Rajab, A.H. 834. The same year is mentioned in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 143, Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 177, and Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 53.

Daulatshāh, who places his death in A.H. 827, is followed by Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 299, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 451, and Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 110. Compare Hammer, Redekūnste, p. 223, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 517.

Ni'mat Ullah Vali was treated by Shahrukh with great consideration, and the king of Deccan, Alimad Shah Bahmani (A.H. 825-838), obtained as a singular favour the sending of one of the saint's grandchildren to his court. After the saint's death two others of his grandsons, Shah Habib Ullah and Shah Mulibb Ullah, went to the Deccan, with their father Khalil Ullah, and rose to high rank at the Bahmani court. See Firishtah, vol. i. p. 633. A detailed account of those of his descendants who remained in Persia, and intermarried with the Safavis, is to be found in the above quoted Jami' i Mufidi. The holy Sayyid's tomb in Māhān is a much frequented place of pilgrimage. He left, besides his Divan, a collection of Sufi tracts, the number of which is said to exceed five hundred.

The present copy of the Divān, which consists of poems of religious and mystic character, is imperfect at beginning and end. Its contents are as follows:—A miscellaneous series of Maṣnavīs, Ķaṣīdahs, Ghazals, and Rubā'is, without any apparent system of arrangement, fol. 7 a. (It contains a piece composed A.H. 777, fol. 30, in which a description of the distracted state of the world is followed by a prophecy of the approaching reign of the promised Imām.) Ghazals, alphabetically arranged, fol. 41 a. Maṣnavīs, fol. 303 a. Rubā'is, alphabetically arranged, breaking off in the letter 3, foll. 310 a—316 b.

The series of Ghazals, which begins

جام کیتی نماست سید ما جام و جانان ماست سید ما has after fol. 302 a lacune extending from s to r.

Three copies of the same Divan are mentioned in Bibliotheca Sprenger., Nos. 1470—1472.

Foll. 1—6 contain a prose tract by the same author, imperfect at the end, on the means of attaining spiritual insight, with the heading ...

Fol. 317 contains the end of a versified tract on ascetic life, called in the subscription الرسالة الفقرية.

- At the end of the volume, foll. 317 b-319, is a Tarji'-band, ascribed to Khwājah Ḥāfiz, in praise of Imām 'Ali Rizā, with the burden

It is written by another hand; the transcriber, Muhammad Kāsim of Isfahān, dates Zulka'dah, A.H. 971.

Add. 7091.

Foll. 220; 9 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik with gold-ruled margins; dated Muharram, A.H. 962 (A.D. 1554).

The Divan of Kasim i Anvar.

Sayyid Ķāsim, or Ķāsim i Anvār, whose original name was Mu'īn ud-Dīn 'Alī, is, like the preceding, a saint of great renown with the Shī'ahs. He was born in Sarāb (Yāķūt's Sarāv), in the district of Tabrīz, A.H. 757, and had for religious instructors Shaikh Ṣadr ud-Dīn Ardabīlī, an ancestor of the Ṣafavis, and, after him, Shaikh Ṣadr ud-Dīn 'Alī Yamanī, a disciple of Shaikh Auḥad ud-Dīn Kirmānī (see p. 619 a). After staying some time in Gīlān, he went to Khorasan, and settled in Herat, where he lived during the reigns of Timur and Shahrukh. There disciples flocked to him in such numbers, and he acquired so great an influence, as to give umbrage to the sovereign. 'Abd ur-Razzāk relates in the Matla us-Sa'dain, fol. 155, that in A.H. 830, Shāhrukh having been stabbed in the Masjid of Herat by a certain Ahmad Lur, Sayyid Kāsim was charged by Mirzā Bāisunghar with having harboured the intended assassin, and was obliged to leave Herat and repair to Samarkand, where he found a protector in Mirza Ulugh Beg. He returned, however, some years later, to Khorasan, and took up his abode in Kharjird, a town of the district of Jam, where he died in A.H. 837. See Nafahāt ul-Uns, p. 689, Latā'if Nāmah, fol. 5, Majālis ul-'Ushshāk (p. 352 b), Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 145, Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 112, and Haft Iklim, fol. 509.

Daulatshāh alone has an earlier date for the death of Sayyid Ķāsim, viz. A.H. 835. See Hammer, Redekünste, p. 285, Bland, Century of Ghazals, vi., and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 533.

The Dīvān, in which the poet uses sometimes قاسى, sometimes قاسى, for his Takhallus, contains—Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 1 b. A Tarjī'-band, fol. 203 b. Ghazals and Ķiṭ'ahs, some of which are in Turkish, others partly in the Gīlāni dialect, fol. 208 a. Rubā'is, fol. 215 b.

Copies of the Dīvān are mentioned in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 559, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 101, the Münich Catalogue, p. 28, and the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1491—1493.

Add. 25,825.

Foll. 167;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]

The same Divan, containing only the Ghazals, and wanting the latter part of the letter ...

Add. 18,874.

Foll. 242;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 15th century.

I. Fol. 1 b. The same Dīvān, containing: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. A miscellaneous series of Ghazals, Ķiţahs, and Maşnavīs, fol. 196 b. Rubās, fol. 204 a. Marşiyahs on Mīr Ghiyāş, Mīr Makhdūm, and Khwājah Ḥasan 'Aṭṭār, fol. 208 b. A Maṣnavī, containing, according to the heading, a prediction of the death of Tīmūr, fol. 209 b. A Maṣnavī treating of the various degrees in ascetic life, في مقامات السالكين, fol. 211 b. See the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 559.

II. Fol. 214 b.

انيس العارفين

A Maşnavī by the same poet, treating of the meanings attached by the Sufis to the words "soul," نفس, "spirit," ورح "heart," بقش, "intellect" وعقل , and "love," وقلب وعلت المنت وعلت كلمته منت , in which the author calls himself خدايرا جلت عظمته وعلت كلمته على بن نصير هارون بن ابى التبريزي المشهور بالقاسي على القاسم الحسيني التبريزي المشهور بالقاسي It is stated in the introduction, fol. 220 b, that the poem was written in answer to somequestions which were put to the author when he was about twenty years old.

A copy of this work is mentioned, without author's name, in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 506. The last verses are those of the poem described, without title, in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 119. Other copies are noticed in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 101, and in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 389.

III. Fol. 231 b. رساة الأمانه, "Tract of the Trust," a Sufi work in prose and verse, by the same.

شکر و سباس و حمد بی قیاس سزاوار .Beg. حضرتیست

By Jul, "Trust," the author understands spiritual insight, as the true scope of man's creation. He refers incidentally, fol. 237 a, to an interview he had in Herat, A.H. 779, with Maulānā Zahīr ud-Dīn Khalvatī. This traet, which is quoted in the Nafaḥāt, p. 692, is described, without title, in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 101.

Or. 1224.

Foll. 237; 6½ in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Alex. Jaba.]

I. Fol. 1 a. The Divān of Ķāsim i Anvār, wanting the first page, and containing Ghazals, Ķiţ'ahs, fol. 192 b, a Tarjī'-band, fol. 194 b, and Rubā'is, fol. 199 a.

II. Fol. 203 b. Anis ul-'Arifin; see above, art. ii.

III. Fol. 225 b. Risālat ul-Amānah; see above, art. iii.

Add. 7768.

Foll. 349; 8½ in. by 5½; 19 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvāns, gold-ruled margins, and gilt headings; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 857 (A.D. 1453).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

كليات كاتبى

The Kulliyāt, or collected works, of Kātibī. Kātibī, who calls himself Muḥammad B. 'Abd Ullah un-Nīsāpūrī, was born in Tarshīz, but studied in Nīshāpūr, and took his poetical surname from his early application to the art of penmanship under the celebrated poet and calligrapher Sīmī in the latter place. He went thence to Herat, and composed poems in praise of Tīmūr, Shahrukh, and the latter's son Mīrzā Bāisunghar (who died A.H. 837), but, failing to obtain adequate recognition, he left the court in disgust, and, after wandering through Astrābād and Gīlān, he found a generous patron in the ruler of Shirvan, Mirzā Shaikh Ibrāhīm (who died A.H. 820, after a reign of twenty-five years; see Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 153), whose reekless liberalities he squandered with equal lavishness. From Shirvan, after a short stay in Azarbāijān, obtaining but scant notice from its sovereign, Amir Iskandar B. Karā Yūsuf (A.H. 824—838), he repaired to Isfahān, where he was initiated to Sufism by Khwājah Sā'in ud-Dīn Tarikah (who died A.H. 835; see p. 42 a). He finally settled in Astrābād, where he began writing a Khamsah in imitation of Nizāmī, but had scarcely achieved the counterpart of the Makhzan ul-Asrar, when he was carried off by the plague in A.H. 838 or 839. Another poem, however, the Laila Majnun, evidently belonging to the Khamsah, is noticed in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 366.

Notices on Kātibī are to be found in Daulatshāh, vi. 12, Laṭā'if Nāmah, fol. 7, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 149, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 549, Ṭabaķāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 77, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 313, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 381. Compare Hammer, Redekünste, p. 281, Ouseley, Notices, p. 188, Bland, Century of Ghazals, v., and Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 457.

Copies of the Divan of Katibi are noticed in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 119, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 561, and the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1429. Other portions of the Kulliyat are mentioned in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 366, the Upsala Catalogue, p. 104, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 76.

I. Fol. 1 b. The Divan, with the heading, ديوان شبس الدين محمد نيسابوري المعروف بكاتبي

A plague, which raged with unexampled violence in Herat, is recorded in the Maila' us-Sa'dain under A.H. 838.

ای کل آدم بخمر جان مخمر ساخته Beg.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, arranged according to the persons to whom they are addressed. The first are in praise of God, Muḥammad, 'Alī, and the author's spiritual preceptor Khwājah Ṣāin ud-Dīn. The next following are addressed to Tīmūr, Shāhrukh, Bāisunghar, Shāh Ibrāhīm, king of Shirvān, his son the Shāhzādah Minūchihr, and persons of less note. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 89 b. Muḥaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 186 b. Rubāʿīs and Fardiyyāt, fol. 193 b.

II. Fol. 200 b. ڪشن ابرار, "The rosegarden of the godly," a religious poem in imitation of the Makhzan ul-Asrār of Nizāmī.

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم تاج كلامست وكلام قديم .Beg

III. Fol. 224 b. مجمع البحرين, "The confluent of the two seas," or metres (a poem so called because it may be read in two different measures), with a short prose preface, beginning مدام از حضرت مبلغ الهام و متكلم

Beg. of the poem :-

The poem, which treats of the loves of Nāzir and Manzūr, in the allegorical sense familiar to the Sufis, is often called نظرو

IV. Fol. 258 b. ده باب, "The ten Bābs," or chapters, a poem containing moral precepts and anecdotes, in the style of the Bustān.

In the conclusion Kātibī addresses his son 'Ināyat, for whom the poem was written. The headings are given in the Upsala Catalogue, p. 104. A poem with the same beginning is described in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 77, under the title of Tajnīsāt.

V. Fol. 293 b. رسى نامد," The thirty letters," a poem on the loves of Muhibb and Mahbūb, so called from the thirty love-letters which it contains.

The poem is often referred to by the title of محبب و محبوب

VI. Fol. 385 b. كتاب دلرباى, "Dilrubāi," an allegorical poem, treating of Ķubād, King of Yaman, and his crafty Vazīr.

Kātibī wrote it, as he states in the introduction, on returning after a long absence to Gīlān, and shortly after the death of Sulṭān Riẓā (who died A.H. 829; see Jahānārā, fol. 69). It is dedicated to the latter's successor, Amīr Kiyā (Mīr Sayyid Muḥammad). In the same passage are mentioned the poet's former works, Dah Bāb, Sī Nāmah, Majma' ul-Baḥrain, and Jān u Dil.

سلطان على : Copyist

Add. 24,953.

Foll. 309; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with three Unvāns, and gold-ruled margins; dated Astrābād, Jumāda I., A.H. 883 (A.D. 1478). [LORD ABERDEEN.]

Another copy of the Kulliyāt of Kātibī, containing—the Dīvān, fol. 1 b. Dah Bāb, fol. 212 b. Majma' ul-Baḥrain, fol. 254 b. Gulshan i Abrār, fol. 295 b.

The last poem wants the latter half, corresponding to foll. 212—223 of the preceding copy.

الحسين بن محمد بن جلال الرشيد : Transcriber

Add. 21,588.

Foll. 119; 9 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Ṣafar, A.H. 1023 (A.D. 1614).

The Divan of Katibi, wanting the Kaşi-dahs.

آفاق پر صداست ز کوه کناه ما Beg.

Copvist: مسعود كاتب

On the first page is a note signed Sultan Muhammad Kutubshāh, stating that the MS. had been written by Mas'ūd in the royal library at Haidarābād.

Add. 22,702.

Foll. 85; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 2½ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold headings; dated Shirāz, Ramazān, A.H. 889 (A.D. 1484). [Sir John Campbell.]

The Divan of Khayali, دبوان خيالي

ای زده کوس شهنشاهی بر ایوان قدم Beg.

Maulānā Khayāli, of Bukhārā, was a pupil of his townsman Khwājah 'Iṣmat, who died A.H. 829. Khayālī died, according to the Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 94, during the reign of Ulugh Beg (A.H. 850—853). See Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 161, Laṭā'if Nāmah, fol. 9, Daulatshāh, vi. 19, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 465, and Hammer, Redekünste, p. 279.

Contents: Two Kaṣīdahs in praise of God and Muḥammad, fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 4 b. Tarjī in praise of 'Alī, fol. 80 a. Kaṣīdah in praise of the author's master, Khwājah 'Iṣmat Ullah, fol. 81 b. Kiṭ'ahs, Rubā'īs and Fardiyyāt, fol. 83 a.

Add. 27,266.

Foll. 31; 8 in. by 5; 10 lines, 2½ in. long; written in elegant Nestalik, with 'Unvan, and gilding between the lines throughout, probably in the 16th century.

[Sir John Malcolm.]

حال نامه

Hal Namah, a Maşnavī by 'Arifi, عارفي.

زان پیش که حسب حال کویم Beg. از خالق ذو الجالال کویم

Maulānā Maḥmūd 'Ārifī, surnamed the second Salmān, سلبان ثاني, lived in Herat, his native city, under Shāhrukh, and died there, according to the Ṭabaķāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 96, A.H. 853. He left, besides various poems, among which the present is mentioned by Jāmī, Bahāristān, as the best, a versified treatise on law, and a Dah Nāmah dedicated to the Vazīr Khwājah Pīr Aḥmad B. Isḥāķ. See Daulatshāh, vii. 4, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 150, Laṭā'if Nāmah, fol. 42, and Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, p. 80.

Although entitled Hal Namah by the author, fol. 29,

این نامه که ساختم تهامش حالی شده حال نامه نامش the present poem is better known, from its subject, as کوی و چوکان. It is an allegory, in which the ball and the bat are personified as types of mystic love, and all the images are borrowed from the favourite game of Chaugan. The author wrote it, as he states in the epilogue, in the space of two weeks, in the year indicated by the chronogram , کوی خبر i.e. A.H. 842, in the following lines, fol. 29:—

ای آنکه معاینه ندانی تاریخ بیان این معانی چون کوکبه مسحر نماید روشن بتو کوی خور نماید

He says in the same passage that he was then past fifty years of age, and adds, in a second epilogue, that he had been rewarded by the prince to whom he presented the poem with the gift of a horse and a thousand Dinars.

The Guy u Chaugan was written, according to the Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, in Shīrāz, for Mīrzā 'Abd Ullah B. Ibrāhīm Sulṭān B. Shāhrukh. Mīrzā 'Abd Ullah suceeded his father as viceroy of Fārs in A.H. 838; but he was dispossessed after the death of Shāhrukh by his cousin Mīrzā Sulṭān Muḥammad B. Mīrzā Bāisunghar, who had been for five years governor of Irak. In the present copy the dedication is addressed to Sulṭān Muḥammad, fol. 8:

خورشید سریر ماه مسند سلطان جهانیان محمد

Copies are mentioned in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 123, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 379, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 36. Compare Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 266.

Add. 23,612.

Foll. 49; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 7 lines, 3 in. long, in a page; written in fair Nestalik, on tinted and gold-sprinkled paper, with Unvān and ornamental designs on every page, probably in the 15th century.

The Divan of Shahi, ديوان شاهي

ای نقش بسته نام خطت با سرشت ما Beg. ای نقش بسته نام خطت با سرشت ما

Amīr Shāhī, originally called Aķ-Malik, or Aķā Malik, son of Amīr Jamāl ud-Dīn Fīrūzkūhī, a scion of the prineely family of the Sarbadārs, was born in Sabzavār, and attached himself to Mirzā Bāisunghar, by whose influence some of his paternal estates in Sabzavār were restored to him. There he lived in affluence, and found full leisure to cultivate his artistic and literary tastes. The latter part of his life was spent in Astrābād, whither he had been called by the son of his former patron, Mirzā Abul-Ķāsim Bābur, to design some palaces, and where he died A.H. 857, upwards of seventy years old.

Notices on Amīr Shāhī will be found in Daulatshāh, vii. 1, Laṭā'if Nāmah, fol. 14, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 150, Haft Iklīm, fol. 322, Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 551, and Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 115. Compare Hammer, Redekünste, p. 293, Ouseley, Notices, p. 131, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 563.

The Dīvān consists of Ghazals alphabetically arranged, with some Kit'ahs and Rubā'is at the end. The present copy has lost a few pages in the body of the volume, and two or three at the end.

Other copies are noticed in the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 119, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 562, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 366, the Upsala Catalogue, p. 105, and the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1516.

Add. 7788.

Foll. 38; 8¾ in. by 5; 13 lines, 2⅓ in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Rauzat un-Nabaviyyah (Medina), end of A.H. 969 (A.D. 1562).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The same Divan, wanting the first page.

محمد امين المشهور بميرك الحسيني : Copyist

On the fly-leaf is a short Turkish notice on the poet, an English translation of which has been prefixed.

Or. 288.

Foll. 36; 8 in. by 5; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, dated Kaurālī, Parganah of Palwal, Sha'bān, A.H. 1185 (A.D. 1771).

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان شاهي

The same Divan, wanting the Ghazals in  $\omega$ .

Add. 7769.

Foll. 217;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in.

long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Samarķand, Jumādā II., A.H. 955 (A.D. 1548).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

المصباح

"The Lamp," a Maşnavî containing thoughts on spiritual life, illustrated by copious anecdotes of prophets, saints, and fakirs, in the style and measure of the Maşnavî of Jalāl ud-Dīn Rūmī.

Author: Rashid, رشيد

ای بنامت کارهارا انتساح .Beg نیست بی نام تو در امری فلاح

In a heading written in gold on the first page the author is called Rashid ud-Din Muhammad ul-Asfarā'inī, صدر مشايخ الامم قطب العالم شيخ رشيد الملة والديس محمد الاسفرايني

It is stated in a note written on the flyleaf, and dated A.H. 1097, that he lay buried in Baḥrābād, Asfarā'in, with Shaikh Sa'd ud-Din Ḥamavī and Shaikh Āzarī.

In the prologue the author states that he had written this work with the permission of his Shaikh, who is called, in a marginal addition, مير عبد الله رئيس الاوليا, and that it is divided into three books, treating respectively of love, fol. 4b, dissolution, fol. 74a, and longing, fol. 159 b.

The date of composition, A.H. 852, is given in the following line at the end:

See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 71, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 542.

VOL. II.

Or. 355.

Foll. 33; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 25 lines, 4\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in four gold-ruled columns, in small Nestalik, with Unvan, apparently in the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. WM. Hamilton.]

The first half of the same work, corresponding to foll. 1—102 of the preceding copy.

Add. 7930.

Foll. 221; 9 in. by 4\frac{2}{4}; 17 lines, 2\frac{2}{4} in. fong; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—179. The Divans of Na'ili, Vijdi, and Şabri, Turkish.

II. Foll. 181—221. The Divan of Nazīrī, ديوان نظيري

کل روی تو که از سنبل مویت پیداست

The poet, who calls himself in two places, foll. 216 a, 220 b, depth, a native of Tūs, or Mashhad, lived in India, and most of his Kaṣīdahs are addressed to Sayyid Shāh Khalīl-Ullah, on whose death he has a Marṣiyah, fol. 189 b, and to his two sons and successors, Shāh Muḥibb Ullah, and Shāh Ḥabīb Ullah. Both father and sons are described in the twofold character of warlike princes and of holy teachers. It appears from various passages that the poet had grown old in their service, but not rich, as some piteous appeals for money, food, and raiment, plainly testify.

It has been before stated (p. 635 a) that Shāh Khalil Ullah, son of Ni'mat Ullah Valī, went, after his father's death, A.H. 834, to the Decean, and was received with the highest marks of regard by Ahmad Shāh Bahmanī. His sons enjoyed high rank and great wealth under that prince and his successor 'Alā ud-Din Shāh (A.H. 838—862).

Habīb Ullah met with a violent death in A.H. 864. See Firishtah, Briggs' translation, vol. ii. pp. 419, 462. We learn from the same author, Bombay edition, vol. i. p. 628, that Mullā Nazīrī was employed, with Sāmi'ī and others, in continuing the Bahman Nāmah, or poetical history of the Bahmani dynasty, which the author Azarī (see p. 43 b) had brought down to the reign of Humāyūn Shāh, A.H. 862—865.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, fol. 181 b. Ghazals, without alphabetical arrangement, fol. 204 b. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol. 212 b. Rubāʿis, fol. 216 b.

Or. 1150.

Foll. 151; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[ALEX. JABA.]

A more extensive Dīvān of the same poet, slightly imperfect at the beginning, containing Ķaṣīdahs in alphabetical order, fol. 1 a. Ghazals similarly arranged, fol. 122 b. Ķiţahs, fol. 139 a. Rubā'is, fol. 146 a.

Add. 19,766.

Foll. 362; 14 in. by  $16\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in large Nestalik, in four columns enclosed by gilt borders, with rich 'Unvāns; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1097 (A.D. 1686). Bound in painted and glazed covers.

خاور نامه

Khāvar Nāmah, a poem in the epic metre on the warlike deeds of 'Alī, and his companions, Mālik and Abu l-Miḥjan.

ابن حسام ,Author: Ibn Ḥusām تخستین برین نامهٔ دلکشای .Beg مخن نقش بستم بنام خدای

Maulānā Muḥammad B. Ḥusām ud-Dīn, known as Ibn Ḥusām, was born, according to Daulatshāh, in Khūsaf, خوسف, or, as written in some copies, جوسف, in the Kuhistān of Khorasan, where he is said to have led the life of a peasant, and to have composed his poems in the fields. He boasts, in the epilogue of the present poem, his proud independence. Having reduced his wants to one barley loaf a day, he scorned the banquets of kings:

بیك قرص جو تا شب از بامكاه قناعت نهایم چو خورشید و ماه شكم چون بیك نان توان كرد شیر مكش منت سفره اردشیر

He died A.H. 875, leaving, besides his Khāvar Nāmah, numerous poems in praise of the Imāms, which are highly popular with the Shī'ahs. See the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 555, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 336, where A.H. 893 is given as the date of his death, Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 139, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 23, and the Atashkadah, fol. 40, where he is noticed under Khwāf. Compare Hammer, Redekünste, p. 297, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 19, 68, and 432.

The poem was written, as stated in the prologue, in imitation of the Shāhnāmah of Firdūsī, for whom the author expresses the highest admiration. Its matter, professedly borrowed from an Arabic work, is pure fiction. It relates to the battles and single combats fought by 'Alī and his companions, with the Shāh i Khāvarān, named Ķubād, with other heathen kings called Ṭahmās Shāh, and Ṣīṣān Shāh, and with hosts of Dīvs and dragous.

The date of composition, A.H. 830, is given in the following verses of the epilogue, in which the title of the poem appears in the form of Khāvarān Nāmah, from the name of 'Ali's principal adversary:

* Khūsaf is, according to Ḥāfiz Abrū, fol. 180, a district on the edge of the desert which divides Khorasan from Kirman.

> چو بر سال هشصد بیفزود سی شد این نامه ٔ تازیان پارسی مر این نامه را خاوران نامه نام نهادم بدانکه که کردم تمام

The Khāvar Nāmah is mentioned by Mohl, Preface to the Shāhnāmah, p. 77, as the latest of the imitations of the great epos. A copy is mentioned in the Ouseley Collection, No. 27.

The MS. contains one hundred and fiftysix whole-page miniatures in the Indian style.

مولچند ملتانی : Copyist

The name of Kamāl ud-Dīn Khān has been substituted in the subscription for that of the original owner.

Add. 7773.

Foll. 297; 9½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 962 (A.D. 1497).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The Divan of Jami, ديوان جامي, with a prose preface beginning with the following line:

بسم الله الرحين الرحيم هست صلاي سر خوان كريم

Nür ud-Din 'Abd ur-Raḥmān Jāmī, who died A.H. 898 (see p. 17 a), may be called the last of the classical poets of Persia. After dwelling in the preface on the high value of poetry, he states that he had cultivated it from his youth upwards, and had until then, when he was drawing near to his seventieth year, kept his poems in alphabetical order. Having resolved, however, to bring them into a more rational arrangement, he performed that task in A.H. 884. That date is ingeniously conveyed in the following line of a versified chronogram, بر روی صدف نهاد یك دانه کهر. It is obtained by placing a "pearl" on the face of the "shell," in other words, a dot on the first letter of the word.

Contents: Kasidahs, arranged according زان پیش کز مداد دهم to subjects, beginning fol. 5 b. This section, beginning , خامع,ا مدد with poems in praise of God, Muhammad, and 'Ali, contains religious and moral pieces, partly in imitation of Khākānī and Amīr Khusrau, several Kasidahs addressed to the reigning sovereign, Abul-Ghāzī Sultān Husain, and various occasional pieces. Tarji'bands, including Marsiyahs on the death of the saint Sa'd ud-Din Kāshgharī, who died A.H. 860, of the poet's brother, and of his son, fol. 36 a. Masnavis addressed to Sultan Abū Sa'id and his successor Sultan Husain, to the Osmanli Sultan Muhammad II., and the Karā Kuyunlū sovereign, Jahānshāh, fol. 54 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم اعظم اسماء عليم beginning , fol. 60 b. Kit'ahs, fol. 280 b. Rubā'is in alphabetical order, fol. 285 a.

محمد حسين بن سيف الدين على : Copyist

Copies of the Divān are mentioned in the Catalogues of Leyden, vol. ii. p. 120, Krafft, p. 68, St. Petersburg, p. 379, Upsala, p. 106, Copenhagen, p. 41, Gotha, p. 102, and Miinich, p. 30. Jāmi's minor poems have also been collected in three separate Divāns, containing respectively the compositions of his youth, middle life, and old age, on which see Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 448, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, pp. 371, 372.

German translations of select poems have been given by V. von Rosenzweig, Vienna, 1840, by Rückert in the Zeitschrift für die Kunde des Morgenlands, vols. 5, 6, and in the Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vols. 2, 4, 5, 6, 24, 25 and 29, lastly by M. Wickerhauser, Leipzig, 1855, and Vienna, 1858.

Add. 25,816.

Foll. 311; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Balkh, A.H. 976 (A.D. 1568).

[WM. CURETON.]

The same Dīvān, with the preface. The arrangement and contents are substantially the same as in the preceding MS.

Add. 7774.

Foll. 302; 7 in. by 4½; 14 lines, about 2¾ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 949 (A.D. 1542).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

An earlier collection of Jāmī's minor poems, with a shorter preface, beginning موزون ترین کلامی که غزل سرایان انجمن. In the preface, which contains a dedication in verse to Sultan Abu Sa'īd, the poet says that he had reached his fiftieth year.

Contents: Two religious poems in imitation of Khākānī and Khusrau, and a third descriptive of old age, fol. 4 a.

Beg. معلم كيست عشق و كنج خاموش دبستانش Some Tarjī's, concluding with a Marşiyah on the death of Maulānā Sa'd ud-Dīn Kāshgharī (A.H. 860), fol. 14 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 28 b.

Beg. بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم اعظم اسماء عليم حكيم Kit'ahs, fol. 284 a. Rubā'īs in alphabetical order, fol. 289 b.

Or. 1218.

Foll. 265; 8½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in a neat Nestalik, in two columns, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Ķazvīn, Ramazān, A.H. 894 (A.D. 1489). [Alexandre Jaba.]

Another collection, with the same preface. The contents are nearly the same, but the arrangement somewhat different.

Add. 7770.

Foll. 287; 11 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with nine 'Unvāus, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

٠ هفت اورنك جامي

The seven Maşnavīs of Jāmī, with a prose preface.

حمدا لرب جليل من عبد ذليل و سلاما .Beg.

Jāmī states in the preface that the above title, "Haft Aurang," was taken from the seven-starred constellation so-called (the Great Bear). He then proceeds to set forth the metre of each of the seven poems, which he takes in the following order, differing from their arrangement in the present copy:—

- 1. Silsilat uz-Zahab. 2. Salāmān u Absāl.
- 3. Tuhfat ul-Ahrar. 4. Subhat ul-Ahrar.
- Yūsuf u Zulaikhā. 6. Lailā u Majnūn.
- 7. Khirad-Nāmah i Iskandarī.

I. Fol. 2 b. سلسلة الذهب, "The Golden Chain," a religious poem in the metre of the Haft Paikar, dedicated to Sultan Ḥusain.

The poem is divided into three sections (Daftars), beginning respectively on foll. 2 b, 49 b, and 70 b.

See for the contents the Jahrbücher, vol. 66, Anzeige Blatt, pp. 20—26.

II. Fol. 85 b. سبحة الابرار, "The Rosary of the Righteous," a religious poem in the metre of the Nuh Sipihr of Amīr Khusrau, dedicated to Sulṭān Ḥusain, with a short prose preface beginning, المنة لله كه بخون كرخفتم

The poem begins thus:

The Subhah has been printed in Calcutta, A.H. 1226, and 1262.

III. Fol. 123 b. يوسف و زليخا, "Yūsuf and Zulaikhā," a poem in the metre of Nizāmi's Khusrau u Shīrīn, dedicated to Sulṭān Ḥusain.

It is stated in the following lines of the epilogue, that the poem was completed at the close of A.H. 888:

This is the most popular of Jāmī's poems. It has been repeatedly printed in India, and A.H. 1279 in Persia. The text has been published, with a German translation, by V. von Rosenzweig, Vienna, 1824. See also extracts by the same, Mines de l'Orient, vol. ii. p. 47, and by P. Zingerle, Phönix, 1852.

IV. Fol. 173 b. ليلى و مجنوى, "Lailā and Majnūn," in the same measure as the poem of the same name by Nizāmī.

The author states in the concluding lines that he had written the poem in the space of about four months, in A.H. 889, devoting to it two or three hours each day, and that it contains 3760 distichs. It has been translated into French by A. L. Chézy, Paris, 1805, and into German by Hartmann, Leipzig, 1807.

V. Fol. 220 b. خردنامه اسكندرى, "Alexander's Book of Wisdom," a poem in the metre of the Iskandar Nāmah of Nizāmī, dedicated to Sultān Husain.

It appears, from the epilogue, that this poem originally formed the last portion of the author's Khamsah, mentioned further on.

VI. Fol. 249 b. سلامان و ابسال, "Salāmān u Absāl," an allegorical poem, in the same measure as the Mantik ut-Tair of 'Attār.

It is dedicated to Shāh Ya'kūb, i.e. Ya'kūb Beg B. Ḥasan Beg, of the Ak Kuyunlu dynasty, who reigned from A.H. 883 to 896. Mr. F. Falconer has published the text, London, 1850, and an English translation, 1856.

VII. Fol. 255 b. مخفة الاحرار, "A Gift to the Free," a religious poem in the metre of the Makhzan ul-Asrār, divided into twelve Makālahs.

The prologue contains a eulogy on the then living chief of the Nakshabandi order, Shaikh Nāṣir ud-Dīn 'Ubaid Ullah, better known as Khwājah Aḥrār (see p. 373 b), whose surname is alluded to in the title. The poem was completed, as stated at the end, A.H. 886. It has been edited by F. Falconer, London, 1848.

Prefixed to the last poem is a short prose preface written by Jāmī for his Panj Ganj or Khamsah, a collection consisting of five of the above poems, viz. Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, Subḥat ul-Abrār, Yūsuf u Zulaikhā, Lailā u Majnūn, and Khirad Nāmah i Iskandarī. It begins thus:

قبلهء همت خداي شناس

The contents of the Haft Aurang are described by Dr. Sprenger in the Oude Catalogue, pp. 442—451. Copies are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 65, in Ouseley's Collection, No. 132, and in the catalogues of Vienna, vol. i. p. 564, St. Petersburg, p. 368, Upsala, p. 107, and Münich, p. 31.

Add. 26,162.

Foll. 416; 9 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, with 14 lines in the margin; written in fair Nestalik, in two columns, with 'Unvāns, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The same poems in their original order, viz.: Silsilat uz-Zahab, fol. 2 b. Salāmān u Absāl, fol. 126 b. Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, fol. 143 b. Subḥat ul-Abrār, fol. 181 b. Yūsuf u Zulaikhā, fol. 236 b. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 306 b. Khirad-Nāmah i Iskandarī, fol. 375 b.

The MS. bears the name and seal of Edward Galley.

Or. 472.

Foll. 275;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, in four columns, apparently in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Another copy of the Haft Aurang, differently arranged, as follows: Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 5 b. Khirad-Nāmah i Iskandarī, fol. 49 b. Silsilat uz-Zahab, with the preface to the Haft Aurang, fol. 76 b. Salāmān u Absāl, fol. 156 b. Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, with the preface to the Panj Ganj, fol. 171 b. Subḥat ul-Abrār, with a short prose preface, fol. 193 b. Yūsuf u Zulaikhā, fol. 229 b.

A note on fol. 76 a, relating to a purchase of the MS., is dated A.H. 1053.

Add. 27,265.

Foll. 263; 11\frac{3}{4} in. by 7\frac{1}{2}; 16 lines, 3\frac{3}{8} in. long, with 34 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unv\tilde{a}n and illuminated headings; dated Rajab, A. H. 973 (A.D. 1566). Bound in painted covers.

[Sir John Malcolm.]

The Divan of Jami, with the preface noticed p. 641 a.

Contents: Preface, fol. 1 b. Kaṣīdahs, fol. 5 a. Tarji's, fol. 18 a. Maşnavīs, fol. 26 a. Two Ķasīdahs in imitation of Khā-kānī and Khusrau, and a third descriptive of old age, fol. 29 b. Marsiyahs and some occasional pieces, fol. 38 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 48 a. Ķiţ'ahs, fol. 255 a. Rubā'is and Fardiyyāt, fol. 257 b.

The margins form a separate series, containing the four following poems: Subhat ul-Abrār, fol. 1 b. Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, with the preface, fol. 92 b. Khirad-Nāmah i Iskandarī, fol. 148 b. Salāmān u Absāl, foll. 220 b—257 b.

يوسف بن يعقوب دشت بياضي : Copyist

Add. 16,799.

Foll. 98;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 20 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in minute Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with three Unvāns and gilt headings, probably in the 16th century.

[WM. YULE.]

I. Fol. 1 a. Silsilat uz-Zahab (see p. 644 b), wanting the first page, two leaves after fol. 2, two leaves after fol. 72, and two more after fol. 78.

II. Fol. 82 b. Salāmān u Absāl (see p. 645 b). On fol. 48 b is found the name of Sir Gore Ouseley.

Add. 7772.

Foll. 192; 8½ in. by 5; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 988 (A.D. 1580).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

Silsilat uz-Zahab (see p. 644 b), wanting six leaves after fol. 1.

دوست محمد بن سلطان محمد .: Copyist

Add. 23,551.

Foll. 236;  $11\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins and four rich 'Unvans, apparently in the 16th century.

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

The same poem.

Add. 18,416.

Foll. 144; 8½ in. by 5; 15 and 13 lines, 2½ in. long, with 30 lines in the margins in the latter half of the volume; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1057 (A.D. 1647). [WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

Add. 18,415.

Foll. 233; 8½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Lahore, Zul-hijjah, A.H. 1148 (A.D. 1736).

WM. YULE.

The same poem.

Or. 336.

Foll. 299; 9½ in. by 6; 9 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The same poem, wanting the latter part of Daftar I., the beginning of Daftar II., and the whole of Daftar III.

Add. 26,163.

Foll. 48; 9½ in. by 6½; 12 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi I., A.H. 980 (A.D. 1572). [WM. ERSKINE.]

Salāmān u Absāl (see p. 645, vi.), wanting the first page, single leaves after foll. 1, 24, and 26, and four leaves after fol. 44.

The Subhatul-Abrar (see p. 644, ii.), written by a later hand in the margins of foll. 1—44, has corresponding lacunes.

محمد بي علام الدين رزة Copyist:

Add. 6615.

Foll. 182; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and illuminated borders; probably about the close of the 15th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

Tuhfat ul-Aḥrār (see p. 645, vii.), with a short prose preface, in which Jāmī claims indulgence for his poem, "however unworthy to be strung on the same thread as the priceless pearls of the Makhzan ul-Asrār of Nizāmī, and the Maṭla' ul-Anvār of Amīr Khusrau."

Beg. حامدا لمن جعل جنان كل عارف مخزن اسرا

Foll. 61—182, written by another hand, probably in the 16th century, contain the Subhat nl-Abrār with the preface above noticed (p. 644 b, ii.).

Add. 6616.

Foll. 166; 9½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1025 (A.D. 1616), and Jumāda II., A.H. 1019 (A.D. 1610).

[J. F. HULL.]

Subhat ul-Abrār, with Jāmi's preface, fol. 1 b.

Tuhfat ul-Ahrar, with the preface noticed in the preceding MS., fol. 105 b.

Or. 1369.

Foll. 61; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{2}; 12 lines, 2\frac{7}{8} in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvan, gilt headings, and ornamental designs in the outer margins, apparently in the 15th century.

[Sir Chas. Alex. Murray.]

The Tuhfat ul-Ahrār, with the same prose preface. It wants the latter part of the prologue and the first two Makālahs. At the end is the author's subscription, stating that the poem had been completed in A.H. 886.

Add. 19,004.

Foll. 78;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in.

long; written in a fair Nestalik, with goldruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, with the same preface and subscription.

Add. 16,798.

Foll. 76; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvān, gold headings and illuminated borders; dated A.H. 938 (A.D. 1531). [WM. YULE.]

Tuhfat ul-Ahrar, with the preface.

Two leaves are wanting after fol. 8, four after fol. 12, and one after fol. 21. At the beginning are two miniatures in fair Indian style, with rich borders.

Copyist: هادیشاه ابی شادیشاه

Add. 25,817.

Foll. 62;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century. [WM. CURETON.]

The same poem.

Add. 19,499.

Foll. 150; 8 in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

The same poem.

عبد الكريم ملتاني : Copyist

Add. 25,818.

Foll. 86;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 11 lines, 2 in. long; written in Nestalik, with two Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Agrah, Rajab, A.H. 1006 (A.D. 1598). [WM. CURETON.]

The Tuhfat ul-Ahrār, with the preface.

محمد صادق حافظ ناکوری : Copyist

Or. 1230.

Foll. 65; 7 in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $1\frac{5}{8}$  in.

long, with 12 lines in the margin; written in small and fair Nestalik, probably about the close of the 15th century.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

Subhat ul-Abrār (see p. 644 b), with the preface, and Turkish glosses written between the lines.

Add. 26,164.

Foll. 130;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvān, illuminated headings, and gold designs in the margins, apparently in the 16th century. Bound in gilt and stamped leather.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

Subhat ul-Abrār, with the preface.

قوام بن محمد كاتب شيرازى : Copyist

At the end is a miniature in Persian style, with a rich border.

Or. 1225.

Foll. 113;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, with Unvan and ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

[Alexandre Jaba.]

The same poem, with the preface.

Harleian 501.

Foll. 112; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1009 (A.D. 1601).

Subhat ul-Abrar, with the preface.

سید علی بن سید ناصر کیا : Copyist

Add. 24,055.

Foll. 150;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with a rich 'Unvān, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 947 (A.D. 1540).

Yūsuf and Zulaikhā (see p. 645 b).

محمد قاسم جامی : Copyist

Or. 1221.

Foll. 177; 6½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 2 in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins and illuminated headings, dated Sha'bān, A.H. 989 (A.D. 1581). Bound in gilt and stamped leather.

[ALEXANDRE JABA.]

Yüsuf and Zulaikhā, with three whole-page miniatures in Persian style.

Add. 6629.

Foll. 139; 6½ in. by 4; 13 lines, 23 in. long; written in small Nestalik; dated A.H. 997 (A.D. 1589). [J. F. Hull.]

The same poem.

Or. 1368.

Foll. 176; 12 in. by 7; 12 lines, 33 in. long; written in fine Nestalik, on gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unvan, illuminated borders and headings, apparently in the 16th century. [Sir Chas. Alex. Murray.]

The same poem, with six whole-page miniatures in Persian style.

Foll. 32—37, 138, 139 and 176 have been supplied by Muḥammad Rizā i Işfabānī, in Rabī' II., A.H. 1011 (A.D. 1602).

Add. 19,493.

Foll. 142; 8 in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in small and neat Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

The same poem.

A Persian note on the first page is dated Lahore, A.H. 1042.

Add. 25,902.

Foll. 138; 8½ in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

The same poem.

VOL. II.

Add. 5562.

Foll. 167; 8½ in. by 4¾; 13 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Murshidābād, Rajab, the 5th year of Farrukhsiyar, (A.H. 1129, A.D. 1717).

[CHARLES HAMILTON.]

The same poem.

ملك عاقل : Copyist

Add. 7771.

Foll. 205; 8\frac{2}{3} in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Shavval, A.H. 1177 (A.D. 1764). Bound in painted covers.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same poem, with seventy-six miniatures in fair Indian style.

جمال الدين الملقب بحسن : Copyist

Add. 26,165.

Foll. 140; 84 in. by 5; 15 lines, 34 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same poem, wanting three leaves at the end.

Add. 19,432.

Foll. 140; 9 in. by 64; 15 lines, 34 in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, probably in the 18th century.

The same poem.

Add. 7778.

Foll. 184; 7½ in. by 4½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 967 (A.D. 1560). [Cl. J. Rich.]

رساله میر حسین در معمی

A Turkish commentary by Surūrī (see p. 606 a) on the versified treatise on logogriphs of Mīr Ḥusain B. Muḥammad ul-Ḥusainī, which begins thus:

بنام انکه از تالیف و ترکیب معمای جهان [۱] داده ترتیب

Mīr Ḥusain, a native of Nīshāpūr, who led the life of a scholar in the Madrasah Ikhlā-siyyah of Herat, attained eminence in the art of versified riddles. He died A.H. 904. See Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 340, Lubb ut-tavārīkh, fol. 164, Taķī and Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, pp. 20, 75, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 317.

The treatise was written, as stated in the preface, by desire of Mīr 'Alī Shīr, and submitted for approval to Jāmī, whose classification of Mu'ammās had been adopted. The logogriphs given as examples relate to proper names of men.

Surūrī says in the preface that he had previously written a commentary upon Jāmī's treatise on the same subject, رساله در, . He states at the end that the present commentary was completed in A.H. 965.

The Risālah of Mīr Ḥusain is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 638, by Uri, p. 294, and in the Catalogues of Leyden, vol. i. p. 360, Münich, p. 43, and Gotha, p. 116.

Add. 77.67.

Foll. 89; 7 in. by 5; 13 lines, 23 in long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان اسيري

The Divan of Asiri.

ای عشق تو آتش زده در خرمن جانها . Beg. او روانها و روانها

Asīrī, whose proper name was Shaikh Shams ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Yaḥyā, of Lāhijān, in Gīlān, was the principal Khalīfah of the celebrated founder of the Nūrbakhshī order, Sayyid Muḥammad Nūrbakhsh, who died in Rai, A.H. 869. After his master's death he settled in Shīrāz, where he built a monastery called Khānkāh Nūriyyah. He was a friend of the famous philosopher Davānī (see p. 442 b), and lived on to the time of Shāh Ismā'īl, who went to see him after taking possession of Shīrāz (A.H. 910). He left, besides his Dīvān, a commentary upon the Gulshan i Rāz (see Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 233). A full notice of his life is found in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 345; see also Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 43. His son, who became celebrated as a poet under the name of Fidā'ī, died A.H. 927. See Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 20, No. 143, and p. 21, No. 179, and Ilāhī, ib., p. 70.

The above named Sayyid Muhammad Nürbakhsh, whose life is also recorded in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 343, was the son of Savyid Muhammad, of Kaţīf, and a descendant of Imam Mūsā Kāzim. He was born in Kā'in, A.H. 795, and was initiated in Sufism by Khwājah Ishāk Khutlānī, a disciple of Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī (see p. 447 b), from whom he received the surname of Nürbakhsh. Having been incarcerated by Shahrukh in Herat for an attempted rising in Khutlan, where he had proclaimed himself Khalif, A.H. 826, he escaped from confinement, and, after long wanderings through Başrah, Baghdad, and Kurdistan, where he found many followers, he settled in Gilan, where he remained until the death of Shahrukh. He then repaired to Rai, where he spent the rest of his life. His son, Shah Kasim, who succeeded him as head of the Nürbakhshis, and was treated with great consideration by Shāh Ismā'il Safavī, died in Rai, A.H. 927. See Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 4, p. 115.

The Divan contains Ghazals alphabetically arranged, in some of which the poet addresses Nurbakhsh as his spiritual guide, and a Tarji'-band at the end, foll. 85—89. Another Tarji'-band is written in the margins of the same folios.

The margins of foll. 4-38 contain the Zād ul-Musāfirin (see p. 608 a), wanting the eighth Makālah.

A copy of the Divan of Asiri is mentioned in the Gotha Catalogue, p. 109.

Or. 1096.

Foll. 408; S<sub>2</sub> in. by 5<sub>4</sub>; 12 lines, 2<sub>5</sub> in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1018 (A.D. 1609). [D. Fordes.]

ديوان فغاني

The Divan of Fighani.

Fighāni was the son of a cutler in Shīrāz, and originally took, in allusion to his father's trade, the takhallus of Sakkāki. He created, according to Valih, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 336, a new style of poetry, which most of the subsequent poets, down to the time of Mirzā Sā'ib, strove to imitate. It was not however to the taste of the poets of the court of Sultan Husain, and Fighani left Herat, where he had first tried his fortune, and repaired to Tabriz. There he won the favour of Sultan Ya'kuh, the youthful sovereign of the Ak-kuyunlu dynasty (A.II. 883-896), who bestowed upon him the title of Baba i Shu'ara, or "father of the poets." After the death of his protector, he settled in Abivard, and subsequently in Mashliad, where his poems in praise of the Imam secured him an honourable reception. He died there, according to the Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 180, A.H. 922, or, as stated by Sam Mirza (Notices et Extraits, vol. iv. p. 305), A.H. 925. See also Majālis ul-Muminin, fol. 560, Haft Iklim, fol. 101, Bland, a Century of Ghazals, ix., and the Oude Catalogue, p. 21, No. 176, and p. 403.

The Divan contains Ghazals in alphabetical order, Rubā'is and Fardiyyāt, fol. 197 a.

Copies are mentioned in the catalogues of Leyden, vol. ii. p. 122, St. Petersburg, p. 384, and Münich, p. 34, and in the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1396.

The MS. bears the signature and Persian seal of Edward Galley.

Add. 16,794.

Foll. 176; 10 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with two 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]:

The same Divan, with an additional section of Kasidahs, mostly in praise of 'Alī and the Imāms, foll. 1—14, beginning:

Add. 25,821.

Foll. 65; 12 in. by  $9\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A. 1201 of the Bengal Era (A.D. 1794).

[WM. CURETON.]

ديوان آصفي

The Divan of Aşafī.

Khwājah Āsafī, son of Khwājah Ni'mat Ullah Kuhistānī, who had been Vazīr to Sultan Abu Sa'īd, took his poetical surname from his father's office (Āṣaf). He was one of the most eminent poets of the court of Herat in the reign of Sultan Ḥusain; and attached himself especially to Mīr 'Alī Shīr, and to the Sultan's son, Mīrzā Badī' uz-Zamān, whom he accompanied to Balkh. He died on the 16th of Sha'bān, A.H. 923, at the age of seventy, as stated in Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 346, in Lubb ut-

Tavārīkh, fol. 180, and in Haft Iķlīm, fol. 336. The date is fixed by two chronograms, one of them said to have been composed by Aṣafī himself when he felt death drawing near, "He measured with seventy steps the road to eternity," زین مرحله رفت و کشت تاریخ وفات پیمود ره بقا بکام هفتساد.

the other due to a contemporary poet, Amīr Sultān Ibrāhīm Amīnī:

> پرسید دل از من که چه آمد تاریخ کفتم ز برات آمده روز دوم

Sām Mīrzā and Taķī Kāshī give A.H. 920, and Ilāhī A.H. 928 (Oude Catalogue, pp. 20 and 71), as the date of his death. Other notices will be found in Daulatshāh, viii. 6, Laṭāif Nāmah, fol. 33, Khulāṣat ul-Akhbār, fol. 401, Memoirs of Baber, p. 194, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, and Atashkadah, fol. 76. Compare Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 310.

The Dīvān consists of Ghazals in alphabetical order, and some Rubā'is, fol. 62 b. Copies are mentioned in the catalogues of Vienna, vol. i. p. 577, St. Petersburg, p. 385, Copenhagen, p. 41, and Münich, p. 34, and in Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1370.

Cotton. Cleopatra A. IX.

Foll. 65; 7 in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, probably in the 17th century.

The same Divan, wanting three leaves at the beginning and one at the end.

Or. 271.

Foll. 78;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1278 (A.D. 1862).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same work.

دایه قادر بخش ساکن نود محله قریب : Copyist پیر رمضان غازی This copy was made for Col. G. W. Hamilton, then Commissioner Superintendent of the Province of Multan.

Add. 10,586.

Foll. 79; 8½ in. by 5; 13 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and six miniatures in Persian style; dated Tabrīz, A.H. 938 (A.D. 1532); bound in painted covers.

ليلي مجنون

Lailā and Majnūn, a Masnavī by Hātifī, هاتفي

این نامه که خامه کرد بنیاد Beg. توقیع قبول روزیش باد

Maulānā 'Abd Ullah Hātifī, who was the son of Jāmī's sister, and, like him, a native of Kharjird, in the province of Jām, was unrivalled in his day as a Maṣnavī writer. It is said that he did not commence his Khamsah, upon which, although not completed, his fame chiefly rests, until he had given to his celebrated uncle proofs of his competence, and obtained his leave. He devoted no less than forty years to the composition and improvement of the Tīmūr Nāmah, the last poem of the Khamsah.

Sam Mīrzā states in his Tazkirah, fol. 88, that his father Shah Isma'l, passing through Kharjird on his return from the conquest of Khorasan, A.H. 917, strolled to the house of Hatifi, who was living there in great seclusion, and, finding the gate closed, effected an entrance by scaling the garden wall. After entertaining his unbidden guest, the poet had to comply with his desire by writing a poetical record of the Shah's Of this last poem, however, victories. (a copy of which is described in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 383) only a thousand lines were written; it was left unfinished at his death, which took place, as stated in the Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 346, in the month of Muḥarram, A.H. 927. See also Memoirs of Baber, p. 196, Lubb ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 181, Haft Iklīm, fol. 285, Riyāz ush-Shuarā, fol. 501, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 355, Ouseley, Notices, p. 143, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 421.

The prologue contains an invocation to Sayyid Kāsim i Anvār, the patron Saint of Kharjird (see p. 635 b), in whose shrine, and through whose inspiration, Hātifī formed the first conception of this poem. In the epilogue he describes himself as the successor of Nizāmī and Khusrau, while he ranks Jāmī, who is spoken of as still living, as a fourth by the side of the three monarchs of the realms of poetry, Firdūsī, Anvarī, and Sa'dī. In conclusion he expresses a hope that this, his first poem, would be followed by four others, to complete a Panj Ganj, or Khamsalı.

چلبی القاینی :Copyist

The Laila Majnun was edited by Sir Wm. Jones, with a notice on the author by 'Ali Ibrahim Khan (see p. 328 a), Calcutta, 1788. It has been reprinted by Navalkishor in Lucknow.

Copies are mentioned in the catalogues of Leyden, vol. ii. p. 121, Vienna, vol. i. p. 581, and Gotha, p. 107, in the Ouseley Collection, No. 261, and the Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1410. A manuscript translation by Dr. J. Leyden is preserved in Add. 26,574.

Add. 16,801.

Foll. 71; 7 in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2¼ in. long; written in Iudian Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1027 (A.D. 1618).

[WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

Add. 26,166.

Foll. 90; 81 in. by 41; 14 lines, 23 in.

long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvan, gilt headings, gold-ruled margins, and seven miniatures in Persian style; dated Rabi' I., A.H. 960 (A.D. 1553). [Wm. Erskine.]

هفت منظر

Haft Manzar, a Maşnavî by Hātifī, in imitation of the Haft Paikar of Nizāmī.

ای نکارنده ٔ صحیفه ٔ غیب Beg. نام تو صدر صفحه ٔ لا ریب

The poet, who, in the introduction, addresses Jāmī as still living, designates in the epilogue the present poem as his third, naming Lailā Majnūn as the first, and Shīrīn Khusrau as the second.

Copies are noticed in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 67, and in the catalogues of St. Petersburg, p. 383, Copenhagen, p. 42, and Münich, p. 34.

Add. 7780.

Foll. 122; 8½ in. by 4½; 14 lines, 2½ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, gold-headings, and eight miniatures in Persian style, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

Tīmūr Nāmah, the poetical history of Tīmūr, by Hātifī, a Maşnavī in imitation of Nizāmī's Iskandar Nāmah.

بنام خدائی که فکر خرد Beg. نیارد که تا کنه او پی برد

The poem is sometimes called Zafar-Nāmah (see Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 176), but its real title is Tīmūr Nāmah, which, however, from the exigencies of the metre, the text shows only in a contracted form, تمر ذامه

The author addresses, in the prologue, the reigning sovereign, apparently Sultān Husain, without mentioning his name: شها شهریارا سرا سرورا خداوندکارا جهان پسرورا and, after boasting of his own matchless excellence, not only in Masnavi, but also in Kasidah and Ghazal, complains that the cares of livelihood prevented him from giving full scope to his genius:

ر فکر معاشم بسراسیه وار سراسیه وار سراسیه دارد مسرا روز کار کر اندیک زمانم فیراغی بود بکام دل خود دماغی بود دم ایجنان داد را در سخن که حیوان بهاند سپهر کهن

He mentions in the epilogue his three previous poems, Lailā u Majnūn, Shīrīn u Khusrau, and Haft Manzar, dwells on the contrast existing between the fabulous story of Alexander and the veracious character of his Tīmūr Nāmah, and asserts that he had strietly followed the lead of the eloquent official writers who had recorded Tīmūr's authentic history, as contained in the Zafar Nāmah:

نکردم ز افسانه بی فروغ ز اسکندر مرده نقل دروغ سخن افرینان حسان کلام که بودند سر دفتر خاص و عام شدند آن جریفان فرخنده رای بسوی تبر نامه ام رهنهای بود درخور نامه مانوی جو دیدم دران قصه پر فروغ ظفر نامه یافتم بی دروغ

He says in conclusion that, although his life had been spent in celebrating the praises of the Timurides, he had not reaped any other benefit than his world-wide renown.

The Timur Namah has been lithographed with the title طفرنامه هاتفي, in Lucknow, 1869.

Copies are described in Uri's Catalogue, p. 116, in the catalogues of St. Petersburg, p. 381, and Münich, p. 34, in the Ouseley Collection, No. 263, and the Bibliotheea Sprenger., No. 1412.

Add. 22,703.

Foll. 87; 11¼ in. by 7; 13 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two columns, with illuminated borders, gilt headings, rich gold designs in the margins, and seven whole-page miniatures, probably in the sixteenth century.

[Sir John Campbell.]

A fuller recension of the same poem, imperfect at beginning and end, and wanting single leaves after foll. 16, 37, 54 and 58. It begins with the taking of Isfahan, and ends with Timūr's victory before Halab, corresponding to pp. 38—85 of the Lucknow edition.

Add. 6618.

Foll. 159; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 14 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan, gold-ruled margins, and gold headings, apparently in the 16th century.

[F. Hull.]

The same poem.

Or. 340.

Foll. 117;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, probably in the 16th century.

[Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same poem.

Foll. 2, 7—30, 46—53, 61—69 and 78—116 have been supplied by a later hand, in A.H. 1187 (A.D. 1773).

Add. 25,829.

Foll. 161; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in eursive Indian character; dated Safar, A.H. 1085 (A.D. 1674).

[WM. CURETON.]

The same poem.

Or. 341.

Foll. 159; 11 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns and ruled margins; dated Lahore, A.D. 1856 (A.H. 1273). [Geo. Ww. Hamilton.]

The same poem.

Prefixed is a short notice on Timur, with his portrait, foll. 2 b-4a.

يندت راجه رام كول المعروف طوطه : Copyist

Or. 343.

Foll. 41; 8% in. by 6; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

A poetical description of the holy shrines of Mecca and Medina, and of the rites of pilgrimage, in the metre of the Makhzan ul-Asrār.

Author: Muhyi, حيى

ای همه کس را بدرت النجا Beg. کمبه دل را ز تو نور و صفا

Muhyi Lari, a native of the island of Lar in the Persian Gulf, lived, according to the Rivaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 411, from the time of Sultan Ya'kūb (A.II. 883-896) to the reign of Shah Tahmasp, who succeeded A.H. 930. He wrote a commentary upon the Ta'iyyah of Ibn Fariz, and dedicated the present poem, on his return from Mecca, to Sultan Muzaffar B. Mahmud Shah (who reigned in Gujrat from A.H. 917 to 932). That dedication is not found in the present copy. Muhyī died, as stated by Taķī Kāshī, Onde Catalogue, p. 21, A.H. 933. He is described by Sam Mirza, fol. 117, and the author of Haft Iklim, fol. 114, as a disciple of Davani (see p. 442 b). Compare Atashkadah, fol. 137, and Haft Asman, p. 89.

In a copy of the Futūḥ ul-Ḥaramain, described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 122, the date of composition is expressed by the chronogram افيق A.H. 911.

The Futuh ul-Haramain has been sometimes ascribed, by a very natural oversight, to Jāmī; see Stewart's Catalogue, p. 66, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 451. Jāmī's name occurs indeed in this line of the prologue, fol. 10 a:

but only in connexion with an extract from his Tuhfat ul-Ahrār, viz. the seventh Makā-lah, which, treating of the same subject and being in the same metre, has been inserted in full, foll. 10 a—11 b. The author gives his name in the introduction, fol. 4 a:

and again in the conclusion, fol. 41 b:

In a lithographed edition published in Lucknow, A.H. 1292, which contains a text substantially agreeing with the present copy, the quotation from Jāmī has been omitted, and the work is boldly ascribed to the famous saint, Muḥyī ud-Dīn 'Abd ul-Kādir Jilānī, who died A.H. 561. The contents of the poem have been stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 71, Anzeige Blatt, p. 49. Compare Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 385, and Dr. Lee's Oriental MSS., London, 1830, p. 59.

The MS. contains coloured drawings of the holy places.

Add. 7783.

Foll. 111; 6 in. by 3\frac{2}{3}; 11 lines, 2\frac{3}{3} in. long; written in Shafi \text{ai, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1192 (A.D. 1778). [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان هلالي

The Divan of Hilali.

ای نور خدا در نظر از روی تو مارا Beg. بکذار که در روی تو بینیم خدا را

Badr ud-Dīn Hilālī, born in Astrābād of a Chaghatāi Turkish family, went as a youth to Herat, where his education was watched over by Mir 'Ali Shir. Sam Mirza, whom he often visited, states, fol. 85, that he was put to death as a Shi'ah heretic by the Uzbak invader, 'Ubaid Khān, A.H. 939. He left a Divan and two Masnavis, entitled Shah u Darvish and Sifat ul-Ashikin. A third, Lailā u Majnūn, is ascribed to him by Taķī Auhadi, and the author of the Atashkadah; but its existence is contested by Vālih, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 501. See Habīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 350, Haft Iklim, fol. 468, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 368, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 426.

The Dīvān consists of Ghazals alphabetically arranged, with a few Ķiţ'ahs and Rubā'īs at the end, fol. 106 α. It has been lithographed in Cawnpore, A.H. 1281. See the catalogues of Vienna, vol. i. p. 563, and Münich, p. 35, Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1414, and King's College Library, No. 186.

Add. 7781.

Foll. 55;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $1\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in small and fair Nestalik, in gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān, and gold-sprinkled margins; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 927 (A.D. 1521.) [Cl. J. Rich.]

شاه و درویش

"The King and the Darvish," a Maşnavî by Hilālī.

This poem is often called Shah u Gada. The objectionable nature of its subject is not redeemed by any pretence of spiritual symbolism.

See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 76, the catalogues of Leyden, vol. ii., p. 122, of St. Petersburg, p. 389, and of Münich, p. 35, and the Ouseley Collection, No. 526.

شاة محمود النشابورى : Copyist

Add. 26,168.

Foll. 34; 10¼ in. by 6¼; 12 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān, ruled columns, and tinted designs in the margins, probably in the 16th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

A defective copy of the same poem, wanting two leaves after fol. 9, twelve after fol. 10, and four at the end. It bears the signature and Persian stamp of Edw. Galley, with the date 1783.

Add. 7782.

Foll. 22;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 15 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-Amīz, with ruled margins; dated A.H. 1076 (A.D.1666).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same poem, wanting the epilogue.

Or. 307.

Foll. 141;  $10\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; with 30 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik, probably in the 17th century.

ديوان لساني

The Divan of Lisani.

زهی عشقت بباد بی نیازی داده خرمنها .Beg خم فتراك شوقت سركشان را طوق كردنها

Lisānī, whose original name was Vajīh ud-Dīn 'Abd Ullah, was born in Shīrāz, but spent the greater part of his life in Baghdād and Tabrīz. Sām Mīrzā, who often enjoyed his society, describes him as a pious man who led the life of a Darvīsh, and states that he died in Tabriz A.H. 941. According to the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 562, he composed, chiefly in praise of the Imams, about one hundred thousand verses, most of which are lost, and breathed his last while engaged in prayer in the mosque of Tabriz, at the time that Sultan Sulaiman was marching upon that city, i.e. at the beginning of the year above mentioned. See Haft Iklim, fol. 100, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 397, Atashkadah, fol. 133, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 391, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 476, and Erdmann, Zeitschrift der D. M. Gesellschaft, vol. xii. pp. 518-535, where several pieces from Lisāni's Divan are given in text and translation.

The Divan comprises, in the present copy, an alphabetical series of Ghazals, with a considerable gap after fol. 69, extending from the end of s to the beginning of c, and a Maşnavi entitled Saķi Nāmah, fol. 137 b. See the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 584.

On the first page is a short notice on the poet, giving the same date of death as above, and mentioning Vaḥshī, Muḥtashim, and Zamīrī as his principal imitators.

Or. 279.

Foll. 360; 9 in. by 53; 18 lines, 21 in. long, with 12 lines in the margin; written in small Nestalik, probably in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

كليات اهلى شيرازي

The poetical works of Ahli Shīrāzī.

This poet is not to be confounded with his contemporary namesake, Ahli Khurāsānī, a native of Turshīz, who lived in Herat, and died A.H. 934 (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 319). Ahlī of Shīrāz, who excelled in all kinds of poetical composition, is especially famous for the ingenious artifices of versification, in which he emulated and surpassed Salmān and Kātibī. Mīr 'Alī Shīr mentions him in his Majālis, written A.H. 896, as a scholar and accomplished poet, who had twice sent him verses from Shīrāz, and had just composed a skilfully rhymed Kasidah in imitation of Salman. With the exception of a short stay in Tabriz, Ahli appears to have spent the whole of his life in his native city, where he died in old age A.H. 942. That date, which is given by Sam Mīrzā, fol. 96, is fixed by the following chronogram due to a contemporary poet Mirak, and quoted in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 561, and Haft الله الله الله الله الله الله Iklim, fol. 102: يادشاه شعرا بود اهلي الله also Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 4, p. 112, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 28, Atashdah, fol. 119, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 376, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 320, Bland, a Century of Ghazals, vii., and Erdmann, Zeitsehrift der D. M. Gesellschaft, vol. xv. pp. 775-785, where some specimens of Ahli's Divan are given in text and translation.

I. Fol. 4 b. سحر حلال "Lawful Witchcraft," the love-story of Prince Jam and Princess Gul, in Maşnavī rhyme, with a short prose preface beginning:

Ahlī wrote it, as he states in the preface, in order to make good his boast that he was able to outdo Kātibī, by combining in one poem the artifices of metre and plays upon words found separately in that poet's two admired works, the Majma' ul-Baḥrain and the Tajnīsāt. The prologue includes a eulogy addressed to the author's patron, Ķāzī Mu'in ud-Din (Ṣā'idī):

II. Fol. 16 b. شمع و إروانه, "Candle and Moth," a Maşnavi.

It is dedicated to Sultan Ya'kūb (of the Ak-Kuyūnlū Dynasty, A.H. 883 to 896), and is stated, in the concluding lines, to consist of one thousand and one distichs. The date of composition, A.H. 894, is expressed by the chronogram تم الكتاب, in the following line:

III. Fol. 37 a. Kasīdahs, arranged according to subjects.

The Kaṣīdahs are in praise of Muḥammad, 'Alī, the Imāms, Shāh Ismā'īl, Khwājah Mu'īn ud-Dīn Ṣā'idī, Amīr Sa'd ud-Dīn As'ad, Amīr 'Alī Shīr, Ya'kūb Khān, and others. This section contains also some Tarjī'- and Tarkīb-bands, and concludes with a Mukhammas.

IV. Fol. 93 b. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, including a large number of chronograms on contemporary events.

V. Fol. 104 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order.

VI. Fol. 302 b. ساقي نامه, a collection of Rubā'īs, addressed to the "cup-bearer," and alphabetically arranged.

VII. Fol. 308 a. رباعيات كيفة, Rubā'is describing the various cards of the game, and written for a pack of cards intended for a royal personage.

VIII. Fol. 314 b. Rubā'is, followed by some riddles, fol. 354 a, and an invocation (Munājāt) in verse, fol. 358 b.

Copies of the Kulliyāt are described in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 67, and in the catalogues of Vienna, vol. i. p. 585, and St. Petersburg, p. 391.

Add. 27,313.

Foll. 283;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long, with 12 lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1170 (A.D. 1757). [Duncan Forbes.]

A similar collection, containing—Siḥr i Ḥalāl, wanting the last sixteen lines, fol. 1 b. Sham' u Parvānah, wanting the first twelve lines, fol. 13 a. Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 34 b. Riddles, fol. 86 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, wanting the first page, fol. 90 a. Muḥaṭṭa'āt, fol. 217 b. Rubā'īs in alphabetical order, fol. 221 b. Three artificial Ķaṣīdahs, فصيدة مصنوع, beginning respectively on foll. 237 b, 252 b, and 268 b.

The first of these Kaṣīdahs has a prose preface, in which the author states that it was composed in imitation of a well known Kaṣīdah of Salmān Sāvajī, and in praise of Amīr 'Alī Shīr. The second is addressed to Yūsuf Shāh, the brother of Sultan Ya'kūb Ak-Kuyunlu, who died A.H. 896, and the third to Shāh Ismā'īl Ṣafavī. The last two have short prose preambles stating the number of their distichs, respectively 154 and 160. In all three Kaṣīdahs the names of the poetical figures, and of the secondary metres which can be derived from each verse, are given in tabular form between the lines of the poem.

The first page of the MS. has the signature and Persian seal of Edward Galley.

Add. 16,796.

Foll. 134; 8½ in. by 4½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 962 (A.D. 1554). [WM. YULE.]

ديوان طيب

The Divan of Tayyib.

حمدی که بحدش نرسد مدرك اشیا .Beg. لله تـقدس و تعظم و تعالی

The author, who calls himself mostly Tayyib, but in some places Shāh Tayyib, is mentioned under the latter name in the Nafā'is ul-Ma'ūṣir, a work written A.H. 973—979, Oude Catalogue, p. 51. It appears from some passages of the Divān that he was a Sayyid, and a fervid Shī'ah, foll. 5 a, 51 a, 126, leading the life of a Faķīr, and residing in Khorasan, foll. 16 b, 87 a; but we learn incidentally, foll. 55 a, 87 a, that he had visited Bukhārā and 'Irūķ.

The Divan, which is entirely of a religious and mystic nature, contains Ghazals in alphabetical order, and some Rubā'is, fol. 129 b.

احمد بن حاجي عبد لله بن لطف الله : Copyist درسي

Or. 280.

Foll. 73; 73 in. by 31; 15 lines, 2 in. long; written in small Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 970 (A.D. 1562).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان شاه بهلول

The Divan of Shah Bahlul.

شبنهي از بحرعشق دوست كل شد خاك ما .Beg. مخزن اسرار شد خاك كل نمناك ما

It contains Ghazals of a religious nature, arranged in alphabetical order.

From the formula غفر له, which follows the author's name in the subscription, he appears to have died before A.H. 970. A Dīvān with the same beginning, and a Vaṣlat Nāmah ascribed also to Shaikh Bahlūl, are noticed in the Oude Catalogue, p. 370.

Add. 7785.

Foll. 135; S in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1217 (A.D. 1803). [Cl. J. Rich.]

. ديوان فضولي

The Persian Divan of Fuzuli.

هیچکه بر حال ما رحمتی نبی آید ترا میکشی مارا مکر عاشق نبی باید تمرا

Muḥammad B. Sulaimān, of Baghdād, poetically called Fuzūlī, and chiefly known as a Turkish poet, wrote also Persian and Arabic poetry with elegance. He died at Karbalā A.H. 970, or, according to the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 341 a, A.H. 976. See Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 22, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 55, Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 300, and Hammer, Geschichte der Osmanischen Dichtkunst, vol. ii. p. 293.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, with a considerable lacune after fol. 48, extending from s to J, fol. 1. Kit ahs and Masnavis, fol. 104 b.

نظام الدین بن شیخ علی بن شیخ ابراهیم : Copyist

The Divan has been printed in Tabriz.

Add. 7786.

Foll. 62; 7% in. by 5%; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان سلطان سليم

The Divan of Sultan Salim.

G G 2

ای ترا برده عزت علم یکتائی Beg. کسر نه همتای تو در مملکت یی همتائی

Sultān Salīm, son and successor of Sulaimān the Great, was born in A.H. 930, ascended the throne A.H. 974, and died A.H. 982. He uses indifferently Salīm and Salīmī as his Takhallus.

Contents: Four poems in praise of God and Muhammad, fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 4 b.

See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 285, Hammer, Geschichte der Osmanischen Dichtkunst, vol. ii. p. 436, the Petersburg Catalogue, p. 400, where a different beginning is given, and the library of King's College, Cambridge, No. 163.

Add. 7784.

Foll. 184; 10½ in. by 6½; 11 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two goldruled columns, with 'Unvān, gold headings, and thirteen whole-page miniatures in fair Persian style; dated A.H. 948 (A.D. 1541).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

شد نامد

A poetical history of Shāh Ismā īl. Author: Ķāsimī, قاسم

خداون د بیچون خدائی تراست بر اقلیم جان پادشاهی تراست

Mīrzā Ķāsim, poetically surnamed Ķāsimī, was born in Junābad (Yāķūt's Junābiz), or Gūnābād, in Khorasan, of a noble family of Sayyids, in which the chief magistrature, Kalāntarī, of that town was hereditary. Having left that office to his brother Mīr Abul-Fatḥ, he adopted the life of a Faķīr, and devoted his leisure to poetry. Sām Mīrzā states in his Tazķirah, written A.H. 957, fol. 26, that Mīrzā Ķāsim had then written the four following Maṣnavīs: 1. A Shāhnāmah, or poetical history of Shāh Ismā'il. 2. Lailā Majnūn, dedicated to the same sovereign. 3. Kār Nāmah, a poem describing a game of Chaughān played by Shāh Ismā'il, and written by the Shāh's desire. 4. Khusrau Shīrīn, dedicated to the writer (Sām Mīrzā).

Mīrzā 'Alā ud-Daulah gives in his Nafā'is ul-Ma'āşir, written A.H. 973-979 (Oude Catalogue, p. 46), a detailed notice on Kāsim, which has been inserted in the Haft Asman, p. 136. He speaks of him as still living, and states that he met him in Kāshān, when on the way to India, and that Kasim then wrote a letter to Akbar, in which he gave the following account of his poems: 1. Shāhnāmah i Māzī, a poetical record of Shāh Ismā'īl, consisting of 4500 lines. 2. Shah Namah i Navvāb A'lā, a history of Shāh Tahmāsp in 4500 lines. 3. Shāhrukh Nāmah, in 5000 lines. 4. Lailā Majnūn, 3000 lines. 5. Khusrau Shīrīn, of the same extent. 6. Zubdat ul-Ash'ar, in the metre of Makhzan ul-Asrar, 4500 lines. 7. Güy u Chaughān (called also Kar Namah), 2500 lines. To these the author of the Haft Asman adds an eighth poem, entitled 'Ashik u Ma'shūk.

The date of Mīrzā Ķāsim's death is not accurately known. It is stated in Haft Iklīm, fol. 331, that in extreme old age he made over his fortune to the shrine of Imām 'Alī Rizā in Mashhad. See also Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 367, Ātashkadah, fol. 138, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 534, and Hammer, Redekünste, p. 385.

The poem was commenced in the time of Shāh Ismā'īl, who is addressed in the prologue as the reigning sovereign; but it was not finished till after his death, which forms the subject of the last section. The prologue contains also a section in praise of the classical Maṣnavī writers, Nizāmī and Khusrau, and of their worthy successor Hātifī, and a eulogy upon the Vazīr Shams ud-Dīn Muḥanmad Nūrī. The historical portion of the poem extends from the time of Sultan Haidar to the conquest of Khorasan by Shāh Ismā'il and the peace granted by him to the Uzbaks (A.H. 917).

Transcriber: ابرهيم المنشى الرضويه

See Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 13, Mohl, preface to the Shāhnāmah, p. 77, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 638, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 388, Asiatisches Museum, p. 375, and King's College Library, Cambridge, No. 238.

On the first page is written: "This book . . . is a relick of the great Sefiviyan library. It was presented to me as a token of friendship by Fethullah Khan, son of the heroic and unfortunate Lutf Ali Khan, who spent some days at my house on his way to Mecca, etc. Baghdad, December 29, 1819, Claudius James Rich." Lower down is a Persian entry written on that occasion by Fath Ullah Khan.

Or. 339.

Foll. 386; 8½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Lucknow, A.H. 1180 (A.D. 1767).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The following three poems of Kasimi:—

I. Fol. 2 b. The poem above described.

This copy contains towards the end, fol. 132 b, the following line, which gives A.H. 940 as the date of the completion of the poem:

It is expressed by the chronogram نظم, the first letter of which has to be left out.

II. Fol. 133 a. شاعرخ نامه, a poetical history of Shāhrukh.

المی بحق پادشاهی تراست Beg. همه بنده ایم و خدائی تراست

The title is contained in the following couplet, fol. 153 a:

The prologue contains a dedication to Shāh Tahmāsp, and a mention of the author's previous poems, viz., Shahnāmah, Lailā u Majnūn, and Shīrīn u Khusrau. The date of composition, A.H. 950, is conveyed in the following line, fol. 260 a:

III. Fol. 260 a. شهناهم, the second part (Daftar) of the Shahnāmah, containing a poetical history of Shāh Ṭahmāsp, and dedicated to him.

جهان داورا کبریائی تراست خدائی ترا پادشاهی تراست

The narrative is brought down, in the present copy, to the account of the arrest of Prince Bāyazīd (A.H. 967) and of the correspondence which took place on that occasion between Sultan Sulaimān and Shāh Tahmāsp. The text breaks off at the beginning of the next-following section, relating to the punishment of some refractory Sunnīs in Kazvīn.

See the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 387.

Add. 25,023.

Foll. 415; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

ديوان غزالي

The collected poems of Ghazālī.

Maulānā Ghazālī informs us in his preface to the Dīvān, fol. 59 a, that he was born in Mashhad. As he states further on, fol. 60 b, that he had completed his 30th year in A.H. 966, he must have been born about A.H. 936. Persecutions to which he was exposed, as a freethinker, in his native country, drove him to India, where he attached himself to Khān Zamān ('Alī Kulī Khān), one of Akbar's generals, then Governor of Jaunpur (see Blochmann, Ain Akbari, p. 319). When his patron, who had risen in rebellion, was crushed by Akbar (A.H. 974), he passed into the Imperial service, and Akbar conferred upon him the title of Malik ush-Shu'ara. He died, according to Badaoni, vol. iii. p. 170, on the 27th of Rajab, A.H. 980, in Ahmadābād, Gujrāt. The date is fixed by a chronogram of Faizī. See Blochmann, Ain Akbari, p. 568, note 1, Haft Iklīm, fol. 295 a, Tabakāt i Akbarī, fol. 285, Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 488 b, Tabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 234, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 319 b, Haft Asman, p. 100, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 61 and 411.

His name is Ghazālī, not Ghazzālī as sometimes written; for the metre shows that the first syllable is short, and the poet himself says, fol. 59 b, that his takhalluş was derived from ghazāl, a gazelle.

The present MS. has lost some leaves, and the upper half of others, which apparently contained illuminated headings. The contents are:—

I. Fol. 1. Ghazāli's preface to his imitation of twenty Ghazals of Mīr Ḥasan of Dehli, composed at the request of Rukn us-Salṭanat Muḥammad, of Nīshāpūr. The preface, which wants the first two or three lines, is followed by the beginning of the first of Mīr Hasan's Ghazals.

II. Fol. 3 a. کنے اکبری, poems addressed to Akbar, and composed by Ghazālī on various occasions, when he was admitted to the royal presence.

The collection comprises—1. Kaṣīdahs in alphabetical order, with a lacunc at the beginning, and another extending from to s. 2. A long Maṣnavī containing moral and religious advice. In the conclusion the poet excuses his remissness in attending Court by the state of destitution to which he had been reduced by the loss of his Jāgīr, and ends with a humourous description of a sorry jade, the sole remnant of his property. 3. Some short pieces, among which is a chronogram on the birth of Akbar's first child (Jahāngīr), A.H. 977. The first Kaṣīdah was written when Akbar had completed his 25th year, i.e. A.H. 975.

III. Fol. 53 a. آثار الشباب, "Vestiges of Youth," the Dīvān of Ghazālī, with a prose preface, the beginning of which is wanting. (See the Oude Catalogue, p. 412).

We learn from the preface that the author had completed his 30th year when he arranged his poems in alphabetical order, and dedicated them to Akbar, in A.H. 966.

Contents: Preface, fol. 53 a. Kaṣīdahs, Tarkīb and Tarjī'-bands, fol. 60 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 91 b. Maṣnavīs, fol. 260 b. Ķiṭ'ahs, fol. 270 a, Rūbā'is, imperfect at the end, fol. 276 b.

IV. Fol. 295 a. اسرار مكتوم, a Sufi tract on mystic love.

V. Fol. 309 b. سنت الشعراء, "Sunnat ush-Shu'arā," a collection of Ķaṣīdalıs in alphabetical order, with a prose preface. Most of them are addressed to Shāh Ṭahmāsp, some to Khān Zamān, and a few to Mun'im Khān, and other Indian Amīrs.

VI. Fol. 347 b. نقش بديع, a Maṣnavī poem on mystic love, in imitation of Nizāmī's Makhzan ul-Asrār, with a short prose preface.

The prologue contains a panegyric addressed to Shāh Ṭahmāsp, followed by an eulogy upon the poet's Indian patron, Khān Zamān, for whom, according to the Haft Iķlīm, the work was written. See Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 379, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 439.

An imitation of the Makhzan ul-Asrār by Ghazālī is mentioned in the Haft Asmān. p. 100, under the title of Mashhad i Anvār, and some of the lines there quoted are found in the present poem.

VII. Fol. 377 b. A Maşnavî, wanting the first lines. It contains a violent diatribe against one of the 'Ulamā who had attacked Ghazālī.

VII. Fol. 383 b. Another Maşnavî wanting the first lines. It is a fierce satire against Kilîch Khān, an Amīr of Akbar's court (see Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, pp. 34, 354), who is designated by his proper name Kilîch and by his poetical surname Ulfatī, and most recklessly abused, both as man and as pretended poet. This ruthless attack appears from the introduction to have been instigated and countenanced by Akbar himself.

IX. Fol. 391 a. آيينه خيال, a short collection of Ghazals in alphabetical order, with a preface, the beginning of which is wanting.

These Ghazals were extracted, as stated in the preface, from the author's first Divān, اثار الثباب, as specimens of the artificial manner to which he inclined in his youthful compositions. They are not found, however, in the present copy of the Divān.

The Ghazals are followed by some Kit'ahs, fol. 410 b, and Rubā'is, fol. 412 a.

Or. 326.

Foll. 254; 7½ in. by 3½; 18 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

كليات وحشى

The collected works of Valishi.

Vahshī, born in Bāfik, Kirmān, spent nearly the whole of his life in Yazd, where he died, as stated by his contemporary Taki Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 35, in A.H. 991 or 992. The first of these dates is expressed بلبل کلزار معنی بسته اب by the ehronogram quoted in Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 494. He was, according to the 'Alamarai, fol. 48, unequalled in his time either in Ghazal or Masnavi. It is stated in the Rivaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 480, that he imitated the manner of Baba Fighani, but with a more decided leaning to the colloquial style. He is noticed in the Haft Iklim, fol. 76, the Atashkadah, fol. 63, and Haft Asman, p. 109. Compare Hammer, Redekünste, p. 388, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 586.

The contents are as follows :-

I. Fol. 2 b. Kaşīdahs in praise of the Imāms, of Shāh Tahmāsp, Mīr Mīrān Ghiyāş ud-Dīn (a descendant of Ni'mat Ullah Valī, who lived in Yazd; see Riyāz, fol. 435), Shāh Khalīl Ullah (see p. 635 a), etc., with some Marsiyahs at the end.

II. Fol. 73 b. خلى بريى, "The supreme abode of bliss," a Maşnavî in imitation of the Makhzan ul-Asrār.

It has been edited by W. Nassau Lees, Calcutta, 1861.

III. Fol. 90 b. فرحاد و شيرين, "The lovestory of Farhād and Shīrīn," a Maşnavī in the metre of Khusrau u Shīrīn.

This poem was left unfinished by the author. It has been lithographed in Calcutta, A.H. 1249, and in Bombay, with a poem on the same theme by Viṣāl, A.H. 1265. See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1525, Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 138, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 72, and Ouseley's Collection, No. 36.

IV. Fol. 121 a. ناظر و منظور, "The loves of Nazir and Manzūr, a Maṣnavī in the same metre as the preceding, imperfect at the beginning.

The first line, as quoted by Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 291, and in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 577, is

The date of composition, A.H. 966, is stated in the following lines at the end:

کسی کین نظم دور اندیشه خواند اکر تاریخ تصنیفش نداند شمارد پنج نوبت سی بتضعیف که با شش باشدش تاریخ تصنیف نداند کر بدین قانون که شد ذکر بجوید از همه ابیات پر فکر

It is obtained either by doubling 30 five times, and adding 6, or by summing up the letters of همه ابيات پر فکر

V. Fol. 162 b. Maşnavîs in praise of Mîr Mîrān and others, including also some satires, one of which is against a contemporary poet, Mullā Fahmī.

VI. Fol. 181 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order.

At the end are some Mukatta at, fol. 244 a, including chronograms on the death of Shah Tahmasp and other contemporary events; lastly a few Ruba is, fol. 251 a.

A copy of the Kulliyāt is described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 576.

Add. 23,552.

Foll. 253;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1034 (A D. 1625).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

Another collection of the poems of Vahshi, containing:—

 Fol. 2 b. Laudatory poems, in the form of Kasidah, Tarkib-band, and Masnavi.

ای تهاشائیان جاه و جلال بشتابید بهر استقیال . Beg

II. Fol. 116 b. Ghazals, without alphabetical order.

چرا خود را کسی در دام هر بی نسبت اندازد . Beg

III. Fol. 178 a. Khuld i Barīn; see above, art. ii.

IV. Fol. 204 b. Farhād u Shīrīn; see above, art. iii.

Or. 318.

Foll. 82; 11 in. by 7; 14 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

I. The Dīvān of Vaḥshī, containing—Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 2 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 18 b. Tarjī's, fol. 57 a. Rubā'is, fol. 60 b.

یك جهان جان خواهم و چندان امان از روزگار .Beg.

II. Farhâd u Shīrīn, fol. 61 b. See p. 663, art. iii.

Foll. 81 and 82 contain some Ghazals of Ḥājī Muḥammad Jān Kudsı.

On the first page is the seal of Ghairat Khān, an Amīr of the court of Farrukhsiyar.

Add. 24,344.

Foll. 49; 6 in. by 33; 10 oblique lines in each page; written in minute Shafi'āi character on one side only of the paper, and folding up in the manner of Oriental albums; dated Muharram, A.H. 1174 (A.D. 1760).

Farhād u Shirin; see p. 663, art. iii.

Add. 7787.

Foll. 26; 9\frac{2}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{2}; 15 lines, 3\frac{7}{6} in. long; written in Naskhi, with two 'Unvans and ruled margins; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 994 (A.D. 1586). [Cl. J. Rich.]

فتوحات عجم

A poetical account of the taking of Tabrīz by 'Uşmān Pāshā (A.H. 993; see Malcolm, History of Persia, vol. i. p. 520, and Hammer, Geschichte des Osmanischen Reiches, vol. iv. p. 170), with a dedication in prose to Sultan Murād B. Salīm.

Author: Jamāli B. Ḥasan Shūshtari, جمالي بن حسن شوشتري

بنام خداوند لیال و نهار Beg. که باشد نهان پیش او آشکار

The author relates in the prologue how, having set sail from Baghdād on a trading expedition, he was shipwrecked and left destitute on a foreign shore, and how he was advised by Firdūsī in a dream to address this Shāhnāmah to the Sultan. The time of composition, A.H. 994, is expressed by the chronogram نبودند بر کوی نتے عجم. The poem, which is evidently written by a man of inferior literary attainments, concludes with praises of the Sultan and Vazīrs, and with an urgent appeal to their liberality.

An ornamental inscription, foll. 3 and 4, shows that the present copy was intended for presentation to the Sultan.

Add. 7789.

Foll. 250; 9 in. by 5\(\frac{1}{4}\); 13 lines, 2\(\frac{1}{2}\) in. long, with 22 lines in the margin; written in fair Shikastah-\(\text{amiz}\); dated Ramaz\(\text{an}\), A.H. 1207 (A.D. 1793). [Cl. J. RICH.]

ديوان محتشم

The Divan of Muhtasham, with a preface by Taki ud-Din Muhammad ul-Husaini.

Beg. of the Preface:

حمد و ثنای که دیباچه دواوین فصحارا شاید

Beg. of the Divan:

نفیر مرغ سحر خوان چو شد بلند صدا پرید زاغ شب از روی بیضه بیضا

Maulānā Muḥtasham lived in his native place, Kāshān, in the reigns of Shāh Ismā'il and Shāh Ṭahmāsp, and was looked upon, during the latter period, as the most eminent poet of Persia. His Marşiyah on the death of Imām Ḥusain is much admired and has remained extremely popular. He died A.H. 996, a date fixed in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 415, by the chronogram . See 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 47, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 388, Taķī Kāshī (who was a pupil of Muḥtasham), Oude Catalogue, p. 23, and Sprenger, ib. p. 500.

The writer of the Preface, who is better known as Taki ud-Din Kashi (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 13), states that Muhtasham had, during the illness to which he succumbed, A.H. 996, sent for him, and requested him to collect and arrange his poetical works. He then dwells on the unsurpassed merit of Mulitasham, whom he ranks first after Khāķānī, aud gives a number of poems in his praise, and chronograms on his death, written by several contemporaries. In conclusion the editor states that, according to the poet's directions, the eollected poems, کلیات, had been arranged in the following seven Divans:-1. Shaibiyyalı شيبيه, containing Kaşidalıs in praise of God, Muhammad, the Imams, contemporary kings, vazīrs, amīrs, and men of letters. 2. Shabābiyyah, شبابيه, and 3. Sibā'iyyah, containing Ghazals descriptive of beauty. 4. Jalaliyyah, and 5. Nakli

'Ushshāk, نقل عشاق, containing Ghazals descriptive of love and of the poet's beloved.
6. Zurūriyyāt, ضروريات, comprising versified chronograms, written at the request of his friends. 7. Mu'ammayāt, معيات, or riddles.

The contents of the volume, which do not tally with the above division, are as follows:—

Kasīdahs and Tarkīb-bands, ninety-seven in number, to which is prefixed a table of their beginnings, fol. 6 b. Mukatta at, and short Masnavīs, fol. 106 a. Ghazals, not alphabetically arranged, fol. 122 b.

Beg. زين نقشخانه كي من ديوانه جويمت Rubā'īs, fol. 142 a.

Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 148 b.

ای کوهر نام تو تاج سر دیوانها Beg.

This is the usual beginning of the Dīvān, probably the Shabābiyyah. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 500, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 591.

Another series of Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 203 b.

Beg. فرمود مرا سجدة خویش آن بت رعنا
These are, no doubt, the Ṣibā'iyyah or youthful poems, as may be inferred from the last line:

نبودی بی نظام این نظم صبیان تا باین غایت اکر که کاه بودی محتشم را نکته آموزی

Or. 314.

Foll. 61; 9 in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah; dated Zulka'dah, the 11th year of Muḥammad Shāh, i.e. A.H. 1141 (A.D. 1729). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان ميلي

The Dīvān of Mailī.

دلا رسید بجای کسند ناله ما Beg. که خو کرفته بمجنون وشان غزاله ما

Maili Haravi, or of Herat, whose original name was Mirzā Kuli, belonged to the Turkish tribe of Jalair. He found a protector in Sultan Ibrāhīm Mīrzā, son of Bahrām Mīrzā, who held a high office at the Court of his uncle Shah Tahmasp. After the death of his patron he went to India. This took place, according to the Nafa'is ul-Ma'asir, Oude Catalogue, p. 54, in A.H. 979. Taki Kāshī, ib., p. 43, gives a later date, A.H. 983, and adds the erroneous statement that Maili died on the road. In India he attached himself to Naurang Khān, with whom he stayed many years, and by whose order he was eventually poisoned in Malvah. Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 436, Tabakat i Akbari, fol. 287, Badāonī, vol. iii. p. 329, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 571. According to the Atashkadah, fol. 11, Maili was born and had grown up in Mashhad.

The above mentioned Sayyid Naurang Khān was the son of Kuṭb ud-Dīn Khān, an Amīr of Akbar's reign. He served with distinction in the war against Muzaffar Shāh of Gujrāt, A.H. 991, and received as a reward a Jāgīr in Mālvah, and subsequently in Gujrāt, where he died in the 39th year of Akbar (A.H. 1002—3). See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 201, and Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 411. The death of Mailī, the date of which is not recorded, happened probably some time before A.H. 1000.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 2 b. Rubā'is, fol. 59 b. Ķaṣīdahs, foll. 2 b—36 a, in the margins. One of these is addressed to Akbar, and two others to Naurang Khān.

Copies are mentioned in the Oude Catalogue, p. 497, and in Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1461.

The MS. was written, according to the subscription, for Mīr Sharaf ud-Dīn 'Alī, poetically surnamed Payām, a poet of the reign of Muḥammad Shāh (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 276).

Add. 16,793.

Foll. 278; 7½ in. by 4; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvans and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1060 (A.D. 1649).

[WM. YULE.]

كليات عرفي

The collected works of 'Urfi Shirazi.

Urfi, of Shiraz, one of the most popular poets of his time, went in early life from his native city to the Deccan, from whence he proceeded to Fathpur Sikri, then the residence of Akbar. There he won the favour and protection of Hakim Masih ud-Din Abul-Fath Gilani (see Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 424), and, after his death in A.H. 997, attached himself to the Khankhānān Mirzā 'Abd ur-Rahīm Khān (ib., p. 334). He followed the latter in his expedition against Jani Beg of Tattah in A.H. 999, but was carried off by dysentery, some say by poison, in Lahore in the same year, at the early age of thirty-six years. His contemporary Badaoni, vol. ii. p. 285, and vol. iii. عرفي جوانه مرك p. 285, gives the chronogram for his death. The same date is given in the Mirat ul-'Alam, fol. 487, Mirat ul-Khayāl, fol. 60, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 302. See also Haft Iklim, fol. 107, Atashkadah, fol. 131, Haft Asman, p. 111, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 304, Osmanische Diehtkunst, vol. iv. p. 501, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 528, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 569.

Contents.

I. Fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order.

ای نه فلك زخوشه، صنع تو دانه و وز قصر كبريای تو عرش آشیانه و

II. Fol. 99 b. Kaşidalıs, not alphabetically arranged.

اي متاع درد در بازار جان انداخته

The Kaşidalıs of 'Urfî have been edited, with a commentary, Calcutta, A.H. 1254.

III. Fol. 174 b. جمع الابكار, a Maşnavī in imitation of the Makhzan ul-Asrār. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 389, Haft Asmān, p. 111, and Krafft's Catalogue, p. 69.

بسم الله الرحمن السرحيم Beg. موج نخستست زبحر قديم

IV. Fol. 206 a. فرهاد و شيرين, the lovestory of Farhād and Shīrīn, in the metre of Nīzāmī's Khusrau u Shīrīn.

خداوندا دلم بینور تنکست Beg.

V. Fol. 217 b. A Tarji in praise of Masili ud-Din Abulfath.

آیدم چون دوا شفیق و نقیض Beg.

VI. Fol. 221 b. Mukatta'at.

اي دل راهزن كه از عرشم بحضيض ثرا فرستادي . Beg.

VII. Fol. 232 b. Rubā'is.

VIII. Fol. 252 b. A collection of prose pieces.

The first of these is a letter written by 'Urfī during an illness, in which he describes his state of mind in presence of death. Further on are some discourses on moral and religious subjects, a preface to a Fāl-Nāmah compiled for Akbar, a letter to a physician (Masīḥ ud-Dīn) on his recovery, etc.

On the first page is found the stamp of Tiket Rāe, the Oude Minister, with an 'Arz-dīdah dated A.H. 1206.

Copies of the Kulliyāt, or of portions of them, are noticed in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 72, the Oude Catalogue, p. 528, the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 592, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 36.

Add. 7791.

Foll. 206; 9\frac{2}{4} in. by 4\frac{2}{4}; 21 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A similar collection, containing—Majma ul-Abkar, fol. 1 b. Farhad u Shīrin, fol.

35 b. Kaşidahs, fol. 45 b. Mukatta'āt, fol. 98 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 105 b. Rubā'is, fol. 194 b. The last two sections are slightly imperfect at the end.

Add. 7792.

Foll. 140;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1048 (A.D. 1639). [Cl. J. Rich.]

A similar collection, containing-

I. Fol. 1 b. Kaşīdahs in alphabetical order.

II. Fol. 33 a. Mukatta at, imperfect at the end.

III. Fol. 37  $\alpha$ . Ghazals in alphabetical order. The first two letters and a portion of the third are wanting.

IV. Fol. 113 b. The first portion of Majma' ul-Abkār, about a third of the whole.

V. Fol. 127 α. A long Tarji, in which the poet addresses his beloved.

The burthen is:

جون دست نمیدهد وصالت دست من و دامن خیالت

VI. Foll. 131 b—140 α. Rubā'is.

Egerton 1035.

Foll. 82; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India in the 18th century.

The Kasīdahs of 'Urfī, followed by Mukatta'āt, fol. 75  $\alpha$ .

Egerton 1034.

Foll. 104; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; dated Zulhijjah, the 22nd year of Muhammad Shāh, A.H. 1152 (A.D. 1740).

The Kasidahs of 'Urfi, not alphabetically arranged.

Foll. 2—9, 100—104, contain miscellaneous poetical extracts, the largest of which is a Sufi Maşnavī by Shāh Abū 'Alī Kalandar (died A.H. 724, Oude Catalogue, p. 565), headed ساله عشرف شاه بو على قلندر قدس الله سره foll. 3—9, beginning:

It has been printed in Cawnpore, 1872.

Or. 365.

Foll. 172;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century; from the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

مفتأح النكات

A commentary on some Ķasidahs of 'Urfi, by Mīrzā Jān, ميرزا جان

It contains, as stated in the preface, a full explanation of difficult verses and rare words in thirty select Kaṣīdahs of 'Urfī's Dīvān. The date of composition, A.H. 1073, is expressed by the chronogram شرح قصايد عرف. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 530.

Harleian 343.

Foll. 107; 7 in. by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines, 2 in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1013 (A.D. 1604); much worm-eaten.

A Maşnavî poem, containing precepts on spiritual life.

The poem is preceded by the following short prose preamble, in which some words are obliterated:

الحمد لله رب العالمين . . فيقول العبد الضعيف على درويش بن عثمان . . . . زادة الله ذوقا وشوقا استخرجت هذة الد . . . . . . وي المولوى بعون الله وتوفيقة وجمعتها على ثمانية و سبعين بابا وسميتها بمفتاح التوحيد

It would seem from the above that the matter of the poem was derived from the Maşnavî of Jalal ud-Din Rūmî, written in the same metre. It is divided into seventy-eight chapters (Bāb), treating chiefly of those dispositions and practices which are to be either sought or shunned by the devotees; the precepts are frequently illustrated by narratives. Haj. Khal. gives the title of the work, without any author's name.

Add. 10,585.

Foll. 48; 6½ in. by 3½; 12 lines, 2 in. long; written in neat Nestalik; dated Isfahan, Jumāda I., A.H. 1031 (A.D. 1622).

The Divan of Nuri.

Kāzī Nūr ud-Dīn Muḥammad, of Isfahan, and his brother Kāzī Mu'izz, were, according to the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 467, pupils of Khwājah Afzal ud-Dīn Tarikah, of the same city. The former died A.H. 1000. Taķī Kāshī states, Oude Catalogue, p. 27, that Nūrī was born in Isfahan and brought up in Kazvīn.

His master, Afzal ud-Dīn, who settled in Kazvīn A.H. 967, and was much in favour with Shāh Ṭahmāsp and Shāh Ismā'il II., was appointed, after the latter's death, Kāzī of Isfahan. He died in Rai in the reign of Shāh 'Abbās 1. See 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 40, and Takī Kāshī, ib.

Some verses of the present Divān are quoted in the Haft Iklīm, fol. 370, and the Atashkadah, fol. 86. See also Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 525, where a line is quoted which belongs to the second Kaṣīdah of this copy.

Contents: Ķaṣidahs, two of which are in praise of Shāh Ismā'il (A.H. 984—985), while most of the others are addressed to the Vazīr Muḥammad, fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 22 b.

Rubā'is, fol. 46 b.

A copy of Nūri's Dīvān with a different beginning is noticed in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 402.

Or. 1222.

Foll. 193; 7 in. by 5¼; 14 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

[Alex. Jaba.]

The Shi'ah legend of 'Ali's life, a poem by Fūrigh, فارغ.

لله الملك انه مالك Beg. هو باتى و غيرة هالك

The author, who calls himself Husain B. Hasan, begins with an eulogy on Shāh 'Abbās I., and states that the poem was written A.H. 1000, the year in which Gīlān, apparently his native country, had been conquered by that sovereign. He followed a prose narrative composed by a Muḥammad B. Ibrāhīm, whom he calls his loving friend and brother:

آن محمد لطیف طبع سلیم که بود نقد پیر ابراهیم هست راوی این خجسته سخی همدم مشفق و برادر من

The poem has the heading كتاب فارغ. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 397. The present copy is imperfect at the end. The last section relates to 'Ali's expedition in succour of the king Saif B. Arkuvān, threatened by an army of lions.

Add. 7794.

Foll. 381;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with three 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabī I., A.H. 1050 (A.D. 1640). [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان فيضي

The Divan of Faizi, with a preface by the author.

Faizī died A.H. 1004. See above, p. 450 a, Hammer, Redekünste, p. 400, Ouseley, Notices, p. 174, and Ḥaft Asmān, pp. 115—126.

The author relates in his preface how he was called by Akbar to Court, appointed tutor to the prince, and subsequently received the rank of Amīr and the title of Malik ush-Shu'arā. He adds that the present Dīvān, containing about nine thousand distichs, was but a sample of his poetical compositions.

As the Dīvān contains a chronogram on the death of Shaikh Mubūrak, the author's father, in A.H. 1001, it cannot have been collected much before the poet's own death, which took place three years later.

Contents: The author's preface, fol. 1 b, beginning: بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم كنج ازل راست طلسم قديم

Kasīdahs, Marsiyahs, and Tarkībs, fol. 4 b, beginning:

يا ازلى الظهوريا ابدى الخفا

Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 112 b, beg.: مستانه سخن میرسد از دل به اب ما

Kit'ahs, fol. 274 b. This section includes a Ghazal which can be read in four different measures, and some pieces consisting entirely of words without diacritical points. Chronograms, fol. 289 b. Unfinished Ghazals, fol. 293 a. Initial verses, fol. 296 b. Riddles, fol. 302 a. Rubā'is, fol. 313 a. A short Maṣnavī, fol. 380 b.

محمد جعفر بن عنایت الله الشیرازی :Copyist

Add. 23,981.

Foll. 346;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 4; 17 lines,  $1\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in a cursive hand, with four 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

The poetical works of Faizī, viz .:-

I. Fol. 2 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order. Beg. بکشی پرده چشم حقیقت نهای را خودرا شناس تا بشناسی خدای را

II. Fol. 106 b. نل دسى, "Nal-Daman," a Maṣnavī, founded on the episode of Nala and Damayantī in the Mahābhārata:

ای در تك و پوی تو زآغاز Beg. عنقای نظر بلند پرواز

The poem, which is dedicated to Akbar, is stated in the conclusion to consist of four thousand distichs, and to have been written in the 39th year of the reign, or A.H. 1003:

دیده این بست کارکاهدر پیراستکی بسماه آذر سی و نهم از جلوس شاهی تاریخ مجسده السمسی جون سال عرب شمار کردم الف و سه الف بکار کودم

The author mentions in the same passage the change of his Takhallus from Faizī to Fayyāzī: زین پیش که سکه ام سخی بود فیضی رقم نکین مین بیود اکنون که شدم بعشق مرتاض فیاضیم از محیط فیسیاض

The Nal Daman is, according to the Akbar Nāmah, the third poem of the Khamsah, which Faizī had planned A.H. 993, but did not live to carry out. It was to consist of the following poems: Markaz i Advār, Sulaimān u Balķīs, Nal Daman, Haft Kishvar, and Akbar Nāmah. The Nal Daman was completed, by Akbar's desire, in the space of four months, A.H. 1003. See also Badāonī, vol. ii. p. 396. It has been printed in Calcutta, 1831, and Lucknow, 1846. Copies are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 75, Oude Catalogue, p. 402, Münich Catalogue, p. 38, and Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 42.

III. Fol. 230 b. مركز ادرار, "The centre of circles," a Maşnavî, in imitation of Nizāmī's Makhzan ul-Asrār.

بسم الله الرحين الرحيم Beg. كن الرحيم كن الرحين الرحين الرحين الرحين المات ال

This poem, the title of which is found in the following line, fol. 248 a,

آنك چنین جنبش پر كارداد نام ورا مسركسز ادوار داد was the first of the above-mentioned Khamsah, and was composed by Faizī in his fortieth year, as appears from the following passage, fol. 272 a:

این می بیغش که کشیدم بفور دور تخستین بود از پنج دور شوق کزین نامه پر و بال داشت عقل کمال چهلم سال داشت

See the Leyden Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 122, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 401.

IV. Mukatta'āt, fol. 273 b. Rubā'īs, fol. 285 a.

V. Fol. 305 b. Kaşidahs. This section is imperfect in the beginning and differs in its arrangement from the corresponding portion of Add. 7794. It begins in the middle of a long Kasidah, the first line of which is:

سحر نويد رسان قاصد سليماني

(see Add. 7794, fol. 35 a), and ends with the Kaşidah beginning:

اى نقد اصل وفرع ندائم چه كوهرى (see Add. 7794, fol. 23 كا).

must منور : Copyist

Add. 7795.

Foll. 64; 8½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled columns, in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

Markaz i Advār; see the preceding MS., art. iii.

Add.6625.

Foll. 95; 9½ in. by 5½; 26 lines, so disposed as to form the design of a star in each page; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and 29 miniatures in the Indian style; dated Agrah, Sha'bān, A.H. 1028 (A.D. 1619).

[J. F. Hull.]

Nal Daman (see p. 670, art. ii.).

عبد الغنى ولد شيخ حسين قريش صديقى : Copyist

Add. 16,804.

Foll. 140; 8¾ in. by 5; 15 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Jumādā II., A.H. 1176 (A.D. 1762).

[WM. YULE.]

The same poem.

حسيني فقير الله : Copyist

Add. 7797.

Foll. 51; 7 in. by 41; 13 lines, 23 in.

long; written in small Nestalik; dated A.H. 1040 (A.D. 1630-1). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan of Vahshati.

The author of the Rivaz ush-Shu'ara, who quotes several verses of this Divan, fol. 493, ealls the author Maulana Vahshati Jushghānī (from Jūshghān, a place between Isfahan and Kāshān, see Ouseley's Travels, vol. iii. p. 79), and states that he visited Shīrāz in A.H. 999, and was an intimate friend of Abu Turāb Beg Furkatī (who died A. H. 1026; see Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151). The author of the Divan, who in a contemporary note, at the end of this copy, is called Vahshatī Kāshī, is, no doubt, the "Walishy Khwajah Hosayn" mentioned by Takī, Oude Catalogue, p. 26, as a poet of Kāshān. His Dīvān contains a satire on a contemporary poet 'Arshi (Talımasp Kuli Beg, of Yazd), who is also mentioned by Taki, Oude Catalogue, p. 35, as a living poet.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. This section breaks off before the end of the letter s. Rubā'īs and Fardiyyāt, fol. 49 a.

At the end is a Kit'ah addressed to a king not named, in which the poet says that, in order to kiss his threshold, he had crossed the sea and entered the land of the infidels.

Or. 329.

Foll. 235; 9 in. by 5½; 10 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in Nestalik, early in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

Select Rubā'is of Saḥābī, in alphabetical order.

Sahābī is described by his contemporaries, Amīn Rāzī, Haft Iklīm, fol. 468, Taķī Kāshī, and 'Ala ud-Daulah Kazvini, Oude Catalogue, pp. 42, 50, as a native of Astrābād. But Takī Auhadī, quoted in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 213, says that, although his family came from Jurjan, he was born in Shushtar. However, he settled at an early period in Najaf, where he devoted himself to the self-imposed task of sweeping the holy shrine of 'Alī. There he spent the last forty years of his life in seelusion and voluntary poverty. He is said to have destroyed the greater part of his Rubā'īs, his favourite composition, of which, however, six thousand are still extant. He died, according to the Khulasat ul-Afkar, A.H. 1010. See also Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 483, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 62, Atashkadah, p. 141.

Several collections of Rubā'is, including also Ghazals, are mentioned in the Oude Catalogue, p. 552, and in Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1511.

The present copy bears a seal of the reign of Mulammad Shāh, dated A.H. 1133.

Add. 5599.

Foll. 395; 13\frac{3}{4} in. by 7; 20 lines, 5 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1012 (A.D. 1604).

ديوان رفيعي

The Divan of Rafi'i.

This poet, who calls himself indifferently Rafi', Rafi' ud-Dīn, or Rafi'ī, is not to be confounded with a contemporary and better known namesake, Mīr Ḥaiḍar Rafī'ī of Kāshān, who died A.H. 1032 (see Blochmann, A'in i Akbari, p. 593, and Badāonī, vol. iii. p. 232). Writing in an easy, colloquial, and unpolished style, he has not been deemed worthy of being recorded in the Tazkirahs. But the following particulars of his life may be gleaned from his Dīvān. He was born in Khorasan A.H. 942 (fol. 370 a), travelled through Irak to India (fol. 361 a), and obtained in Dehli, A.H. 982, a financial appointment as Shikdar, and a Jāgīr (fol. 328 b). Having been arrested on some question of accounts, he was released by Akbar's order, after seven years of confinement, and served with distinction in the Deccan wars, A.H. 1007—9. He appears to have settled in the Deccan, where he held a Jāgīr, in a place called Dāmarnī ماريخي, district of Burhānpūr.

A notice on Rafi'i in Ouseley's Notices, pp. 376—382, contains his poetical description of the valley of Kashmir, which he visited in the suite of Akbar. See also Ouseley's Oriental Collections, vol. i. pp. 171—176.

The Divan was collected A.H. 1010, as stated in the following Ruba'i at the end:

دیان رفیع چون بانجام رسید از حضرت پادشاه انعام رسید در ملك دكن جمع نمودیم و نوشت در سال هازار ده باتمام رسید

It includes, however, some pieces written as late as A.H. 1011 (fol. 370 a).

Contents: 1. Fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, beginning:

ای نام نکوی تو سر دفتر دیوانها وی ذکر جمیل تو آرایش عنوانها

2. Fol. 313 a. Kaṣīdahs, beginning: ای شهنشه کامل عادل شاهباز نضای عالم دل

This section contains poems addressed to Akbar, to the princes Dāniyāl and Murād, to Abulfazl, the Khānkhānān, and other dignitaries; also many personal narratives, descriptions of various places, and poems on contemporary events.

Maşnavīs, fol. 338 a. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, fol.
 Bubāʿis, fol. 372 b.

The Mukatta'āt include chronograms on the taking of the fortress of Gāvīl (Gawilgurh), A.H. 1007, and of Asīr, A.H. 1009.

Or. 342.

Foll. 133; 9 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Lucknow, Jumāda II., A.H. 1250 (A.D. 1834).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

فرهاد و شيرين

"Farhād and Shīrīn," a Maşnavī. Author: Kauşarī, کرژی

خداوندا دلی خواهم ونا کیش محبت از همه دلها درو بیش

Mīr 'Aķīl, poetically surnamed Kauşarī, born of a family of Sayyids in Hamadān, was known for his devotion to the Imāms, which won him the favour of Shāh 'Abbās I. He probably did not long survive the composition of the present poem, completed A.H. 1015; for he says in the conclusion, that he was then bent down by age, and saw his end draw near. He did not leave any other poem. Tāhir Naṣīrābādī states in his Tazkirah dated A.H. 1083, fol. 120, that he had once met Kauṣari's son in Isfahan, but had not been able to procure from him a single line of his father. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 394, and Atashkadah, fol. 116.

After a panegyric addressed to the reigning Shāh, 'Abbās I., the poet complains bitterly of the slackness of the poetical market in Irān, and declares his intention of sending his poem to that accomplished and munificent patron of letters in India, the Khānkhānān (Mīrzā 'Abd ur-Raḥīm Khān, who died A.H. 1036; see p. 244 a), whose praises had been celebrated by 'Urfī (see p. 667 a).

The date of composition, A.H. 1015, is given at the end, in the following chrono-gram:

پی تاریخ این ابیات دلجو بهر سو بود طبعم در تکاپو که این اشعارم از کلك بیان زاد خرد شیرین حکایتها نشان داد

غلام نبى ولد ابى الفتح : Copyist

Or. 325.

Foll. 31; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Ḥaidarābād, Zulka'dah, A.H. 1064 (A.D. 1654). From the Lucknow library.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

كليات نوعى ,Poetical works of Nau'i

کر بلای عشقم و لب تشنه سرتا پای من Beg.

Muḥammad Rizā Nau'ī, of Khabūshān, near Mashhad, went to India in the time of Akbar, and found a patron in Mīrzā Yūsuf Khān Mashhadī, but soon after entered the service of the Khānkhānān Mīrzā 'Abd ur-Raḥīm, and stayed with him and Prince Dāniyāl at Burhānpūr, where he died A.H. 1019. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 468, Badāonī, vol. iii. p. 361, Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 494, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 294. A full account of Nau'ī's life will be found in Ouseley's Notices, pp. 161—166; see also Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 516, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 606.

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 2 b. Tarjī and Tarkīb-bands, fol. 20 a. Mukaṭṭa āt, fol. 36 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 37 b. Rubā īs, fol. 92 b. Sāķī Nāmah, a Maṣnavī in praise of the Khānkhānān, fol. 99 b, beginning:

توی اولین پیرمیخانهما بیاد تو شبکیر پیمانها

Sūz u Gudāz, سوز و كدار, the story of a Hindu princess who burned herself on her husband's pile, in the reign of Akbar, a Maşnavî dedicated to Prince Dāniyāl, fol. 111 b, beginning:

الهي خندة ام را نالکي ده

It has been printed at the end of the first volume of the Akbar Nāmah, Lucknow, 1284.

Add. 7816.

Foll. 96;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

ديوان شاپور

The Divan of Shapur.

زخط زایل نکردد جان فزای لعل جانانرا .Beg

زخاصیت نه اندازه غباری آب حیوانرا

Khwājah Shāpūr, son of Khwājagī Khwājah, of a distinguished family of Teheran, was, according to Tāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 178, a sister's son of the poet Ummīdī (died A.H. 925; see Tuhfah i Sāmī), and a first cousin of Amin Rāzi (see above, p. 335 b, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 508). He first used the Takhallus of Faribi or Karibi, which he afterwards exchanged for Shāpūr. He twice went to India, where he enjoyed the protection of his relative Mīrzā Ja'far Aşaf Khān (who was raised to the Khanship A.H. 993, and died A.H. 1021; Tazkirat ul-Umarā, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 411), and of Sultan Salim (Jahangir). Taki Kashi states, Oude Catalogue, p. 42, that Shapur was engaged in A.H. 966 in imitating the Divan of Fighānī. See Haft Iklīm, fol. 454, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 235, Atashkadah, fol. 94, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 564.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b, wanting the latter part from the beginning of the letter  $\omega$ . Rubā'is, fol. 86 a.

Or. 286.

Foll. 136;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان سنجر

The Divan of Sanjar.

الهي كنم معنى دة دل كوهر فروشم را .Beg

Mîr Muḥammad Hāshim, poetically surnamed Sanjar, was the son of Mīr Rafī' ud-Dîn Ḥaidar, of Kāshān, a poet who has been mentioned p. 672 b, to whom he was, in the opinion of Amīn Rāzī, fol. 390, far superior in poetical talent. He went to India, according to Maāṣir i Raḥīmī, Blochmann's Ain i Akbari, p. 595, in A.H. 1000, was imprisoned by Akbar for some offence, to which he alludes in the present Dīvān, fol. 101, and, after his release, repaired to Ibrāhīm 'Adil Shāh in Bijāpūr, where he died A.H. 1021. See also the Oude Catalogue, pp. 150, 571, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 218, and Ātashkadah, fol. 109.

Contents: Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 2 b. Kaşīdahs, fol. 76 b. Kiţ'ahs, fol. 105 a. Maşnavīs, fol. 117 b.

Of the Kasidahs several addressed to Akbar, to Ibrāhīm 'Adil Shāh, and to Mīrzā Jānī Beg, ruler of Tattah, with whom the poet appears to have stayed some time.

Add. 24,088.

Foll. 190; 9 in. by 5\dagger; 14 lines, 2\dagger in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[WILLIAM H. MORLEY.]

ليلى مجنون

Lailā and Majnūn, a Maşnavī, with a proso preface.

روح الامين Author: Ruh ul-Amin, روح الامين Beg. اى حسن طراز عشق پرداز انجام نسماى كار زآغاز

This poet, no record of whom has been found, appears from passages of his works to have been a Sayyid born in Isfahan, who held a high office at the court of the Kutubshāhs in the Deccan. The present poem is dedicated to Sultan Muhammad Kuli Kutubshah, who reigned from A.H. 988 to 1020. The author refers in the prologue, fol. 20, to two previous compositions, one treating of the loves of Parviz, the other entitled Matmah, as the first two poems of his Khamsah, the present being the third. He bestows upon himself, both in that passage and in the epilogue, the most extravagant praises, which he puts in the mouth of his great master Nizāmī, while he speaks in very slighting terms of earlier Masnavi writers, as the latest of whom he names Jāmī, Hātifī, and Maktabī. The last, a contemporary of Ahli Shirazi, lived in the first half of the tenth century of the Hijrah; see the Oude Catalogue, p. 38.

In the prologue of the Asman Hashtum (see below, Add. 25,903) the author states that he had written the Laila Majnuu in the space of seven months.

Rūḥ ul-Amīn was, according to Amal Ṣāliḥ, fol. 697, the takhalluş of Mīr Jumlah, i. e. Mīr Muḥammad Amīn, a Sayyid of Isfahan, who went A.H. 1010 to the Decean, and was, during the reign of Muḥammad Kulī Kuṭubshāh, the virtual head of the state of Golconda. He entered, A.H. 1027, the service of Jahāngīr, and held high offices at the Delhi court until his death, A.H. 1047. See Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 483, and Ḥadīķat ul-'Alam, vol. i. p. 243. His poetical works amounted, according to Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 52, to 20,000 lines.

Add. 6617.

Foll. 164; 7½ in. by 4; 12 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; apparently in the 17th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

Another, somewhat shorter, recension of the same poem.

ای قادر بی شریك و انباز Beg. خاك از تو شده سپهر اعجاز

Add. 25,903.

Foll. 148;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 1024 (A.D. 1615).

آسمان هشتم

A poem in imitation of Nizāmī's Haft Paikar and on the same subject, by the above poet.

This poem, the fourth of the author's intended Khamsah, was written for Muḥammad Ķulī Ķuṭubshāh, whose panegyric occupies a great part of the prologue, foll. 22 b—28 a; but we learn from the conclusion, fol. 144 b, that, the king having died during its composition (A.H. 1020), it was dedicated to his successor, Sulṭān-Muḥammad Ķuṭubshāh. The date of completion, A.H. 1021, is conveyed in the following line, fol. 147 b:

The above title is found in the epilogue, fol. 139:

Another title, with the same meaning, is found in the illuminated heading at the beginning.

Or. 284.

Foll. 185;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

كلستان ناز

The Divan of Ruh ul-Amin.

ای روشی از فروغ تو شمع روان ما Beg. از نورقدرت تو چکیدست جان ما

In a prose preface, of which only a fragment is extant, fol. 18, the author states that this Dīvān, entitled Gulistān i Nāz, contains five thousand distichs, and consists of Ghazals written in early life.

Add. 7799.

Foll. 290; 10½ in. by 6¾; 19 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, with two Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634). [Cl. J. RICH.]

ديوان شاني

The Divan of Shani.

ای زسودا سایه بر زلف ایاز انداخته Beg. کردن محمود را در دام ناز انداخته

Maulānā Shānī, whose original name was Nasaf Aka, belonged to the Turkish tribe of Taklū, and was born in Teheran. He was the favourite poet of Shah Abbas I. It is stated in the 'Alam-ārāi, quoted in the Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 651, and the Favā'id Safaviyyah, fol. 26, that the Shah was so delighted with a Kasidah in praise of 'Ali, which Shānī recited before him, that he ordered the poet to be weighed and to receive his weight in gold for his reward. This incident took place in the ninth year of the reign (A.H. 1004-5). Shānī spent the last years of his life in Mashhad, where he died, according to Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 150, the Khulāsat ul-Afkar, fol. 147, and Haft Asman, p. 132, A.H. 1023, a date fixed by the chronogram يادشاه سخني. Sec also Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 234, Atashkadah, fol. 8, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 42, 112, 564.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs in praise of the Imāms, of Shāh 'Abbās, and some personages of his Court, fol. 1 b. A Maṣnavī in praise of the Imāms, fol. 112 a, beginning:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم ماهچه رايت اميد و بيم Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 129 b, beginning:

اي باداي حمد تو زمزمه عقل و راي را Kit'ahs and Rubā'is, fol. 288 a.

نادر محمد بي عبد الرحيم نوقاني : Copvist

Or. 1301.

Foll. 251; 8 in. by 4½; 14 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns, apparently in the 17th century.

The same Divan, imperfect at the beginning.

Or. 350.

Foll. 239; 81 in. by 41; 15 lines, 21 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

محمود و ایاز

The story of Sultan Mahmud and his favourite Ayaz, a Masnavi.

Author: Zulāli, ¿kl.

بذام انکه محمودش ایاز است غمش بخانهٔ ناز و نیاز است

Maulānā Zulālī, of Khwānsār, 'Irāķ, lived in the reign of 'Abbās I., and was one of the panegyrists of the influential Sayyid, Mir Muḥammad Bāķir Dāmād. He is chiefly known by seven Maṣnavīs, the most popular of which is the present poem.

It was commenced, as stated by the author in the epilogue, in A.H. 1001,

در استفتاح این منشور نامی بجو تاریخ نظمش از نظامی and finished A.H. 1024. The latter date is fixed by the following chronogram:

الهي عاقبت محمود باشد

Zulāli appears to have died shortly after; for we are told by Ṭāhir Naṣirābādī in his Tazkirah, fol. 173, that he left the poem unarranged, and that it was put into order by Shaikh 'Abd ul-Husain B. Shaikh

'Alī Naķī Kamra'i in India. Mīrzā Ṭughrā, of Mashhad, wrote a preface to it.

Notices on Zulālī will be found in Haft Iķlīm, fol. 395, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 53, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 197, Ātashkadah, fol. 91, and Haft Āsmān, p. 140. See also the Oude Catalogue, pp. 41, 90.

The prologue contains eulogies on Shāh 'Abbās, the Vazīr Mīrzā Ḥabīb Ullah, and the author's patron, Mīr Bāķir Dāmād, at whose request, we are told, the poem was written.

Foll. 1—18 have been supplied by a modern hand.

The Maḥmūd u Ayāz has been lithographed in the press of Navalkishor. The seven Maṣnavīs of Zulālī are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 57, and more fully described by Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 593.

Add. 16,797.

Foll. 282; 8 in. by 4\frac{1}{4}; 13 lines, 2\frac{3}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi I., the third year of Farrukhsiyar=A.H. 1126 (A.D. 1714). [WM. YULE.]

The same poem, with a preface by the author.

In the preface Zulālī compares his seven Maşnavīs with the seven planets, Sab' Say-yārah, and enumerates them in the following order: 1. حسن کلوسوز . 3. مثينا نه . 3. شعله ديدار . 2. حسن کلوسوز . 6. مرد و خورشيد . 4. سليمان نامه . 6. آذر و سمندر . 5 . دره و خورشيد . 7. سليمان دامه . محمود و اياز . 7.

Another short prose preamble, also by Zulālī, is prefixed to the poem.

Add. 18,678.

Foll. 38; 6 in. by 4¼; 14 lines, 2 in. long, with 16 lines in the margin; written in Shi-kastah-āmīz; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1222 (A.D. 1807).

The first half of the same poem, corresponding to foll. 1—125 of Or. 350.

Add. 18,807.

Foll. 291; 9½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 25 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1075 (A.D. 1664).

Three Masnavis by the same.

I. Fol. 1 b. Mahmūd u Ayāz; see above.

II. Fol. 241 b. ميخانه, the "Tavern," with a short prose preamble by the author.

Beg. نام او باده سینه میخانه دهن هرکه هست پیمانه

III. Fol. 275 b. ذرة و خورشيد, "The Moth and the Sun," with a prose preface by Zulālī.

سخنم کرد بنامش جاوید Beg. ذرةرا جوهر تيغ خورشيد

Add. 16,792.

Foll. 179;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 23 lines, 3 in. long; with 18 lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1194 (A.D. 1780). [WM. YULE.]

ديوان ظهوري

The Divan of Zuhuri.

انکه خواهد داشت فردا رحمتش دیوان ما .Beg. كشته وصفش آفتاب مطلع دياوان ما

Zuhūrī, whose proper name was Nūr ud-Din Muhammad, was a native of Turshiz, Khorasan. His contemporary Taki Kāshi, Oude Catalogue, p. 44, states that he went at an early age to Yazd, from whence he proceeded, A.H. 988, to India, and settled in Bijapur. There he became the intimate friend of another poet, Malik Kummi (see Oude Catalogue, pp.30,151), whose daughter he married. Both stood in high favour with Ibrāhīm 'Adilshāh (A.H. 988-1037), who rewarded them, according to the Futuhat 'Adilshāhī, fol. 301, for the Gulistān i Khalīl, their joint production, with a present of 9000 gold pieces. Both were killed in an affray A.H. 1024 or 1025. See Badaoni, vol. iii. p. 281, Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 486, Mir'at ul-Khayal, fol. 57, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 281, Atashkadah, fol. 36, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 112, 125, 151.

Zuhūri's compositions in prose and verse, which are much admired in India, are little known in Persia. A notice on the author and some of his works, written by 'Abd ur-Razzāk Sūratī, A.H. 1212, and entitled Mukaddimāt Zuhūrī, has been lithographed in Cawnpore, 1873.

The Kulliyat, or poetical works of Zuhūri, consist of a Sāķī Nāmah, dedicated to Burhān Nizāmshāh, another Masnavī, and the Dīvān. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 68, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 580.

Contents of the Divan: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Rubā'is, fol. 143 b.

مير محمدى : Copyist

On the first page is the stamp of the Oude Minister, Tiket Rāi, with an 'Arz Dīdah dated A.H. 1203.

Or. 294.

Foll. 183;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 16 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Rajab, A.H. 1241 (A.D. 1826).

GEO. WM. HAMILTON.

The same Divan, containing — Ghazals, fol. 2 a; Kit'abs, fol. 178 a; Rubā'is, fol. 178 b.

Add. 26,167.

Foll. 140;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1092 (A.D. 1681). WM. ERSKINE.

ساقىي نامه

Sākī-Nāmah, a poem in praise of Burhān Nizām Shāh, and the Court of Ahmadnagar, by Zuhūri.

ثنا میکنم ایزد پاک را Beg. ثریا ده طارم تاك را

This poem, which is stated at the end to consist of 4500 distichs, was written shortly after the accession of Burhān, who reigned from A.H. 999 to 1003.

The Sāķī Nāmah is mentioned by Firishtah, vol. ii. p. 307. It has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1849.

Or. 338.

Foll. 201; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Shikastah-ūmīz, with goldruled margins, and eleven miniatures in Indian style; dated A.H. 1096 (A.D. 1685). From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same poem, with a different beginning:

Five leaves at the beginning, and a few in the body of the volume, have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 18,419.

Foll. 17; 72 in. by 4½; 12 lines, 3½ in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; dated Lucknow, Ramazan, A.H. 1205 (A.D. 1791. [WM. YULE.]

نان و حلوا

"Bread and Sweets," a Maşnavî on ascetic life, by Bahā'i, i.e. Shaikh Bahā ud-Dîn 'Amilî, who died A.H. 1030 (see p. 25 b).

The author states, in a short preamble, that he had written this poem during a journey to Meeca and his stay there. It has been printed in Constantinople, A.H. 1268.

سيد انضل على الرضوي : Copyist

Add. 7821.

Foll. 35; 7<sup>3</sup> in. by 5; 5 lines, 3 in. long; written in Turkish Naskhi; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1214 (A.D. 1799). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same poem.

درویش ملّا سلیمان Copyist:

Add. 5630.

Foll. 130; 9½ in. by 5½; foll. 1—62, 10 lines in three columns, about 20 lines in four columns; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1044 (A.D. 1634).

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED.]

The Divan of Talib Amuli.

Tālib, born in Āmul, Māzandarān, was cousin (خاله زاده) to Ḥakīm Ruknā (p. 603 a), who composed an elegy on his death. Having been induced by his relative to go to India, he attached himself to Mirzā Ghāzī, ruler of Sind (A.H. 1015—20; see Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 125), and afterwards passed into the service of Jahāngīr, who conferred upon him the title of Malik ush-Shu'arā. His mind, however, became deranged, and he died still young, A.H. 1035. The date is expressed in the Mir'ūt ul-'Alam, fol. 486, by the chronogram, عشرش بعلى ابن ابي طالب باد

In the Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 321, A.H. 1040 is given as the date of his death. See also Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 274, Atashkadah, fol. 92, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 158, Oude Catalogue, pp. 90, 125, 151, and Ouseley, Notices, pp. 176—9.

Contents: Kasīdahs in praise of 'Alī, of Mīrzā Ghāzī, Jahāngīr, Nūr Maḥall, Shāh 'Abbās, Mīr Abul-Kāsim, Chīn Kilij Khān, and others, fol. 1 b. Tarjī's, fol. 67 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 69 a. Rubā'is, fol. 127 b.

Copies are mentioned in the Oude Catalogue, p. 575, the Münich Catalogue, p. 38, de Jong's Catalogue of the Academy's library, p. 224, and in the Catalogue of the library of King's College, Cambridge, No. 172.

Add. 17,489.

Foll. 41; 10 in. by 6; 16 lines, 4¼ in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān, goldruled margins, and eleven miniatures in the Indian style; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1211 (A.D. 1797.

كوك شاستر

A poetical version of the Koka-Ṣāstra, a Sanscrit or Hindi work, treating of the various temperaments of men and women, and of sexual intercourse.

Author: Muḥammad Kulī, poetically surnamed Jāmī, محمد قلي متخلص بجامي

The translation is dedicated to 'Abd ullah Kuṭubshāh, who reigned from A.H. 1035 to 1083. It was written, as stated at the end of the prologue, fol. 13 a, in A.H. 1036. The original work, ascribed to the Vazīr Kokā, کوک, consisted of 34 Bābs; the translator has added two more.

Muḥammad Ķulī was born, according to his own account, at Ḥaidarābād, one of the "sixty" sons of a Vazīr called like himself Muhammad Ķulī.

In the subscription the work is called لذت النسا, a title which does not appear in the text, and which belongs to an earlier version of the same work by Ziyā Nakhshabī; see the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 15, Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, p. 80, and Pertsch, Zeitsehrift der D. Morg. Gesellschaft, vol. xxi. p. 511.

Hindustani versions of the Kokā Sāstra are mentioned by Garcin de Tassy, Hist. de la Litt. Hind., 2nd edition, vol. i. p. 187. See also Aufrecht, Bodleian Catalogue, p. 404.

Add. 6622.

Foll. 294;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long, in a page; written in fair Nestalik in four gold-ruled columns, with five 'Unvāns; dated Rajab, A.H. 1039 (A.D. 1630).

The Khamsah of Ḥasan B. Sayyid Fath Ullah.

This Khamsah consists of five long rhapsodies in glorification of Muḥammad, of the first four Khalifs, and of the author's spiritual guide, Shaikh ul-Islām Shaikh Muḥammad B. Fazl Ullah ul-Bakrī, who had come from Medina to India (fol. 234 a), and who is spoken of in the fifth poem as dead (fol. 232 b).

The author boasts of his descent from Amīr Khusrau: his mother was a daughter of Hasan B. Piyārah, whose genealogy is traced up to the celebrated poet (fol. 235 a).

The poems, which follow the metres of Nizāmi's Khamsah, and are designated as the first, second, third, fourth, and fifth Tuḥfah ﴿ begin respectively on foll. 1 b, 57 b, 119 b, 160 b, and 228 b, as follows:

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم باسم محمد شدة فيض عميم الله له بنها بمدح او دلم را نيك بكشا بسم الله نـما كليد آغاز مصطفا آن حبيب رب ودود نورش از نور حق شدة موجود خدايا حبيب تو نعم اللقاست محمد نبى خاتم الانبياست

The date of each, and the number of its verses, are recorded in its epilogue, and repeated in the subscription. The first was written in two months, and completed in Safar, A.H. 1038; it contains 5314 distichs. The second was completed in Jumāda, A.H. 1038, and contains 8000 distichs. The third was completed in Zulķa'dah, A.H. 1038, and consists of 4225 distichs. The fourth was finished in Muḥarram, A.H. 1039. The fifth was finished in Rabī' I., A.H. 1039; it consists of 8500 distichs.

The author mentions in his conclusion another Khamsah previously written by him in praise of Muḥammad, his wives, his grandchildren, Ḥasan and Ḥusain, and their descendants A Maṣnavī entitled مشريفه, and attributed in the Oude Catalogue, p. 419, to Muḥammad Ḥasan, of Dehli, A.H. 1013, is probably a part of that work.

عبد القادر بروجي : Copyist

Add. 7801.

Foll. 76; 11½ in. by 7¾; 17 lines, 5½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān and ten miniatures in the Persian style; dated A.H. 1109 (A.D. 1697). [Cl. J. Rich.]

جرون نامه

Jarûn-Namah, a Maşnavî on the taking of Jarûn (Hormuz) from the Portuguese by Imam Kuli Khan.

مدری Author: Kadri, قدری

از اول بنام بزرك خدا Beg. از اول بنام بزرك خدا

Imām Ķulī Khān, son and successor of Allah Virdī Khān, Beglerbegī of the Province of Fārs, eaptured Hormuz, after a siege of two months, in the 36th year of the reign of Shāh 'Abbās I., A.H. 1032; see 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 382, and Malcolm, vol. i. p. 546.

The poem was written in Imam Kuli's lifetime and dedicated to him. But a subsequent addition, foll. 59—65, contains a record of the cruel execution of that general and his children by Shāh Ṣafī, which took place, as stated, fol. 63 a, in A.H. 1043. See Malcolm, vol. i. p. 571.

Foll. 65, 71, 72 contain some versified chronograms of births, etc., by the same Kadrī. This poet is not to be confounded with his namesake Kadrī Shīrāzī, who died in India, A.H. 989. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 370.

Appended is a fragment of a poem on Shirin and Khusrau, foll. 66—70.

Add. 19,662.

Foll. 445; 9 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with ruled margins; dated Jumāda I., the fifth year of the reign (of Shāh Ḥusain)=A.H. 1111 (A.D. 1699).

ديوان اسير

The Divan of Asir.

ای دانه تسبیم خیالت دل دانا سر حلقه مستان رخت دیده بینا

Mīrzā Jalāl Asīr, son of Mīrzā Mūmin, one of the Sayyids of Shahristān, and a native of Isfahan, stood high in the favour of Shāh 'Abbās I., who gave him one of his daughters in marriage. He died young from excess of drink, leaving a Dīvān, which consists, according to 'Ṭāḥir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 80, of 8000 lines. The date A.H. 1049 given for his death by Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 149, and by Abu Ṭālib, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 15, is probably correct. An earlier date, A.H. 1040, given in Mirāt ul-'Alam, fol. 476, and Hamīshah Bahār, Oude Catalogue, p. 117, is not consistent with the evidence of his Dīvān, which contains chronograms on events of A.H. 1044 and 1045. See also Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khāķāni, fol. 163, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 52, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 49, and Oude Catalogue, p. 342.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Kiṭʿahs, including chronograms, fol. 57 a. Maṣnavīs, fol. 60 a. Tarjīʿs, fol. 73 a. Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 79 a, beginning:

Rubā'is in the same order, fol. 438 a. See Ouseley's Collection, No. 15.

شجاعت بيك شيرازى Copyist:

Or. 278.

Foll. 148; 6½ in. by 4; 11 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently late in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان اوجي

The Divan of Auji.

Aujī Naṭanzī, a native of Naṭanz, near Isfahan, lived in Herat. He and two other poets, Malik Mashriķī, and Faṣīḥī of Herat (who died A.H. 1046; Oude Catalogue, p. 151), were the favourite companions of Ḥasan Beg Shāmlū, the Beglerbegī of Khorasan. This Amīr, who succeeded to the post of his father Ḥusain Khān A.H. 1027, and died about the close of the reign of Shāh Ṣafī (A.H. 1038—1052), was a passionate lover of poetry, and has left a Dīvān of three thousand lines. See ʿĀlam Ārāi, fol. 368, and Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 28 b.

Aujī died, according to Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 149, A.H. 1050. His Dīvān is stated to contain about ten thousand lines. See Ṭāhir, fol. 188, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 47, and Atashkadah, fol. 94.

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 2 b. Tarkībs, fol. 33 b. Ķiṭahs, fol. 47 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 57 b, beginning:

مكن شرمنده يا رب در قيامت ميپرستان را Rubā'īs, fol, 136 b.

The laudatory poems are mostly in praise of the Imām 'Alī Rizā and of the author's patron, Ḥasan Khān. A Ḥasīdah is addressed to Shāh Ṣafī at the time of his accession, and a Tarkīb to the Vazīr Mīr Abul-Ma'ālī.

Or. 299.

Foll. 109;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik on gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان غياث

The Dīvān of Ghiyāş.

چه نورست این که پیدا و نهان بینند اعیانش . Beg. فضای خاطر هر ذره میدان جولانش

Ghiyāṣā i Ḥalvā'ī, or "the confectioner," was a native of Shīrāz, and a contemporary of Mulhimī and of Nizām, of Dast i Ghaib (who died A.H. 1039). In middle life he settled in Isfahan, where he was much appreciated by men of taste. Having lost his sight, he died, in consequence of a fall from the roof of his house, in the reign of Shāh Ṣafī (A.H. 1038—1052). See Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 179, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 321, Ātashkadah, fol. 133, and Oude Catalogue, p. 412.

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, fol. 3 b. Sāķī Nāmah, a Maṣnavī addressed to the Shāh, fol. 31 a. Ghazals without alphabetical arrangement, fol. 37 a, beginning:

ای کرم جوش از تو درون پیالها شوقت فتیله سوخته در مغز لالها

Rubā'is and Fardiyyāt, fol. 104 a.

The laudatory poems are addressed to the Imāms, and to a princely personage, only designated by the title of Khān. Many Kaṣīdahs treat of moral and religious subjects in the style of Khākānī. One of them, imitated from a well known Kaṣīdah of that poet, and entitled مراج العرفالي, was composed in A.H. 1035, as shown by the chronogram

Add. 7800.

Foll. 180;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{7}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

دبوان مشرقي

The Divan of Mashriki.

نیست جون یاقوتم از کس خواهشی در هیچ باب .Beg. نم در اتش آب میخواهم نه در خاك افتاب

Mīrzā Malik Mashriķī, who has been mentioned, p. 682 b, as one of the favourite poets of Ḥasan Khūn, governor of Herat, was born in Iṣfahan of a family which came from Mashhad, and was one of the secretaries of the Dār ul-Inshā, or chancelry, of Shāh 'Abbās I. He appears to have been staying in Iṣfahan during the reign of Shāh Ṣafī (A.H. 1038—1052) to whom several of his Ḥaṣīdahs are addressed. His Dīvān includes a chronogram on some royal building erected A.H. 1050.

Notices on Mashriķī are to be found in the Tazkirah of Ţāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 185, the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 429, and the Atash-kadah, fol. 49.

Contents: Kasidahs, fol. 1 b. Ghazals and detached verses, in one alphabetical series, fol. 53 a, beginning:

مجنون طبیعتم وجنونست کارما دسر مشق عالمی شده لوح مزارما A Maşnavî on Khusrau and Shîrîn, written, as stated in the prologue, by desire of Shāh Ṣafī, and left unfinished, fol. 166 a, beginning:

خدایا دل ز من بستان بزاري

Another Maşnavî, fol. 175 a. Rubā'is, fol. 177 b.

Or. 305.

Foll. 338; 10 in. by 4½; 21 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

Poetical works of Mir Muhammad Kāzim Husaini, poetically surnamed Karīm.

مير محمد كاظم حسيني كريم تخلص

The author, no record of whom has been found, was, as appears from some passages of his works, a native of Irak, in the service of 'Abd ullah Kutubshāh, who reigned in Ḥaidarābād from A.H. 1035 to 1083, and his father's poetical surname was Fikr. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 456.

The contents are as follows:

I. Foll. 56 A collection of Rubā'is, mostly of religious nature, in alphabetical order, with a prose preface.

هر مصرع دیباجه مستاته من Beg. of Pref. رمزیست زراز دل دیوانه من

The collection comprises, as stated at the end, four thousand and eighty Ruba'is.

II. Foll. 300 b. کي نامه "The Treasure," a Ķaṣīdah addressed to Sulṭān 'Abd ullah Ķuṭubshāh, with a prose preface, beginning:

معلوم بود بصاحب استعداد کر جد بود این نیست زهزاش بنیاد

In a letter to the Sultan, which is prefixed, the author alludes to his poem as a buried treasure which he had discovered in the estate bestowed upon him by the sovereign.

The Kaşidah, which begins thus, fol. 308 b,

کی باشد عدل و ظلم و بدعت مار آن مار را چون سر بکوبی میبری کی از میان consists of upwards of a thousand lines. The text is frequently interrupted by long extracts from Nīzāmī, Sa'dī, Jāmī, and the author's own poems. The poet offers to the king very bold advice for the reformation of abuses and the better government of the kingdom. He adds bitter complaints of the neglect and niggardly treatment he had met with during seven years service, and of the exactions which reduced his scanty allowance, and threatens to leave Ḥaidarābād to return to his native Irak, and to the holy shrines of Najaf.

Foll. 3 and 4 contain a notice on ten religious Masnavis of the author, with remarks on the efficacy of their recitation.

Or. 337.

Foll. 143; 10¼ in. by 6; 17 lines, 3¼ in long; written in Indian Shikastah-āmīz; dated 'Alamgīrpūr, vulgo Bhīlsah, Zulḥijjah, the 28th year of Aurangzīb, A.H. 1095 (A.D. 1684). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

زیبا نگار

A story of two Sindian lovers. Author: Rizāʿī, رضائي

The author, who appears to have been a native of Sind, states in the introduction, fol. 30 b, that the original name of the lover was Panun پنون, and that of his beloved, Sīsī سیسی, but that, from fear of offending Persian ears by outlandish names, he had substituted for them Nigār and Zībā.

The poem is founded, as stated at the end, upon a prose narrative, due to Sayyid 'Alī of Thathah, a holy personage, who was a contemporary of the heroes of the tale. The date of composition, A.H. 1053, is expressed by the words کل and باغ, as stated in the following lines, fol. 140 b:

Appended is a eulogy on the work by the transcriber Jaikarn, in which the author is named Maulānā Ḥājī Muḥammad Rizā'ī.

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 544, and Stewart's Catalogue, p. 73.

Or. 323.

Foll. 482;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century; much damaged by worms.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The poetical works of Kudsi, کلیات قدسی.

Hājī Muhammad Jān, who took the surname of Kudsī from the holy shrine of Mashhad, his native place, had performed in his youth a pilgrimage to Mecca. He went to India in A.H. 1041, and was patronized by 'Abd Ullah Khān Firūz Jang, who introduced him to the notice of Shahjahan. He soon became one of that sovereign's favourite poets, but did not obtain the appointment of Malik ush-Shu'ara, to which he was, according to the 'Amal Salih, fol. 696, entitled above all others, because he had been forestalled by Tālib Kalim. He spent the last years of his life in Kashmir, where he died A.H. 1056, according to Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151, the Sarv i Azād, and Haft Asman, p. 143, or A.H. 1055, as stated by Shir Khān, fol. 64, and in the Khulāsat ul-Afkār, fol. 225. The first of the above dates is confirmed by a Tarkib composed by a contemporary poet on Kudsi's death, Or. 351, fol. 7, in which it is expressed by the ehronogram:

دور ازان بلبل قدسی چمنم زندان شد Other notices on Kudsi will be found in the Tazkirah of Ṭāhir, fol. 169, the Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 324, Pādishāh Nāmah of Amīn, fol. 430, Pādishāh Nāmah of 'Abd ul-Ḥamīd, vol. i., part 2, p. 351, Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr, fol. 119, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 370, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 113, 128, and 536.

The contents are as follows:

I. Fol. 2 b. A description of the gardens of Kashmir, a Maşnavi dedicated to Shāhjahān, imperfect at the beginning.

II. Fol. 19 b. Tarkīb-bands, mostly in praise of Imām Rizā, beginning:

The first of these was written, according to the heading, when the poet was setting out for Irak; another at the time of his departure for India.

III. Fol. 47 b. Kaşidahs, only partially arranged in alphabetical order. They are mostly in praise of the Imāms. One is addressed to Minūchihr, governor of Mashhad, another to Hasan Khān, governor of Herat.

IV. Fol. 136 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, beginning:

V. Fol. 215 b. Preface to the Dīvān of Kudsī, written in Agra, A.H. 1048, by Jalāl ud-Dīn Muḥammad Ṭabāṭabā'ī (see p. 258 a).

VI. Fol. 222 b. Rubā'is.

VII. Fol. 271 b. Marsiyahs on the death of the poet's son, and other persons, in the form of Tarkib-hands.

VIII. Fol. 294 a. ظفرنامه شاهجهانی, a poetical history of Shāhjahān in Maşnavī rhyme.

بنام خدائی که داد از شهان Beg. بنام خدائی که داد از شهان جهان

The poem was left unfinished. The present copy contains a confused series of detached fragments, treating of Shāhjahān's accession, his early life, and some events of the beginning of his reign. The latest of these is the erection by Shāhjahān, on his return from the Decean, of several edifices, and especially of the famous Dehli mosque, the building of which is dated by a chronogram A.H. 1047. Some of the fragments are written twice and even thrice over with some variations.

IX. Fol. 477 a. Two fragments, probably belonging to the Maşnavî mentioned under Art. I. The first is part of a description of Kashmir; the second is in praise of Shāhjahān, and begins:

Or. 351.

Foll. 68; 8½ in. by 5; 17 lines, 25 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

Some poems by Kudsi, as follows:

Fol. 2 b. A Kit'ah of religious character, ending with an invocation to 'Ali.

Fol. 4 b. Kaşīdahs addressed to Shāhjahān, mostly on Naurūz festivals.

Foll. 7 and 9 contain the Tarkib-band, composed by some poet not named, on the death of Kudsi, which has been noticed p. 684 b.

Fol. 21 a. Maşnavis, beginning:

This section contains poems on various palaces erected by Shāhjahān, with chronograms ranging from A.H. 1040 to 1048 a long description of Agrah, fol. 44 a, and other pieces relating to events of that period. The longest, however, foll. 48 b—51 b and 21 a—26 b, relating to the flight and death of Rājah Jajhār Singh (A.H. 1044), is not by Ķudsī, but by Kalīm, and is found in the Dīvān of the latter, Add. 24,002, foll. 86 a—94 b.

Fol. 61 a. Kit als, most of which contain chronograms on contemporary events.

Add. 24,002.

Foll. 166; 9 in. by 6; about 20 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns, and gold-ruled margins; probably in the 18th century.

The Divan of Kalim.

Abu Tālib, poetically surnamed Kalīm, was born in Hamadan and grew up in Kāshān. After completing his studies in Shīrāz, he went to India, where, according to the 'Amal i Sālih, fol. 697, he stayed some time with Mir Jumlah, poetically styled Rul ul-Amin (p. 675 b). Having been attached to the court of Shāhjahān shortly after that sovereign's accession, he became his favourite poet, and received from him the post of Malik ush-Shu'arā. Amīn states, in his Pādishāli Nāmah, fol. 431, that Tālib and Kudsī were then (A.H. 1047) simultaneously engaged upon the composition of two poetical records of Shāhjahān's reign, both of which he terms Pādishāh Nāmah. Tālib was sent to Kashmir, to devote himself to the completion of his task, and he died there, as stated by his contemporary Vāriş, in the third volume of the Pādishāh Nāmah, fol. 530, on the 15th of Zulḥijjah, in the 26th year of the reign (A.H. 1062). The same year is given as the date of his death by Shīr Khān, fol. 67, while Mir'āt i 'Ālam, and other later works, give A.H. 1061. See Tazkirah i Ṭāhir, fol. 165, Ātashkadah, fol. 110, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 385, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 113, 128, 151, and 453.

The contents of the Divan are as follows:

Fol. 2 b. Kaṣīdahs, mostly addressed to Shāhjahān, with a Tarkīb-band of the kind called Bahāriyyah, or vernal poem, at the end.

Fol. 41 a. Mukaṭṭaʿāt, including chronograms, the dates of which range from A.H. 1024, Dārā Shikūh's birth, to A.H. 1054.

Fol. 52 b. Maşnavīs, mostly descriptive of buildings erected by Shāhjahān, and recording their dates. The longest, foll. 86 a—94 b, contains an account of the flight and pursuit of Jajhār Singh. The last is a Ṣāķī Nāmah composed for Zafar Khān, governor of Kashmīr.

Fol. 97 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, beginning:

The margins contain additional Ghazals. Foll. 160 a. Rubā'īs.

Add. 7798.

Foll. 183;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A collection of Kalīm's Ghazals, slightly imperfect at beginning and end. It is far richer than the corresponding section of the preceding MS., and contains a few Rubā'is at the end.

Add. 22,701.

Foll. 162; 9 in. by 5¼; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1098 (A.D. 1687). [Sir John Campbell.]

Another collection of Kalīm's minor poems, containing Ghazals, fol. 1 b, Rubā'is, fol. 153 b, and two Maşnavis, fol. 159 b.

Or. 306.

Foll. 193; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda I., A.D. 1814.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Ghazals of Kalim.

Or. 357.

Foll. 210; 74 in. by 41; about 20 lines written diagonally, in Nestalik, partly in three and partly in four columns, probably in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

پادشاه نامه

Five fragments of a poetical record of the life of Shāhjahān, by Kalim, as follows:

1. Early life of Shāhjahān, concluding with the death of Jahāngīr, fol. 1.

2. Part of the prologue, and account of the emperor's forefathers from Timur to Humayan, fol. 48 a.

3. Early part of Shahjahan's reign, from his accession to Zafar Khan's expedition to Tibet (A.H. 1046—7), fol. 72 a.

4. Another part of the introduction, beginning with the Mi'rāj, and ending with the birth of Shāhjahān, fol. 198.

5. Description of Kashmir, fol. 205.

The same work is mentioned in the Oude Catalogue, p. 454, under the title of See also the Münich Catalogue, p. 96, and King's College Library, No. 253.

Add. 25,330.

Foll. 196;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, on gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1042 (A.D. 1632).

ديوان الهي

The Divan of Ilahi.

آراست دکاندار چین باز دکانرا کل بست حنا دست زمین و زمانرا

Mir Ilahi is the author of a Tazkirah, in which he calls himself 'Imad nd-Din Mahmud Ilahi Husaini, the contents of which have been fully stated by Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 66-87. He belonged, according to Tahir Nasirabadi, fol. 192, to the family of the Sayyids of Asadabad, Hamadan, and lived some years in Isfahan under Shāh 'Abbās I., in frequent intercourse with the poet Hakim Shifa'i. He then went to India, and appears to have stayed some time in Kābul with the governor Zafar Khān. to whom several of his pieces, one of them dated A.H. 1033, are addressed. After some years spent at Court, under Jahangir and Shahjahan, he acceompanied Zafar Khan to Kashmir, A.H. 1041-2, and resided there till his death, the date of which, A.H. 1063, is expressed in some verses engraved on his tomb, and quoted in the Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr, fol. 122 a, by the chronogram بود سخن آفرين.

See 'Amal i Ṣāliḥ, fol. 701, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 84, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 40, Atashkadah, fol. 115, and Onde Catalogue, pp. 150 and 435.

Zafar Khān, son of Khwājah Abul-Ḥasan, was a munificent patron of letters, and no mean poet himself. He was appointed governor of Kābul, as lieutenant of his father, in the 19th year of Jahāngīr (A.H. 1033). Having been sent in the same capacity to Kashmir in the 5th year of Shāhjahān (A.H. 1041—2), he held that post down to the 26th year of the reign, when he was transferred to Tattah. He died A.H. 1073. See Ma'āşir ul-Umarā, fol. 374.

Contents: Kasīdahs in praise of the Imāms, of Shāhjahān, Mahābat Khān, and other Amīrs, fol. 1 b. Tarkīb and Tarjībands, fol. 57 b. Kitahs, including a Marsiyah on Husain, fol. 69 b. Maṣnavis, fol. 95 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 102 b., beginning:

Rubā'is, fol. 157 b.

Foll. 78—87, 173—195 have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 7815.

Foll. 136;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1049 (A.D. 1639).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان مسيح

The Divan of Masih.

عقل نشناخت درین معرکه نیك و بد را . Beg. بو لهب كیست كه داند شرف احمد را

Hakīm Rukn ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, of Kāshān, poetically surnamed Masīh, who has been already mentioned, p. 603 a, left the court of Shāh 'Abbās I., in consequence of a supposed slight, at the time of the Shāh's setting out for Māzandarān (A.H. 1006). He arrived at the court of Akbar with his famous contemporary, Ḥakīm Ṣadrā of Shīrāz, afterwards Masīh uz-Zamān, A.H. 1011, and stayed there in a position of great honour and emolument during the whole reign of Jahāngīr and the first years of Shāhjahān. Amīn states in his Pādishāh-Nāmah, written A.H. 1047, fol. 429, that the Ḥakīm had sometime previously obtained, on account of his advanced age, leave to retire and to go to Mecca, and that he was then staying at home engaged upon the composition of his eighth Dīvān. His contemporary, Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, who had seen no less than ten Dīvāns of his composition, states, fol. 161, that he died in Kāshān A.H. 1066, and adds, in order to fix the date, the chronogram Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order. Kit'ahs, with some short Maşnavīs, fol. 101 b. Rubā'īs, fol. 120 b.

In the subscription the work is designated as the sixth Divan of the Ḥakīm.

Or. 475.

Foll. 65;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, probably in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Three Masnavis of the same poet, viz.:

I. Fol. 1 b. Anecdotes of lovers.

The title occurs in the following line, fol. 7 a:

The poem is dedicated to Shāh 'Abbās, and appears, from some passages, to have been written shortly before the author's flight. In one of these, fol. 47, he begs to be allowed to leave the Court, then at Raï, and to go home to Kāshān, in order to get healed of the scab. Further on he refers to the end of his brother poet, Akdasī Mashhadī, whose deathbed he had attended in A.H. 1003, and to the death of his own father in A.H. 1001. In another passage, fol. 55 b. he states that he had, at the time of writing, completed his 35th year.

II. Fol. 56 b. A Maşnavî, entitled Sāķī Nāmah, in praise of Shāh 'Abbās.

III. Fol. 63 b. A Maşnavî, without title, relating to the adventure of a caravan at the tomb of Hātim.

On the first page is a Persian note stating that this "very rare work of Ḥakīm Masīḥ Ruknā'i Kāshī, the master of Ṣā'ib," had been presented by Ziyā ud-Dīn Aḥmad Khān to Col. Wm. Hamilton, at Dehli, on the 17th of January, A.D. 1867.

Or. 1250.

Foll. 195; 9½ in. by 6½; 14 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, probably about the beginning of the 19th century.

The story of Ram and Sita, in Maşnavî rhyme, by Masih.

The prologue contains a long panegyric on Jahangir, and the author's apology for having taken his theme from a heathenish tale.

Or. 293.

Foll. 70; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 25 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in the 18th century; from the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان صيدي

The Divan of Saidi, consisting of Ghazals alphabetically arranged.

Mîr Şaidī, whose original name was Sayyid 'Alī, belonged to a family of Sayyids in Teheran, and made his studies in Isfahan. Having gone to India, he found access, A.H. 1064, to the court of Shāhjahān, and secured a protectrice in that emperor's accomplished daughter Jahān-ārā Begam, who was then in her 42nd year (see p. 357 b). He was scarcely more than thirty years of age when he died, in Dehli, A.H. 1069, as stated in Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khākānī, fol. 167 a. See also Ṭāhir, fol. 267, Vāriṣ, fol. 530, Sarkhush, fol. 78, Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 485, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 259, Ātashkadah, fol. 94, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 112, 125, and 383.

Add. 7813.

Foll. 75; 6½ in. by 3½; 11 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

The same Divan.

Add. 26,235.

Foll. 60; 10 in. by 5½; 18 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WML ERSKINE.]

آشوب هندوستان

"The troubles of India," a poetical account of the struggle of Shāhjahān's sons for the empire, from the rising of Murādbakhsh in Aḥmadābād to the death of Dārā Shikūh, A.H. 1067—1069.

Author: Bihishtī, بهشتی

The author, who calls himself the panegyrist of Sultan Murādbakhsh, writes in the interest of his master, and in a spirit of bitter animosity against the successful competitor Aurangzīb. He asserts that he had witnessed all the battles he describes:

The poem was evidently written shortly after the events related, and before the death of Murādbakhsh, which took place in A.H. 1071. The title is contained in the last line:

Or. 302.

Foll. 170; 10 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 16 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, about the close of the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان فوجي

The Divan of Fauji.

Mullā Muķīm, or Muķīmā, poetically surnamed Faujī, belonged to a family of poets. His father, Mullā Ķaidī, of Nīshāpūr, a poet of some note, and a nephew of the better known Nazīrī, went to India in the reign of Shāhjahān, and died at sea on his return voyage to Persia, A.H. 1064, as stated in the Fauz i 'Azīm, fol. 92, by Faujī's brother, Mullā 'Azīmā. See the Mir'āt uṣ-Ṣafā, fol. 223, and Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 236.

Fauji, who went also to India, attached himself to Mīrzā Jān Beg, who commanded in Orissa, under Shāh Shujā', took Hijlī in the 24th year of Shāhjahān (A.H. 1060-61), and fought by the side of Shāh Shujā' in that prince's last war (see Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 116). Faujī went from India to Mecca, and, after performing the pilgrimage, returned to his native place, Nīshāpūr, where he died, according to the Mir'āt us-Ṣafā, A.H. 1075, and, as stated in the Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khā-kānī, fol. 177, at the age of forty-two years. See Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 106, where Faujī is wrongly described as a native of Shīrāz, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 346, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 113 and 398.

Contents: Kaşīdahs in praise of the Imāms, of Shāh Shujā', and of the poet's special patron, Mīrzā Jān Beg, fol. 2 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 47 a, beginning:

Ķiţ'ahs, including some chronograms, which relate to contemporary events in India, and range from A.H. 1052 to 1059, fol. 151 a. Rubā'is, fol. 153 b. A Sāķī-Nāmah, written in Orissa, for Mirzā Jān Beg, and two shorter Maṣnavīs, fol. 157 b.

Or. 360.

Foll. 223; 11¼ in. by 6½; 21 lines, 4¼ in. long; written in Nestalik, with three 'Unvans, and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century. [Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان شاه

The Divan of Shah.

Mullā Shāh, originally called Muḥammad Shāh, and surnamed Lisān Ullah, was one of the greatest Sufis of India, and the spiritual preceptor of Dārā Shikūh, who has given a full account of his life, with many of his letters and poems, in the Safinat ul-Auliya, fol. 86—118 (see p. 358 a). He was the son of Mulla 'Idi, the Kazi of Ark, in the canton of Rüstäk, Badakhshan, and, having early adopted a religious life, wandered, A.H. 1023, to India, in quest of a spiritual guide. He found one in Miyan Mir, the celebrated saint of Lahore (see ib.), by whom he was initiated in Sufism and affiliated to the Kadiri order. After his master's death, A.H. 1045, he settled in Kashmir, where a vast monastery was built for him and his disciples, at the expense of Dara Shikuh and his sister Jahanara Begam, both devoted adherents, and where he was frequently visited by Shahjahan. He died in Lahore, A.H. 1072, and left, besides a large number of religious Ghazals and Masnavis, an unfinished Sufi commentary upon the Coran. See Mir'at ul-Khayal, foll. 87-91, 'Amal i Sālih, fol. 686, Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 447, Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr, fol. 126, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, foll. 247-250, and the Dabistan, vol. iii. p. 281.

Contents: Rubā'is of a religious nature, with paraphrases in Maṣnavī rhyme, and comments in prose, fol. 2 b. Another series of Rubā'is in alphabetical order, with paraphrases in Maṣnavī, fol. 17 b. The same series, without paraphrase, fol. 130 b. Ghazals and Kaṣīdahs, forming one alphabetical series, fol. 187 b, beginning:

The second series of Rubā'is includes chronograms relating to incidents of the author's life, with dates ranging from A.H. 1023 to 1060. From these we learn that he wrote a Shash Ganj A.H. 1055, and a commentary on the Sūrat Yūsuf A.H. 1057, and that he was joined by his relatives, after forty years' separation, in Kashmir A.H. 1060.

Or. 277.

Foll. 177; 9½ in. by 5¼; 16 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان انسان

The Divan of Insan.

The author states in his first poem that he was a Sayyid, originally called Abu 1-'Alā, that he was born in A.H. 1037, and that he had given up the world and adopted a life of religious poverty in A.H. 1060:

In the concluding lines he says that he had given up the writing of poetry in A.H. 1077. From his frequent references to Kūsī, or Benares, he appears to have been dwelling in that city. His principal theme is the mystic love of the Sufis, and he often refers to his complete enfranchisement from all positive creed or religious law.

Contents: Kasidahs, or longer poems, in alphabetical order, fol. 2 b.

Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 42 b.

Tarjī'-bands, fol. 132 a. A Sāķī-Nāmah, fol. 145 a. Rubā'is, fol. 150 b.

Or. 300.

Foll. 70;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, in the first half of the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان غني

The Dīvān of Ghanī, with a preface by Māhir.

Beg. of Pref. اي ذات تو سر دفتر افراد وجود Beginning of the Dīvān :

Muḥammad Ṭāhir, surnamed Ghanī, was a Kashmirian by birth, and a disciple of another Kashmirian poet, Muḥsin Fānī, whom he is said to have surpassed in poetical genius. (Fānī died A.H. 1082). He adopted the takhalluṣ às a chronogram for A.H. 1060, the date of his first poetical compositions, and died at an early age, A.H. 1079, three years before his master. His Dīvān was collected by his friend, Muhammed 'Alī Māhir, who composed the following chronogram on his death:

See 'Amal i Ṣālih, fol. 705, Sarkhush, fol. 95, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 101, Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 328, Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr, fol. 322, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 322, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 113, 151, and 410.

The editor describes Ghani, whom he calls his master, as a man who by holiness of life had almost become a disembodied spirit. The date of his death, A.H. 1079, is expressed by the chronogram Contents: Ghazals, and longer poems, in one alphabetical series, fol. 6 b. Rubā'is, fol. 57 b. Masnavīs, fol. 66 a.

Fol. 68 contains a short piece in prose, in which Ghanī clears himself of a false accusation of plagiarism.

On the first page is a 'Arz-Dīdah, dated A.H. 1169.

The Dīvān of Ghanī has been printed in Lucknow, 1845.

Add. 25,819.

Foll. 202;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Cawnpore, Muḥarram, A.H. 1223 (A.D. 1808).

[WM. CURETON.]

يوسف و زليخا

Yūsuf and Zulaīkhā, a Maşnavī. Author: Nāzim, ناظم Beg. خدایا چون سپهرم سینه بکشا دلم طوطی کن و آیینه بنما

Mullā Nāzim, son of Shāh Rizā Sabzavārī, was born in Herat, where he spent his whole life as court poet of the Beglerbegis of that province. The author of the Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khā-kānī states, fol. 178, that Nāzim was then (A.H. 1076) upwards of sixty years of age, and that his Dīvān contained twenty-five thousand lines. He died, according to Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151, A.H. 1081. See Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 246, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 470, Atashkadalı, fol. 85, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 129, 515.

After eulogies upon Herat, upon the reigning sovereign, Shāh 'Abbās II., and his protector, 'Abbās Kulī Khān Shāmlū, governor of Herat, the poet relates in the prologue how he had been urged by his patron to try his skill in Maṣnavī, and how the theme of the present poem had been suggested to him by the same exalted personage. He concludes with an encomium on his predecessor Jāmī. In the epilogue Nāzim states that he had devoted fourteen years to the composition of the poem, having commenced it A.H. 1058, and completed it A.H. 1072.

The Yūsuf u Zulaikhā of Nāzim has been printed in the press of the Oude Akhbār, Lucknow, A.H. 1286.

Or. 292.

Foll. 392; 83 in. by 41; 23 lines, 25 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the latter part of the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديران صائب

The Divan of Sa'ib.

زهي بغمزه مانسوز برق مذهبها .Beg. بعنده مشربها بعنده شكرين نو بهار مشربها

Mirzā Muhammad 'Alī, poetically surnamed Sa'ib, is by common consent the creator of a new style of poetry, and the greatest of modern Persian poets. He was born in Isfahan, where his father, a native of Tabriz, was Kadkhuda, or provost, of the merchants of 'Abbasabad. As he was, according to the Kisas ul-Khākānī, fol. 163, upwards of sixty years of age in A.II. 1076, his birth must have taken place about A.H. 1010. Having started in early life for India, he made a long stay at Kābul, where the Governor, Zafar Khan, treated him with great kindness. He was afterwards favourably received by Shahjahan, who conferred upon him a command of one thousand and the title of Musta'idd Khan. He left the Court, however, to accompany his munificent patron, Zafar Khan, to his government of Kashmir (A.H. 1041-2), and, after staying there some time, returned to Persia, where Shah 'Abbas II. bestowed upon him the title of Malik ush-Shu'ara. The latter part of his life was spent in Isfahan, where he died at an advanced age, A.H. 1088, leaving upwards of a hundred and twenty thousand lines of poetry, chiefly Ghazals. The date of his death is fixed by the following chronogram of a contemporary poet, Vā'iz, Add. 7812, fol. 245:

شد صایب ازین جهان ویران صد حیف زان در ثمین بحر عرفان صد حیف کفتند بناله بلبلان تاریخش ای حیف ازان هزار دستان صد حیف

Other dates, however, are given, viz., A.H. 1080 by Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151, 1081 by Sarkhush, fol. 74, 1087 by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 290, and 1089 in Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 485.

Notices on Ṣā'ib will be found in the Tazkirah of Ṭāhir, fol. 163, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 65, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 260, Ātash-kadah, fol. 16, Ouseley's Notices, p. 227, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 385.

The Divan of Ṣa'ib has been lithographed in the press of Navalkishor, Lucknow, A.H. 1292, with the title حائب صائب. A small collection of select verses has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1264, under the title of انتخاب دیوان صائب, and reprinted with the title مدیوان صائب, Lucknow, 1871.

Contents: Ghazals, about 1800 in number, alphabetically arranged, fol. 3 b. Maṭāli', or opening lines, in the same order, fol. 313 b. Mutafarriķāt, or detached lines, similarly arranged, fol. 323 b.

Copies of Sā'ib's Dīvān are mentioned in the catalogues of Vienna, vol. i. p. 597, Upsala, p. 110, St. Petersburg, p. 398, and Münich, p. 38, and in the Ouseley Collection, No. 19.

Add. 7806.

Foll. 281; 8 in. by 4½; 17 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled columns; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1166 (A.D. 1753). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan of Ṣā'ib, containing:-

Fol. 1 b. Kaşidahs in praise of the Imams, and of the Shāhs Ṣafī, 'Abbās II., and Sulaimān, beginning:

Fol. 20 b. واجب الحفظ, "What should be learnt by heart," a selection from the Ghazals, Maṭāli', or opening couplets, and Mutafarrikāt, or detached lines, of Ṣā'ib, in two alphabetical series.

ز ارباب تجرد نیست بر دل بار عالم را . Beg.

Fol. 141 a. A Maşnavî in praise of Shāh 'Abbās II., beginning:

Fol. 146. مرآت الجمال, "The Mirror of Beauty," another selection from the Divan of Ṣā'ib, containing Ghazals, or detached lines, descriptive of feminine charms, arranged in alphabetical order, under each of the following headings: Mirror, Eyebrow, Frown, Eye and Eye-lashes, etc.

In the preface of the Lucknow edition both the above titles, Mir'āt ul-Jamāl and Vājib ul-Ḥifz, are said to belong to a selection made in Ṣā'ib's lifetime, and under his roof, by 'Āmilā of Balkh. The Mir'āt ul-Jamāl is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 70.

Add. 7804.

Foll. 308; 10 in. by 6; 16 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in a large Nestalik, about the close of the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Dīvān of Ṣā'ib, imperfect at the beginning, and containing only Ghazals in alphabetical order.

Add. 7803.

Foll. 489;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in fair Shikastah-āmīz, probably early in the 18th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The Dīvān of Ṣā'ib, containing Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Ķiṭ'ahs and Rubā'īs, in one alphabetical series, fol. 433 b.

خدایا در پذیر این نعره مستانه ما را ... مکن نومید از حسن قبول افسانه ما را

Or. 1223.

Foll. 208; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, probably early in the 18th century.

[Alex. Jaba.]

Ghazals of Ṣā'ib, in alphabetical order.

At the end are some lines by a contemporary poet, Naḥīfī, who states that he had collected and arranged these poems in the author's lifetime, and had completed that task in A.H. 1066, a date expressed by this chronogram, نوشتم نامه ديوان صايب.

Add. 24,001.

Foll. 171;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1166 (A.D. 1753).

Ghazals of Ṣā'ib, in alphabetical order.

اکر نه مد بسم الله بودی تاج عنوانها نکشتی تا قیامت نو خط شیرازه دیوانها

Add. 25,828.

Foll. 289; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and ruled margins; dated Thānesar, Ṣafar, A.H. 1119 (A.D. 1707). [WM. CURETON.]

Ghazals of Sa'ib, in alphabetical order, beginning like the preceding MS.

Add. 7805.

Foll. 76; 14½ in. by 8¾; 27 lines, 2½ in. long, with a large number of additional lines in the margin; written in Nestalik, probably early in the 18th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

A portion of the Divan of Sa'ib, comprising Ghazals from letter 1 to letter 2, the last incomplete.

یا رب از عرفان مرا پیمانه سر شار ده . Beg.

This collection is richer, as far as it goes, than any of the preceding. It contains marginal additions, and some Turkish glosses.

Add. 7807.

Foll. 176; 7½ in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The "Mirror of Beauty," a selection from the Dīvān of Ṣā'ib; see p. 694 a.

Egerton 705.

Foll. 310; 8\frac{1}{4} in. by 4\frac{1}{2}; 14 lines, 2\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

كليات بينش

The poetical works of Binish.

Bīnish, a Kashmirian poet, whose proper name was Ismā'il (see fol. 177 a), went, according to the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 86, and the Atashkadah, fol. 165, from his native country to Hindustān, and stayed in Dehli. Some of his poems are addressed to Ṣafshikan Khān (Muḥammad Ṭāhir), an Amīr who was raised to the Khānship in A.H. 1068, accompanied Aurangzīb to Kashmīr in the sixth year of the reign (A.H. 1073-4), and died A.H. 1085. See Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 371. Sarkhush, who wrote his Tazkirah about A.H. 1100, speaks of Bīnish as dead. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 110.

Contents: Fol. 1 b. بينش الابصار, a Maşnavī, in the measure of Nīzāmī's Makhzan ul-Asrār, treating of the virtues of the true Faķīr, dedicated to Aurangzīb.

بسم الله السرحمن الرحيم Beg. - كابن بر جسته باغ نعيم

Fol. 46 b. کچ روای, "The Treasure of the Soul," a Maşnavī.

بنامی که عالم کلستان اوست بنامی که عالم کلستان اوست بکی روان فلك شان اوست

It contains eulogies on Auraugzīb, on Mīrzā Muḥammad Ķāsim Kirmānī, Dīvān of Kashmīr, and on Mīr Jamshīd Kāshānī, the poet's patron, descriptions of the four seasons, and a Sāķī-Nāmah.

Fol. 86 b. کلدسته, "The Bouquet," a Maşnavī treating of creation, and including descriptions of Kashmīr and Lahore.

کلدسته بوستان تــوحید حدست بچشم صاحب دید

Fol. 124 b. شرر خيال, "Stirring of Faney," a Maşnavî, dedicated to Aurangzîb, containing a story of two lovers, natives of Benares, with anecdotes and a eulogy on Isfahan.

خداوندا زشور دل خرابم نمك پروردة چون مرغ كبابم

Fol. 180 b. رشته کوهر, "The String of Jewels," a Maşnavî dedicated to Aurangzīb, containing the story of Amīr and Gauhar, two lovers of Sārī in Māzandarān.

نتوان یافت در خزینه، شاه Beg. پاهم الله رشته م کوهری چو بسم الله

This poem is stated at the end, fol. 217 a, to be the last of the author's Khamsah.

Fol. 220 a. Ghazals in alphabetical order.

Fol. 292 b. Ķaṣīdahs in praise of the Imāms, of Mīrzā Muḥammad Ķāsim, the Dīvan before mentioned, and of Ṣafshikan Khān.

On the last page is written: "George Curttenden, Moorshedabad, Oct. 4th, 1785."

Or. 310.

Foll. 137; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 16 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jainagar, Sha'bān, the 20th year of 'Alamgir (A.H. 1088, A.D. 1677). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان محيي

The Divan of Muḥyī, containing Ghazals of a religious character, alphabetically arranged, and a few Tarjī's at the end.

The Dīvān is ascribed in the subscription to Pīrān Pīr Mīr Muḥyi ud-Dīn Ghauş ul-A'zam, i.e. the famous saint Muḥyi ud-Dīn 'Abd-ul-Kādir Jīlānī, who died A.H. 561, and to whom the best authorities do not attribute any poetical composition. It is distinct from a Dīvān containing the same takhallus, and ascribed to the same holy personage, which is noticed in the Oude Catalogue, p. 501, and has been lately lithographed in the press of Naval-kishor, without date. A Dīvān attributed to Ghauş ul-A'zam is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 58.

Add. 23,613.

Foll. 79;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century.

ديوان شريف

The Divan of Sharif.

It contains Ghazals of a religious and mystic character, in alphabetical order, with a few Rubā'is similarly arranged, fol. 76 b.

A Dīvān with the same beginning is described in the Oude Catalogue, p. 567, as containing chronograms ranging from A.H. 1089—1091. Its author is stated to have been a Vāķi'ah-Navīs, or news-writer, attached to Zabardast Khān.

Or. 309.

Foll. 102;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 21 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, about the close of the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان محذوب

The Divan of Majzūb.

Mīr Muḥammad, poetically called Majzūb, is described by Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, writing about A.H. 1083, fol. 145, as a young scholar devoted to Sufism, whose teaching was daily attended by the students of Tabrīz. He is also mentioned in the Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khākānī, written A.H. 1073, fol. 164, as a living poet, born in Tabrīz, who had written poems in praise of the Imāms, a Maṣnavī of 3000 lines entitled Shāh Rāh i Najāt, and Ghazals in which he followed Ḥāfiz.

The present Divan contains some chronograms relating to pilgrimages to Mecea and Najaf performed by the author and his father in A.H. 1060 and 1065, and to the death of the latter in A.H. 1066. At the end is found the following Ruba'i, which gives A.H. 1093 as the date of Majzūb's death:

مجذوب ازان رفت بصد خوشحالی در باغ نعیم بود جایش خالی تاریخ وفاتش از خرد پرسیدم کفتا آسود در بهشت عالی

There must therefore be some error in the following chronogram quoted by Tāhir, and in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 439, according to which the Shāhrāh i Najāt would have been completed A.H. 1006, a date which can hardly be reconciled with those above stated:

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs in praise of the Imāms, fol. 2 b. Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 10 a. Mukhammas, Tarjī'-bands, Maṣnavīs, and Ķiṭ'ahs, fol. 91 b. Rubā'is, fol. 98 b.

See the Oude Catalogue, pp. 131, 479.

Add. 19,624.

Foll. 115; 9\frac{3}{2} in. by 6\frac{1}{2}; 18 lines, 3\frac{5}{6} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Benares, Muḥarram, A.H. 1182 (A.D. 1768).

[SAMUEL LEE.]

دستور همت

The love-story of Kāmrūp and Kāmlatā, a Maşnavī.

Author: Muhammad Murad, معدد مراد

Beginning with a panegyric on his patron, Himmat Khān, to whose literary assemblies he was admitted, the poet relates how in one of these Himmat Khān had read the touching tale of Kāmrūp, written by himself in prose, and had desired him to put it into verse. Himmat Khān, we are further told, died shortly after, and the author found some solace in composing the present poem as a monument to his memory. The date of its completion, A.H. 1096, is expressed by this chronogram at the end:

The name of the heroine is inverted for the convenience of the metre to . W.J.

Mir 'Isā, son of Islām Khān Badakhshī, received the title of Himmat Khān in the first year of Aurangzīb, with whom he was a great favourite, and was raised in the 24th year to the post of Mīr Bakhshī. He died in Ajmīr, A.H. 1092. Himmat Khān was passionately fond of Persian and Hindī poetry, and used the poetical surname of Mīran. See Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 577 a, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 106.

The Dastūr i Himmat is ascribed to Himmat Khān himself by Garcin de Tassy, Littérature Hind., 2nd edition, vol. i. p. 213.

Add. 7812.

Foll. 255; 93 in. by 51; 17 lines, 33 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

ديوان واعظ

The Divan of Vaiz.

Beg. اى نام دلكشاي تو عنوان كارها

خاك در تو آب رخ اعتبارها

Mirzā Rafi' ud-Din Muhammad B. Fath Ullalı Kazvīnī, poetically surnamed Vaiz, lived in Isfahan during the reigns of 'Abbās II. and Shāh Sulaimān, and is chiefly known as the author of Abvāb ul-Jinān, a vast collection of the traditional sayings of the Imams, the first volume of which has been printed in Teheran, A.H. 1374. Sarkhush, writing in A.H. 1093, speaks of him (fol. 137, and Oude Catalogue, p. 114) as still living; and it is stated in the Riyaz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 500, that he died in the early part of the reign of Sultan Husain, i.e. shortly after A.H. 1105. The date A.H. 1082 assigned to his death by Siraj, Oude Catalogue, p. 151, is not consistent with the fact that his Divan contains chronograms as late as A.H. 1088. See also Atashkadah, fol. 107, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 587.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Detached lines, fol. 166 b. Kasidahs, fol. 172 b, beginning:

> باد نوروزي دكر بيغام عشرت آور است یا جہان پیر را باد جوانی در سر است

This last section contains pieces in praise of Muhammad and each of the twelve Imams, of 'Abbas II. and Shah Sulaiman, and a Ta'ziyah on the martyrdom of Husain. In one of these, fol. 215 a, the author begs the Shah to be excused from accepting an office conferred upon him at Court, and says that, after spending nearly fifty years in anxious cares, he wished to pass the rest of his life in retirement.

Rubā'is on moral and religious subjects, fol. 217 b. Chronograms relating to private or public events, with dates ranging from A.H. 1030 to 1088, fol. 229 b. Three short Masnavis, fol. 248 b.

See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1517.

Add. 7810.

long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1132 (A.D. 1720). Cl. J. RICH.

ديوان شوكت

The Divan of Shaukat.

الَهِي رنك تاثيري كرامت كن فغانم را .Beg. بموم اشك بلبل آب ده تيغ زبانم را

Khwājah Shaukat, of Bukhārā, went to Herat in A.H. 1088, and entered the service of the Beglerbegi of the province, Safi Kuli Khān Shāmlū. He afterwards repaired to Mashhad, where he was well received by Mīrzā Sa'd ul-Dīn Muḥammad, Vazīr of Khorāsān, and ultimately settled in Isfahan, where he spent his latter years as a religious mendicant, and died, according to Hazin, fol. 28, A.H. 1107. See Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 250, Sarkhush, fol. 73, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 568.

Contents: Ghazals and Mukatta'at, arranged in alphabetical order, according to the rhyme and to the initial letter of each piece, fol. 1 b. Rubā'īs, the last of which gives a chronogram for A.H. 1093, the date of the collection of the Divan, fol. 153 b. Kasidahs, mostly in praise of Imam Riza, and of the above-named Sa'd ud-Din, fol. 156 b.

See Krafft's Catalogue, p. 69, and Ouseley's Collection, No. 85.

Copyist: مراد خاری

Or. 290.

Foll. 209;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 19th century. From the royal library of Lucknow. [GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same Divan.

Or. 347.

Foll. 79;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. Foll. 176; 10½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 8¼ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Zulhijjah, the fourth year of Ahmad Shāh (A.D. 1751), A.H. 1164. From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

مهر و ماه

The story of two Indian lovers, Manohar and Madhumālat, a Masnavī.

Author: Razi, رازي

خداوندا غم خود ده دلم را Beg. زعشق اسان نها هرمشکلم را

Mir 'Askari, who came of a family of Sayyids settled in Khwaf, Khorasan, but was born in India, took the poetical surname of Rāzī from his spiritual instructor Shaikh Burhān ud-Din Rāz i Hāhi. Ho was an early follower and favourite companion of Prince Aurangzib, who on his accession bestowed upon him the title of 'Akil Khan. In the 24th year of the reign (A.H. 1091-2) he was appointed governor of the province of Dehli, and discharged that office till his death. He died at the age of eighty-two, in the month of Rabi' II., A.H. 1108. 'Akil Khān left a Divan, and several Masnavis composed in his youth, which are mentioned in the Hamishah Bahar, Oude Catalogue, p. 123. He is also the author of the Zafarnamah i 'Alamgiri, a copy of which, wrongly ascribed to Amir Khan, has been described above, p. 265 a.

See Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 235, Sar-khush, fol. 48, Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, fol. 135, Ma'āşir ul-Umarā, fol. 387, Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 69, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 192, Ouseley's Notices, p. 167, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 543.

The present poem was composed, as stated in the conclusion, A.H. 1065. In the prologue the author sings the praises of his spiritual guide, Shāh Burhān ud-Dīn, and states that he had substituted in his version Mihr and Māh for the original names of the lovers.

The Mihr u Māh has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1846.

Or. 315.

Foll. 143;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, early in the 18th century.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان ناصر على

The Dîvân of Naşir 'Ali.

الهی ذرهٔ دردم بجان ریز Beg. شرر در پنبهزار استخوان ریز

This poet, who uses sometimes Nasir 'Ali, but mostly 'Ali, as his takhallus, was born, and spent a great part of his life, in Sirhind. Two Amirs of the reign of Aurangzib, Saif Khān Badakhshi, governor of Sirhind, and the Amir ul-Umara Zulfakar Khan, are mentioned as his patrons. He led the life of a devotee, and was as eminent in Sufism as in poetry. After travelling through many parts of Hindustan and the Decean, he took his abode in Dehli, where he stayed until his death. Sarkhush, who lived in his intimacy, and collected his Divan, states, fol. 88, that he died on the 6th of Ramazan, A.H. 1108, a date adopted by all later writers, but adds a chronogram of his own composition 3 بعالم معنى رفت, which gives A.H. 1109. See Mir'at ul-Khayāl, fol. 160, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 313, Tärikh i Muhammadi, fol. 235, Khulāsat ul-Afkār, fol. 197, Naghmah i 'Andalib, fol. 126, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 126, 151, and 329.

Contents: A religious poem called Maşnavi, divided into two Daftars, fol. 2 b. It contains in the prologue a culogy on Aurangzib, and, further on, fol. 48, a reference to the author's age, which was then fifty-two. It breaks off on fol. 53, and is followed by a few short Maşnavis. See the catalogues of Leyden, vol. ii. p. 107, and of Gotha, p. 80. Kasidahs in praise of Muḥammad, of the Indian saint Abu 'Alī Ķalandar, and of the author's patron, Saif Khān (Badakhshī), fol. 59  $\alpha$ .

کداخت بسکه هوائی تهوز مغز جبال . Beg. شرر ز سنك برآید بصورت تیخال

Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 67 a.

محبت جادهٔ داره نهان در خلوت دلها . چو تار سبحه کم کردید این ره زیر منزلها

Rubā'is with a few Kit'ahs, also in alphabetical order, fol. 118 b.

The Dīvān of Nāṣir 'Alī has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1844, and A.H. 1281.

Or. 352.

Foll. 61; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Benares, the 44th year of Aurangzīb, i.e. A.H. 1111—1112 (A.D. 1700).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

Maşnavīs by Nāşir 'Alī.

خدایا روزیم کن سوز دردی Beg. که در یابم خزان و رنك زردی

The first contains a description of Kashmīr. The longest, fol. 17—61, is a portion of the Maṣnavī above described, corresponding to Or. 315, foll. 3 b—32 a.

The margins of foll. 2—10 contain the first part of a Maşnavī on the love-story of Prince Manohar كنور منوهر and Princess Madhūmālat مدهومالت.

بتونيق خداوند خرد بخش Beg. طفيل حضرت والا اعظم

The tale is stated to have been taken from a Hindu poem written by Shaikh Jamman.

هزاران آفرین بر شیخ جمن بشعر هندوی بوده است پر فن

Add. 25,827.

Foll. 112;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in plain Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]

The Dīvān of Nāṣir 'Alī, containing Ghazals, Ķiṭ'ahs and Fardiyyāt in one alphabetical series.

ای عینك فروغ جمالت حجابها ایینه دار پرتو حسنت نقابها

Or. 301.

Foll. 64; 83 in. by 6; 15 lines, 31 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 19th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان غنيمت

The Divan of Ghanimat.

ای سایه ٔ سحاب عطائی تو کشت ها .Beg. کردی ز کوچه ٔ تو هوای بهشت ها

Muhammad Akram, poetically styled Glianīmat, a native of Ganjāh, or, according to others, of Kusūr, Panjāb, was a Sufi of the Kādirī order, and a pupil of the poet Muhammad Zamān Rāsikh, of Lahore, who died A.H. 1107. He was some time attached to Mukarram Khān (Mīr Muhammad Ishāk), who filled the post of Nazim of Lahore from the 39th to the 41st year of Aurangzib (A.H. 1106-8; see Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 94). Ghanimat left, besides his Divan, a Masnavi composed A.H. 1096, and entitled Nairang i 'Ishk, or Shahid u 'Azīz, which is very popular in India, and has been lithographed in Lucknow about A.H. 1263. See Sarkhush, fol. 97, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 322, Tazkirah i Ḥusaini, fol. 95, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 146, Naghmah i 'Andalīb, fol. 133, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 127, 410.

The Divān consists only of Ghazals, in alphabetical order.

Add. 7779.

Foll. 192;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{1}{6}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, about the close of the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان عظيم

The Divan of 'Azim.

'Azīm or 'Azīmā, of Nīshāpūr, who has been mentioned, p. 690 a, as the brother of Faujī, lived in Khorasan, and died, according to the Mir'āt us-Ṣafā, fol. 223, A.H. 1110, or, as stated in Naghmah i 'Andalīb, fol. 124, A.H. 1111. The statement of the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, that 'Azīm was appointed Divān of Lahore by Shāhjahān rests on a confusion. Sarkhush, the poet's contemporary, asserts distinctly that he never came to India (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 113), nor is there in his Dīvān any trace of a residence in that country.

The laudatory poems are addressed to Shāh Sulaimān (A.H. 1077—1105), and to two Amīrs who resided at Nīshāpūr, viz. Bairām 'Alī Khān, who died in A.H. 1071 (see fol. 140 a), and his son Muḥammad Ibrāhīm. The dates of various chronograms contained in the Dīvān range from A.H. 1055 (fol. 140 a) to A.H. 1082 (fol. 190 b). Compare the Oude Catalogue, p. 358.

The contents are as follows:

Fol. 1 b. نوز عظیم, a Masnavi treating of the creation of the world and the nature of man.

'Azīm wrote it in Kandahār (see fol. 82 b), some time after the death of his father Kaidī, in A.H. 1064 (see fol. 91 a). The prologue contains eulogies on the Shāh ('Abbās II.), on Mīrzā Sa'd ud-Dīn Muḥammad, Vazīr of Khorasan, and on Ṣafī Kulī Khān (son of Zulfaķār Khān, governor of Kandahār), Beglerbeg of that province (see foll. 54 a, 55 b).

Fol. 99 b. Kasidahs and Tarkib-bands, mostly in praise of the Imams.

Fol. 137 a. Kit'ahs and Tarikhs.

Fol. 142 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order.

Fol. 190 b. Marşiyalı on Mîr Abul-Ḥasan, and a few Rubā'is.

Or. 334.

Foll. 242; 10 in. by 6; 21 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Naskhi in two columns, about the close of the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

جہان نامہ

A versified sketch of general and Indian history, in the metre of the Shahnamah.

Author: Fanā'ī, فذكي Beg. بنام جهاندار جان بخش و هرش

نوازنده ع جسم با چشم و کوش

This is the first volume جاد ارل only of an extensive work, which, according to the prologue, was intended to comprise the history of the prophets and of the ancient kings of Kashmir, Kābul, Sind, Bengal, the Decean, Ujjain, and Hindustan. The author, who is not otherwise known, begins with culogies on his spiritual guide, Shaikh Lukmān B. Shaikh 'Uşmān Khalīl Sulaimānī, and on the reigning sovereign, Anrangzīb. As he refers incidentally to the conquest of Bijāpūr and Golconda by the latter, he must have written after A.H. 1099.

The present volume contains an account of the creation of the world, of the prophets from Adam to Lukmān, and of the early kings of Persia.

Or. 1217.

Foll. 434;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated A.H. 1532 (for 1132, A.D. 1720).

[ALEX. JABA]

مسلك المتقين

A versified treatise comprising an introduction on the creed, and four books treating of the laws of purification, prayer, legal alms and fasting, according to the Ḥanafī school.

The author, whose name does not appear, was originally, according to his own statement, an illiterate Uzbak in the king's service, but had been enlightened, and affiliated to the Nakshabandī order, by Shaikh Naurūz. He completed the first book in A.H. 1111, and the second A.H. 1112. In his conclusion he adds that he was postponing the composition of a fifth book on pilgrimage until he had himself performed that sacred rite, but that he was yet prevented by the prevailing state of impiety and lawlessness from carrying that design into execution.

In a lithographed edition of this work, printed in Lucknow A.H. 1290, the author is called in the subscription Ṣūfī Ilahyār Khān, صونى الديار خان.

Or. 311.

Foll. 192; 9 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, in the 18th century.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان مخفي

The Divan of Makhfi.

ای زابر رحمتت خرم کل بستان ما Beg. کفتکوی حرف عشقت مطلع دیوان ما

Makhfī is the poetical surname of Zīb un<sup>2</sup>-Nisā Begam, the eldest child of Aurangzīb, a princess celebrated for her high literary attainments and her liberal patronage of men of learning. She was born A.H. 1048, and died in Dehli on the 10th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1114. See Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 237, Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 444, Maāṣir 'Alamgīrī, pp. 462, 539, Gul i Ra'nā, fol. 79, Naghmah 'Andalīb, fol. 89, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 480.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Tarji'- and Tarkib-bands, fol. 149 b. Kaşidahs, fol. 174 b. Mukhammasāt, fol. 189 a.

The Divan of Makhfi has been lithographed in Cawnpore, A.H. 1268, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1284.

Add. 25,826.

Foll. 136;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, in the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]

The same Divan.

The first page bears the name of Turner Macan.

Add. 16,790.

Foll. 102;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India; dated Jumādā I., A.H. 1219 (A.D. 1804).

ديوان عالي

The Divan of Ni'mat Khan 'Ali.

تمامی یابد از مصراع بسم الله دیاوانها .Bcg. ببین کنرمد این ابروست زیب روی عنوانها

Ni'mat Khān 'Alī, who has been already mentioned, pp. 268 b and 272 a, was the son of Ḥakīm Fath ud-Dīn Shīrāzī. He is stated in the Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 245, to have died in Dehli, on the first of Rabī' I., A.H. 1122. Notices on his life are to be found in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 316, the Tazkirah i Ḥusainī, fol. 92, and Naghmah i 'Andalīb, fol. 128.

This copy contains only Ghazals, in alphabetical order.

A Divan, including also Kit'ahs, chronograms, and riddles, is described under the title of خوان نعمت in the Oude Catalogue, p. 328. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 74, the Ouseley Collection, No. 257, and Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1374.

Or. 317.

Foll. 203; 7½ in. by 3¾; 9 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Shāhjahānābād, Sha'bān, A.H. 1247 (A.D. 1832). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The Divan of Ni'mat Khan 'Ali, containing Ghazals in alphabetical order, but differing from the preceding copy in contents and arrangement.

بیا ای خامه بسم الله سرکن راه مطاب را Beg. برار از دامن حرف افتاب از نقطه کوکب را Copyist: نوازش حسن

Add. 16,789.

Foll. 121; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [Wm. Yule.]

Two compositions of the same Ni'mat Khān 'Alī, viz.:

I. Fol. 1 b. A Maşnavī, containing moral tales and apologues.

حمد و شکر اورا که هرچه هست از اوست دام هستی حلقه دار از های اوست

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 329.

The author's Kulliyāt are described in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 74.

II. Fol. 108 b. حسن و عشق, "Beauty and Love," a tale in mixed prose and verse.

حدیث عشق شد زیب بیانم .Beg. چو شمع افتاد آتش در زبانم

It has been published in Lucknow, 1842, and 1873, and printed, with a commentary by Imāmbakhsh, in Dehli, 1844. See Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1621-2, and Zenker, vol. ii. p. 51.

Egerton 698.

Foll. 72; 9½ in. by 6½; 14 lines; written in Indian Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1218 (A.D. 1804). [Adam Clarke.]

The Masnavi mentioned in the preceding MS., art. I.

· Copyist: احمد ولد محمد صادق

Or. 344.

Foll. 24; 10 in. by 6; 11 lines, 3½ in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1200 (A.D. 1706). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

فيل نامه

Fil-Namah, also called مثنوى فيل.

بنام خدائی که بیل سخن Beg. روان کرد در عرصه کاه دهن

The author, who appears to have been a dependent of Jahandar Shah, describes a chase in the forest of Nanparah, Oude, in which that prince, then heir presumptive, had a victorious encounter with a formidable wild elephant. He designates himself in the following verse, fol. 20 b, by the name of Rahī, which may have been his takhallus, and, complaining of his evil star which had banished him from Court, begs to be taken into the royal service.

Jahandar Shah ascended the throne in Muharram A.H. 1124.

Egerton 686.

Foll. 376;  $13\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{2}$ ; 22 lines,  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in four columns in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

حمله حيدري

A poetical account of the life of Muḥammad and the first Khalifs, principally founded on the Ma'ārij un-Nubuvvat (see p. 149 a).

Author : Bāzil, باذل

Mīrzā Muḥammad Rafi', poetically surnamed Bāzil, and entitled Rafi' Khān, was the son of Mīrzā Mahmūd, who with his brother Muhammad Tāhir, afterwards Vazīr Khān, went from his native city, Mashhad, to India in the reign of Shāhjahān. Rafī', who was born in Dehli, was attached as Dīvān to the staff of Prince Mu'izz ud-Din, whose mother was a sister of his own, and subsequently obtained the post of governor of Gualiyar. Having lost the latter office after the death of Aurangzib, he retired to Dehli, where he died A.H. 1123 or 1124. The first date is given by Sirāj, Onde Catalogue, p. 150, and fixed by the chronogram جا مهر على بجنتش داد, quoted in the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara; the second is found in Mir'at us-Safa, fol. 222, and Tarikh i Muhammadī, fol. 246. See also Mir'āt Jahānnumā, fol. 324, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol.

137, Maāşir ul-Umarā, fol. 575, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 30, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 368.

Bazil did not live to complete his work, which is here finished by another hand. The original poem comes to an abrupt termination, fol. 315, shortly after the account of 'Uşmān's assassination. The continuator, who calls himself Najaf, states in the next-following lines that at that point the poet's hand was stayed by death. He adds that he had long entertained the thought of completing the work, when he became, A.H. 1135, the fortunate possessor of a poem written, long before Bāzil's time, by a Sayyid Abu Ṭālib in Isfahan, which contained the history of 'Alī from the point at which Bāzil had left off, and found that it tallied so well with the Hamlah, that, by adding it to the unfinished poem, he was able to produce a complete and uniform whole.

This continuation, which begins with 'Ali's accession to the Khilāfat, was apparently brought down to his death; but it breaks off in the present copy, a little before the end.

The present poem is quite distinct from a poetical history of 'Alī, which bears the same title, and has been twice lithographed in Persia, A.H. 1264 and 1270. This last was written in A.H. 1220 by Mullā Bamūn 'Alī written in A.H. 1220 by Mullā Bamūn 'Alī (Mūmin 'Alī ?) Kirmānī, poetically called Rājī, by order of the Shāhzādah Ibrāhīm Khān. See the Journal of the As. Soc. of Bengal, vol. 21, p. 535.

The Ḥamlah i Ḥaidarī of Bāzil has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1267.

The first page of the MS. bears the name and the Persian seal of General Carnac.

Egerton 1037.

Foll. 312;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 18 lines, 5 in. long; written in two columns, in a cursive Indian character, apparently in the 18th century.

The first half of the same work, corresponding to foll. 1—187 of the preceding copy.

Egerton 1038.

Foll. 134; 15 in. by 8\frac{3}{4}; 21 lines, 6 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, in four columns; dated Safar, A.H. 1207 (A.D. 1792).

The second half of the same poem, corresponding to foll. 187—315 of Egerton 686.

Copyist: محمد بي لطف على رضوى

Add. 25,806.

Foll. 360; 11½ in. by 6½; 23 lines, 4½ in. long; written in cursive Indian Shikastahāmiz, in four columns; dated Lucknow, Zulhijjah, A.H. 1206 (A.D. 1791).

[WM. CURETON.]

The same work, with a continuation by Azād, foll. 316—360, which contains the history of 'Alī from his accession to his death, and begins thus:

Azād, who has been mentioned p. 373 a, states in the prologue that, after completing his Dilkushā-Nāmah (see p. 719 b), he had been desired by Muḥammad Fakhr ud-Dīn Khān, a cousin of Bāzil, to complete the unfinished work of the latter.

میرزا محبوب علی از زمرد مسادات رضوی : Copyist نکنه

Add. 7809.

Foll. 99; 9 in. by 4½; 14 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and goldruled margins, in the 18th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

دستور العفاف

"The Model of the Chaste," a tale in Maşnavî rhyme.

VOL. II.

Author: Turāb, ترب

بنام آنکه ناتش بی نشانست بنام او زهر ذاتی نشانست

The author, who praises in the prologue the reigning sovereign, Shāh Sulṭān-Ḥusain, states that his purpose had been to write a strictly moral tale, fit to be read by old and young. The story, which is borrowed from the Kāfī of Kullīnī, records the trials, and eventual triumph, of a virtuous woman, exposed to the obsessions of a wicked Ķāzī, her husband's brother.

The title and date of composition, A.H. 1126, are stated in the following lines, fol. 98 b:

دبیر خامه اش چون کرد منظوم بدستور العفافش ساخت موسوم قلم چون کوهر تاریخ را سفت زیہر سال آن منظوم من کفت

The fly-leaf bears the title انضل التمشيات

Add. 16,795.

Foll. 168; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

ديوان عالي

The Divan of 'Ali.

کی شود دلتنك از غم هر که با دل اشناست .Beg. بی تکلف کوشه دل بوستان دلکشاست

Mīrzā Abul-Ma'ālī, poetically surnamed 'Alī, came of a noble family of Nīshāpūr, which traced its origin to Farīd ud-Dīn 'Aṭṭār. He was a Sufi and an eminent scholar, and lived at the court of Farrukhsiyar, from whom he received the title of Vizārat Khān. See Muṣḥafī, fol. 67, Hamīshah Bahār, Oude Catalogue, p. 126, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. i. p. 191.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, and Kiṭ'ahs, including chronograms, fol. 1 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 23 a. Rubā'is and Fardiyyāt, fol. 164 b.

The Divan contains some pieces addressed to Farrukhsiyar, and chronograms ranging from A.H. 1124 to 1127, and relating for the most part to births and marriages in the imperial family.

Or. 313.

Foll. 149;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, for Uzbak Khān, son of Ķipchāķ Khān; dated Multān, Zulķa'dāh, A.H. 1142, (A.D. 1730). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان منصف

The Divan of Munsif.

The poet gives his proper name, Fāzil Khān, in the following chronogram, fol. 146, relating to the building of his house in Lahore, A.H. 1117:

He appears to have been attached to the service of 'Abd uṣ-Ṣamad Khān Dilīr Jang, to whom several of his Ṣaṣīdahs are addressed, and to whose victory over the Sikhs, in A.H. 1127, he refers fol. 9 a. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 507.

'Abd uṣ-Ṣamad Khān distinguished himself under Farrukhsiyar by the capture of the Sikh chief Bandū, and was rewarded for his success with the Ṣūbahdārī of Lahore and Multān. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 72.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, fol. 2 b. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 14 b. Rubā'is similarly arranged, fol. 132 b.

Add. 25,822.

Foll. 166;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 17 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated from the camp of Nizām ul-Mulk Āṣafjāh, near the fort of Ausā (Owsa), Deccan Sha'bān, A.H. 1145 (A.D. 1733).

[WM. CURETON.]

انتخاب ديوان مرزا عبد القادر بيدل

Selection from the Divan of Bidil.

بهر جبین که بود سطری از کتاب حیا ، Beg. ز نقطه عرقم دارد انتخاب حیا

Mīrzā 'Abd ul-Ķādir, poetically surnamed Bidil, is by common consent the greatest Indian poet of the last century; but Persian critics find fault with him for his unidiomatic phraseology. He was of Turkish extraction, belonging to the Chaghatāi tribe of Arlāt, but was born in 'Azīmābād (Patna). He is described as a man of herculean strength and proud spirit. Having been attached in his youth to the service of Prince Muhammad A'zam Shāh, he chose to leave it rather than to prostitute his talent by lauding his patron, as he was required to do, and led henceforth a free and independent life, dwelling mostly in Dehli, where his house was the common resort of all lovers of poetry, and where he died in A.H. 1133 at the age of seventy-ninc. His collected works are said to amount to more than a hundred thousand lines.

Notices on Bīdil are found in Mir'āt ul-Khayāl, foll. 257—268, Sarkhush, fol. 19, Muṣḥafī, fol. 25, Ḥusainī, fol. 29, Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 253, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 83, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 35, Naghmah i 'Andalīb, fol. 50. Compare Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 378, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. i. p. 314.

A volume entitled کلیات بیدل, lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1287, comprises the Nikāt, Ruķaʿāt, Dīvān, and Chahār ʿUnṣur.

The present MS. contains Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 3 b, Rubā'is, similarly arranged, fol. 134 a, and Mukhammasāt, fol. 146 b.

Add. 7093.

Foll. 332:  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{3}{5}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rajab, the 4th year of the reign (of Farrukhsiyar = A.H. 1128, A.D. 1716).

عرفان

A poem treating of Sufi doctrines, by Mirzā Bīdil.

It is divided into numerous sections, each of which has a Masnavi distich for its rubric.

The author states at the end that the poem consists of eleven thousand lines, and gives the date of its completion, A.H. 1124, in the following chronogram:

Copvist : الله بخش

On the first page is a note stating that the MS. had been bought in A.H. 1159 by Mīrzā Muḥammad, son of Mu'tamad Khān; also the Persian seal of Archibald Swinton, with the date 1174.

Add. 7094.

Foll. 167; 9½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated A.H. 1135, the fourth year of Muhammad Shāh (A.D. 1719).

رياض المعارف

The "Gardens of Insight," a Maşnavî containing precepts on spiritual life, illustrated by anecdotes of the patriarchs and some celebrated saints.

Author: Maulavī 'Alī Aṣghar B. 'Abd uṣ-Ṣamad, مولوي على اصغر بن عبد الصمد

The above title and author's name are found in the subscription. From the following words, which are appended to the latter, it would appear that 'Alī Aṣghar was alive at the date of transcription, and that the transcriber, who calls himself فقع على بن قاضى محمد مرتضى, was one of his disciples.

Add. 5635.

Foll. 109; 8 in. by 4\frac{3}{4}; 15 lines, 2\frac{7}{4} in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, in the 18th century. [Nath. B. Halhed.]

The Divan of Kasim Divanah.

Mullä Käsim, a native of Mashhad, studied in Isfahan, and became a pupil of Mīrzā Ṣā'ib. He subsequently went to India, where he was apparently still living in A.H. 1136. See the Hamīshah Bahār, Oude Catalogue, p. 128, Sarkhush, fol. 107, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 372, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 152, Ḥusainī, fol. 108, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 533.

His nickname Divanah, or madman, was probably due to the use he made of that word in the first line of one of his Ghazals:

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. A Maşnavī, fol. 105 b. Rubā'is, fol. 108 a.

Copyist: شيخ احمد N N 2 Add. 25,805.

Foll. 172; 12 in. by  $8\frac{1}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in a cursive Indian hand in four columns, in the 18th century; much damaged by fire in 1865. [WM. CURETON.]

صولت صفدري

A poem on the life and warlike deeds of 'Alī.

Author: Hikmat,

بنام خدا خالق مرتضی .Beg ستاینده موجد ما سوی

The author, whose proper name was Muhibb 'Alī Khān, wrote this poem, as he states in the prologue, in order to complete the unfinished Ḥamlah i Ḥaidarī (see p. 704 a). He was evidently a Shī'ah of the most rabid stamp, and never mentions Abu Bakr or 'Umar without calling them hog, dog, or similar names.

A passage of the conclusion, in which A.H. 1143 was given as the date of composition, is now lost.

Add. 7808.

Foll. 201;  $10\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A poem on the history of Fāṭimah, according to Shi'ah tradition, by the same Ḥikmat, with a continuation.

بذام خداوند عرش عظیم نکارنده م لوم امید و بیم

Hikmat, who commenced this poem, as stated in the prologue, after completing the Saulat i Safdari, left it unfinished.

The continuation, entitled فرح نامعه فاطمى, foll. 38 b-201 a, is by Ḥāzik, who in the prose preface prefixed to the first part calls himself محمد بن المدعو بكاظم الطبيب

المخاطب من جناب السلطان بحاذق الملك

خدا را چه نام است نام خدا که مدرآت دل یافته زو جلا

Hāziķ states that he was a native of Shūshtar, fol. 194, that he had previously written a history of prophets and saints, fol. 188 a, and that he was upwards of seventy years of age when he composed the present poem, fol. 194, which he completed in the space of four months, while performing a toilsome and a dangerous journey.

On the first page is written, by a later hand, the following title, which does not appear in the text:

كتاب زبدة المدايج من نتيجة افكار محب عليخان راهب تخلص وحاذق تخلص كبراء الهند

Add. 25,831.

Foll. 48;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 6 lines in a page; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

طريم القناقيع

A collection of detached distichs describing the charms of the female breast.

Author: Allah Virdī Khān Fayyāz, الله ورد يخان فياض

دو پستانش دو سرکش ماه روها دو معشوقان بسر پیچیده موها

The author states in a short preface that he wrote these verses in the space of a week, at the request of a Darvish called Shaukmast, who had accosted him while he was fishing on the river's bank. The date of composition, A.H. 1144, is expressed in a versified chronogram by the words زهي سامان عشرت

Add. 19,620.

Foll. 100;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century. [Samuel Lee.]

ديوان مخلص

The Divan of Mukhlis.

Mīrzā Muḥammad, poetically styled Mukhliş, was called from his native place, Mashhad, to Isfahan in the reign of Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain by I'timād ud-Daulah Mūmin Khān. Ḥazīn, who was acquainted with him, states, fol. 33, that he died in that city, about sixty years of age.

Several pieces of the present Divan are quoted in the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 444. See also Mir'at Aftabnuma, fol. 154, Naghmah 'Andalib, fol. 167, and Oude Catalogue, pp. 128, 138.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order. Kit'ahs, similarly arranged, fol. S1 b.

Add. 22,704.

Foll. 96; 84 in. by 5; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shavval, A.H. 1234 (A.D. 1819).

[SIR JOHN CAMPBELL.]

جنات الوصال

The second part, جنت ثانى, of a religious poem, entitled "Gardens of Union," treating of ascetic life.

The author, whose name does not appear, was a wandering Darvish of the Ni'matullahi order. He refers incidentally, fol. 32 a, to a journey he took from Isfahan to Kirman to visit the tomb of the holy founder of the order in Māhān (see p. 634 b), and to a disturbance in which his fellow traveller Mushtāk lost his life. The prologue contains a long panegyric on Aḥmad Pāshā, who wielded an almost independent power in Baghdād from A.H. 1135 to 1159. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 433.

Or. 281.

Foll. 149; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 12 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Skikastah-\text{\text{\text{a}miz}}, about A.H. 1151 (A.D. 1738). From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان ثابت

The Divan of Sabit.

Mir Muḥammad Afzal, poetically styled Şābit, was the nephew of Himmat Khān (Mir 'Isā), of Badakhshān, who was Mīr Bakhshī under Aurangzīb, and died A.H. 1092 (see p. 697 b). Şābit, who was a Sayyid of great learning and piety, died in Dehli, his native place, on the 13th of Rabī' I., A.H. 1151. See Tārīkh Muḥammadī, fol. 289, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 187, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 95, Atashkadah, fol. 173, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 578.

Contents: Kasidahs, mostly in praise of the Imāms, fol. 2 b. Masnavīs, including Marsiyahs on the martyrs of Karbalā, fol. 57 b. A second series of Kasīdahs, addressed for the most part to contemporaries, fol. 88 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 96 b. Rubā'is, fol. 141 b. Kiṭ'ahs, fol. 143 a. Mukhammasāt, fol. 145 a.

The first of the above sections includes a long Kaṣīdah entitled برهاب ثاقب, foll. 21—39, in which the poet retorts on his critics. The Dīvān was collected, after Ṣābit's death, by his pupil, Band i 'Alī who writes at the end: آبچه مسودات حضرت مير و مرشد بير افضل الدين محمد ثابت قدس الله سرة العزيز بدست آمدند غلام ازلى بند على فراهم آوردة استكتاب بدست آمدند غلام ازلى بند على فراهم آوردة استكتاب كنانيدة واين نسخه متبركه را تواضع فضيلت و كمالات دستكاة مخدوم مهربان مولوي محمد پناة صلهه الله نمود

Or. 274.

Foll. 279; 9 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3¼ in.

long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and ruled columns; dated Rabī' I., the 19th year of Muḥammad Shāh, A.H. 1147 (A.D. 1734).

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان آفرين

The Divan of Afarin.

خداوندا نکین کن دور برم قدس نامم را .Beg. چو سطر آه عاشق سوز مضمون ده کلامم را

Shāh Fakīr Ullah Afarīn, a Sufi and poet, was born in Lahore, and died there, A.H. 1154. Vālih, who met him in his native city, A.H. 1147, was much struck with his genius, and says that, had he only been born in Persia, he would have been the greatest poet of the age. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 61, Muṣhafī, fol. 11, Tārīkh Muḥammadī, fol. 294, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 150, 154, and 317.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 3 b. Mukhammasāt, fol. 256 a. Rubā'is, fol. 266 a. Kaṣīdahs in praise of Muhammad, and a Tarjī-band on the martyrdom of Hasan and Husain, fol. 267 b.

Or. 348.

Foll. 103; 9 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik for Col. Geo. Wm. Hamilton, then Commissioner of Multan; dated Kalāchūr, Rabī I., A.H. 1277 (A.D. 1860).

هير و رانجهن

"Hīr and Rānjhan," the tale of two Panjābī lovers, a Maşnavī by the same poet.

بنام جمن ساز ناز و نیاز Beg. که خارنیازش بود سرو ناز

شوق محمد ساكن قصبه جلاليور هندال : Copyist

In the subscription the title is written رقصهٔ هیر و رامجها از تصنیف آفرین مسمی بناز و نیاز but in the text the heroine's name is invariably written رانجهن. Azād found Afarīn engaged in composing this poem in A.H. 1143. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 317. A prose version of the same tale is found in Or. 1244. A Hindustani version, Ķissah Rānjhā Hīr, by Maķbūl, has been translated by Garcin de Tassy, Revue de l'Orient, 1857.

Add. 18,545.

Foll. 235; 9 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, in a page; written in fair Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Jumādā I., A.H. 1162 (A.D. 1749).

[H. STEINSCHUSS.]

ثمرة الفواد ونيتجة الوداد

A Maşnavī on love and anecdotes of lovers, with a prose preface.

Author: Muḥammad, known as Kāsim, poetically surnamed Zarāfat, محمد الشهير بقاسم المتخلص بظرانت

Beg. of the Preface: الحمد لله الددى برحمته الف بين القلوب Beg. of the Poem:

بنام آنکه نامش الفت آموخت رخ عصیان زجام رحمت افروخت

The author, who lived at Lahore, says repeatedly that he had never made a study of prosody, nor written any verses before.

The poem, which is said to consist of 6268 lines, and in which are inserted extracts from various works, Persian and Arabic, is divided into two Daftars, the first of which was completed A.H. 1146, and the second, fol. 203 b, A.H. 1149. An appendix, in which the poet describes a happy meeting with his beloved, is dated A.H. 1156.

This copy contains numerous marginal additions.

Egerton 1036.

Foll. 207;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 5; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, in two columns, dated Zulka'dah, the 7th year of 'Alamgir II. (A.H. 1173, A.D. 1760).

فلك اعظم

The love-story of Kāmrūp and Kāmlatā, a Maşnavī.

Author: Anjab, الجِب

ای زلال هوس تشنه لبان Beg. آرزومند تو صاحب طلبان

Badī' ul-'Aṣr, commonly called Ḥājī Rabī', poetically styled Anjab, gave himself out for a native of Andalus (Spain). He came in his childhood to Isfahan, where he spent thirty years, and became a pupil of Murtaza Kuli Beg Zanknah, surnamed Valai Isfahani. After long travels he settled in Dehli, where he died, it is said, upwards of a hundred years old. He was a most prolific poet; Mushafi, who saw him some months before his death, mentions, among his works, an imitation of the Khamsah of Nizāmī, a Dīvān of sixty thousand verses, an extensive work on Imami tenets, a tale of the four Darvishes in prese, and a metrical translation of the eighteen Parvas of the Mahabharat; see Ikd Surayya, Add. 16,727, fol. 4 a. Compare Hamishah Bahar, Oude Catalogue, p. 118.

Murtazā Kulī Beg, surnamed Vālā, a native of Persia, was attached to the service of Sarbuland Khān, and went, after the death of that Amīr, to Bengal, where he died. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 500.

The prologue contains a culogy on Muhammad Shāh, and upon a Khān, called Maḥmūd, who had sent for the author, then living in seclusion, and requested him to put the above story into verse. The poem was completed, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1157.

Or. 304.

Foll. 249; 9\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Shikastah, dated Rajab, A.H. 1159 (A.D. 1746). From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان اميد

شود کشاده دل از غم بسینه و دلکیر Beg. اگر شکفته کسی دید غنچه تصویر

Mīrzā Muḥammad Rizā, afterwards Ķizilbāsh Khān, poetically surnamed Ummīd, was a native of Hamadān and a skilled musician. Mīrzā Ṭāhir Vaḥīd, and afterwards Mīr Najāt, were his instructors in poetry. Having gone to India in the reign of Bahādur Shāh, he attached himself to the service of Nizām ul-Mulk Āṣafjāh. He died in Dehli on the 9th of Jumāda I., A.H. 1159. See Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 305, Muṣḥafī, fol. 8, Naghmah 'Andalīb, fol. 43, the Oude Catalogue, pp. 153, 300, 581, and G. de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. iii., p. 250.

Contents: Kasidahs in praise of Muḥammad and 'Alī, of Muḥammad Shāh, Zulfakār Khān, and others, fol. 2 b. Muķaṭṭa'āt, the first of which is addressed to Farrukhsiyar, fol. 11 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 16 b. Mukhammasāt, fol. 239 a. Mufradāt, alphabetically arranged, fol. 241 a. Rubā'is, fol. 246 a.

opyist: مير محمد سميع المشهدى

Or. 345.

Foll. 91; 6½ in. by 3¾; 12 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

نیاز و ناز

The love-tale of Prince Niyaz and Princess Naz, a Sufi allegory in Maşnavi rhyme.

Author: Azad, si; 1

الهى دل بعشقت مايلم كن دو عالم شوق تحويل دلم كن

The prologue contains a eulogy on a holy Sayyid, Mir Abu 'l-Vafa, by whose desire the poem was written. The author's name occurs in the first line of the epilogue, fol. 91 a:

بیا آزاد ترك این و آن كن سر آمد قصه ختم داستان كن

as well as in some other passages; see foll.  $22 \ b$ ,  $50 \ a$ ,  $85 \ a$ .

The title, which is found in the epilogue, fol. 91 b, is often repeated in the same form, "Niyāz u Nāz," apparently intended to distinguish it from the well-known poem "Nāz u Niyāz" of Zamīrī, a poet of the reign of Shāh Ṭahmāsp.

نیاز و ناز نامش ساز کردم

A poet called Āzād, whose proper name was Mīrzā Arjumand, is mentioned by Sirāj, and the author of Hamīshah Bahār, Oude Catalogue, pp. 154, 117. He was the son of 'Abd ul-Ghanī Beg Kabūl, of Kashmīr, who died A.H. 1139, ib. p. 151. But there is nothing to show whether the present poem should be ascribed to him, to an earlier Āzād, a native of Yazd, who died, according to Mir'āt Jahānnumā, fol. 296, A.H. 950, or to some other poet of the same name.

Or. 272.

Foll. 125;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, probably about the close of the 18th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان اطمينان

The Divan of Itminan.

نام خسرو گشت تا بسم الله عنوان ما .Beg نور معنی جلوه کرد از مطلع دیوان ما

This Dīvān, which consists entirely of Ghazals, contains several imitations of earlier poets, especially of Amīr Khusrau. The latest of these appears to be Hilālī, who died A.H. 939 (p. 656 a). No record has been found of the author.

Or. 270.

Foll. 69;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان حسرت

The Divan of Hasrat.

اکر بعرض دهم دستکاه مستی ها Beg. اکر بعرض دهم دستکاه مستی ها

The proper name of the author, who designates himself alternately by the poetical surnames Hasrat and Ashraf, has not been ascertained. It appears from various chronograms contained in his Dīvān that he lived in India in the time of Muhammad Shāh, and was a dependent of 'Azamat Ullah Khān. He records victories gained by that Amīr over the Rohillas and the Jāts in A.H. 1134, and his death in A.H. 1146. Later chronograms, which extend to A.H. 1158, relate to the rout of the army of Barhah by Mu'in ud-Din Muhammad Khan, A.H. 1150, and to some incidents in the life of Farid ud-Din Khān, who was apparently the author's last patron.

Contents: A Kasidah in praise of Muhammad, fol. 3 b. A Masnavi containing anecdotes of celebrated Sufis, imperfect, fol. 5 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 10 a, beginning:

ای مایل در تو زهر سو نیازها دیر و حرم ز شوق تو لبریز رازها Kit'ahs, fol. 59 a. Rubā'is, fol. 62 a.

Or. 247.

Foll. 367;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, dated Shāhjahānābād, A.H. 1166 (A.D. 1753).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

حقائق المعارف

A Sufi poem, in Maşnavî rhyme.

Author: Shaikh Sa'd ud-Din Ahmad, surnamed Divanah, poetically styled Kuddusi, شيخ سعد الدين احمد المعروف بديوانه المتخلص بقدوسي

نور الله تعالى كلام العاشقين بنور جماله

It treats of mystic love and contemplation, in the form of comments on Arabic texts taken from the Kur'ān and the Ḥadīş, which are inserted as headings.

The author, who uses Kuddūsī, and sometimes Kudsī, as his takhallus, appears from the appended letters mentioned below to have been consulted by the 'Ulamā of Balkh as a great authority on Sufi doctrines. He is designated there as the author of عيى الايمان and other religious works. It is stated in the Arabic subscription, fol. 320 a, that he gave out the present work as one of the writings of Shaikh Kuddūsī ul-Munavvarī, جعل تصنيفه مي

The following short pieces are subjoined:—
Letter of Kāzī Fuzail to the author, dated Balkh, A.H. 1166, with four questions on points of Sufi doctrine, and the answer, in two drafts, foll. 322 b, and 351 b. A letter in verse to Miyān Muḥammad 'Umar Pashāvarī, and other poetical pieces on Sufi subjects, by the author, fol. 328 b. A letter of the Kāzīs and Muftīs of Balkh to the author, relating to some unguarded utterances of great Sufis, with the answer, fol. 335 b. Some Ghazals by Kuddūsī, in alphabetical order, fol. 342 b.

طبیب عشق دوای جمال داد مرا بعین تشنه لبانی زلال داد مرا Masnavīs by the same, fol. 359 a.

Or. 276.

Foll. 308; 11½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with goldruled margins; dated Dehli, A.H. 1157 (A.D. 1744). From the royal library of Lucknow. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان اكسير

The Divan of Iksir, in the author's handwriting.

The poet, whose proper name is written in the subscription Muḥammad 'Azīm B. Muḥammad Ja'far, and who was better known as Mirzā 'Azīmāi Iksīr, has been already mentioned p. 376 a. See also Muṣhafī, fol. 14, Anīs, fol. 9, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 435.

Contents: Ghazals, fol. 2 b, and Rubā'is, fol. 291 a, both alphabetically arranged.

Add. 18,583.

Foll. 197;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and five miniatures in Indian style; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1161 (A.D. 1748). [ADAM CLARKE.]

شاهد و مشهود

"Shāhid and Mashhūd," a love-story, by Iksīr, in the same handwriting.

The author says in the prologue that he had learnt the story, which is here put into verse, from his younger brother Abul-Ḥasan, a learned and travelled man, who told him that it was a popular tale in Egypt.

Or. 296.

Foll. 171; 10 in. by 5½; 14 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 19th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان عشرت

The Divan of Ishrat.

کل برك کند رنك ثنای تو زبانرا Beg. کل جد تو بهار است کلستان بیانرا

The author, whose proper name is not stated, appears to have been a dependent of Shujā' ud-Daulah (the Nāzim of Oude, A.H. 1167—88). In a long Kaṣīdah addressed to the Navvāb and appealing to his liberality, he describes himself as a Hindu:

كرچه هندويم بود لبريز عشق او دلم

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 2 b. Kaṣīdah, fol. 165 b, beginning: كر بكويم عارض آنهاه مهر انور است

The same Dīvān is described in the Oude Catalogue, p. 442, where it is attributed to Mīrzā 'Alī Rizā 'Ishrat.

Or. 324.

Foll. 319; 10½ in. by 6; 13 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with three Unvans and gold-ruled margins, in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان موبد

The Divan of Mubad.

ای نه فلك از دست طلسمات تو بر یا . Beg.

From a preface written A.H. 1180 by the poet's son, Tikā Rām Zafar, we learn that Mūbad, originally called Zindah Rām Pandit, was a native of Kashmīr, and a pupil of Mīrzā Girāmī, son of 'Abd ul-Ghanī Beg Kabūl (see p. 712 a); that he had settled in Lucknow, where his two sons took service in the reign of Shāh 'Alam; that one of these, Sītā-Rām 'Umdah, died in A.H. 1173, and that his father did not long survive him.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs in praise of 'Alī, of Shāh 'Alam, Navvāb Madār ud-Daulah, and others, fol. 15 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 31 b, beginning:

كرد تا تعليم بسم الله پير دل مرا

Mukhammasāt, fol. 218 a. Chronograms relating to contemporary events in the reigns of 'Alamgīr II. and Shāh 'Alam, to the births and deaths of Amīrs, etc., with dates ranging from A.H. 1159 to 1174. Maṣnavīs, fol. 258 b. Rubā'is and Ķiṭ'ahs, fol. 278 a. Thirty Ghazals from Mūbad's first Dīvān, collected in Dehli, fol. 303 b. Appendix by the editor, fol. 315 b.

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 504.

Add. 7814.

Foll. 210;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

ديوان املا

The Divan of Imla.

الهی صبح محشر کن دلم را مقام عرش اکبر کن دلم را

Contents: Two Maşnavis, fol. 2 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 3 b, beginning:

بیادت عقل کل طفل نو آموز مکتبها باوصافت زبان کنك عبث کوی مشربها Rubā'īs, similarly arranged, fol. 194 a.

The last two leaves contain invocations to Shaikh Muhyi ud-Dîn 'Abd ul-Ķādir Jîlānī.

Or. 275.

Foll. 124; 8 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 13 lines, 2\frac{7}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins, probably in the 19th century.

[Geo. WM. Hamilton.]

ديوان افغان

The Divan of Afghan.

ای حسن فصاحت ز ثنای تو زبانرا Beg. ای حسن فصاحت ز ثنای تو بیان را صد کونه مباهات ز حمد تو بیان را

The author, probably the Afghān above mentioned, was originally called Imām 'Alī Khān. He was a Darvīsh living in Lucknow, and left, besides this Dīvān, a Maṣnavī composed A.H. 1174. See the Oude Catalogue, pp. 197, 318, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind. vol. i. 117.

The Divan contains Ghazals, Kit'ahs, and detached verses, in one alphabetical series, and a few Rubā'is at the end, fol. 121 a.

Add. 16,805.

Foll. 81; 6\frac{2}{4} in. by 4; 18 diagonal lines in a page, written in cursive Nestalik, in the latter half of the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

A record of the author's life, in Masnavi

Author : Gulshan, کلشن

ای رقم کرده همچو نقش نکین Beg. صورت حال ما بلوم جبین

The author, whose proper name does not appear, tells us that he was born in Jaunpur. He went as a young man to Dehli and entered as secretary the service of a youthful Amīr who had a taste for poetry, Band i 'Alī Khān, afterwards Shīr-afkan Khān, a son of Ghairat Khān. There he witnessed, some time later, the invasion of Nādir Shāh, and the sack of the capital. He speaks at some length of the poets with whom he became acquainted at Dehli, especially of Shaikh Ḥazīn (p. 372 b), and 'Alī Ķulī Khān Vālih (p. 371 a). Having attached himself to the latter, he stayed with him until the Khān's death, in A.H. 1169. After that event he returned home, but, finding no employment there, he repaired to Shamsābād, where he found a patron in Sayyid Basālat Jahān.

The above poem, which was written shortly after the author's arrival at Shamsābād, is followed by four shorter Maṣnavīs, foll. 63 a, 67 a, 70 a, and 73 a, the first in Hindustani, the other three in Persian, all relating to the author's new master, whose death in A.H. 1176 is recorded in the last. In the last but one, fol. 70 a, the author says that he was then past sixty.

Or. 322.

Foll. 446; 9\frac{1}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{4}; 14 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, with five 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins, about A.H. 1155 (A.D. 1742). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان شيخ على حزين

The Divan of Muhammad, known as 'Ali ul-Jilani Ḥazin, حجمد المشتهر بعلى الجيلاني حزين افتتاے نامہ ام آوران کیہاں خدیو سخن Beg.

Shaikh Muḥammad 'Alī Ḥazīn, who has been already mentioned, p. 372 b, died, according to the Tārīkh i Muḥammadī, fol. 317, in Benares, on the 13th of Jumāda I., A.H. 1180. He is considered in India as the greatest poet of his time, although his pungent satires had roused against him bitter animosities. Full notices on his life, with extracts from his poems, will be found in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, foll. 138—150, Muṣḥafī, foll. 32—37, Haft Asmān, foll. 161—4, Naghmah i 'Andalīb, foll. 65—70, and Ātashkadah, fol. 174. His collected works, including his memoirs and the Tazkirat ul-Mu'āṣirīn, have been lithographed, under the title of كليات عزين, in Lucknow, A.H. 1293.

See also the Oude Catalogue, p. 424, Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1413, the Münich Catalogue, p. 39, and the catalogue of King's College Library, No. 124.

The author states in a prose preface, fol. 3 b, that, after having previously published three Dīvāns, he had collected in a fourth, A.H. 1155, the remainder of his detached pieces. He adds that he was then past fifty years of age, and residing in India. The four Dīvāns contain, according to his account, about thirty thousand lines, and thousand one hundred and seventy pieces.

Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, mostly in praise of Muḥammad, and the Imāms, fol. 6 b, beginning: غير نفى غيرت يكتاي بى همتاستى

Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 62 b, beginning:

ای نام تو زینت زبانها حمد تو طراز داستانها

Fragments of Ghazals, متفرقات غزليات, also in alphabetical order, fol. 340 b. Rubā'is, similarly arranged, fol. 363 b. Mukaṭṭā'at (Lucknow edition, p. 903), fol. 389 b. A Maṣnavī called جس و الجمن (Lucknow edition, p. 823), fol. 406 b, beginning:

بنام آن که آذر را چمن ساخت

Abridgment of a Maşnavī called Kharābāt (ib. p. 839), fol. 417 b, beginning:

ثنا هاست پیر خرابات را

The prologue of Matmah ul-Anzār, another Maşnavī (ib. p. 863), fol. 432 b, beginning:

ای دل افسرده خروشت کجاست

Prologue and epilogue of a Maşnavî called Tazkirat ul-'Ashikîn !(ib. p. 889), fol. 437 b, beginning:

ساقی ز می موحدانه ظامت برشرك از میانه

Epilogue of the fourth Dīvān (ib. p. 1026), transcribed from the author's autograph, fol. 444 b, اين خاتمه را بقلم خود در آخر اين ديوان نوشته beginning:

هان ای دانش شکرفان دیده ور و ثررف نگاهان معنی پرور

Foll. 2 and 3 contain some lines of poetry in the handwriting of Ḥazīn, signed as follows:

نمقه الواثق بعروة الوثقى محمد المشتهر بعلى الجيلاني عفى عنه

Additional pieces, written here and there in the margins of the Dīvān, are due to the same hand.

Or. 356.

Foll. 222;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 9 lines, 4 in. long; written in large Nestalik, with 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, in the 18th century.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The Dîvan of the same 'Ali Ḥazīn.

غير نفي غيرت يكتاي بيهمتاستي Beg.

Contents: Ķasīdahs in praise of the Imāms and on various subjects, including Mukaţtaʿat and a Marşiyah on the death of Ḥusain, fol. 26. Chaman u Anjuman, fol. 161 b. Mukhtaṣar i Kharābāt, fol. 178 a. Dībājah i Tazkirat ul-ʿAshiķīn, fol. 201 a. Dībājah i Matmaḥ ul-Anzār, fol. 216 a.

In a prose preface prefixed to the above four Maşnavis, fol. 160, the author states that the original drafts had been scattered in various countries, and that he had now written what he describes as a sample of each, in order to comply with the desire of a noble friend in India.

Add. 18,890.

Foll. 300; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 18 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, probably early in the 19th century.

The Divan of Hazin, containing Kasidahs and Ghazals, fol. 61 b.

The alphabetical series, although breaking off in the letter, is richer than the corresponding section in the preceding copies.

Add. 5608.

Foll. 39; 12 in. by 73; 23 lines; written in cursive Shikastah-āmīz, about A.H. 1180 (A.D. 1767).

A poetical account, in Mașnavî rhyme, of the British wars in Bengal, from the first year of 'Alamgir II. (A.D. 1754) to the conclusion of peace with Shāh 'Alam, and the grant of the Divānī of Bengal to the East India Company (A.D. 1765).

Author : Musafir,

The poet, who designates himself only by the above takhallus, was, it appears, with the Marattah army in Benares, and subsequently in Ilāhābād. He writes as a warm partisan of the conquerors of Bengal, whom he hails as the future masters of India. In the epilogue he states that he had previously written a similar account in Hindī.

The above title is given on fol. 38 b, with the date of composition, A.H. 1180, expressed by the chronogram

On the first page is the Persian seal of Johannes Matthias Reuss (?) روس

Add. 26,285.

Foll. 421; 12 $\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in.

long; written in Nestalik, about the close of the 18th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

Two Maşnavis by Nizām ud-Dīn 'Ishrat Siyālkūtī Kurashī, نظام الدین عشرت سیالکوتی قرشی

'Ishrat states in the latter part of his second poem that, having gone from Siyālkūt, his native place, to pay homage to Aḥmad Shāh Durrānī, then on his return march from Dehli, he accompanied the Shāh to Kābul, and received from him, with many marks of favour, the necessary documents for the composition of a poetical record of His Majesty's reign, and the permission to go back to Siyālkūt, in order to devote himself to that task.

I. Fol. 1. شهنامه نادرى, a poetical account of Nādir Shāh's invasion in India, A.H. 1151-2, concluding with a brief record of his subsequent wars and his death.

The date of composition, A.H. 1162, is expressed in the following line:

II. Fol. 130. شهنامه احبدى, a poetical record of the life of Ahmad Shāh Durrānī, from his rise to power under Nādir Shāh to the defeat of the Belüch chief Naṣīr Khān, A.H. 1173.

III. Fol. 288 b. Continuation of the above poem, dealing with Ahmad Shāh's Indian campaign and his defeat of the Marattas at Pānīpat, concluding with the Shāh's death and the accession of Tīmūr Shāh (A.H. 1186).

The main part of this section was written in the life time of Aḥmad Shāh, to whom the author bitterly complains of the sterility of his Jāgīr, and the annoyances which it entailed upon him.

Add. 23,982.

Foll. 64;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 16 lines,  $2\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in the latter part of the 18th century.

ديوان نيازى

The Divan of Niyazi.

This poet, whose proper name was Navvāb Aḥmad Mīrzā, was a son of Mīrzā Sayyid Murtazā, who had married a daughter of Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain, and held in that Shāh's reign the office of Ṣadr. Niyāzī, who was married to a daughter of his maternal uncle, Shāh Ṭahmāsp II., died in Isfahan A.H. 1188. Luṭf 'Alī Khān, who was personally acquainted with him, composed the following chronogram on his death, Ātashkadah, fol. 189:

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. Rubā'īs, fol. 61 a. Chronograms, fol. 63 a. The chronograms, the dates of which range from A.H. 1170 to 1187, relate to the death of some holy personages of the period, of a princess, 'Iṣmat Niṣā, and of Shāhbāz Khān.

Add. 7820.

Foll. 205;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long, and 18 lines in the margins; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1202 (A.D. 1787). [Cl. J. Rich.]

"The Cypress and the Rose," also called "Falaknāz Nāmah," or the story of Prince Falaknāz, in Maşnavī rhyme.

Author : Taskin, تسكيري

The author states, in the conclusion, that he had adopted the above takhallus, because he had found in the composition of this poem a relief (taskin) to his woes; that his real name was 'Arab-Zādah, and that he was born of a family called Aulād Ya'kūb, in the town of Katīf. He was induced to write the present poem, as he states in the prologue, by his friend Mīrzā Sharaf, who communicated to him the prose narrative on which it is founded, and urged him to complete what Ziyā'i had only commenced. The date of composition, A.H. 1189, is recorded on fol. 7 a.

A copy is mentioned in the Ouseley Collection, No. 69.

Or. 1267.

Foll. 271; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; from 12 to 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, with miniatures in the Persian style; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1257 (A.D. 1841).

The same poem, wanting the greatest part of the prologue, and the epilogue.

Or. 291.

Foll. 120;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, about the close of the 18th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان صانع

The Dīvān of Sāni'.

فریاد که دل بسینه خون شد Beg. با اشك ز دیدهام برون شد

Nizām ud-Dīn Aḥmad Ṣāni', of Balgrām, lived in Murshidābād, and afterwards in Calcutta, where he died about A.H. 1195. See Muṣḥafī, fol. 65, Naghmah 'Andalīb, fol. 105, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 217, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind. iii. p. 54.

Contents: A Tarji'-band, and three Mukhammas, fol. 2 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 10 b, beginning:

ز تو اي خرد نديدم چو کشاد کار خود را بجنون حواله کردم همه کار و بار خود را Rubāʿīs, fol. 117 a.

Or. 321.

Foll. 282; 9 in. by 5½; 13 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and ruled margins, in the 19th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان واقف

The Divan of Vakif.

Nūr ul-'Ain Vāķif, son of Amānat Ullah, Ķāzī of Patiyālah, was a pupil of Ārzū (p. 501 b). He died in Dehli A.H. 1200. See Naghmah 'Andalīb, fol. 191, Mir'āt Āftābnumā, fol. 157, and Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 589.

ای ببزم شوق تو نالان بهر سو سازها رفته در هر کوشه زان سازها آوازها

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with a few Kit'ahs, fol. 2 b. Rubā'is, fol. 254 a. A long Tarji'-band, followed by a few Rubā'is and a Mukhammas, fol. 269 b.

Or. 354.

Foll. 232; 10½ in. by 6½; 17 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, in four columns, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

دلكشا نامه

The history of Mukhtar, the avenger of Husain, a Shi'ah legend, in Maşnavi rhyme.

Author: Azād, sijī

بنام خداوند لیل و نهار Beg. بنام خدای نهان خالق اشکار

Mīr Ghulām 'Alī Āzād, of Balgrām, died in Aurangābād A.H. 1200. See p. 373 a. He refers in the prologue to the numerous poets who had before his time sung the praises of the Prophet's family, mentioning by name Asīr, Zulālī, 'Urfī, Ķudsī, Ṣā'ib, Zuhūrī, Firdūsī, Bāzil, the author of Ḥamlah i Ḥaidarī, and Jūyā. Inspired by the memories of Karbalā, he found a new theme in the subject of the present poem, which he commenced in the month of Ṣafar, A.H. 1131.

The poem is also called, from its subject, Mukhtar Namah. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 364.

At the end is found a Kaşidalı addressed to Shāh Husain Şafavi, imperfect at the end.

Or. 316.

Foll. 373; 8½ in. by 5; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان نظام

The Divan of Nizam.

بسم الله المهيمن ذى الفضل والعطا .Beg. مستلزم العبادة مستوجب الثنا

The author, who is only designated by the above takhallus, is the well-known Imad ul-

Mulk Ghāzī ud-Dīn Khān Bahādur Fīrūz Jang, grandson of Nizām ul-Mulk Āṣafjāh, and Vazīr of Aḥmad Shāh and 'Alamgīr II. After the latter emperor's death, A.H. 1173, he relapsed into obscurity, and died about A.H. 1200, in Kālpī. Muṣḥafī states, fol. 101, that he was still alive in A.H. 1199. See also Khizānah i 'Amirah, fol. 18, Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 392, Gulzār i Ibrāhīm, fol. 240 a, Naghmah 'Andalīb, fol. 181, the Oude Catalogue, p. 273, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. ii. p. 476.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with two Kasīdahs, fol. 2 b. Several Ghazals are addressed to Fakhr i Jahān, the author's spiritual guide, also called Maulānā Fakhr ud-Dīn (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 273). Rubā'īs, fol. 293 b. Tarkīb and Tarjī'-bands, fol. 298 b. Musaddasāt of the kind called the content of the second of the last of these is in Oriental Turkish.

Add. 26,172.

Foll. 54; 5 in. by 8\(^2\); about twenty lines in a page; written in Indian Shikastah-\(^a\min^2\), about the close of the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

منظومات قاسم

Poems of Ķāzī Ghulām Ķāsim Mihrī, قاضى علام قاسم مهرى

بیا ساقی آن می که هوش آورد Beg. دل مردکانرا بجوش آورد

At the beginning is found this heading: منظومات فقير حقير كوتاه تدبير ديوانه نظير قاضى غلام قاسم مهرى ارشده الله في النظم والكلام و اكرمه من نظر الكرام الى يوم القيام آمين

The author, who uses Kasim as his takhallus, was affiliated to the Nakshabandi order. From a Ķaṣīdah addressed to Tippu Sulṭān, shortly after his accession (A.H.1197), we learn that he was the son of Ķāẓī Ḥusain, and a native of Bombay. Another poem, in praise of the same prince, is stated, at the end, to have been written off Ceylon, in Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1205, on a voyage to Pegu.

The volume, which has the appearance of a scrap-book, contains Kaṣīdahs, Ghazals, and Maṣnavīs, mostly of a religious nature, without systematic arrangement. The latter part contains Hindustani pieces and a few chronograms for A.H. 1206 and 1207.

Or. 273.

Foll. 147; 8¼ in. by 5¼; 11 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1209 (A.D. 1795). From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان آفتاب

The Divan of Aftab.

خداوندا بر افروزان بنور خود چراغم را .Beg لبالب از شرابي معرفت كردان اياغم را

Aftāb is the takhallus of the Emperor Shāh 'Alam ('Alī Gauhar), who was born A.H. 1140, and died A.H. 1221.

The Dīvān consists of Ghazals, in alphabetical order, with a few Rubā'īs at the end, fol. 145 b. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 318, the Münich Catalogue, p. 40, and the Ouseley Collection, No. 68.

On fol. 3 is a profile portrait of the author.

Add. 7823.

Foll. 73;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, on European paper, early in the 19th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

ديران خاقان

The Divan of Khakan.

Khākān is the poetical surname of Fath 'Alī Shāh.

The Divan of the royal author is mentioned by Sir John Malcolm, who had obtained a copy of it in one of his missions to Persia, A.D. 1800 or 1810. See "History of Persia," vol. ii. p. 547, Wm. Ouseley's Travels, vol. iii. p. 372, Asiatisches Museum, p. 377, and the catalogues of St. Petersburg, p. 403, and Münich, p. 41.

Contents: Preface to the Divān by Nashāt, fol. 1 b. This preface, as well as the short prose introductions to the various sections of the Divān, and the epilogue, are found collected in the works of Nashāt (see p. 722 a), foll. 18 a—26 b. Ķaṣīdahs in praise of 'Alī and of the Shāh's predecessor, Aṣā Muḥammad, fol. 6 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 15 a, beginning:

Tarkib-band, fol. 55 a. Detached verses, in alphabetical order, fol. 57 a. Rubū'is, fol. 62 b. A Marsiyah on the death of Husain, fol. 64 a. Masnavis, fol. 66 b. Epilogue of Nashāt, fol. 71 a.

Add. 18,544.

Foll. 74; 10 in. by 6½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, early in the 19th century.

[H. Sternschuss.]

The same Divan, wanting the Kasidahs and the prose prefaces.

Add. 25,017.

Foll. 188; 8½ in. by 5; 13 lines, 2½ in. long, with 26 lines in the margins; written in neat Nestalik, with three 'Unvāns and vol. II.

gold-ruled margins, early in the 19th century.

Three Maşnavis, ascribed, in the label affixed to the back of the MS., to Ḥājī Muḥammad Ḥusain Shīrāzī, حاجى محادة شيرازى

The author, whose name does not appear in the text, addresses Fath 'Alī Shāh, fol. 133 a, as the reigning sovereign. He has all the prolixity of Sufi poets, and delights in the endless repetition of the same idea under different images.

I. Fol. 1 b. وامق و عذرا, "Vāmiķ and 'Azrā," a love-story.

The author says in the prologue that under the hero's name he only describes the holy love that burns in his own heart.

II. Fol. 92 b. اشتر نامه, "The Book of the Camel."

The above title, which is taken from one of 'Attar's poems (p. 578 b), is justified by frequent descriptions of the wild longings of the camel, and repeated addresses to the camel-driver شتربان.

III. Fol. 106 b. A poem without title, beginning:

IV. Fol. 114 b. مهر و ماه, "Mihr and Māh," a love-story.

The various sections have extensive prose headings, showing the application of the allegory to mystic love.

Add. 19,533.

Foll. 187; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, on English paper, with the water-mark 1809.

The collected works of Nashāṭ نشاط, in prose and verse.

Mu'tamad ud-Daulah Mīrzā 'Abd ul-Vahhāb, poetically surnamed Nashāt, was courtpoet and secretary to Fatḥ 'Alī Shāh. A letter of his composition, addressed to George III. about A.H. 1220, has been mentioned p. 392 a. His تناب كنيند has been printed in Teheran, A.H. 1266.

Fol. 1 b. A Maşnavî treating of mystic love, with a prose preface beginning:

ابواب مخزن وجود بحكم كنت كنزا مخفيا مسدود

Fol. 13 b. Two Kasidahs in praise of Fath 'Alī Shāh.

هوا باد و هوس باران طمع خاك و خطر خضرا .Beg درین كلشن زهی نادان كه بنده دل كشاید یا

Fol. 17 a. Various compositions in ornate prose mixed with verses.

From the latter we learn that the author of the poem, designated by his takhallus Ṣabā, was a native of Kāshān, and a pupil of the three poets ealled Azur (Luṭf 'Alī Beg), Ṣabāḥī, and Hātif (see the Atashkadah, foll. 180, 197), that he recited a Ķaṣīdah, quoted at full length, on the accession of Fatḥ 'Alī Shāh, who appointed him Malik ush-Shu'arā, and finally that he wrote the above poem by desire of the Shāh, after the Russian campaign (A.H. 1218), in which he had accompanied his sovereign.

The collection includes pieces in Oriental Turkish, fol. 35 a, and in Arabic, fol. 36 a.

Fol. 55 b. Kaşīdahs addressed to Fath 'Alī Shālı, mostly on the occasion of the Naurūz festivals.

بزم غیب از شمع ذاتش چون منور داشتند پرده داران صفاتش پرده بر در داشتند

This section contains some Kaṣīdahs imitated from Anvarī by desire of the Shāh. It concludes with a Turkish piece and a few Kiṭ'ahs.

Fol. 75 b. Letters and miscellaneous compositions in prose.

Among the former are letters written in the name of Fath 'Alī Shāh to the Sultan Maḥmūd (in Turkish), to the Emperor Napoleon, to George III. of England, to the Vahhābī chief (in Arabic), and to other princes and dignitaries. They are undated, and for the most part without headings. The second section, beginning fol. 104 b, contains letters written by Nashāṭ in his own name, and other prose pieces.

Fol. 142 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, followed by a Tarkib-band, fol. 181 a, and some Rubā'is, fol. 184 a.

پیداست سر وحدت از اعیان اما تری Beg. پیداست سر وحدت از اعیان امرایا والذفس فی القوی

Add. 27,267.

Foll. 250;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{5}{8}$  in. long; written in fair Shikastah-āmīz on European paper, with two 'Unvāns and goldruled margins, about the beginning of the 19th century; bound in painted covers.

[Sir J. MALCOLM.]

ديوان واله اصفهاني

The Divan of Valih of Isfahan.

با اینکه سر نزد سخنی از زبان ما Beg. با اینکه سر نزد سخنی از زبان ما ورد زبان خلق داستان ما

Vālih, whose original name Muḥammad Kāzim is found in the present MS., fol. 248 b, lived in Isfahan under the Zend and Kāchār dynasties. He was upwards of eighty years old in A.H. 1226, when Sir Gore Ouseley saw him in his native city. See Notices of Persian Poets, Memoir, p. 67, and Sir Wm. Ouseley's Travels, vol. iii. p. 53.

The present MS. is apparently in the same handwriting as some signed specimens of the author's penmanship, dated A.H. 1225, and preserved in Add. 27,271.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b. A Maşnavi, fol. 204 b. Mukatta'at, mostly chronograms on contemporary events, with dates ranging from A.H. 1164 to 1217, fol. 206 b. Kaşidahs, addressed to Fath 'Ali Shah, Nizām 'Ali Khān of Ḥaidarābād, and others, fol. 218 a. Kit'ahs and Rubā'is, fol. 233 b. Moral maxims in Arabie, fol. 248 b.

Add. 7818.

Foll. 125; 8 in. by 6; 9 lines. 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, on European paper, early in the 19th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The Divan of the same poet, in a shorter recension, containing Kasidahs, fol. 1 b. Ghazals, fol. 16 b, Masnavis, fol. 108 a, Kitahs, fol. 104 b, Rubā'is, fol. 111 b, and Chronograms, fol. 117 b.

Or. 308.

Foll. 124; 9 in. by 5\(\frac{1}{4}\); 15 lines, 3\(\frac{3}{4}\) in. long; written in Shikastah-\text{\text{\text{amiz}}} and in Nestalik; dated \text{\text{\text{Safar}}}, the eighteenth year of Sh\text{\text{Sh}}\) 'Alam (A.H. 1191, A.D. 1777). From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان مبتلا

The Dīvān of Mubtalā, with two prose works by the same author.

Shaikh Ghulām Muḥyi ud-Dīn Kurashī of Mīrath, who used the poetical surnames of 'Ishk and Mubtalā, was the son of a poet, Shaikh Ni'mat Ullah Ni'amī, and lived in Dehli as a dependent of Navvāb Najaf Khān, an Amīr of the court of Shāh 'Alam. He left, besides his poems, a Tazkirah of Rekhtah poets, composed A.H. 1222. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 187, 498, and Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. ii. p. 45.

Contents: I. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 2 b. Mufradāt, Rubā'is, and Mukhammasāt, fol. 60 b. Kasīdalis, fol. 65 b. Maşnavis, fol. 73 b.

II. باغ کلهای containing descriptions of the various points of female beauty, in ornate prose, with appropriate verses, partly due to the author, partly to other poets not named, fol. 78 b.

تازكي كلستان حسن معنى بسحاب فضل . Beg.

The date of composition, A.H. 1187, is expressed by the title. The work is also called عشق. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 187.

III. صاد دنتر اشواق, models of letters, in ornate prose, on various subjects, fol. 90 a.

It is stated in the preamble that the above title numerically expresses the date of composition, viz. A.H. 1187.

The last two pieces are the first and second parts of a collection designated in the preface, fol. 79, as چار چین. The third and fourth parts, called پیمانه فکر and مردمك عین تماشا بیمانه فکر are wanting.

Add. 25,830.

Foll. 69; 13 in. by 9; 6 lines, 5 in. long; written in large Nestalik, A.D. 1822.

[WM. CURETON.]

زيب التواريخ

A poetical account of the life of Zīb un-Nisā Begam.

Author: Lalah Gokul Chand, لاله كوكل چند

تعالى الله زهى غفار خالت . Beg. كه در وصفش دو عالم هست ناطق

Zīb un-Nisā Begam, also called Begam Sumroo, was the widow of Walter Reinhard, a German soldier of fortune, better known in India by the nickname of Sombre, or Sumroo, who died A.D. 1778. His wife, who succeeded to his estate and to the command of his regiment, played a not unimportant part in the events of the reign of Shāh 'Alam, from whom she received the title of فرزند عزيرة, "beloved daughter," and died about 1825. See Francklin, History of Shah Aulum, pp. 150, 188, James Skinner's Military Memoir, p. 279, Sleeman, Rambles and Recollections, vol. ii. p. 377, and Keene, Fall of the Moghul Empire, p. 297.

The author, who is designated in the title as the Begam's Munshī, begins with eulogies on his heroine, on Colonel George Alexander Dyce (a son-in-law of Zafaryāb Khān, the son of W. Reinhard by his first wife), who had the management of the Begam's estate, and on the Colonel's two sons, David Ochterlony Dyce, and John Thomas Dyce. He then proceeds to state that a history of Zīb un-Nisā, written in prose by Munshī Jaisingh Rāi, having been lost, he had been desired to treat the same theme in verse.

The date of composition, A.D. 1822, is stated in the following line:

به سال هجده صد عشرین و اثنان مرتب شد کتاب از فضل یزدان

Or. 459.

Foll. 426;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, about the beginning of the 19th century.

[Duncan Forbes.]

ديوان خاموش

The Divan of Khamush.

ای برتر ازان که کوید ادراك وصف تو از علم و عقل ما پاك

Ṣāḥib Rām Khāmūsh, a Hindu born in Dehli, and a pupil of Shaikh 'Alī Ḥazīn, acted as Munshīto Shāh 'Alam, and was subsequently employed as Taḥṣīldār under Mr. Duncan in the district of Benares. The author of the Tārīkh i Muzaffarī, who was his intimate friend, states, fol. 500, that he died A.H. 1225. He was then upwards of seventy years of age. See the Oude Catalogue, pp. 167, 461.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs and Kiṭʿahs, including some chronograms with dates ranging from A.H. 1180 to 1205, fol. 2 b. Maṣnavis, fol. 90 b. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 109 b, beginning:

اکریاری نماید در ره او همت دلها

Rubā'is similarly arranged, fol. 398 b.

On the first page is written: "G. C. Haughton, Febr. 1818. From Jonathan Duncan's library."

Or. 285.

Foll. 110;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, in the 19th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

ديوان سرور

The Divan of Sarvar.

The author was a dependent of Ḥabīb Ullah Khān. A Maṣnavī addressed to that Amīr, and containing a pressing appeal to his liberality, is dated A.H. 1227.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 2 a. A Kaṣīdah in praise of Ḥabīb Ullah Khān, fol. 100 a. Mukhammasāt, fol. 104 a. A Maṣnavī also in praise of Ḥabīb Ullah Khān, fol. 105 b.

Add. 26,169.

Foll. 167; 10½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in cursive Indian writing; dated A.H. 1229 (A.D. 1814).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

جرجيس رزم

A poetical account of the British wars in India, in Maşnavî rhyme.

Author: Ṣafdar 'Alī Shāh, poetically styled Munṣif, صفدر عليشاه محاص منصف

The following notice of the author, on the fly-leaf, is in the handwriting of Mr. Erskine:

"The author's original name was Mahomed Mohiudin, which, on renouncing worldly pursuits, he changed to Safder Ali Shah. He was the son of Mozuffer Jeng, who changed his name to Kalender Ali Shah on becoming a Fakir (his mother was Nur-Jehan Begum, the niece of Tehniat Nissa Begum, the wife of Nizam u Doulet), and the grandson of Samander Shah of Herat, who married Tehniat Begum, the daughter of Nawab Evaz Khan, of the Soubah of Aurungabad. She, dying while her son Mozuffer Jeng was an infant, gave him to her sister, Syed Shah Begum, to bring up. Syed Shah's husband was Hedayet Mohiudin Khan Mozuffer Jeng, the grandson of the Nizam Asif Jah by his daughter Khyr-ul-nisa Begum."

The first of the two sections contained in this volume treats of the war with Tippoo, from the rupture of the peace (A.D. 1799) to the settlement of the Carnatic (A.D. 1802). The second, foll. 43 b—167 b, contains a record of the Marattah war. It begins with the taking of Poonah by Holkar, and the flight of Bājī Rāo (A.D. 1802), and ends with the retrocession of the conquered territories to Holkar and Sindiah (Dec., 1803). The hero of both narratives is General Wellesley, called in the text

The first section contains in its prologue, fol. 14 a, a panegyric on Mr. [the Honourable Mountstuart] Elphinstone, and at the end, fol. 36 a, eulogies on the author's special patron, Mr. Wm. Erskine, and on Dr. Taylor, who had restored him to health.

Both sections are signed by the author size of the sections and the subscription shows that this copy was written by him for Mr. Erskine.

Add. 26,170.

Foll. 61; 113 in. by 7; 15 lines, 31 in. long; written by the same hand.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

An appendix to the preceding poem, containing an account of the war with Holkar (in A.D. 1804).

The prologue is followed by a short account of the capture of Pondichery by the French, foll. 3 a—4 a; after which comes this heading:

آغاز داستان تتمه واقعه هولکر که بعد فیصل مقدمه سیندیه مهراج و رگهوجی گهوسله راجه ناگپور و تدبیر

تسخیر هولکر پرداختن انکللیسیان بموجب اشارت راجه سریونت باجی راو شهر پونه

Of the first part of the poem, foll. 1 a—13 b, there is a second draft at the end of the volume, foll. 48 b—61 a.

The first page bears the author's signature.

Add. 26,171.

Foll. 34;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written by the same hand.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

A further continuation of the above poem, containing an account of the campaign of Bhartpūr, from the defeat of Col. Monson (August 1804), to the retreat of Holkar from Bhartpūr (March 1805).

چو در رزم کرنیل منسل شکست . Beg. بیکبار شد هولکر چیره دست

On the first page is found the following title, with the author's signature:

وقایعه بهرت پورو تاختن جندرال لیك بهادر بر ظالم سنك راجه سیری جات برای راجه اسونت راو هولكر بهادر

Or. 295.

Foll. 177;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1226 (A.D. 1811). [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان عبرت

The Divan of 'Ibrat.

سبك بر خيز بسم الله سوء عالم دلها Beg. كه بيتو صد هزاران دل بخون افتاد بسملها

This poet, whose proper name was Husain, records the death of his father Muhammad Siddīk in A.H. 1182, that of his spiritual guide, Sayyid Hasan Shāh in A.H. 1188, and the birth of his cldest son in A.H. 1190. His Dīvān contains chronograms relating to contemporary events in Multan, from A.H. 1177 to the date of its compilation, A.H. 1226, with marginal additions coming down to A.H. 1231.

Contents: Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 2 b. Mukhammasāt, fol. 119 a. Maşnavīs, fol. 123 b. Rubā'īs and Fardiyyāt, fol. 128 a. Tazmīn, an amplification of some moral verses of Sa'dī, in Maṣnavī, fol. 132 a. Chronograms in prose and verse, with a short preamble by the author, fol. 138 b.

Or. 303.

Foll. 74; 8½ in. by 6; from 13 to 17 lines, 4½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1232 (A.D. 1817).

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

ديوان قتيل

The Dīvān of Mīrzā Ķatīl, consisting of Ghazals in alphabetical order.

بود برق دگر در جلودها جانانه مارا Beg. نم هر شمعی مجان آتش زند پروانه مارا

Mirzā Katīl has been already mentioned p. 64 b. A full notice of his life is to be found in the Naghmah i 'Andalīb, fol. 149, where the date of his death, A.H. 1233, is ingeniously expressed in this contemporary chronogram, by the letters

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 535, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 40.

Add. 18,546.

Foll. 96;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with three 'Unvāns, and interlinear gilding throughout, early in the 19th century.

[H. Sternschuss,]

مثنوبات شوكت

Masnavis of Shaukat.

The poet, who designates himself by the above takhallus, held a high rank under Fath 'Alī Shāh, and was probably connected with the royal family. It appears from some passages, as foll. 9, 10, 39, that he had been sent by the Shāh from Teheran to Shīrāz to take the government of that city, and that, during an illness which befell him there, he was lovingly tended by three members of the Shāh's family, for whom he professes the most tender regard, namely Prince Husain, his mother, the first wife of the Shāh, and the Prince's sister.

Husain 'Alī Mīrzā, the eldest son of Fath 'Alī Shāh, held during thirty-six years his court in Shīrāz, as Governor of the province of Fārs. At the time of Sir Gore Ouseley's stay in that eity, A.D. 1811, he was about twenty-two years of age, the Queen about fifty, and the Princess eighteen. See Notices of Persian Poets, p. 50, and Wm. Ouseley's Travels, vol. ii. p. 13.

The poems contained in this volume have neither titles nor headings. In all the poet describes, mostly in his own person, sometimes under the disguise of fictitious characters, the longings and joys of true love, the pangs of separation, and the tortures of jealousy.

Contents: Fol. 2 b. First Maşnavi. Description of the author's journey to Shīrāz, of his amorous passion, and his dangerous illness.

It was completed, as stated at the end, fol. 13 b, in A.H. 1233:

بروز شنبه از ماه جمادی بپایان آمد این دفتر بشادی زهجرت وقت سالش را قراراست. سه و سی با دوصد بعد از هزاراست Fol. 13 b. Second Maşnavī. The author is sent from Teheran to Khabūshān, from whence he leads a plundering raid into the hills. The pains of absence, and love messages. The author's journey to Mashhad, Nīshāpūr, and Fīrūzkūh. His return to Teheran and blissful meeting with his beloved.

Fol. 22 a. The tale of Humāyūn and Malaknūz, two lovers of Haidarābād.

Fol. 32 b. A dream of the Princess of China and her unhappy love.

Fol. 35 a. The poet's love-sickness, and his dialogue with his physician.

Fol. 36 b. A short poem addressed to the Shah at a hunting party.

Fol. 37 b. The author's message from the palace of Shīrāz to his beloved.

Fol. 39 b. Love-letter. The pangs of separation.

Fol. 43 b. Discourse with a Sufi on divine and earthly love.

Fol. 46 b. The story of Yūsuf and Zulaikhā.

Fol. 66 b. The story of Prince Humāyūn-Fāl and Gulandām, the Vazīr's daughter.

The rest of the volume, foll. 76 a-96 a, contains some short Maşnavîs, the complaints of a deserted lover.

Round the margins of the last two pages are written some Ghazals by Khāķān, i.e., Fatḥ 'Alī Shāh.

Or. 359.

Foll. 130;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated A.H. 1256 (A.D. 1840).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

هنس جواهر

Author: Zirak, زيرك

The love-story of Prince Hans, son of the king of Balkh, and the Chinese Princess Javähir, a Maşnavî.

Jai Sukh Rāi Zīrak, a Kāyath of Dehli, is mentioned by Sarvar, writing A.H. 1242, as a young poet, then about twenty years of age. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 306, and G. de Tassy, Litt. Hind., vol. iii. p. 343.

The author, who dedicates the work to Captain (afterwards Colonel) George William Hamilton, relates how, having heard the tale told by a friend in a literary assembly, he was prevailed upon by his younger brother, Khādim Ḥasanain, to put it into Persian verse. The poem was written, as stated at the end, A.H. 1256, the author being then in his 36th year.

The MS. is, according to the subscription, in the author's handwriting: هکر الهی که تگارستان معنی نلدمن ثانی بخط بی ربط مولف حلیه اتمام پوشید

The poem consists, as stated in the last line, of 2736 distichs.

Or. 297.

Foll. 60;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long in a page; written in cursive Nestalik, for Col. George Wm. Hamilton, then Commissioner of Multan, dated A.D. 1861.

ديوان على

گدا علی شاه Anthor: Gadā 'Alī Shāh, ها گدا علی شاه Beg. دم تسلیم میدباید براه عشق اولها که تا اسان توان رفتن در وادی بهنزلها

The author, who uses the takhallus of 'Alī,' is a Sufi poet of the most recent period.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 2 a. Rubā'is, fol. 30 a. Fardiyyāt, fol. 54 b.

Add. 7829.

Foll. 134; 8 in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently early in the 19th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The contents are described by Rich on the fly-leaf as follows:

"Two poems in the Guran dialect of the Courdish Language; purchased at Sina, August, 1820."

Guran (probably from ران "fire-worshippers") is the name given to the inhabitants of Eastern, or Persian, Kurdistān, the eapital of which, Sina, was visited by Rieh, in August 1820. See the "Narrative of a Residence in Koordistan," London, 1836, vol. i. pp. 80, 81 and 199.

Although spoken in Kurdistān, the dialect is essentially Persian. In its vocabulary and grammatical structure it agrees in the main with the language of Iran, from which it differs, however, by certain phonetical changes, by its verbal inflexions, its prepositions, and some other peculiar words. As it does not appear to have attracted notice, the following brief sketch of its principal features will not be superfluous:—

Phonetic changes.—Medial or final s is frequently dropped. Ex. دیار 'sight, face' (دیدار) 'more' زیا (دیدار) 'on foot' زیاده) (سپید) 'white' (سپید) (دیده) 'gave' دی (داد) 'saw' (دید) (داد)

The aspirates s, ح, and e, medial or final, generally disappear, and a preceding vowel, if in a closed syllable, is lengthened. Ex.: شام 'city, empire' شام (شهر), نام 'goison' ثام (رهر) 'poison' ثار (رهر) 'seal' واد مرا 'cruel' (مين رحم) 'plain' سارا (بي رحم) 'trial' (مينت (صحرا) 'love' موبت (معنت) 'space of time' (معنت), مشوله (رعده), and even شوله (رباده) 'taunt' تانه (شعله) 'advice' شام (رنباد) 'he laid' نيا . زخم 'mountain' نيا (مام) 'شام 'dow' شام (رساع) 'my way' (رمام) 'thy soul' (رواحت) 'my way' (رواحت) 'thy soul' (رواحت)).

Persian غ is often replaced by خ, as in خان 'burn' (خان), دماخ 'brain' (دماغ), والمخ 'garden' دماخ 'grief' دماخ 'he roared' (غرّبه 'grief' خرّا (غم) 'he roared' خرّا (باغ) (بس) 'enough' وس in ب stands for ويانه (بهانه 'springtide' (بهانه 'springtide' (بهانه 'sleep' (خواب 'tongue' خاو (زبان) 'sleep' زوان 'night' (شب), and many other words.

The same letter is preserved in some words in which Persian has substituted من for it, as in ويده 'fashion, manner' (گونه), 'round' (گشته) 'become' ويل 'to pass' (گذر).

Most Persian words beginning with خو have in Guran a و alone. Ex.: ويش 'himself' ويش (خويش), 'sweet' وش (خويش) 'to eat' واست (خواس) 'to call, to read' واست (خواست).

In a few words ل appears to have taken the place of Persian ,, as in ل 'to go' (رَو), (مرو) 'bird' ميل (مرم) 'love' ميل (مرم) 'cy-press' (سرو) 'quarter, side' كيل and كيل (راه), and (راه).

Nouns.—The Guran dialect has still less vol. II.

declension than Persian; for the particle by is absent. The accusative is expressed by position alone, and the dative by prepositions. The plural is in ان for all nouns; ex. سنكان 'flowers.' The Yāe Vaḥdat assumes before the Izāfat, or enclitics, the form چيزيو لائت 'a suitable object,' شخصيون 'there is a person.'

PRONOUNS.—The detached personal pronouns are من or من 'I,' تو 'thou,' اویشان or اوان 'we,' ایمه 'they.' They are used also for the accusative, instead of مرا مرا ete.

The enclitical forms, which are, as in Persian, a, c, a, a, are very extensively used, both to express possession, and to form the complement of verbs and prepositions. They also play an important part, as will be seen further on, in the conjugation of the past tenses.

The reflexive pronoun has distinct forms for each person, viz. ويم 'myself,' ويت 'thyself,' ويش himself' (خويش).

The demonstratives are او 'that' (آن), and اید , or به این 'this' (این), and اید 'this' (neuter). The interrogatives are کی 'who?', کامین and کام (چه) 'what?' چیش 'what?' کامین (کامین).

The present tense takes the prefix , occasionally written so. Thus from , which, in striking agreement with Sanskrit, takes the place of , we have مواجو he says,' and from وين 'to see' وين). The personal inflexions will be shown by the following paradigm of the verb & 'to do':-

The future, which is also used as subjunctive, has the same inflexions, but substitutes the prefix باورو 'I shall do,' بكرون نام for بكرون 'he will bring,' 'that he may bring,' etc. The imperative, which is generally found with the prefix , but sometimes without it, mostly takes in the singular the termination s. بواچه (مکن) 'do not' مکر (بکن), مکر 'do not' کره 'read ' بوانه , (بشنو) 'hear ' بشنوه , (بگو) ' read ' etc. (بخوان). Plural واچدى ,كردى etc.

ت The past adds, as in Persian, o or to the root in the case of strong verbs, شنفت 'said, وات 'did,' کرد 'said,' آورد as 'heard.' Weak verbs form the same tense in ۱, as پرسا (کشید) 'drew' کیشا (asked' (پرسید), 'commanded' (فرمود). The latter formation applies to many verbs which in Persian are strong verbs, as خيزا 'rose' (خاست), شناسا (ناست), 'shed' راند), drove' (ایخت), while other verbs صيارا or سيرد or مسيرد or سيارا 'entrusted,' نویسا or نویشت 'wrote.'

The personal terminations are as follows:

The past with the prefix , forms the imperfect: موات 'was saying' موات The perfect is, in form, identical with the infinitive: کدره است) 'has done' کرده است), 'is come' آمال (گرفته است) 'has seized' کرتن 'had کرتبی The pluperfect has کرتبی seized' (کرفته بود) 'had laid' نیا یی (کرفته بود).

There is, however, another form of the past, more commonly used than the first, and which is one of the most striking features of the dialect. The ground-form of the past remains uninflected, and the subject is expressed by the enclitical forms of the pronouns, which are appended, either to the past itself, or to some preceding word. Thus we have اتش, 'he said' (not ( گفتند) 'they said ' واتشان (او گفت but گفتش ), 'thou saidst' فرمات (کردیم) 'we did' کردمان ,(جاه گرفتم) 'I took place ' جام کرت ,(فرمودی) من توم قبول كرد ,(رو نهادم براه) 'I set out ' روم نيا ورا چند تانم ,(من ترا قبول کردم) (I adopted thee 'how many taunts did I hear' thou savedst ' منت کرد خلاص , (چند طعده شنودم) me' زمرا خلاص کردی) 'they read the letter' مجنونشان برد ,(نامهرا خواندند) 'they خاوشان نکرد (مجنون را بردند) took Majnun 'they did not sleep' (خواب نكردند).

The same construction applies also to the other past tenses, as in the following examples: کردنت 'thou hast done' (کرده،), توسهوت , (آرزو کردهام) 'I have desired ' آرزوم کردن تو سهو) 'thou hast made a mistake کردن 'when have I seen thee ?' thou hast ' منت کردن شیت , (من ترا کی دیده ام) he was مواتش , (مرا شيدا كرده) he was saying' (میگفت), واتشان (they were saying' علم) ' he was studying' علم) ادیده بود) ' he had seen' دیه بیش (می خواند).

The infinitive or verbal noun adds ن, as in Persian, to the ground form of the past. Ex.: کرتن (خوردن), نوردن 'seizing' (کرنتن 'coming' آمان (گرنتن) 'seeing' لوان (گرنتن) 'going' لوان (دیدن).

to the root, as in لرزنا 'caused to tremble, shook' (مربزنو , الرزانيد) 'causes to flow, sheds' مربزنو , (ارزانيد).

An interesting passive form in ي is found only in the past, as كريا 'was made' (كرده شد), and in the 'was burnt' سوخنه شد), and in the perfect, as كشيان 'is killed' (كشته است), 'is written' نويسيان.

The following table shows the third person singular past and present, and occasionally other characteristic forms, of some of the most common verbs, in so far as they differ, wholly or in part, from Persian:—

(شنید ?) 'heard ' اژنی).

; (می آید) 'comes' میار or میو (آمد) 'comes' آما plur. بیاره 'they come'; fut بیو ; imper میان . ایشو .wounded, hurt'; pres نيك 'thrust, planted'; pres. ميك.

; (میدهد) 'gives' مدرو or مدو (داد) 'gave' دا plur. بدو or مدان 'they give;' subj. بدو , irst pers. plur. بدریم ,بدیم , بدیم ; imper. بدری ,بدری or ,بدری در or ,بدر ,بدو

مدروشو shone, sparkled ;' pres. مدروشو

موينو .saw;' pres ديا or دى.

(آراست) ' prepared ' رازنا).

(می داند) ' knew' (دانست) ' knows' زانا ; imper. جرانه.

ن ' came out, issued.'

نسلام مستانو (ستد) نماست 'takes.' مستانو (ستد) نمانو 'takes.' مشانو 'laid, put down;' pres. مشانو 'heard,' شنفت 'they hear. مشنوان 'heard,' شنفت 'they hear. مگیرو (شد) 'seized' (گرفت); pres. مگیرو (فاظن); pres. مگیرو (فاظن); pres. مگرو (فاظن) کود (غلوب بیکم (تا بیکی است (گربست) 'wept' (کربست) (گربست) 'wept' کتا مام (افتاد) کفت ایکنو (غلوب نمانو) مگیانو (خوالد) نمانو (غربست) 'sends.' کیانا می کیانو (گردید) 'turned, wandered' کیانا 'کیلا 'turned, wandered' کیانا در گردید)

he does not leave or let alone.' نمازو 'he does not leave or let alone.' (بَرُو) لوه went' (رفت); imper. لوا

بهدره 'stood'; imper. مدرا.

. ممانو .remained ' (ماند); pres مند

منیشو (نشست); pres نشت (می نشیند).

' laid down ' (نه د); subj. بنيرو; imper. بنيه.

موارو or مورو ate' (خورد); pres. موارو or وارد . (می خورد)

موازو asked, desired' (خواست); pres. موازو ); رحواهد)

(می فروشد) ' sells ' مورشو).

بوزو (۲) threw, cast down'; subj. وست وست or ونا و called, read' (خواند); pres. ونا وند

(میگذرد) مویرو . pres (گذشت) ' passed و یرد ا

میاو 'arrived, reached' (یافت); pres. میاو (یافت).

Prepositions.—They are numerous, not to say redundant, and differ widely from the Persian words of the same class. Nearly all combine with the pronominal suffixes, a being in some cases inserted between the two elements. , which is generally substituted for Persian , , in all its meanings, forms with the pronouns the groups ونم 'to me,' ونش 'to him,' etc. پی 'to, for, on account of,' is also used to express the dative; with the pronouns it forms پیت 'to me,' پیت 'to thee'; also پنت , with the same meaning. The dative is likewise expressed by ل , apparently borrowed from Arabic, which occurs only in connection with pronouns, as 'to thee,' پري 'for, towards,' takes also the pronominal suffixes, as in پری 'for me,' پریا 'for us.'

or من, which does not combine with the pronouns, is found, strangely enough, in two opposite meanings, viz. 'in,' and 'from.' The latter meaning is more generally conveyed by جه, مه, or مه (which, however, is also sometimes used in the sense of 'in'); with the pronouns: چنم 'from me' چنم 'with ' چنم 'with': چنم 'after' چنم 'after' دما 'ike.' دما 'after' دما 'after'

and وه are frequently affixed to a noun governed by a preposition; ex. و بیاباندا 'into the desert,' بروی خاکدا 'upon the ground,' بلای خداوه 'before God.'

The pronominal suffix is sometimes detached from the preposition, and appended to a preceding word. Ex.: بواچه پنم, for ستانه چنم, 'tell me'; براچه پنم, 'take from me.'

There are, besides, several compound prepositions, as ندور 'into,' ندور 'round,' ندور 'amid,' ولاش 'up to, towards': ولاش 'to him,' 'with, by': چلاش 'with him, near him' چلاش 'upon,' etc.

بوار 'out, outside,' وزار روبر 'out, outside,' بوار 'down,' بيوار 'off, away,' هور 'up, aloft,' as in هور كرت 'raised' (برگرفت) 'fose' هور كرت 'rose' (برخاست) 'rose' ويسه or ايسه 'always,'

'now' (بد این ساعت) 'then' (وسا براد این ساعت) 'since' (بد این ساعت) 'when,' جوسا اودی 'since' (نال ساعت) 'so much,' نیدا 'so much,' نیدا 'to-day,' آرو 'thus,' آرو 'to-day,' مر 'to-night,' مر 'if, perhaps' (ایکشو 'or' (مگر) 'also' (only in connection with pronouns, as منیج 'I also,' ویک 'he also'), etc.

The following are a few other words peculiar to the dialect :-اراکیل 'wandering, distracted'; ; (آفر) 'a tear ) آهر or آهر ; and اسرين and اسر 'brother ' برا ;' father ' بابو 'request' آوات پشیو ; 'great'; برك ; 'garments'; برز (برادر) ' scattered, distressed ' (پريشان); خار 'time' (بار) ; جخت 'haste' (جهد); state, condition'; جرك 'liver' (جگر); eye' (جشم); چوار ; 'desert' چول ; (جبین) ; جمین 'four' (چهار); خال 'lock, ringlet'; دايه 'mother'; دنك 'sound, voice'; دوستاخ 'captive'; راويار; 'speech'; راكه 'road'; راويار, 'wayfarer'; وايله ; (روز) 'day' روز ory, lamentation'; زوار 'sad'; نوار 'bridegroom' ; (شیدا) ' mad ' شیت ; 'woman' ثن ; (داماد) and فرى ; 'distress, lament' شين 'much, many'; کشتین and کشت ,کردین and کرد , 'all, whole'; كونه 'daughter'; كونه 'cheek;' كونه 'old' (کهن); کیان ; soul, life' (کهن); کا 'side, quarter ' (سو) ; a moment ;' مانك 'moon, month '; وايد 'desire' (خواهش) 'poor'; 'sigh, breath'; هذاس ; (حملت) 'sigh, breath'; 'place ' ياكه ; (خون) 'blood ' هون ' sky ' هور (مانه); مانه 'house' (مانه).

The contents of the present volume are as follows:—

I. Fol. 1 6. كتاب خورشيد خاور , the tale of Khurshid, son of the king of Khavar Zamin, and Khirāmān, the daughter of the emperor of China.

دماي (بعد از) حمد ذات جهان آفرين .Beg ياوام پي (آمدم به) تعريف شاي خاور زمين شنفتم نـه (از) پير داناي هنرور پادشاهي بي (بود) نه (در) ملك خاور

II. Fol. 68 b. كتاب ليلي و مجنوى, the well known story of Laili and Majnūn.

The first line is wanting; the next following are:

> واحد بیچون حی بی همتا رازق رزاق یکانه م تنیا (تنها) آمین و آمین آیه هل اتا

Both poems are anonymous. They are written in popular style, and in a very simple form of versification. Each line is composed of ten syllables, without any fixed rule in respect to quantity, and is divided by a cesure into two hemistichs of equal length. The Izāfat and the conjunction, when preceded by a vowel, either short or long, form with it one syllable. The following lines, in which the Persian equivalents are added in parenthesis, may serve as a specimen:

یکرو جه تقدیر واده و نو وهار

(یکروز از تقدیر وعده و [بموسم] نوبهار)

خورشید کرد هوای سواری شکار

لوا (رفت) و (به) پای تخت شای خاور زمین

سجدش برد و ناز مدرا وتمکین

(سجده کرد به ناز ایستاد به تمکین)

شاه واتش (گفت) ای نور جهان بین من

ای چشمه حیات دنیا و دین من

فدات بام پی چی مدرانی ولام

(فدات باشم برای چه ایستاده پیشم)

هر من وسرکرد دور دیدت بام

هر من وسرکرد دور دیدت بام

(همیشه من نثار دور دیده تو باشم)

بشو و (به) هکتب درست بوانه (بخوان)

علم خاص یم ویت حرفی بزانه (علم خوبست برای خودت حرفی به دان) تا وتتی یاوای (بیائی) به صنع (سن) شاهی بنشینی و (بد) تخت جهان مطاهی (مطاعی) خورشید وات (گفت) ای شاه علمم دیارن (دیدارست ؟) اینه (این) نو بهار واده شکارن (موسم شکارست) اکی لفش بو چنیم شہریار (اکر لطف باشد با من شهریار،۱) رخصت بدو پیم (بدهد مرا) بعزم شکار تا کوزن و کور باورون ودام (بیاورم بدام) تازہ کم (کنم) آیین کور کیری بہرام شاه وات (گفت) ای وزیر پری (برای) شهزاده آساسه و شکار بکر (بکرر) آماده در ساعت وزير صاحب عقل و فام (فهم) ترتیب دا (داد) پریش (برایش) آساسه تمام غوغا كفت (افتاد) و (به) خلق ميدان و بازار شهزاده خاور مشو (می رود) به شکار مخلوق خاور یری (برای) تهاشاه جم بین (جمع بودند) سحر زو (زود) نه (در) میدان شاه مدران انتظار و قایی شاوه (ایستادند منتظ به درگاه شاه) کی ہو کہ خورشید بیو وراوہ (کی باشد که خورشید بیاید براه) ناکاه بر آما (آمد) نه (از) قصر زرکا, صدای هی دور باش جارجیان (منادیان) هزار

Add. 7826.

Foll. 151; 6 in. by 4; 12 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated A.H. 1231 (A.D. 1816) [Cl. J. Rich.] Khusrau and Shirin, a Maşnavî in the same dialect, and the same measure.

The MS. appears to have been transcribed from an imperfect copy; it begins abruptly with the following lines: کشت به پشیو حال بدل کرانی پنچه دا ندل دست، زرانی بشنو جه شیریس او شو تا برو هی کرد بشودیسز بسیاد یا هو جه صب تا بشام رانا مسنادی طی کرد منزلان وادی به وادی

Add. 23,554.

Foll. 53;  $6\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, early in the 19th century. [Rob. Taylor.]

אילה פאנגון, a poem in the same dialect, treating of the love adventures of Bahrām, son of King Kishvar, and Gulandām, daughter of the emperor of China. It is imperfect at beginning and end. The first lines are as follows:—

جه (از) عشق یاور مجوشا (می جوشید) جون برق جه (از) دل مکیشا (میکشید) نعره و بنه (مثل) برق صحر که خورشید رخشان مدا (میداد) سر مخیزا (می خاست) جه (از) خواب مبستش (می بست) کمر

مپوشا (می پوشید) یراق بدن سرتا پا قدمش منیا (مینهاد) بجهان دیمها وینه ٔ (مثل) خور منشت (مینشست) نه (در) پشت

> رو مکرد (می کرد) بدشت منزلکه عرب مکردش (می کرد) شکار تا بنماي (بنماز) شام شام فارغ مبسي (می بود) جه (از) یاد کلندام

ANTHOLOGIES.

Add. 7825.

Foll. 159;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 9 lines, 3 in. long; written in large Naskhi, apparently in the 14th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A collection of short poetical extracts, Arabic and Persian, classed according to subjects. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 502.

The names of the authors are seldom given. Of Persian poets the following alone are mentioned:—Firdūsī, foll. 29, 34, 74, 75, Sanā'ī, fol. 11, the author of (Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 57), fol. 61, Anvarī, foll. 12, 62, 83, Nizāmī, fol. 22, and Sa'dī, foll. 11, 38, 59, 134.

The MS., which is imperfect at both ends, and wants some leaves in the body of the volume, begins with the rubrie: باب في التعازى وهو ثلاثة فصول الاول فيما يتعلق المراثى والتعازى وهو ثلاثة فصول الاولاد والصبيان A spurious beginning and end, and false catchwords, have been added by a later hand.

Add. 16,561.

Foll. 89; 9 in. by 5; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in fine Nestalik, on tinted, glazed, and gold-sprinkled paper, with eleven 'Unvāns, and nine miniatures of the highest degree of finish; dated Shamākhī (Shīrvān), Rabī' II., A.H. 873 (A.D. 1468); bound in stamped leather.

Select Ghazals from the Dīvāns of twelve poets of the 8th and 9th centuries of the Hijrah. The first heading is انتخاب شیخ کهال

افت تاح سخن آن به که کنند اهل کمال Beg. بثناء ملك الملك خداى متعال

There are similar headings to the remaining sections, each of which contains Ghazals extracted from one Dīvān, and arranged in alphabetical order.

The selections are from the Divans of the following poets:

- 1. Kamāl Khujandī (p. 632 b), fol. 1.
- 2. Hāfiz Shīrāzī (p. 627 b), fol. 6.
- 3. Amīr Khusrau (p. 609 a), fol. 13.
- 4. Maulānā Kātibī (p. 637 b), fol. 23.

5. Maulānā Ashraf (probably Darvish

Ashraf, who lived under Sultan Muḥammad B. Bāisunghar; see Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, p. 71, and Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1379; compare Sir Wm. Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 152), fol. 41.

ای رخ دلفروز تو طرح نهاده مارا .Beg. بنده و خویش ساخته عشق تو بادشاهرا

6. Amīr Shāhī (p. 640 a), fol. 50.

7. Nāṣir (a Darvish of Bukhārā, who visited Salmān Sāvajī in Baghdād in the reign of Shaikh Uvais, A.H. 757—776; see Daulatshāh, v. 5, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 591, Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, and the Upsala Catalogue, p. 103; it is stated in the Ṭabaķāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 39, that Nāṣir died A.H. 772), fol. 57.

8. Maulānā Bisāţī (of Samarķand, a disciple of 'Iṣmat, and the favourite poet of Sultān Khalil, A.H. 807—811; see Daulatshāh, vi. 4, Taķī, p. 19, Laṭā'if, fol. 9, and the Upsala Catalogue, p. 111. According to the Ṭaba-kāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 74, Bisāṭī died young, A.H. 808. The Mirāt i Jahānnumā, fol. 308, gives A.H. 815 as the date of his death), fol. 62.

There is a lacune extending from the letter in the above section to the letter in the next.

9. Khayāli (p. 639 a), fol. 68.

10. Jūmî (p. 643 a), fol. 74.

11. Tūsī, fol. 80. 'Abd Ullah Tūsī, a native of Khorasan, was attached to Sultan Abul-Kāsim Bābur, after whose death, A.H. 861, he passed to the court of Jahānshāh. He died in old age, A.H. 869; see Daulatshāh, vii. 12, Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19, Laṭā'if, fol. 11, etc.

ای داده نور شمع رخت مهر و ماهرا زلفت شکسته رونق مشك سیاهرا

12. Ṭāli'ī (of Samarkand, who died A.H. 858; see Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19, the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 311, Laṭā'if, fol. 11, and the Münich Catalogue, p. 29), fol. 86.

تیر تو مرا بر طرف دیده بینا پیدا شده ماننده ٔ نی بر لب دیا

شرف الدين حسين سلطاني : Copyist

Add. 7824.

Foll. 234; 8½ in. by 4½; 14 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in fine Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins and ten 'Unvāns, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

Select Ghazals from the Divans of the following ten poets, ranging from the 7th to the 10th century of the Hijrah, with the heading: انتخاب دیوان شیخ سعدی

1. Sa'dī (p. 595 a), fol. 1.

2. Amir Khusrau (p. 609 a), fol. 27.

3. Ḥasan Dihlavi (p. 618 a), fol. 68.

4. Kamāl Khujandī (p. 632 b), fol. 88.

5. Kātibī (p. 637 a), fol. 109.

6. Amîr Humâyûn (a Sayyid, of Asfarāin, who lived chiefly in Tabrīz, at the court of Sultan Ya'kûb. He died near Kum, A.H. 908. See Takī, Oude Catalogue, p. 20, Sām Mirzā, fol. 30, Ātashkadah, fol. 35, Haft Iklīm, fol. 327, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 503), fol. 123.

بيتو جائى كه شود خاك دل چاك انجا تا ابد ناله بر آيد ; دل خاك انجا

7. Ahlī Shīrāzī (p. 657 a), fol. 137.

8. Bābā Fighānī (p. 651 a), fol. 170.

9. Shahīdī, fol. 190. Maulānā Shahīdī, of Ķum, was Malik ush-Shu'arā in the reign of Sultan Ya'kūb (A.H. 883—896). After that king's death he repaired to India, and settled in Gujrāt, where he died, nearly a hundred years old, in A.H. 935. See Sām Mīrzā, fol. 99, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 401, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 232, and Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 21.

Beg. بطوف میکدها روز بینوائی ما سفال جرخ بود کاسه کدائی ما 10. Muḥtasham (p. 665 b), fol. 207.

Add. 7796.

Foll. 361; 12\frac{3}{4} in. by 8; 15 and 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long, with 30 lines in the margins; written in neat Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

A vast collection of Kasidahs and Ghazals by various poets, ranging from the fifth to the tenth century of the Hijrah.

The original arrangement of the MS. has been disturbed, and, as many leaves are lost here and there, it is not possible to restore it with any degree of certainty. The Kaṣīdahs, followed by some Tarkīb-bands, occupy the central space of the pages, without any apparent system of classification, except this, that poems composed in the same measure, and with the same rhyme, by different poets, are grouped together. But the authors' names are, with few exceptions, omitted.

The Ghazals are written in the margins, partly promiseuously, partly in a number of alphabetical series, each by one author. These connected series belong to the following poets: Aşafī (p. 651 b), foll. 6—11. of Dehli (p. 618 a), foll. 42-63. Kāhī (probably Kāsim Kāhī, of Kābul, a pupil of Jāmī, who died in Agra, A.H. 973; see Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 384, and Blochmann, Ain Akbari, p. 209), foll. 63-73, 207-211. Shāhī (p. 640 a), foll. 74—108. Bisātī (p. 735 a), foll. 108—113. Haidar (probably Haidar Kuliehah-paz, of Herat, who died A.H. 959; see Taķī, p. 22, and Sām Mīrzā, fol. 106), foll. 211—230, 122—138. Ahi (a Turkish Amir, who was attached to Gharīb Mīrzā, son of Abul-Ghāzī Sulṭān-Ḥusain, and died A.H. 927; see Oude Catalogue, pp. 21, 327, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 578), foll. 139, 140, 167—189, 231-2. Ahlī Khurāsānī (p. 657 a), foll. 233—244, 253—260, 141—144. Salmān (p. 624 b), foll. 144—146. 'Iṣmat (Khwājah 'Iṣmat Ullah, of Bukhārā, who was the favourite poet of Sulṭān Khalīl and of Mirzā Ulugh Beg, and died A.H. 829; see Daulatshāh, vi. 5, Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 592), foll. 147—163.

Add. 19,494.

Foll. 85;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated the 28th year (probably of Shāh 'Alām=A.H. 1200, A.D. 1786).

Select Ghazals by some of the most popular poets of Persia from the 7th to the 10th century of the Hijrah, arranged in one alphabetical series.

The most frequently recurring names are those of Jāmī, Sa'dī, Ḥāfiz, Khusrau, Salmān, Hilālī, Shāhī, Āṣafī.

Or. 1228.

Foll. 59; 5\(\frac{5}{4}\) in. by 3\(\frac{3}{4}\); 11 lines, 2\(\frac{5}{4}\) in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[Alex. Jaba.]

Select Ghazals by various poets, arranged in alphabetical order under each of the following names: Khwājah Ḥasan, fol. 1 b, Jāmī, fol. 18 a, Ḥāfiz, fol. 21 a, Shāhī, fol. 35 b, Ahlī, fol. 46 a. Appended are some Rubā'īs and Kiṭ'ahs, fol. 51 a.

Add. 6634.

Foll. 214;  $10\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; written in Nestalik, in three columns with about 16 slanting lines in each, apparently in the latter part of the 17th century.

[J. F. HULL.]

Select verses by poets of the latter part of the 10th and of the 11th century of the Hijrah.

The extracts are confined, with but few exceptions, to one or two lines, but sometimes they form a series belonging to one poet, whose name is given in the heading. The general arrangement appears to be chronological.

It may be seen from an original folio'ing, beginning with 397 (fol. 188) that the MS. once formed part of a larger volume.

The more extensive extracts are : الجبوعة a Sufi poem in the form of a Tarji'-band, by Kashfi (Amir Ṣāliḥ; see p. 154 a, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 456), completed, as stated at the end, A.H. 1030, foll. 82—88. فرهاد وشيرين, a poem by Vaḥshi (p. 663 b), foll. 160—180. فرهاد وشيرين a poem by Nau'i (see p. 674 a), foll. 180—187. A fragment of a fairy tale in prose, the hero of which is called Tamim, foll. 46—54.

Add. 6633.

Foll. 242; 8\frac{3}{2} in. by 4\frac{3}{2}; 14 lines, 2\frac{3}{2} in. long; written in fair Shikast\(\text{ah-amiz}\), with gold-ruled margin; dated Rabi I., A.H. 1117 (A.D. 1705).

[J. F. HULL.]

رياض العشاق

A collection of choice verses by ancient and modern poets, suitable for quotation in elegant letter-writing.

Author: Muḥammad Ṣādiķ B. Shams ud-Din 'Alī, a native of Kūhkailūyah (a village of Garmsīr, province of Fārs),

The author states in the preface that he had made this compilation by desire of his vol. II.

patron, Zulfakār Khāu (the well-known Amīr of Aurangzīb's reign, who was put to death A.H. 1124), and adds in the epilogue that it was completed in A.H. 1117. The date is conveyed by the chronogram:

The work is divided into four sections termed روضه, with minute subdivisions. The MS. is, as stated at the end, the second draft written by the author himself.

Add. 16,802 and 16,803.

Two uniform volumes of 429 and 453 foll.; 8½ in. by 4¾; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in fair Shikastah-āmīz; dated Lahore, Zulka'dah, A.H. 1152, and Muḥarram, A.H. 1153 (A.D. 1740). [WM. YULE.]

بياض ميرزا بيدل

A Persian anthology compiled by Mirzā Bidil (see p. 706 b).

It contains choice pieces by a vast number of poets from the age of Khākānī to the author's time, classed according to the various styles of poetical composition, and arranged, in each class, in alphabetical order according to the rhymes.

Poems written by different authors in the same measure and with the same rhyme are grouped together. The names of the poets are given in versified headings like the following: بادشاه معراج سخی کلام قدسی معراج سخی کلام قدسی اسیر

Contents: Kaşidalıs, Add. 16,802, fol. 3 b. Ghazals, ib. foll. 135—429, and Add. 16,803, foll. 1—136.

Mu'ammūs, or riddles, Add. 16,803, fol. 136. Rubū'is, fol. 139. Mustazād, fol. 200. Ķit'ahs, fol. 212. Short pieces in Maşnavī rlıyme, fol. 224.

Longer Masnavis by the following poets:

1. Salim (Muhammad Kuli, a native of Teheran, who was first attached to Mirza 'Abd Ullah, governor of Lāhijān. He subsequently went to India, and found a patron in Islām Khān, an Amīr of Shāhjahān. He died in Kashmir A.H. 1057. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 556, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 141, Mirāt Jahānnumā, fol. 356). 2. Ashraf (Muhammad Sa'id, of Mazandaran, who went to India and became the instructor of Zib un-Nisā Begam, daughter of Aurangzīb, and a favourite of Bahādur Shāh. He died at Monghyr some time after the death of that See the Oude Catalogue, p. 340, Haft Asmān, p. 158, and Mir'āt Jahānnumā, fol. 307). 3. Mir Yahyā (a native of Kāshān, who went to India, wrote a Shāhnāmah for Shāhjahān and poems in praise of Dārāshikūh, and died A.H. 1074. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 115, Mir'āt Aftābnumā, fol. 157, and Mir'āt Jahannumā, fol. 410). 4. Hakim Ruknā (p. 688 a). 5. Ţālib Āmulī (p. 679 b).

Mukhammasāt, fol. 293. Maṣnavīs descriptive of female beauty, by Mirzā Bīdil, fol. 388. Maṣnavīs on moral subjects by the same, fol. 402. Letters and other compositions in prose by Bīdil and other writers, fol. 411. Musaddasāt, fol. 423. Riddles in prose, fol. 432. Versified chronograms relating chiefly to the death of poets, and brought down to A.H. 1121, fol. 434. A tale of a simple-minded Brahman and the wiles of his artful wife, in prose, foll. 444—451.

The margins contain, besides some additional short poems, the following pieces:—

1. زاد العارفيي, a tract in six Bābs, ascribed to the celebrated Sufi, Khwājah 'Abd Ullah Anṣārī (see Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 526), Add. 16,802, foll. 12—23. 2. نطائف, "ingenious observations," by 'Abd ul-Ahad, surnamed Vaḥdat, ib. foll. 23—26. 3. نصائم و مراعظ, an erotic poem by Tajallī (Mullā 'Alī Rizā, a native of Ardaķān, province of Yazd, stayed some time in India during the reign of Shahjahan, and spent the latter part of his life, under Shāh 'Abbās II. and Sulaimān, in his native land, where he died A.H. 1088. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 150, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 89), Add. 16,803, foll. 388—393. 5. مياحثه a contest between poppy and, "a contest between poppy" tobacco," a Masnavī by Mujrim (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 183), foll. 393—397. 6. Letter of Ni'mat Khan 'Ali (p. 268 b) to Iradat Khān Vāzih, foll. 403—408. 7. نقليات بزركان, "anecdotes of the great," foll. 408-411. 8. Extracts from وعشق حسن و عشق, by the same Ni mat Khān, foll. 411—414. 9. كلشن راز , a Tarji by 'Urfi (p. 667 a), and other poems of the same kind, foll. 434-441.

Add. 7822.

Foll. 185; 6¾ in. by 3¾; 10 lines, 1¾ in. long; written in neat Shikastah-āmīz, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 1063 (A.D. 1653).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

A collection of Rubā'is by the four following poets:

- 1. Saḥābī (see p. 672 b), fol. 1.
- 2. Abu Sa'id B. Abil-Khair (see p. 342 b, the Oude Catalogue, p. 309, and Ethé, "die Rubā'is des Abu Sa'id," Sitzungsberichte der Bayer. Akademie, 1875, p. 146), fol. 133.

3. Mullā 'Abd ul-Vāsi' Ardabīlī, poetically surnamed Maḥvī, fol. 154.

This poet, who is generally called Mīr Mughīş Maḥvī Hamadānī, and is celebrated for his Rubā'is, was born in Asadābād, near Hamadān, and studied in Ardabīl. After a stay in India under the patronage of the Khānkhānān ('Abd ur-Raḥīm), he returned to his native land, and died in Hamadān, A.H. 1016. See Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 585, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 424, Badāonī, p. 343, Atashkadah, fol. 116, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 420. The last work mentions another Maḥvī Ardabīlī, whose proper name was 'Abd ul-'Alī, and who died in Burhānpūr A.H. 1025.

4. Bābā Afzal Kāshī, fol. 170.

Afzal ud-Din, of Kāshān, died A.H. 707; see Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, and Atashkadah, fol. 107.

Or. 328.

Foll. 54; 82 in. by 41; 17 lines, 22 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. WM. HAMILTON.]

A collection of satires written by various poets on their contemporaries.

The names of the authors are not given in the headings, but some appear occasionally in the text, as those of 'Arūsī, fol. 5 a, and Kaidī, fol. 5 b. On the fly-leaf, and by a later hand, is written: قصاید عروسی وکیدی و میر وغیره شعرار متقدمین در هجو همدگری

The text has many short gaps, apparently owing to holes in the MS. from which it was transcribed.

Add. 24,987.

Foll. 157;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 8 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik for Mr. James Ewing, Registrar of Bhāgalpūr; dated April 1811.

واقعات و روایات

A collection of elegies by various poets, on the martyrs of Karbalā, with the following title: "Murseeah, or Lamentation for Hosein the Imam and Martyr, as recited at Shiraz during the first ten days of Mohurrim."

Contents :-

1. "Death of the Prince of Martyrs," by Karbalā'ī Shīrāzī, سيد الشهدا من , واقعه جناب سيد الشهدا من , fol. 2 b.

2. Leave-taking of the Prince of Martyrs from Sayyid Sajjād, by Nasīmī, واقعه وداع واقعه السلام من كلام نمودن سيد الشهدا با سيد سجاد عليه السلام من كلام أمرية أول. 33 هـ, fol. 33 هـ.

چه ماتم است که چشم زمانه کریان است که

- A Mukhammas, beginning: شد تازه باز, fol. 45 b.
- 4. A lamentation, نوحه سينه زنان, beginning: وحمينم وحسينم وحسينم کو حسينم کو حسينم کو حسينم
- 6. An elegy, beginning: عزاى شاء شهيد, وعزاى ماء , fol. 51 ه.
- 7. Another elegy, beginning: هلال محنت, fol. 53 b. The poet's name Akbar اكبر occurs near the end, fol. 74 a.
- 8. The lamentation of Sakīnah نوحه سكينه, preceded by a short narrative in prose, fol. 75 a.

ای اسپ در از خون نو چه کردی پدرمرا .Beg.

The poet's name, Rafi'a رفيعا, occurs in the last couplet, fol. 82 b.

- 9. Two narratives in prose, without title, followed by a few verses, foll. 82 b, 88 b.
  - 10. Departure of Imam Husain for the field and his martyrdom, حدیثه میدان رفتن امام , fol. 90 a, with a short prose narrative.

The verses begin thus:

بیا ای شهر یکدم فرصتم ده

The last couplet contains the author's name, خليل Khalilā, fol. 98 a.

11. An elegy on the martyrdom of 'Abd Ullah B. Hasan, by Mukbil, واقعه در بيان عبد الله بن حسن عليه السلام من كلام مقبل شهادت عبد الله بن حسن عليه السلام من كلام مقبل fol. 98 b.

زد ماه محرم بفلك خيمه ويبا

12. Elegy on the departure of the Holy Family from Karbalā for Kūfah, and the story of the mason, by Mukbil, واقعه حركت اهل بيت عصمت از كربلاى معلى بكوفه وحكايت بنا من كلام مقبل

هلال مالا محرم زنو هويدا شد عمر

13. Another Vāķi'ah by Mukbil, واقعة مقبل, fol. 120 a.

روایت است که چون کشت عازم میدان ، Beg.

14. Another Vāķi'ah on the martyrdom of the Christian of Kūfah, without title or author's name, fol. 127 b.

. روایت است که در کوفیان نصارائی .

15. A Vāķi'ah, without title, on Zu-l-Janāḥ ذر الجناح, the horse of Ḥusain, and his return to the tents after his master's death, fol. 134 a.

روایت است که بعد از شهادت شه دین .

The author is Khalīlā خليلا, whose name appears at the end, fol. 143 b.

16. A lamentation on Imām Ḥusain, نوحه, fol. 145 a.

یاران برادر من عباس زار نومید Beg.

It is followed by some other lamentations, without special titles or author's name.

سید حیدر علی عرف میر جان : Scribe

ORNATE PROSE.

Add. 26,300.

Foll. 139;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 16 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Kängrah (Panjāb), Sha'bān, the third year of Bahādur Shāh (A.H. 1121, A.D. 1709). [WM. ERSKINE.]

جزئیات و کلیات

Discourses, in mixed prose and verse, on the human body, considered as the noblest of God's creations, and as evidence of His greatness.

ضياء Author: Ziyā ud-Dīn Nakhshabī ضياء الدين نخشيـي تعميد حميد احد قل هو الله احد الله الصمد .Beg. خطبه احديث

Ziyā ud-Dīn Nakhshabī, so called from Nakhshab or Nasaf, the modern Karshī, a town situated between Samarkand and the Oxus, led a secluded and religious life in Badā'un, and died, as stated by 'Abd ul-Ḥakk, Akhbār ul-Akhyār, fol. 91, A.H. 751. He left, according to the same writer, numerous works, among which the المال (the present work), and كليات و جزويات, are alone mentioned by name. He is also the author of Lizzat un-Nisā (see p. 680 b), and the tale of Ma'sūm Shāh and Naushābah, entitled Gulrīz. Compare Elliot's History of India, vol. vi. p. 485, and Stewart's Catalogue, p. 85.

The work is divided into forty sections called ناموس, each of which treats of a distinct part of the human body. It is therefore sometimes referred to as چل ناموس. In the subscription of the present copy it is designated as تاموس احبر; but the above title is that which is given to it in the preface, where Kutb ud-Dīn, i.e. Mubārak Shāh Khiljī (A.H. 717—721), is mentioned as the reigning sovereign.

Add. 18,187.

Foll. 104; 84 in. by 44; 11 lines, 24 in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan and ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

شبستان نكات وكلستان لغات

"The night-show of ingenuities," a collection of conceits, or "jeux d'esprit," in prose and verse.

Author : Fattāḥī, فتاحى

حمد خدایرا که چشمه میم حمدش دریای است . Beg. در حد کمال کرم و دائره میم نعمتش سفره ایست در نعت نوال قدم

Yaḥyā Sībak, of Nīshāpūr, was one of the most eminent writers in prose and verse of the reign of Shāhrukh. He first adopted the takhallus Tuffāḥī, evidently suggested by his surname Sībak, but changed it afterwards to Fattāhī. He uses also occasionally Khumārī and Asrārī as poetical surnames. His most celebrated works are Shabistān i Khayāl (the present work) and Ḥusn u Dil. He died A.H. 852. See Laṭā'if, fol. 9, Daulatshāh, vi. 16, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 148, and Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 19.

The lines above quoted give a fair sample of the puerile subtleties in which the work deals. They turn chiefly on the changes effected in the meaning of words by removal or transposition of some letters.

The author states in the introduction that he commenced the Shabistān after finishing his Ḥusn u Dil, and gives the date of composition, A.H. 843, in the following line at the end:

شبستانی چان زیباست نزد هر سخن دانی که تاریخ تمام او بود زیبا شبستانی

The work, which is generally called خيال, is divided into eight Bābs. The contents have been stated by Fleischer in the Leipzig Catalogue, p. 399, and by Hammer, Jahrbücher, vol. 64, Anzeige Blatt, p. 18. See also the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 587, and the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 31.

The Husn u Dil has been translated by Wm. Price, London, 1828. See the catalogues of Leipzig, p. 397, St. Petersburg, p. 404, Krafft, p. 49, and Vienna, vol. i. p. 419.

Add. 7610.

Foll. 80;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1125 (A.D. 1713). [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work.

Add. 25,868.

Foll. 102; 8\frac{1}{4} in. by 6; 13 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, in the district of Bardwan, about the close of the 18th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

The prose works of Zuhūrī (see p. 678 a).

The first four are in praise of Ibrāhīm 'Adilshāh, and describe the splendours of his court and residence.

I. Zuhūri's preface to Nauras, نورس, a treatise on Indian music composed by Ibrā-hīm 'Adilshāh, fol. 2.

سرود سرایان عشرتکده قال که بنورس .Beg

II. His preface to Khwān i Khalīl, خوان , fol. 12.

اي از تو بر اهل تخت و الليل سبيل Beg.

III. His preface to Gulzār i Ibrāhīm, گلذار, fol. 33.

خرمى چمن سخن بطراوت حمد بهاز پيرائي است.

IV. Mīnā Bāzār, مينا بازار, a description of the Bāzār so called, built by Ibrāhīm 'Adilshāh in Bījāpūr.

عصبتیان روپوش حیا پرور و خلوتیان کوش .Beg. پاک نظر را

V. Letters, وتعات, of a lover to his beloved, fol. 76 b.

شهید تبسم دیت عشوه م خون بها

The above works are popular school-books in India, and have been frequently published. The first three have been printed, under the title of سه نشر ظهررى, in Lucknow, 1846, and in Cawnpore, A.H. 1269, and A.D. 1873. The Mīnā Bāzār has been lithographed with a commentary in Dehli, A.H. 1265, and in Lucknow, A.H. 1282. The fifth, known as بنج رقعه ظهررى, has been edited with commentaries in Cawnpore, A.H. 1280.

Add. 16,852.

Foll. 330; 7 in. by 4\frac{1}{4}; 13 lines, 2\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastah-āmiz; dated A.H. 1141—1147 (A.D. 1729—1735). [WM. YULE.]

The prose works of Tughra, طغرا.

Mullā Ṭughrā i Mashhadī, a native of Mashhad, went to India about the close of Jahāngīr's reign, and, after staying some time in the Deccan, repaired to the court of Shāhjahān, and was attached as Munshī to Prince Murādbakhsh, whom he accompanied on his expedition to Balkh. He subsequently went to Kashmīr, in the suite of the Dīvān Mīrzā Abul-Ķāsim, and spent there the latter part of his life in great seclusion. He died some years after the accession of Aurangzīb.

In the Mir'āt ul-'Alam, composed A.H. 1078, he is spoken of as dead. See Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr, fol. 120, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 279.

The compositions of Ṭughrā, which are much admired in India, are written in a most artificial style, and so overloaded with metaphors and fanciful imagery as to render the discovery of their subject matter a by no means easy task. A short notice on some of them by Ziyā ud-Dīn Khān will be found in Or. 1941, fol. 26. A volume containing eighteen tracts by Ṭughrā, and his letters, with a commentary, has been printed in Cawnpore, 1871, under the title of سائل . See also Stewart's Catalogue, طغراى مشهدى . في بيات , p. 64, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 24, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. vi. p. 136.

The contents of the present MS. are-

I. جوش بلبل "the outpouring of the nightingale," also called "the standard of perception," in praise of the Dīvān of Ḥāfiz, fol. 1 (Cawnpore edition, No. 5.)

پیش رو ساز سخن ترانه عمد خالقست . Beg.

II. فروسيه, "the Paradisiacal," a description of Kashmīr, fol. 7. (Cawnpore edition, No. 1.)

ثنای بهار پیرائی که انکشت سبزه را Beg.

III. تقیقات, or "verifications," treating of the names of the planets, and their use in poetical imagery, fol. 23. (Cawnpore edition, No. 3.)

از بس غلط است حرف قاموس فلك . Beg.

IV. جمع الغرايب, or "collection of wonders," a description of the lake Kamam ركم, fol. 26. (Cawnpore edition, No. 8.)

چه نویسم از وسعت دریاچه کمم Beg.

Itappears from the heading that this was the piece which first called the attention of the King of Golcunda upon the author.

V. مرتفعات, description of a Darbar at the Court of Jahangir, fol. 29. (Cawapore edition, No. 7.)

نو بهار آمد که مقراض از بر بلبل کند . Beg.

VI. مرآت الفترح, "the mirror of victories," treating of the conquest of Balkh and Badakhshān by Prince Murādbakhsh, from the 19th to the 21st year of Shāhjahān (A.H. 1055—7), fol. 33. (Cawnpore edition, No. 4.)

یکه تازان میدان تقریر از دولت ستایش Beg. ناصری

VII. الهاميد, "the inspired," a Sufi tract, fol. 42. (Cawnpore edition, No. 2.)

لله الحمد كه نقش مرادم در پوست تختبند تجرد .Beg

VIII. تذكرة الاتقيا, "memorial of the godly," or eulogies on twelve eminent contemporaries, Shaikhs, Ķūzīs, physicians and poets, living in Kashmīr [among the latter are Kalīm Hamadānī (p. 686 a), and Mīr Ilāhī (p. 687 b)], fol. 53. (Cawnpore edition, No. 14.)

طغرا تا کی تیغ زبان تیز کنی Beg.

IX. جليات, "manifestations," a description of the beauties of Kashmir, with a eulogy upon Mir Husain Sabzavārī, fol. 56. (Cawnpore edition, No. 13.)

کشمیر بود فصل خران عالم نور Beg.

X. کنز المعانی, "the treasury of ideas," in praise of Shah Shuja', fol. 63. (Cawnpore edition, No. 6.)

نفایس مخزن دهان جواهر بکریمی است .

XI. تاج المداع, "the crown of eulogies," in praise of Murādbakhsh, fol. 67. (Cawnpore edition, No. 10.)

مسر خسروی و قلم بذکارش ثنای شهنشا هی است. Beg.

XII. مشابهات ربیعی, comparisons drawn from the spring and other seasons, fol. 77. (Cawnpore edition, No. 9.)

مشابهات ربیعی طغرا نسبت بنغمات .Beg. عندلیبان کلشن

The author wrote this tract, as appears from the conclusion, while engaged on the revision of the Firdausiyyah.

XIII. خسمه ناتصه, "the defective quintet," a diatribe against five personages of the Court of Golconda, fol. 81.

آزرده ام از دیدن بیدردی چند

XIV. مرات العيوب, "the mirror of blemishes," a satire on Pūlchī Khān, an Amīr of the Court of Golconda, fol. 83.

پولچى همه وتت باده، عنابى نيست Beg.

XV. Petition addressed by Mullā Sāṭi' ملا to Shāh Bahādur for a Jāgīr, fol. 87.

XVI. عنبر نامه, "the book of ambergris," an exposure of the plagiaries of Naṣīrā i Hamadānī from "the late" Zuhūrī (p. 678 a), fol. 89.

در حالتی که تیغ جان خراشرا قلمتراش شمردی .Beg.

From a versified heading it appears that this tract is not by Tughrā, but by Muķīmā, the same apparently as Muķīm Kāshī, to whom one of Tughrā's letters is addressed (see fol. 122 a).

XVII. Fol. 99 b. Ţughrā's letters رَمَات to contemporaries, such as Shāh Shujā', Ķāzī Nizāmā, Mīrzā Sanjar, the calligrapher Shamsā, Masīḥ uz-Zamān, Ķāzī-Zādah, Khwājah Lālah, Ṭālibā i Kalīm, Bazmī, Mīrzā Abulfatḥ, and others, fol. 99. (Cawnpore edition, pp. 193—270.) XVIII. کلهة الحق, "a word of truth," a complaint of the want of liberality of the king and the king's son, fol. 178.

دوران چو در ستایش مزدی بجا نداده

XIX. انوار المشارق, "the lights of the East," on the joys of spring, fol. 182. (Cawnpore edition, No. 12.)

شب نشینان بزم سخن بشراب حمد خالقی .Beg. سر خوش اند

XX. خود كاشته, "self sown," on the art of writing, and on some images derived from it, fol. 195.

نقطه من فات مخترع لوم و قلم بعظمت نورى .Beg

XXI. آشرب نامة, "Āshūb-Nāmah," in praise of the poetry of Zulālī (p. 677 a), whose seven Maşnavīs are commented upon in turn, fol. 207. (Cawnpore edition, No. 15.)

شکر ناظمی که ابیات بروج سپهر از معنی .Beg ابداعش

XXII: تعداد النوادر "enumeration of curiosities," a description of eight stages on the road to Kashmīr, fol. 220. (Cawnpore edition, No. 11.)

در تیره زمین هند دلکیر شدم

XXIII. جوش بلبل, the same as No. I., fol. 223.

XXIV. جاوسية, a panegyric addressed to Aurangzīb on his accession, fol. 228. (Cawnpore edition, No. 16.)

سر زبان از حمد شهنشاهی تواند بتاج رسید

XXV. پريخانه, "the fairy-house," in praise of Shāh 'Abbās II. of Persia, fol. 241.

لفظ قلمي كه قطعه نويسان مقال سر مشق Beg.

XXVI. ضيافت معنوى, "spiritual banquet," on a famine in the Deccan, fol. 250.

بدكن سال غم آسايش دلها تحط است

XXVII. گریه قلم, "the weeping of the kalam," a description of the rainy season, fol. 256.

جوید زتن خلق نشان تیر اجل Beg.

XXVIII. معراج الفصاحة, "the ascent of eloquence," in praise of Sayyid Bahādur Khān, fol. 259.

از حق معنی معجره آیین خواهم

XXIX. چشبه و نینی, "the source of overflow," a formulary of elegant addresses to the sovereign, preceded by a long preamble which contains a fanciful description of the Mi'rāj or Ascension of Muḥammad, fol. 263. (Cawnpore edition, No. 17.)

حمد اکبر پادشاهی که لشکر نور ناتش Beg.

XXX. ثمرة، طبى, "the medical fruit," on images derived from the medical art, fol. 294.

شکر حکیمی که دره بیدرمان ایوب Beg.

XXXI. وجديه جان, a piece containing metaphors taken from music, fol. 310.

نغمه دلنشین بترنم حمد سازنده مقام پذیرد Beg.

XXXII. نمونه "ia sample of composition," in praise of Aurangzīb, fol. 326.

سیمین ورقی زیاسمینم دادند Beg.

Add. 16,875.

Foll. 249;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 5; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, the 20th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 1151, A.D. 1738). [WM. YULE.]

Prose compositions of Ni'mat Khān 'Alī, isee pp. 268 b, 703 a), with some verses by the same, as follows:—

I. رساله و حكما, a satire on physicians, fol. 2.

حكيم على الاطلاق از دار الشفاي رحمت

II. رنات, letters to Mīrzā Mubārak Ullah Irādat Khān Vāziḥ, to Mīrzā Muḥammad Sa'īd, steward of the imperial kitchen, and other contemporaries, fol. 5.

تاریخات نتبح عالمگیر پادشاه و غیره versified chronograms relating to the victories of Aurangzīb, and other contemporary events, fol. 16.

This section includes some Kasīdahs, satires, and Rubā'is.

IV. Journal of the siege of Haidarabad (see p. 268 a), fol. 32.

V. شاه نامه شاه عالم بهادرشاه, a Court chronicle of the reign of Shāh 'Alam Bahādur (see p. 272 a), brought down in this copy to the 16th of Rabī' I., A.H. 1120.

Add. 16,866.

Foll. 83; 8½ in. by 4¾; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Rabi' I., A.H. 1154 (A.D. 1741).

[WM. YULE.]

نكات مرزا بيدل

"Subtle Thoughts," by Mirzā Bādil (see p. 706 b).

اکر منکر نبوت نه با حضرات جز بتعظیم .Beg بیش میا

This work, which is included in the Lucknow edition of the author's Kulliyāt, consists of a number of ingenious thoughts and pointed anecdotes, bearing on religious and moral subjects, in mixed prose and verse.

FABLES, TALES, AND ANECDOTES.

Or. 241.

Foll. 193; 9 in. by 5\frac{2}{3}; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, dated Safar, A.H. 1094 (A.D. 1683).

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

كتاب كليله و دمنه

The Book of Kalilah and Dimnah, translated from the Arabic version of 'Abd Ullah B. ul-Mukaffa' by Abul-Ma'ālī Naṣr Ullah B. Muḥammad B. 'Abd ul-Ḥamīd, ابو المعالى نصر الله بن محمد بن عبد الحميد

This version is praised as a model of elegance by Vassaf in a chapter devoted to Kalilah and Dimnah, Add. 23,517, fol. 516, and Ahmad Rāzī says in the Haft Iķlīm, fol. 88, that no Persian prose work was ever so much admired. The latter writer, who mentions Naṣr Ullah among the eminent men of Shīrāz origin, states that he was one of the Vazīrs of Khusrau Malik, the son and successor of Bahrām Shāh (who died A.H. 555), and that through the intrigues of his enemies he was east into prison, and finally put to death by that prince's order. See Barbier de Meynard, Diet. Géogr. de la Perse, p. 363. A similar account is found in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 449.

Bahrām Shāh, to whom the work was by his desire dedicated, ascended the throne in Ghaznīn A.H. 512, and, although hardly pressed by 'Alā ud-Dīn Ghūrī, who wrested from him his capital A.H. 522, he maintained himself in the eastern part of his empire until his death, which took place, according to the Guzīdah, A.H. 544, or, as stated in the Rauzat us-Safa, A.H. 547.

The exact date of composition is not stated, but it can be approximately inferred from the author's incidental references to his own time. Thus the death of al-Mustarshid, which took place in A.H. 529, is spoken of, fol. 11, as recent, در این عهد. The Ghaznavi dynasty is said, fol. 7, to have ruled 170 years, which, if counted from A.H. 366, when Subuktigin, according to the Tabakat i Nāsirī, established his rule in Ghaznīn, would come down to A.H. 536. Lastly, when speaking of al-Mansur, fol. 13, the author says that four hundred and odd years (چہار صد و اند سال) had elapsed since his reign. As that Khalif began to reign A.H. 136, this statement could hardly have been written before A.H. 538 or 539.

A notice on the Persian translation, with extensive extracts from Naṣr Ullah's preface, has been given by Silvestre de Sacy in Notices et Extraits, vol. x. pp. 94—140. See also Pertsch, Gotha Catalogue, p. 111. A full account of other versions will be found in J. Derenbourg's Introduction to his edition of the Hebrew text.

The work is divided into sixteen Bābs, which follow the order of S. de Sacy's No. 375 (see l.c. p. 114), but bear Arabic headings. The contents are as follows:—Naṣr Ullah's preface, wanting the first two leaves, fol. 3 a. Ibn ul-Mukaffa's preface, fol. 15 a.

I. The introduction of Buzurjmihr, fol. 21 a.

II. Life of Barzūyah, fol. 24 b. III. الاسمال المورد المور hermit and the weasel, fol. 125 b. IX. السنور, the cat and the rats, fol. 128 a. X. البراك, the king's son and the bird Fanzah, fol. 134 b. XI. المسد وابن آوى, the lion and the jackal, fol. 142 a. XII. الاسد. الاسد. المسد وابن أوى, the lion and the lioness, fol. 154 b. XIII. واللبوة, the lion and the hermit and the guest, fol. 157 b. XIV. الناسك والضيف, Balār and the Brahmines, fol. 160 b. XV. الصابح الصابح الما المنافي والصابح المنافي الما المنافي والصابح المنافي الما المنافي والصابح المنافي والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المنافية والمحابد المحابد #### Add. 5965.

Foll. 88;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by 6; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Naskhī, with Unvān and ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 626 (A.D. 1229).

ترجمه ابيات كليله و دمنه

Explanation of the Arabic verses which occur in Naṣr Ullah's version of Kalīlah and Dimnah. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 478.

Author: Fazl Ullah B. 'Uşman B. Muhammad ul-Asfizari, فضل الله بن عثمان بن عثمان وضا

حمد و ثنا خدای را جلت اسماوه و عمت .Beg

The work is dedicated to the Vazīr Majd ud-Daulah Abul-Ḥasan ʿAlī ul-Mustaufī, who is called the pride of Khwārazm and Khurāsān. At the end the author claims the reader's indulgence on account of his youth, and states his intention to explain also the verses contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the contained in the Book of Sindbād view with the Book of Si

Add. 7620.

Foll. 136; 9 in. by 6; 15 lines, 4½ in. long; written in bold Naskhi with vowel-points, apparently in the 13th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

Maķāmāt, or narratives written in rhymed prose, with a copious admixture of Arabic and Persian verses.

الحمد لله الذي شرفنا بالعلم الراسم

The work is commonly known as حيدى from its author Kāzī Ḥamīd ud-Dīn Abu Bakr Balkhī, whose name, however, does not appear in the text. Ḥamīd ud-Dīn was an eminent judge and poet of the city of Balkh. His contemporary, Anvarī, addressed to him several laudatory poems (see above, p. 555 a); two Ķiţ'ahs composed by the same poet in praise of the Maķāmāt are quoted in the Haft Iķlīm, fol. 242. Ibn ul-Aṣīr, who calls him القاضى ابو بكر المحبودي states in the Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 207, that he died A.H. 559. Haj. Khal. gives his name in full, vol. vi. p. 57: بكر بن عمر بن محمود البلغي

The Makāmāt i Ḥamīdī have been printed with marginal notes in Cawnpore, A.H. 1268. Copies are mentioned in Ouseley's Travels. vol. iii. p. 557, Ouseley's MSS., No. 707, Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 557, and the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 30.

The author states in the preface that he had read with admiration the elegant Maķāmāt of Badī' Hamadānī and Abul-Ķāsim Ḥarīrī, and had been desired by an illustrious personage, whom to obey was to him law, to match in Persian those masterpieces of Arabic prose. Hence the present work, which was commenced in the month of Jumāda II., A.H. 551. The date of the year, which has been omitted in the present copy, is found in another MS., Or. 2004, in the Cawnpore edition, and in Haj. Khal., l. c.

The Makamat, which are twenty-three in number, deal for the most part with scenes of personal adventure and travel, and with dialogues between typical characters; but their main object is the display of an exuberant richness of diction, and of that jingling parallelism which Hariri had brought into fashion. The supposed narrator in each of them is some friend of the author, not named, introduced by the words حكايت كره The text agrees with the lithographed edition, which, however, contains an additional Makamah, the twenty-fourth. The titles, many of which differ from those of the printed text, are as follows:-1. , fol. 8 a. الشيب والشبان . II. الملمعة , fol. 8 a. iii. في الربيعية . fol. 13 a. IV. في الغزو, fol. , في السكباج . VI. وفي اللغز . v. في اللغز . v. وفي اللغز . v. fol. 29 a. VII. والمعمى , fol. 39 a. في المذاظرة . IX. في التصوف . VIII. , fol. 50 α. x. الوعظ , fol. 50 α. x. السنى والملحد , في الفقه . XI. منى العشق . fol. 62 a. XII. وفي العشق , fol. 67 b. XIII. في الاعتبار, fol. 73 a. XIV. , في رقية العشق .xv في السفر والمرافقه fol. 86 b. xvi. في الجنة, fol. 92 a. xvii. في , في حكومة الزوجين .fol. 97 a. XVIII التفضيل fol. 101 b. xix. في العجاعد, fol. 106 α. xxx. في .fol. 110 b. XXI أولى مناظرة الطبيب والعجم , fol. itali, مفة الشتا , fol. 118 a. XXII. XXIII. في العزا, fol. 131 b. 125 b.

In the 13th Makamah it is related how a traveller visits Balkh, then a brilliant and thriving city, and how returning, after some years spent in a pilgrimage to Mecca, he finds it a heap of ruins. This evidently refers to the devastation of the author's native city by the Ghuz in A.H. 548.

The 22nd Makamah contains versified lists of the Khalifs in Arabic and Persian. They are brought down to al-Mustanjid (A.H. 555—566), who is spoken of as the reigning Khalif.

In an epilogue headed نصل در عذر كتاب, which in the present copy follows the 21st Makāmah, but in the printed text is found at the close of the work, the author says that, overwhelmed by the calamities of the time, he had not found it in his heart to proceed further, but had brought his work abruptly to a close. The next-following Makāmah is preceded by these words, inserted by some copyist: المقامتين قد زيدتا فكتبته لما حصلت هذا الكتاب وجدت هاتين قد زيدتا فكتبته للهامتين قد زيدتا فكتبته لله book I found these two additional Makāmahs, and I transcribed it [sic]."

On the first page is found the following title, written by the same hand as the text, in which the work is ascribed to another author, viz. to Naṣr Ullah, the translator of Kalīlah and Dimnah: المقامات بالفارسية تاليف الامير المعالى نصر الله الامام الاجل السيد الاوحد العالم ابى المعالى نصر الله بن محمد بن عبد الحميد قدس الله روحة العزيز لحزانة كتب الاجل المنعم عماد الدين وجية الاسلام ابى الفضل سعد بن الحين ادام الله افضاله

Or. 255.

Foll. 132; 9 in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik, with goldruled margins, for the library of Sulṭān-Muḥammad Ķuṭubshāh; dated Ḥaidarābād, Ramazān, A.H. 1031 (A.D. 1622).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

كتاب سندباد

The book of Sindbād, or the tale of the king's son and the seven Vazīrs; wanting the first page.

Author: Bahā ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. 'Alī B. Muḥammad B. 'Umar uz-Zahīrī ul-Kātib us-Samarkandī, بهاء الدين محمد بن عمر الظهيرى الكاتب السمرقندى

According to 'Aufī, quoted in Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 281, Zahīr ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. 'Alī Kātib Samarķandī was for a long time minister (صاحب ديوان) to Ķilij Ṭamghāj Khān. He left, as stated in Haft Iķlīm, fol. 559, the following three works: 1. سندباد contained in the present MS., 2. اغراض اغراض (Haj. Khal., vol. i. p. 368), and 3. سمع (Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 619). The second, which is, like the first, dedicated to Ķilij Ṭamghāj Khān, is not dated, but was written, as shown by its contents, after the death of Sanjar, A.H. 552. See the Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 14.

Very little is known of Kilij Tamghāj, a Turkish Khān, who reigned in Turkistan in the sixth century of the Hijrah. Ibn ul-Aşīr mentions him in the Kāmil, vol. xi. p. 55, as early as A.H. 524, and the poet Razī ud-Dīn of Nīshāpūr, who died A.H. 598, is stated in the Haft Iklīm, fol. 307, to have been his panegyrist and favourite adviser.

The present work begins with a long exordium in his praise, in which he is called ordium in his praise, in which he is called condition of the praise, in which he is called condition of the praise, in which he is called like the condition of the praise o

In the next section, fol. 11 b, the author, whose name and titles are written as follows: ميكويد مقرر اين كلمات ومحرر اين مقامات الصدر الإجل الاوحد ملك الادباء والكتاب بهاء الدين سعد الاسلام صاحب النظم والنثر معجز البيانيين مفخر اللسانيين بحر الفصاحت والبلاغه مقبل زمان وعلامة جهان فريد الدهر وحيد العصر محمد بن على بن محمد بن عمر الظهيرى وحيد العصر محمد بن على بن محمد بن عمر الظهيرى وحيد العصر محمد بن على اللاتب السمر قندي وحيد العمر محمد بن على اللاتب السمر قندي ومعهم, in Pehlevi by the sages of Persia, and had never been translated, until the Amīr Nāṣir ud-Dīn Abū Ḥāmid Nūḥ B. Manṣūr Sāmānī ordered Khwājah 'Amīd Abul-Favāris Ķanāvarzī تناورزي to turn it into Persian. This was done in the year 539, تنع وثلاثي (the date is obviously wrong, for Nūḥ B. Manṣūr reigned A.H. 365—387), but in bare and unadorned language; and that version had almost fallen into oblivion, when the author undertook to write a new one, graced with all elegances of polite speech, in order to immortalize the name of his sovereign.

The tale, which begins on fol. 17, agrees in substance with the Greek Syntipas described by Loiseleur de Longchamps in his "Essai sur les fables indiennes," pp. 93-137, and with a version in Persian verse, composed A.H. 776, and analyzed by F. Falconer in the Asiatic Journal, vol. 35, p. 169, and vol. 36, pp. 4 and 99. An earlier poetical version by Azraki, mentioned by Daulatshah and the Burhan i Kaţi', appears to be lost. The present version is noticed under the title of Sindbad Namah, by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 620, who, however, calls the author Kazvini instead of Samarkandi. There exist two other translations in Persian prose; one of them, forming part of Nakhshabi's Tūtī Namah, has been edited by H. Brockhaus, and another, by Shams ud-Din Muhammad Daķā'iķī, a poet of Marv, is mentioned by Haj. Khal., l.c., and in the Haft Iklim, fol. 223.

Notices on the origin and early versions of the Book of Sindbad will be found in the Fihrist, p. 305, in S. de Sacy's Fables de Bidpai, Notices et Extraits, vol. ix. p. 404, Gildemeister's Script. Arab. de rebus Indicis, p. 12, Benfey's Bemerkungen über das Indische Original der Sieben Weisen Meister, Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 188—203, Comparetti, Ricerche intorno al libro di Sindibad, and Fr. Baethgen, Sindban oder die Sieben Weisen Meister.

Add. 16,862.

Foll. 392; 13½ in. by 8; 33 lines, 4½ in. long; written in small Naskhi, with 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century. [WILLIAM YULE.]

جامع الحكايات ولوامع الروايات

A large collection of anecdotes.

Author: Muhammad 'Aufi, محمد عوني

ئنا و حمد مبدعی را که از بدایت صفایع وجود .Beg

The author, whose full name was Nur ud-Din Muhammad 'Aufi, as stated in the Habīb-us-Siyar, vol. ii. Juz 4, p. 163, the Nigāristān (see Krafft's Catalogue, p. 87), and the Tarikh i Firishtah, vol. i. p. 117, is mentioned in the first and third of the above works as one of the eminent writers who lived in Dehli during the reign of Iltatmish (A.H. 607-633). In the Mir'at ul-Advar, fol. 36, and Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 510, he is called Jamal ud-Din Muhammad 'Aufi. He is known as the anthor of the earliest Persian Tazkirah, لباب اللباب, a work described by Bland, Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, vol. ix. pp. 112-126, and by Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, pp. 1-6. We learn from passages of his works that he had studied in Bukhārā, that his grandfather Kāzī Abu Tāhir Yahyā B. Tāhir ul-Aufī, was a nativo of Mavara un-Nahr (or, according to Bland's copy, of Mary), and that his maternal uncle Majd ud-Din Muhammad B. 'Adnan had written for Sultan Ibrāhīm [B.] Tamghāj Khān a history of the Turkish kings (see Jami'ul Hikāyāt, fol. 369, and Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 122).

'Aufi appears to have been a great traveller; he was in Nasā in A.H. 600, and visited Khwārazm and Kambāyat. He made a lengthened stay at the residence of the Sultan Nāṣir ud-Dīn Ķubāchah, to whose Vazīr, 'Ain ul-Mulk Ḥusain ul-Ash'arī, his Lubāb ul-Albāb is dedicated, and after whose fall he passed over to the court of the conqueror, Shams ud-Din Iltatmish.

The author's exordium is devoted to the praise of the last named sovereign, and of his Vazīr, Nizām ul-Mulk Ķivām ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Abi Sa'īd ul-Junaidī. Then follows an account of the siege of Bhakar, in which Sultan Nāṣir ud-Dīn Kubāchah had sought a refuge from the invading forces of Iltatmish. The fortress was taken by the Vazīr above named on the 10th of Jumūda I., A.H. 625, and on the 19th the fugitive king perished in the river. The author, who was among the besieged, did homage to the victorious Vazīr, and completed for him the present work, which had been commenced by desire of Sultan Nāṣir ud-Dīn.

The Jami' ul-Hikayat consists of anecdotes, detached narratives, and miscellaneous notices, either eulled from historical works, or derived from oral information. It is divided into four parts (kism), each of which is subdivided into five-andtwenty Babs, as follows: -Kism I. 1. Knowledge of the Creator, fol. 5 a. 2. Miracles of the prophets, fol. 11 a. 3. Supernatural powers of saints, fol. 20 a. 4. Early kings of Persia, fol. 28 a. 5. The Khalifs, fol. 49 a. 6. Excellence of justice, and stories of just kings, fol. 84 a. 7. Lives and memorable traits of kings, fol. 92 a. 8. Witty sayings of kings, fol. 100 b. 9. Regimen of kings, fol. 104 b. 10. Answers to petitions, fol. 110  $\alpha$ . 11. Instances of sagacity, fol. 114  $\alpha$ . 12. Sound judgment, fol. 123 α. 13. Wiles and stratagems, fol. 138 b. 14. Able Vazīrs; (eight leaves are wanting after fol. 146, so that the latter part of Bab 13 and the beginning of the next are lost). 15. Advice given by sages and holy men to kings, fol. 154 a. 16. Pithy answers, fol. 160 a. 17. Aneedotes of Kazis and Ulamas, fol. 167 b. Ancedotes of secretaries, fol. 173 a. 19. Favourites, fol. 178 b. 20. Physicians and philosophers, fol. 180 a. 21. Interpreters of dreams, fol. 182 a. 22. Astrologers, fol. 185 a. 23. Poets, fol. 186 b. 24. Singers, fol. 188 b. Wits, fol. 189 b.

Kism II. Anecdotes illustrating praiseworthy qualities, as modesty, humility, forgiveness, elemency, etc., in twenty-five Bābs, fol. 196 b.

Kism III. Anecdotes relating to blameable qualities, as envy, avariee, eovetousness, etc., similarly divided, fol. 274 b.

Kism IV. 1. Advantages of the service of kings, fol. 325 b. 2. Drawbacks of the service of kings, fol. 327 b. 3. Fear and hope, fol. 329 a. 4. Efficacy of prayer, fol. 331 a. 5. Prayers handed down by tradition, fol. 332 b. 6. Curious omens, fol. 334 b. 7. Escapes from persecution, fol. 336 a. 8. Escapes from brigands, fol. 338 a. 9. Escapes from wild beasts, fol. 339 b. 10. Men who perished in the whirlpool of love, fol. 342 a. 12. Men who escaped from the whirlpool of love, fol. 344 b. 12. Men who escaped from the abyss of perdition, fol. 354 b. 13. Wonders of destiny, fol. 358 b. 14. Marvels of ereation, fol. 361 b. 15. Longevity in animals, fol.  $363 \alpha$ . 16. Countries and routes, a sketch of geography, fol. 365 b. 17. Account of Rūm, Arabia, Abyssinia, and India, fol. 368 b. 18. Remarkable buildings, fol. 371 a. 19. Strange talismans, fol. 374 a. 20. Curious properties of natural objects, fol. 376 b. 21. Temperaments of animals, fol. 378 a. 22. Wild beasts, fol. 382 b. 23. Strange animals, fol. 386 a. 24. Curious birds, fol. 388 a. 25. Facetiousness of the great, fol. 390 b.

On the first page is a note written in Bijāpūr, probably in the 17th century. The last seven leaves of the MS. have short gaps, apparently due to the mutilated state of the copy from which it was transcribed.

The headings of the Jāmi' ul-Ḥikāyāt are given in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 410, and, from a Turkish version, in the Jahrbücher, vol. 70, Anzeige Blatt, pp. 77-82. Some extracts, with Professor Dowson's notice on the author, will be found in Elliot's History of India, vol. ii. pp. 155-203. See Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 728, Sir Wm. Ouseley's Travels, vol. ii. p. 363, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 56.

Or. 236.

Foll. 541; 111 in. by 8; 29 lines, 61 in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 16th or 17th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same work.

The beginning and end of the MS., viz., foll. 3-18, 536-541, are older than the middle part, probably of the 15th century. That portion was transcribed, as stated at the end, from a MS. dated A.H. 712.

Add. 7672.

Foll. 252; 101 in. by 7; 22 lines, 41 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1025 (A.D. 1616).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

Kism III. and Kism IV. of the same work. There are about two pages wanting at the beginning of each Kism.

Or. 1584.

Foll. 34; 8 in. by 57; about 32 lines, 37 in. long; written in small cursive Nestalik; dated Kars, A.H. 1133 (A.D. 1721).

[SIR HENRY C. RAWLINSON.]

A collection of anecdotes and miscellaneous notices, without preface or author's name.

باب اول در ذکر مکرهای خداوندان عقل Beg. در دفع خصیان

On the first page is found the title with a table of the thirtyfive Babs into which the work is divided. They are as follows: 1. Stratagems of wise men for warding off enemies. 2. Properties of minerals. 3. Properties of animals. 4. Rare animals. 5. Strange birds. 6. Devices of kings. 7. Praiseworthy qualities of kings. 8. Witty sayings of kings. 9. Speech and silence. 10. Fidelity and good faith. 11. Longevity. 12. The seven climes, countries and races. 13. Remarkable buildings. 14. Talismans. 15. Human monstrosities. 16. Strokes of destiny. 17. Ready answers. 18. Anecdotes of Kazis and Imams. 19. Good qualities. 20. Firmness. 21. Advantage of taking advice. 21. Temperaments of men. 23. Hate and envy. 24. Cupidity. 25. Ancedotes of covetous men. 26. Avarice. 27. Lying and truthfulness. 28. False prophets. 29. Pretensions which saved men from ruin. 30. Anecdotes of fools. 31. Facetiæ. 34. Wiles of 32. Thieves. 33. Beggars. women. 35. Instances of chastity.

The work appears to have been compiled in the seventh century of the Hijrah. Imam Muhammad Aufi is twice named, and several anecdotes are taken from his Jāmi' ul-Ḥikāyat; but, on the other hand, no later dynasty than that of the Khwarazmshahis is mentioned. The present copy, written by 'Ali B. Muhammad Shirvani, contains only an abridgment made by him, as appears from هذا مها انتخبه الفقير الى الله : the subscription الغنى على بن محمد الشرواني في بلدة قرص سنة ثلثه وثاثير بعد الف وماية من الهجرة النبوية

Add. 7673.

Foll. 359; 11½ in. by 8; 21 lines, 5 in. long; written in Naskhi; dated Sha'ban, A.H. 903 (A.D. 1498). Cl. J. RICH.

ترجمة الفرج بعد الشدة والضيقه

Narratives of wonderful cases of deliverance from distress or escape from danger, translated from the Arabic by Ḥusain B. As'ad B. Ḥusain ul-Muayyadī ud-Dihistānī, حسين بن بن عسين المويدي الدهستاني

حمد و ثناء قيومي را كه عجز عقول

The author states in the preface that he had been desired by the illustrious Vazīr 'Izz ud-Dīn Ṭāhir B. Zingī ul-Faryūmadī الفريومدى," "who had restored peace and prosperity to a distracted world," to produce a work on the above subject, and, finding nothing more appropriate than the Arabic work entitled appropriate than the Arabic work entitled الفرج بعد الشدة والضيقه, by Abul-Ḥasan 'Alī B. Muḥammad ul-Madā'inī, he had selected it for translation.

There can be no doubt, however, that the original of the present translation was the well-known work الفرج بعد الشدة of Abu 'Alī ul-Muḥassin B. Abil-Ķāsim 'Alī, commonly called al-Kāzī ut-Tanūkhī, who died in Basrah, A.H. 384. (See Ibn Khallikan's translation, vol. ii. p. 564, the Kāmil, vol. ix. p. 74, Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 411, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 213.) Kāzī Tanūkhi is frequently named in the body of the work as the narrator, and he is distinctly designated as the author in the following introduction to one of the anecdotes, fol. 261 a:—"The author of the work says as follows: My father, Kāzī Abul-Kāsim ut-Tanūkhī, relates," etc. This evidently refers to the father of the same writer, viz. Abul-Kāsim 'Alī B. Muhammad ut-Tanūkhī, who died A.H. 342 (see Ibn Khallikan, vol. ii. p. 564).

The attribution of the work to al-Madāinī, a much earlier writer, appears to be an error of the translator, who probably mistook one of the authorities quoted by Ķāzī Tanūkhī for the writer of the book. Abul-Ḥasan 'Alī

B. Muḥammad ul-Madā'inī, a native of Baṣrah, lived in Madā'in, and subsequently in Baghdād, where he died A.H. 224 or 225, leaving several works treating of the history of the Arabs and of the early wars of Islamism. See Ansāb us-Sam'ānī, fol. 515, and the Kāmil, vol. x. p. 368.

Copies of the same version, all ascribing the original work to al-Madā'inī, are noticed in Fleischer's Dresden Catalogue, No. 135, and in the catalogues of Münich, p. 56, St. Petersburg, p. 408, and Vienna, vol. iii. p. 451. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 84, No. V.

In the present copy the work is divided into thirteen chapters, each containing a large number of detached narratives. These consist for the most part of historical anecdotes relating to the times of the Umayyades and of the Abbasides down to the fourth eentury of the Hijrah. The Arabic verses are given in the original language, with metrical paraphrase by the translator, who not unfrequently adds to the text verses and remarks of his own.

Add. 7717.

Foll. 167; 10 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{5}{5}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1074 (A.D. 1663). [Cl. J. Rich.]

بساتين الانس

King Kishvargīr and princess Mulk-ārāi, a Hindu tale, written in ornate prose, copiously interspersed with Arabic and Persian verses.

Beg. سياس حمد و سياس The author, whose name is written, fol. 8 b, as follows: محمد صدر علاء احمد حسن دبير describes , as follows عيدوسي الملقب بتاج المعروف باختسان , describes himself as a native of Dehli, an hereditary servant of the Court, and a secretary of the royal chancelry, الانشا

A flowery preface, which occupies no less than forty-six pages, begins with panegyrics on the reigning sovereign Muḥammad Shāh B. Tughluķ Shāh (A.H. 725—752) and bis predecessor Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Abul-Muzaffar Tughluķ Shāh. Then follows a detailed account of the latter's expedition to Tirhut (A.H. 725; see Firishtah, vol. i. p. 406). The author, who was in the Sultan's suite, describes the overwhelming heat and other hardships he had to endure on the return journey to Dehli. There he fell ill, and was only saved by the skill of the great Ḥakīm Muḥammad Khujandī.

* From Faryūmad, a town of the district of Sabzavār, the birthplace of Khwājah 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad, Vazīr of Khorasan under Sultan Abu Sa'id. See Daulatshāh, v., 6, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 61.

During his convalescence the present tale was brought to him for his amusement, and, as it was written in very plain language, he was requested to draw it up in elegant prose, a task which he completed in the space of a few months, A.H. 726, being then in his twenty-sixth year. He concludes with a grateful acknowledgment of the favours showered upon him by Muḥammad Shāh, who for a single Kaṣīdah had given him sixty thousand Dīnārs and sixty horses.

The scene of the tale is laid in India. The Rajas of Ujjain and Kinnauj are the principal actors.

Royal 16 B. xII.

Foll. 272;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ardibihisht, in the year 1039 of Yazdajird (A.D. 1670).

[THO. HYDE.]

طوطى نامه

The tales of a parrot, a Persian version by Ziyā'i Naklıshabī, ضياي نشبى (see p. 740 b).

The author says in the preface that some great personage, whom he does not name, had shown him a book containing fifty-two tales, originally written in the Indian tongue, and, as the translation was prolix, inelegant, and ill-arranged, had requested him to rewrite it in a more attractive form. He adds that in so doing he has in some instances substituted new stories for inferior tales. The work was completed, as stated in some verses at the end, in A.H. 730.

This copy was written by a Pārsī, Khwurshīd B. Isfandiyār, surnamed ادهارو, for Captain Aungier, كيتان الجي

The Tūtī Nāmah has been translated into English by M. Gerrans, London, 1792, and its abridgment by Kādirī into German by C. J. L. Iken, Stuttgart, 1837. The latter version contains an appendix on Nakhshabī's work by Kosegarten. See also Pertsch, Ueber Nachschabi's Papagaienbuch, Zeitschrift der D. M. G., vol. xxi. p. 505, and Benfey, Göttinger Gelehrte Anzeigen, 1858, p. 529. A Turkish imitation of Nakhshabi's Tūtī Nāmah has been translated into German by Georg Rosen, Leipzig, 1858.

Add. 5627.

Foll. 168; 10 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, early in the 18th century.

[NATH. BRASSEY HALHED].

The same work, wanting a few lines at the end.

Add. 6638.

Foll. 469; 9½ in. by 5½; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in large Nestalik, about the beginning of the 18th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

The same work, wanting about six leaves at the end.

Add. 10,589.

Foll. 149;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 9 lines,  $3\frac{7}{6}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

An abridged version of the Ṭūṭī Nāmah, by Abul-Fazl B. Mubārak, ابو الفضل بن مبارك (see p. 247 b).

بعد سپاس خداوند زمان و زمین و ستایش دادار. Beg

This abridgment was written, as stated in the preface, by order of Akbar. It contains, like Nakhshabi's version, fifty-two tales.

The preface and the first thirty-five tales have a Dakhnī translation written between the lines.

Add. 12,401.

Foll. 63;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Indian Shikastah, apparently in the 18th century.

[J. CRAWFURD.]

The abridgment of Nakhshabi's Ṭūṭī Nā-mah, by Muḥammad Ķādirī, حجد قادري.

بعداز جنس جنس ثنا وصفت پدیداکننده آسهان . Beg.

The author says in a short preamble that, the style of Nakhshabī being hard and difficult to be understood, he had found it expedient to put his work into plain and intelligible language. The number of the tales is reduced from fifty-two to thirty-five.

The thirty-third tale is repeated at the end, foll. 56-63, in another hand.

Ķādiri's Ṭūṭī Nāmah has been printed with an English version in Calcutta, and in London, 1801. See Kosegarten, Anhang zu Iken's Ṭūṭī Nāmah, p. 175.

Add. 6964.

Foll. 115; 9 in. by 7; about 15 lines in a page; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1806.

Tales extracted from Kādirī's Tūtī Nāmah, with the English translation transcribed from the Calcutta edition, and two short narratives from another source.

Add. 16,864.

Foll. 38; 9 in. by 6; 10 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Il\(\bar{a}\)ha\(\bar{a}\)b\(\bar{a}\)d Ramaz\(\bar{a}\)n, A.H. 1194 (A.D. 1780).

[WM. YULE.]

Another abridgment of the Tales of a Parrot, in still plainer language than Kādiri's.

حمد و سپاس قادر بیچون را که طوطی خوش لهجه . Beg

It contains only the four following tales: The merchant's son and the bird shārak. The goldsmith and the carpenter. The four companions. The Brahman's son and his wife.

Add. 16,813.

Foll. 202: 10 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $3\frac{7}{6}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. [WM. YULE.]

نگارستان

A collection of moral anecdotes, in prose and verse.

Author: Mu'inī ul-Juvainī, معینی الجوینی Beg. حمد و سپاس خدائی را که ازلیتش از سمت بدایت

Maulānā Mu'īn ud-Dīn, born in Āvah, near Juvain, died about the close of the eighth century of the Hijrah. He was a man of great piety, and a disciple of Shaikh Sa'd ud-Dīn Ḥummū'ī in Sufism, and of Fakhr ud-Dīn Asfarā'inī in sciences. See Ilāhī, Oude Catalogue, p. 85, Taķī, ib., p. 19, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 322.

After eulogies on the reigning sovereign, Abu Sa'id Bahādur Khān, and his Vazīr Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Muḥammad, son of the celebrated Rashīd ud-Dīn, the author says that, Sa'di's Gulistān having been once praised in an assembly of learned men in his father's house, he observed that, notwithstanding its undeniable merit, it had the drawback of being too well known, and that it was time to produce a similar work which had the charm of novelty, a task which his father encouraged him to perform. That design, however, was not carried out until much later, in A.H. 735. The title was suggested by the name of a garden near Nīshāpūr, called Nigāristān, which the author happened to visit about that time. The work is dedicated to Mu'īni's spiritual guide, Sa'd ud-Dīn Yūsuf B. Ibrāhīm B. Muḥammad ul-Mu'ayyad ul-Ḥummū'ī, a grandson of the famous Sufi, Sa'd ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. ul-Mu'ayyad Ḥummū'ī, who died A.H. 650; see Nafaḥāt, p. 492.

The Nigāristān is divided into seven Bābs, with the following headings:—

See Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 381, Uri, p. 271, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 732.

Add. 7775.

Foll. 78; 7½ in. by 4¾; 13 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

بہارستان

A collection of moral anecdotes, in prose and verse, by Jami (see p. 17 a).

The author wrote it, as stated in the preface, while he was reading Sa'di's Gulistan with his son, Ziya ud-Din Yusuf, and in imitation of that work. He divided it into eight Rauzahs, and dedicated it to Sultan Husain. The date of composition, A.H. S92, is expressed in the following line at the end:

The Bahāristān has been edited, with a German translation, by Freiherr von Schlechta Vssehrd, Vienna, 1846. It has been printed in Lucknow without date, and, with a Turkish commentary, in Constantinople, A.H. 1252.

Add. 19,810.

Foll. 170; 8½ in. by 4½; 13 lines, 25 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 962 (A.D. 1584).

The same work, with Turkish glosses on the first six pages.

Add. 26,287.

Foll. 83; 6½ in. by 4½; 15 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

The same work.

The last three leaves are supplied by a later hand.

Add. 10,002.

Foll. 137; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

A Turkish commentary upon the Bahā-ristān, with the text, by Sham'i (see p. 607 a).

Beg. حمد و سپاس بي عد خداي را كه عليم وحكيم The work is dedicated to Muhammad Pāshā, Grand Vazīr of Sultan Murād B. Salīm (A.H. 982—1003).

See the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 357, the Gotha Catalogue, p. 107, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 52.

Add. 18,579.

Foll. 426; 9\frac{2}{4} in. by 6; 19 lines, 2\frac{2}{4} in. long; written in Naskhi with a rich 'Unvān, gold-ruled margins, and thirty-six miniatures in the best Indian style; dated A.H. 1019 (A.D. 1610); bound in stamped and gilt leather.

انوار سهيلي

A modernized version of Kalīlah and Dimnah by Ḥusain B. 'Alī ul-Vā'iz Kāshifī (see p. 9 b).

حضرت حكيم على الاطلاق جلت حكمت كه .Beg. كم تنه كه .وقائف

The author states in the preface that, the version of Naṣr Ullah (see p. 745 a) being antiquated and difficult to read, he had been requested by Niẓām ud-Dīn Amīr Shaikh Aḥmad, called as-Suhailī, to re-write the work in an easy and attractive style. In so doing he had left out the first two chapters, as irrelevant, and reduced the work to fourteen.

The above-mentioned Nizām ud-Dīn Shaikh Aḥmad was a Turkish Āmīr of the Chaghatāi tribe, and a favourite of Abulghāzī Sulṭān Husain. He received the surname of Suhailī from his spiritual guide Shaikh Āzarī, composed a Persian and a Turkish Dīvān, and died A.H. 907, according to Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 20, or A.H. 908, as stated in the Ātaskkadah, fol. 8. See also Daulatshāh, viii. 3, and Sām Mīrzā, fol. 150.

The Anvār i Suhailī has been printed in Hertford 1805, in Calcutta 1804, 1816, and repeatedly since. English translations by E. B. Eastwick and A. N. Wollaston have been published in 1854 and 1878. See S. de Saey, Fables de Bidpai, preface, pp. 42—47.

In a note on the fly-leaf Mīrzā Shīr 'Alī states that this MS., written and illuminated for Tānā Shāh (the last king of Goleonda), had been given him on account of pay at the rate of 500 rupees.

Add. 26,312.

Foll 379; 9½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India; dated Rajab, A.H. 1198 (A.D. 1784.)

[Wm. Erskine.]

The same work.

Add. 26,313.

Foll. 244;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written by different hands, apparently in India, in the 17th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The same work, slightly imperfect at the end.

Egerton 1106.

Foll. 356; 10<sup>3</sup> in. by 7<sup>3</sup>; 17 lines, 5 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century. [ADAM CLARKE.] The same work.

Add. 6636.

Fol. 326;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in India; dated Jumada II., A.H. 1104 (A.D. 1693).

[JAMES GRANT.]

The same work, with a table of contents, foll. 1—6.

فتم الله ساكن سليم قصبه تپربرارى : Copyist

Sloane 3248.

Foll. 13;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 8; 20 lines,  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, by Salomon Negri (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 335, note c), about the beginning of the 18th century.

The tale of the hermit and the pimp, from the Anvār i Suhailī, with the Turkish version from the Humāyūn Nāmah.

Add. 4945.

Foll. 217; 10 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in neat Nestalik; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1183 (A.D. 1770).

[CLAUD RUSSELL.]

عيار دانش

A modernized version of Kalilah and Dim-nah, by Abul-Fazl B. Mubārak, ابو الفضل بن (see p. 247 b).

سپاس ازل و ابد خداوندی را که تا کران Beg.

It appears, from a very diffuse preface, that the author had been commanded by Akbar to re-write in plain and easy language the version of Husain Vā'iz, and that he restored in his work the preliminary chapters omitted by the latter, thus bringing up the total number of chapters to sixteen. The new version was completed, as stated at the end, fol. 214 b, in the thirty-third year of the reign of Akbar, or A.H. 996. See S. de Sacy, Notices et Extraits, vol. x., pp. 197—225, Fables de Bidpaï, pp. 47—51, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 286.

Add. 25,832.

Foll. 432; 8½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nashki, apparently early in the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]
The same work.

Or. 477.

Foll. 334; 9 in. by 5\(\frac{3}{4}\); 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins, and 38 miniatures in Indian style; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1217 (A.D. 1803).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same work.

Add. 25,833.

Foll. 97; 9 in. by 5½; 18 lines, 3§ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Bandar Bharoch (Broach), Jumādā II., A.H. 1195 (A.D. 1781). [WM. CURETON.]

مفرح القلوب

Mufarrih ul-Kulūb, the Persian translation of the Hitopadesa.

حمد سپاس بیقیاس مرحضرت شاهیرا که .Beg. از جمله بندگان خویش

Author: Tāj (i.e. Tāj ud-Dīn B.) Mu'īn ud-Dīn Malikī, تاج معين الدين ملكي.

The translation was made, as stated in a short preamble, by order of Malik Naṣr ud-Dīn (in some copies Naṣīr ud-Dīn), fief-holder of Shiṣḥṣ (?) Bihār, ماك المارك الشرق الشرق, a prince whose epoch has not been ascertained.

A full account of this version has been given by S. de Sacy in "Notices et Extraits," vol. x. pp. 226—264. Copies are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 83, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 29, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 47. A Hindustani translation entitled Akhlūķ i Hindī has been published in Calcutta, 1803. See Garcin de Tassy, Littérature Hindoui, 2nd edition, vol. i. pp. 188, 609.

Add. 18,408.

Foll. 158; 9½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in fair Nestalik; dated Safar, A.H. 1087 (A.D. 1676). [WM. YULE.]

لطائف الطوائف

A collection of witty sayings and anec-

Author: 'Alī B. ul-Ḥusain ul-Vā'iz ul-Kāshifī, called aṣ-Ṣafī, الواعظ المشتهر باصفى (see p. 353 a).

بعد از ادای لطائف تحمیدات الهي و وظایف . Beg. صلوة

The author says that after his release from one year's confinement at Herat, in A.H. 939, he repaired, under untold hardships, to the hills of Gharjistān. There he was graciously received by the Sultan Shāh-Muḥammad, for whose diversion he completed the present work, which he had previously compiled. It is divided into fourteen Bābs, according to the persons, or classes of men, to which the anecdotes relate, as follows: 1. Muḥammad. 2. The Imāms. 3. Kings. 4. Amīrs, royal favourites, and Vazīrs. 5. Men of letters, secretaries, etc. 6. Arabs of the desert, elegant speakers, etc. 7. Shaikhs, 'Ulamā, Ķāzīs, etc. 8. Philosophers and physicians. 9. Poets. 10. Wags. 11. Misers, gluttons, and parasites. 12. Covetous men, thieves, beggars, etc. 13. Children and slaves. 14. Simpletons, liars, and impostors.

This copy was corrected, as stated at the end, for Major Yule, by Sayyid Muhammad Navāz of Dehli.

The same work is mentioned under the title of الطايف الظرايف in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 26, and Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1635.

Add. 8915.

Fol. 206; 10 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1233 (A.D. 1818).

The same work.

Or. 239.

Foll. 428; 11½ in. by 7½; 21 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1079 (A.D. 1668).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

زينت المجالس

A vast collection of anecdotes and stories, containing also historical, geographical, and other miscellaneous notices.

Author: Majd ud-Din Muhammad ul-بالاعمان عمل الدين محمد الدين محمد الدين المتخلص بعجدي

شناي نا متناهی و حمد نا محصور .Beg. بران سزاست که شد هر دو کون ازو معمور

The author lived in Persia under Shāh Abbās I. The predilection and minuteness with which he speaks of Kāshān make it probable that it was his native place. He states in the preface that he had begun to arrange his long collected materials at the instance of some friends in A.H. 1004 (Or. 238, fol. 1 b). He enumerates the fol-, lowing works as his principal sources: Jāmi' ul-Hikāyāt by Muhammad 'Aufī, Nuzhat ul-Kulūb, Habīb us-Siyar, Rauzat us-Safā, Kashb ul-Ghummah by 'Alī B. 'Īsā (Haj. Khal. vol. v. p. 211), Tārīkh Abu Hanīfah Dinayari, Ibn Khallikan, Bahjat ul-Mabahij by Hasan B. Husain Sabzavārī, Nigāristān by Ghaffari, Aja'ib ul-Makhlükat, al-Faraj ba'dash-Shiddah, Tārīkh i Yāfi'ī, and Tārīkh i Hafiz Abrū.

While following the general arrangement of the Jāmi' ul-Ḥikāyāt (see p. 749 b), the author has adopted a division of his own. The work consists of nine parts (Juz), each of which is divided into ten chapters (Faṣl), as follows:—

Juz I. 1. Knowledge of God, fol. 2 a. 2. Miracles of the prophets, fol. 3 b. 3. Supernatural powers of the saints, fol. 8 a. 4. Early kings of Persia, fol. 18 a. 5. Khalifs, fol. 42 b. 6. Muslim kings contemporary with the Abbasides, fol. 85 a. 7. Anecdotes on justice, fol. 105 a. 8. Traits of the life and manners of kings, fol. 112 a. 9. Witty sayings of the great, fol. 116 b. 10. Instances of sagacity in kings, fol. 119 a.

Juz II. 1. Instances of the divine guidance of kings and their ordinances, fol. 122 a. 2. Cunning devices, fol. 124 a. 3. Penetration, fol. 134 a. 4. Stratagems, fol. 142 b. 5. Skill of Vazīrs, fol. 153 a. 6. Advice of sages to kings, fol. 158 b. 7. Pithy answers, fol. 161 a. 8. Remarkable judgments, fol. 167 a. 9. Anecdotes of secretaries, fol. 171 b. 10. Anecdotes of royal favourites, fol. 176 b.

Juz III. Anecdotes of physicians, fol. 181 a, astrologers, fol. 183 b, poets, fol. 186 a, singers, fol. 189 a, wits, fol. 190 b, interpreters of dreams, fol. 195 a. Anecdotes illustrating modesty, fol. 199 a, humility, fol. 200 a, clemency, fol. 202 a, magnanimity, fol. 206 b.

Juz IV. Anecdotes illustrating urbanity, fol. 208 b, compassion, fol. 210 b, trust in God, fol. 212 a, munificence, fol. 213 b, hospitality, fol. 217 b, valour, fol. 220 b, patience, fol. 223 b, gratitude, fol. 224 b, piety, and caution, fol. 227 a.

Juz V. Anecdotes relating to diligence, silence, good faith, peace-making, secresy, probity, good temper, firmness of purpose, the taking of advice, and the diversity of men's dispositions, fol. 230 b.

Juz VI. Anecdotes on envy, greed, and cupidity; anecdotes of knaves, and beggars; stories relating to falsehood, oppression, avarice, bad faith, and foolishness, fol. 251 b.

Juz VII. Anecdotes on harshness, meanness, prodigality, treachery, incontinence, ingratitude, slander, rashness, on vile men, and on pious women, fol. 269 b.

Juz VIII. Service of kings; hope and fear; efficacy of prayer; curious auguries; deliverance from distress; escapes from brigands, from wild beasts, from the pangs of love, from the whirlpool of ruin; wonderful strokes of destiny, fol. 290 b.

Juz IX. 1. On human monstrosities and longevity, fol. 319 a. 2. Geographical sketch of the world, and of Persia in particular, fol. 321 a. 3. Remarkable buildings, fol. 351 a (including an account of the seas which should form part of the preceding chapter, foll. 355 b-358 a). 4. Talismans and wonders of the world, fol. 360 a. 5-7. Properties of domestic and wild animals, fol. 365 a, of beasts of prey, fol. 377 a, and of birds, fol. 379 a. 8. Jokes and pleasantries, fol. 379 a. 9. History of the Moghuls, i.c. Chingiz Khan and his successors, with the Chūpāni, Ilkāni, Muzaffari, Kurt and Sarbadar dynasties, fol. 388 a, Timur and his successors in Iran, the Kara Kuyunlus, Ak-Kuyunlus, and the Uzbak Khans, down to the accession of 'Abdul-Laṭīf Khān, in A:H. 947, fol. 405 a. 10. History of the Ṣafavīs, fol. 421 a. The last section contains a sketch of the reign of Shāh Ismā'īl. In conclusion, the author, after a short reference to the accession of Shāh Ṭahmāsp and two of his victories, announces his intention of devoting a separate work to the history of that Shāh's reign.

The present copy wants a leaf which contained the greater part of the preface. One leaf or more, which followed fol. 426 and concluded the account of Shāh Ismā'īl's reign, is also lost.

The Zinat ul-Majālis has been printed in Teheran, A.H. 1270. A few extracts are given in Elliot's History of India, vol. ii. p. 506. See also Barbier de Meynard, Dictionnaire Géographique, preface, p. 20, Sir Wm. Ouseley's Travels, vol. i. p. 19, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 679, vol. v. pp. 246, 519.

Or. 238.

Foll. 303; 13½ in. by 8½; 23 lines, 5½ in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

The same work.

This copy wants the latter portion of Faşl 6, Juz i. (Or. 239, foll. 101—4), and Faşls 9 and 10 of Juz ix. (Or. 239, foll. 405—428).

Or. 237.

Foll. 320; 10\frac{1}{4} in. by 6\frac{2}{4}; 21 lines, 4\frac{2}{4} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with ruled margins, apparently in the 16th or beginning of the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

A collection of tales.

Author: Muḥammad Kāzim B. Mīrak Ḥusain Muzaffarī Sajāvandī, poetically sur-محمد كاظم بن ميرك حسين مظفرى , مخلص بي ميرك سجاوندى متخلص بحبى بنام خالق دانای رزاق Beg. معلق آفرین جرخ نه طاق

The author says in a short preamble that he was seventy years of age when he compiled these rare and wonderful tales, حكيات. They are stories which he had heard told in the assemblies of the great, and which he had written down in correct and elegant language.

The tales, which are mostly of considerable extent, are partly taken from the Arabian Nights. They are the following:-

Decianus and the seven sleepers, fol. 3 b. Mansur the jeweller, and Yusuf the barber, fol. 24 b. Mihr u Māh, fol. 56 a. Sa'd B. Mas'ud, the jeweller of Isfahan, fol. 89 b. Dallah, the wily woman, fol. 104 a. The Arab, his wife Uriyah, and his brother, fol. 117 b. The prince, his parents, and the questions of the princess of China, fol. 130 b. The wife of the builder, and the Vazirs of the king, fol. 140 b. Prince Shahanshah, who became known as Gul-Baghban, fol. Shirzad, and how the daughter of the king of Kābul fell in love with him, fol. 166 a. Solomon's debate with the Simurgh on predestination, fol. 176 b. Prince Zain ul-Ihtisham, the king of the Jinns, and the slave Mubārak, fol. 187 a. Salim the jeweller, and Hajjāj B. Yūsuf, fol. 198 b. The three brothers, and how Hārūn ur-Rashid enquired into their history, fol. 208 a. Rizvānshāh and the daughter of the king of the Paris, fol. 217 a. Fazl Ullah of Mausil and his falling in love with the daughter of the Ra'is Muaffak, fol. 226 a. Hārūn ur-Rashid, Fazl Ullah B. Rabi', and Abul-Kāsim Basrī, fol. 235 a. Khwājah Affān, the son who was born to him in his absence, and Khwajah 'Uriya, fol. 244 a. The king of Balkh and his dispute with his Vazir about a man without sorrow, fol. 252 a.

The remaining portion of the volume contains tales which gradually decrease in length. The last, relating to a white snake which was saved from death by a king, and turned out to be a king of the Paris, breaks off at the end of the first page.

A modern table of contents occupies two leaves at the beginning.

Add. 7095.

Foll. 167;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 20 lines,  $3\frac{2}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulķa'dah, the 45th year of the reign (of Aurangzīb, i. e. A.H. 1112, A.D. 1701). [J. H. HINDLEY.]

قصه امير حمزه The romance of Amīr Ḥamzah, قصه امير حمزه Beg. عمد موفور و ثناى نا محصور مر ذوالجلال را كه بقدرت كمال خويش

Ḥamzah, who was a son of 'Abd ul-Muṭṭalib, and consequently an uncle of Muḥammad, is here converted into an imaginary hero of romance. The narrative deals at great length with his adventures at the court of Nūshīrvān, his wooing of that king's daughter, Mihrnigār, and his valiant deeds on various expeditions against the giant king of Serendīb, the Ḥaiṣar of Rūm, the 'Azīz of Egypt, etc.

This volume is divided into twelve sections called اسمار, each of which is headed by some verses. The narrative concludes with Hamzah's expedition to the mountain Kāf, and his subsequent meeting with Mihrnigār in Tanger.

In the subscription the work is designated as اسمار الحمزة, and ascribed to Shāh-Nāṣir ud-Dīn Muḥammad, شاه ناصر الدين محمد

The contents correspond with the first twenty-eight Dāstāns, or about the first half, of the next-following MS., Add. 7054, foll. 1—155.

Copies are mentioned in Fleischer's Dresden Catalogue, where the work is ascribed to Abul-Ma'ālī, in the Munich Catalogue, p. 55, the Ouseley Collection, No. 430, Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1628, and a Turkish version is noticed in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 29.

The Dastan i Amir Ḥamzah has been lithographed in the press of Navalkishor. An enlarged version called (see further on, Add. 24,418) has been printed in seven volumes, Teheran, A.H. 1274.

Ashk, the author of a Hindustani version of the Ķiṣṣah i Amīr Ḥamzah, attributes the original to Mullā Jalāl Balkhī. See Garein de Tassy, Hist. de la Litt. Hind., 2nd ed., vol. i. p. 236.

Add. 7054.

Foll. 300; 9½ in. by 6½; 17 lines, 3¼ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumādā II, A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1774.) [J. H. HINDLEY.] The same romance.

With regard to the incidents and their arrangement this version agrees substantially with the preceding; but it is written in much plainer and more familiar style. It is divided into seventy-one short sections, called Dastan, and closes with the death of the hero, treacherously slain by the mother of Pūr i Hind.

In the subscription the work is called مناك نام امير المومنين حمزه, and is ascribed to Hamzah's brother, Hazrat 'Abbās, who, in the preamble, is stated to have written down from time to time a record of the high deeds of Hamzah. Sixteen additional leaves contain a table of chapters written in Persian and English by the Rev. J. H. Hindley.

Egerton 1017.

Foll. 266; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in large Nestalik, apparently in India, early in the 18th century.

A version similar to the preceding, and divided in like manner.

The volume is imperfect at both ends. It begins, fol. 3 a, in the middle of Dāstān 8, treating of the fight of Ḥamzah with Sa'd B. Ma'dī Karib and his brothers (Add. 7054, fol. 36 b), and breaks off, fol. 264 b, in the middle of Dāstān 68, in which is related the slaying by Ḥamzah of the giant king of Nayistān (Add. 7054, fol. 289 b, Dāstān 66). A falso beginning and end have been added by a later hand.

Or. 1392.

Foll. 317; 8\frac{2}{3} in. by 7; 14 lines, 5\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Chinapatan (Madras), Safar, A.H. 1214 (A.D. 1799).

Another version of the same romance, divided into eighty-two Dastans.

Although having some leading features in common with the preceding versions, it differs from them very considerably in the succession, relative proportions, and particulars of the adventures, as well as in language.

Add. 24,418.

Foll. 330; 15½ in. by 8¾; 30 lines, 6¼ in. long; written in small Shikastah-āmīz, probably in India, early in the 18th century.

[Sir JOHN MALCOLM.]

An enlarged version of the same romance. The narrative follows the same general course as in the preceding versions, but a great number of new personages and incidents is introduced. Hamzah is uniformly called Amīr Ṣāḥib Ķirān, "the Amīr of the fortunate conjunction," and the title of Ṣāḥib Ķirān is also given to two of his companions, born on the same day as himself, who both play a conspicuous part in this version, namely Mukbil, son of Khair, a slave of 'Abd ul-Muttalib, and 'Umar, son of Umayyah, the camel-driver.

The work is divided into a great many sections called Dāstān, but not numbered. The present copy, which is imperfect at both ends, begins with an account of the misdeeds of Arghash, Vazīr of Kaikubād, who is finally put to death, and replaced by Buzurjmihr. The next following rubric is: حال تولد یانتی انوشیروان و خواجه بختک و تربیت دادن خواجه ابوزرجمبر انوشیروان و معنیهای بختک عجب داستانیست

In the last section, Ḥamzah, having alighted in Chihil Manār, at forty farsangs from Khān-Bāligh, the capital of Khatā, sends Mālik Azhdar as ambassador to King Ṣalṣāl. The rubric is partly lost:

The language of this huge composition is quite modern, and shows an admixture of Indian words and phrases.

On the fly-leaf is written حتاب رصوز sic] هنزه

Add. 8917.

Foll. 224; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvan, ruled margins, and eighteen miniatures in Indian style, probably about the end of the 17th century.

قصه چهار درویش

The Tale of the four Darvishes.

راویان اخبار و ناقلان آثار و طوطیان شیرین Beg. کفتار

This story, which has become chiefly known through the Hindustani translation entitled Bāgh o Bahār, comprises four tales, in the following order:—Story of the first Darvīsh, fol. 7. Story of the second Darvīsh (the third in Bāgh o Bahār), fol. 50. Story of the King, or the dog-worshipping merchant, fol. 89. Story of the third Darvish (the second in Bagh o Bahar), fol. 159. Story of the fourth Darvish, fol. 192.

The work is popularly ascribed to Amīr Khusrau Dihlavī. A Ķiṣṣah i Chār Darvīsh in prose is mentioned by Muṣḥafī, fol. 5, among the works of Anjab (see p. 711 a). Sir Wm. Ouseley in his Catalogue, No. 417, names Muḥammad 'Alī Ma'ṣūm as the author of the tale.

Add. 7677.

Foll. 107;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, early in the 18th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

The same work. The text differs slightly from the preceding, but the arrangement is the same. The five stories begin respectively at foll. 4 b, 24 b, 46 a, 86 a, 104 a. The MS. breaks off in the middle of the fifth story.

Add. 5632.

Foll. 106;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shīkastah-āmīz, apparently early in the 18th century.

[N. BRASSEY HALHED.]

Another version of the same tale. It is written in a more florid style than the preceding, and is copiously interspersed with verses. It differs also in its arrangement, which is as follows:—Tale of the first Darvish, fol. 4 b. Tale of the second Darvish, fol. 22 a. Tale of the third Darvish, fol. 40 b. Tale of the King, fol. 60 b. Tale of the tourth Darvish, fol. 90 b.

Add. 6597.

Foll. 78; 10<sup>3</sup> in. by 7; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumādā II., A.H. 1196 (A.D. 1782). [James Grant.]

سنگهاسی بتیسی

The thirty-two tales of the throne.

Beg. عبى مر حضرت ملك البتعال و ثناى باركاء

ايزه لا يزال

It is stated in the preface that the work had first been translated from the Hindu original into Persian by Chaturbhuj (هندوی) B. Mihirehand Kayat, of Sonpat, چتر بہوج بی in the time ,مهرچند کایت ساکن در شهر سون پت of Akbar, and subsequently by Bhārīmal B. Rajmal Khatri, during the reign of Jahangir. The present version, written under Shāhjahān, is described as an amalgamation of the two previous translations. The author is called ابن هرکرن. But in another and later version, Add. 5652, fol. 139 b, his name is written as follows: "Bisbarāi, son بسبرای ابن هرکربداس کایتهه of Harigarb-das Kayath, of Kinnauj."

A Persian translation in prose and verse was written by 'Abd ul-Kādir Badā'unī by order of Akbar, and with the assistance of a learned Brahman, in A.H. 982, the title conveying the date of composition. A revised edition was prepared by the same writer A.H. 1003. See Muntakhab ut-Tavārīkh, vol. i. p. 67, and Elliot's History of India, vol. v. p. 513. A Persian version by Chand, son of Mādhūrām, is noticed in the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 29, and another entitled Gul Afshān, is mentioned in the Khulāṣat ut-Tavārīkh (supra, p. 230 a).

For an account of the Sanskrit original and Hindustani versions, see the Journal Asiatique for 1845, vol. ii., p. 278, and Garcin de Tassy, Littérature Hindoui, 2nd ed., vol. ii. p. 233. A French translation from the Persian has been published by Baron Lescallier, New York, 1817.

Add. 5652.

Foll. 140; 9 in. by 6; 13 lines, 31 in.

long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the latter half of the 18th century.

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

كشى بلاس

Another version of the same tale.

Author: Kishandas Basdev, of the Subah of Lahore, کشنداس باسدیو متوطن صوبه لاهور

حمد خداوند سرایم محست Beg. تا شود این نامه بنامش درست

Add. 5653.

Foll. 30; 11½ in. by 7½; 15 lines, about 5 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character; dated Calcutta, Rabi I., in the 26th year (of Shāh 'Alam, A.H. 1198, A.D. 1784).

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

An abridged version of the same tale, without translator's name.

درگاه مجیب الدعوات اینست هر که بخواند . از کان کرم

Add. 5623.

Foll. 132; 9 in. by 6; 15 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, in Bengal; dated A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1774).

[N. BRASSEY HALHED.]

قصه کامروپ

The story of Kūmrūp and Kūmlatā (see p. 697 a).

U U 2

قصه پردازان غرایب آثار و داستان طرازان عرازان

In the subscription this version is ascribed to the "talented poet Muḥammad Ķāzim," مثاعر ماهر محمد كاظم. A poet of that name lived at the court of 'Abd Ullah Ķuṭubshāh. See above, p. 683 b.

An English translation by W. Franklin, entitled "the loves of Camarūpa and Camalatā," has been published in London, 1793. For other copies, see Stewart's Catalogue, p. 85, the Mackenzie Collection, vol. ii. p. 138, and Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 1630.

Add. 6965.

Foll. 328; 9 in. by 7; about 15 lines, 3 in. long; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1812.

The same version, copied from a MS. dated Ramazān, A.H. 1150, with a transcript of Franklin's English translation.

Add. 18,805.

Foll. 572;  $12\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $8\frac{3}{4}$ ; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Calcutta, Rajab, A.H. 1185 (A.D. 1771).

The story of Ḥātim Ṭā'ī, قصة حاتم طائى, or, as it is called in the subscription, "story of the seven journeys of Ḥātim," قصه هفت

راویان اخبار و عاقلان دیار چنین روایت .Beg. اورده اند

The text has been edited by G. J. Atkinson, Calcutta, 1818, and an English translation by Dr. D. Forbes has been published in London, 1828. See the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 33, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 55.

Egerton 1018.

Foll. 148; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 17th century.

I. Fol. 1. قصم سيف الهاوك, the story of Saif ul-Mulūk, and Badī' ut-Jamāl, a tale from the Arabian Nights.

راویان اخبار وناقلان اثار چنین اوردهٔ اند که .Beg در ایام دولت سلطان غزنوی

This version begins with a fanciful introduction: Hasan Mīmandī, the Vazīr of Sultan Mahmūd, sets out from Ghaznah in quest of amusing tales to entertain his sovereign, and finds the story of Saif ul-Mulūk in a book called Rūḥ-afzā, kept in the treasury of the king of Damaseus.

See the Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 27.

II. Fol. 84. قصه گل با صنوبر, the story of Gul and Ṣanaubar.

حکایت کل با صنوبر جه کرد و صنوبر با کل Beg. جه کرد

Hindustani versions of the same tale are mentioned by Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., 2nd ed., vol. i. p. 157.

iII. Fol. 112. مصم عزار گیسو و بادشاه مصر, the story of the king of Egypt, his son Azādbakht, and a maiden called Hazār-Gīsū.

راویان اخبار و ناقلان اثار جنین روایت می Beg. کنند که در شهر مصر

Harl. 502.

Foll. 35; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, about the close of the 17th century.

An abridged version of the tale of Saif ul-Mulūk, imperfect at the end.

جنین آورده اند که در شهر مصر بادشاهی .Beg. بود نام او صفوان

Add. 25,836.

Foll. 44; 9½ in. by 6; 17 lines, 4½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Ramazān, the 24th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 1154, A.D. 1741). [WM. CURETON.]
Another version of the same tale.

چنین حکایت اورده اند که از بزرکان Beg. و حکیمان روزکار

Add. 15,099.

Foll. 174; 10 in. by 6; 10 lines, 4½ in. long; written in large Nestalik, with 'Unvān, ruled margins, and six miniatures in Indian style, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

قصه مهر و ماه

The story of Mihr, son of Khavar Shah, and the princess Mah.

راویان اخبار و ناقبلان آثبار و مهندسان . Beg. داستان کهن

See the analysis of this tale in Garcin de Tassy's Hist. de la Littérature Hindouï, 1st ed., vol. ii. p. 550, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 410.

Add. 16,867.

Foll. 115; 10½ in. by 6½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Pānīpat, the 2nd year of Aḥmad Shāh Durrānī, A.H. 1174 (A.D. 1759-60).

[WM. YULE.]

I. Fol. 3. قصه مهر و ماد, another version of the same tale.

خداوندی که در بالا و پستی ازو دارند موجودات هستی

II. Fol. 69. تصم سيف البلوك, the story of Saif ul-Mulūk and Badī' ul-Jamāl, differing from the version above mentioned, p. 764 b.

چنین اوردهٔ اند که روزی از روزها سلطان .Beg. محمود

بقصه شاه همايون فال ودلارام . 103. Fol. 103 the story of Shah Humayun Fal and Dilaram. Beg. اوبان المنان والت

راویان اخبار و ناقلان اسمار جذین روایت .Beg. میکنند که در زمان پیشین

Add. 18,409.

Foll. 363; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{2} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1146 (A.D. 1734). [WM. YULE.]

بهار دانش

Bahār i Dānish, the romance of Jahāndār Sulţān and Bahravar Bānū, a story which serves as a frame for the insertion of many other tales.

Author: Shaikh 'Ināyat Ullah, شيخ عنايت (see p. 263 a). According to a chronological table, Add. 6588, fol. 12, he died on the 19th of Jumada I., A.H. 1088.

قاتحه على مستطاب افرينش وبيرايد Beg. عالم المرايد

The preface is by the author's younger brother and pupil, Sāliḥ, who states that the work was completed in A.H. 1061. It is followed by an introduction, in which 'Ināyat Ullah says that the tale is not his own invention. He professes to have merely given a Persian garb to a story which he had heard in the Indian tongue from the lips of a youthful Brahman.

The work has been printed in Calcutta, 1809 and 1836 in Dehli, 1849, in Lucknow, without date, and in Bombay, A.H. 1877. It has been translated into English by Alexander Dow, London, 1768, and by Jonathan Scott, Shrewsbury, 1799; lastly from the latter version into German by A.T. Hartman, Leipzig, 1802. Copies are noticed in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 84, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 32, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 54.

Add. 25,840.

Foll. 271; 9 in. by 5; 19 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in cursive Indian Shikastahāmīz, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

بهار دانش

The same work, slightly imperfect at the end.

Add. 7674.

Foll. 276; 9 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The same work, wanting the last page.

Egerton 1019.

Foll. 269;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{2}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with 'Unvān and ruled margins, probably about the close of the 17th century.

The same work, wanting about six leaves after fol. 2.

Add. 6152 and 6153.

Two uniform volumes; foll. 227 and 221;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Indian Nestalik, in the first half of the 18th century.

The same work.

This copy belonged to Jonathan Scott, who made use of it for his translation. An abstract of the contents, written by himself, occupies the fly-leaves at beginning and end of each volume.

Add. 26,314.

Foll. 308;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 17 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Khujistah-

Bunyad, Rabi' I., in the 13th year of Muhammad Shah (A.H. 1143, A.D. 1730).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The same work.

Copyist: محمد حسن ولد شيخ كمال

Add. 6640.

Foll. 292; 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. by 6; 17 lines, 3<sup>2</sup>/<sub>4</sub> in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently early in the 18th century. [J. F. Hull.]

The same work.

Add. 5564.

Foll. 144; 11 $\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 23 lines,  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik for Capt. John Burdett; dated 'Azīmābād, Muḥarram, A.H. 1185 (A.D. 1771).

The same work.

Add. 5607.

Foll. 324;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 8; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1188 (A.D. 1775).

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

The same work.

عبد النبى بنكالى بردواني : Copyist

Add. 6639.

Foll. 238;  $10\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabī II., A.H. 1190 (A.D. 1776). [J. F. HULL.] The same work.

Add. 6968-6997.

Thirty volumes,  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ , with an average of 90 foll. per volume, and 12 lines in a page; written on one side only of a paper water-marked 1806, by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley.

The same work, with a transcript of Jonathan Scott's translation.

Or. 242.

Foll. 87; 8\(\frac{3}{4}\) in. by 4\(\frac{3}{4}\); 11 lines, 3\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in Nestalik, on tinted and gold-sprinkled paper, with 'Unv\(\text{a}\)n and gold-ruled margins, apparently about the close of the 17th century. [Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

محرم راز

A collection of fables and ancedotes, in prose mixed with verses.

Author: Bahram, son of 'Ali-Mardan Bahadur Tugh Arslan Khan, بهرام ولد عليمردان بهادر طوغ ارسلان خان

الهى الجه ميزان طبع سنجد همه اسم است

The preface, which is imperfect, contains a culogy upon Aurangzīb as the reigning sovereign. The author, who calls himself the humble Bahrām, and claims an Uzbak origin, concludes most of his narratives with a moral or religious application conceived in true Sufi spirit, in the form of an allocution to the "man of understanding" Lie. Several of his anecdotes relate to Indian saints.

A notable portion of the work, foll. 52—74, is devoted to a record of some episodes in the warlike career of 'Alī Mardān Bahādur, who is described as the most gallant champion in the service of Akbar, and especially of the prowess he displayed in taking possession of the estate of Būndī, in Rūjputānah, a Jāgīr assigned to him by the emperor. Several Hindī couplets composed in his praise by the poet Gang are quoted. Although the hero of these adventures bears the name which the author gives to his own father, nothing is there said as to any relationship between them.

'Alī Mardān Bahādur, who served under Akbar and Jahāngīr, from A.H. 984 to his death, distinguished himself especially in the Deccan wars. He fell severely wounded into the hands of Malik 'Anbar, A.H. 1021, and died two days later. See Ma'āşir ul-Umarā, fol. 377, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 496.

Add. 25,839.

Foll. 100; 10\frac{3}{4} in. by 5\frac{1}{2}; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Bhūpāvar (territory of Gualior), Ramazān, A.H. 1243, A.D. 1828. [WM. CURETON.]

كشايش نامه

Stories of wonderful escapes.

Author: Khwajah Rajkarn, خواجه راجكري

The work, which has no preface, contains six tales, written in a florid style, and entitled کشایش, the seene of which is laid in India. The date of composition, A.H. 1100, is expressed by several versified chronograms at the end, where the author is described as an inhabitant of Ruhtak (Thornton's Rohtuk, forty-two miles north-west of Dehli).

The MS. was written by Mirzā Haidar 'Alī Beg for Doctor J. Gibson.

Add. 7619.

Foll. 342; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{3}$ ; 26 lines, 5 in. long; written in Naskhī; dated Jumādā I., A.H. 1215 (A.D. 1800). [Cl. J. Rich.]

محبوب القلوب

A collection of moral tales and anecdotes. Author: Barkhwurdar B. Maḥmūd Turkmān Farāhī, poetically surnamed Mumtāz, برخوردار ابن محمود ترکهان فراهی مثخلص بمهتار

ره ربین کمون تربه و توانی علمی بینور الهی بزرکی و حشمت تراست سر افرازی ملك و شوكت تراست

The author does not give the date of composition; but he mentions as his contemporaries two Amīrs, Ṣafī Ķulī Khān and Aṣlān Khān, who lived in the reign of Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain, A.H. 1105—1135. See Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh, foll. 691, 693, and Malcolm's History of Persia, vol. i. p. 614.

In a diffuse preface, written in a stilted and ambitious style, he gives an account of his life and of the origin of the work, from which the following particulars may be gathered. He left in early life his native place, Farāh, for Marv Shāhijān, where he entered the service of the governor, Aslan Khān. Two years later he proceeded to Ispahan, and became Munshi to Hasan Kuli Khan Shamlu, then filling the office of Kurchī Bāshī. There he heard in some assembly a delightful tale, which he was requested by a friend to adorn with the flowers of his rhetoric, and which he consequently wrote محکایت رعنا و زیبا down under the title of As he added to it in course of time a number of other storics, the work swoll into a large collection, containing no less than four hundred tales, divided into an introduction, eight Babs, and a conclusion, to which he gave the name of 1,1 .

Some time later the author returned to Farah, from whence, after some stay in Herat and in Mashhad, he betook himself to the district of Darun and Khabushan, and there remained three years in the service of Minuchihr Khān B. Karchaghāi قرچغاى Khān. This Amir had been appointed governor of the province in order to check the inroads of the Chemishkazak, چېشکزك, a savage and predatory tribe, on which the author heaps every term of abuse. He then relates how in one of those raids all his goods were plundered, and among these the precious MS. of the Mahfil-ārā, on which he had bestowed so many years of labour. All attempts to recover it having failed, the author, in order to assuage his grief, and to comply with the entreaties of a friend, wrote down again such portions as he had retained in his memory. Hence the present work, which is divided, according to the preface, into an introduction, five Bābs, and a Khātimah. That division, however, is not thoroughly carried out in either of our two copies.

It is written in florid prose, freely interspersed with verses, mostly of the author's own composition. The arrangement is systematic, the tales being grouped under the moral maxims, or rules of life, which they are intended to illustrate.

On the first page of the present copy is found the title کتاب رعنا وزیبا. It does not properly apply to the whole work, for it belongs, as above stated, to the first tale written by the author, which forms the Khātimah of the present collection, foll. 289—342.

The Mahbūb ul-Kulūb has been printed in Bombay, A.H. 1268.

Or. 1370.

Foll. 450; 12 in. by  $7\frac{3}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, with two 'Unvāns, gold-ruled margins, and fifty-five miniatures in Persian style; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1220 (A.D. 1806).

[Sir Chas. ALEX. MURRAY.]

The same work.

ميرزا محمد رحيم : Copyist

Add. 8918.

Foll. 288; 8½ in. by 5; 14 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, for Capt. Geo. Burnes; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 1217 (August, A.D. 1802).

فرح بخش

The love-story of Rai Ratan Sen, of Chitaur, and Padmavat, daughter of Gandharb Sen.

Author: Lachhmi-Rām, of Ibrāhīmābād (district of Ghāzīpūr), لچهمی رام متوطن قصبه ابراهیم آباد

Beg. مثكر وفور بدركاة رب الغفور و حمد نا محصور It appears from the preface that this prose version is founded on the poem of 'Akil Khān Rāzī (see p. 699 a), entitled شمع و پرواند (see the Oude Catalogue, p. 123).

The well-known tale of Saif ul-Mulūk and Badī' ul-Jamāl is inserted, foll. 109—220, as told by one of the actors in the main story.

On the Hindi versions of the tale of Padmävat by Jatmal and Jaisi, see Garcin de Tassy, Littér. Hind., second edition, vol. ii. pp. 67, 86, and Pavic, Journal Asiatique for 1856.

Add. 8916.

Foll. 119; 8 in. by 4½; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik, in the 18th century.

دبستان خرد

A collection of moral anecdotes.

Author: Muḥammad Ismā'il Sāmī, entitled Nu'mān Khān, كاطب محمد اسماعيل سامي مخاطب بنعمالغان

The work, which is dedicated to Muḥammad Shāh, was written in Akbarābād, A.H. 1135, in answer to a challenge to match Sa'di's Gulistān, and was completed in eighty-five days. The author gives his name incidentally, fol. 34 a, when stating that he had accompanied Aurangzīb on his expedition against the Rānā.

We learn from the Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 104, that Nu'mān Khān was raised to the Khanship towards the close of Aurangzib's reign, and died in the time of Muhammad Shāh.

The work is divided into eleven Babs, and a Khatimah. Many of the anecdotes relate to incidents of Indian history, especially to Aurangzib and his time; the verses are the author's own.

On the first page is written, "George Harriott, 1798."

Add. 25,834.

Foll. 259; 11 in. by 8; 17 lines, 5½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shavval, A.H. 1154 (A.D. 1741). [WM. CURETON.]

نوادر النقول في مآثر العقول

A collection of anecdotes.

Author: Abul-Fath B. Muzaffar, ابو المتح

وطائف تعمیدات بیشمار و طایف [ووظایف] . Beg. تعمیدات

The author says that he had compiled this work, at the request of his son Muḥammad Niṣār 'Alī, chiefly from the following works: Ṭabarī, Jāmi' ul-Ḥikāyāt, Tārīkh i Banākitī, Ibn Khallikān, Mau'izat-Nāmah, written by Kaikā'ūs B. Sikandar B. Ķābūs for his son Gilānshāh (i.e. Ķābūs Nāmah), Tārīkh i Al i Saljūķ, by Muḥammad B. Abi 'Abdullah un-Nizām ul-Ḥusainī, and Ma'ārij un-Nubuvvat. He states at the end that it was completed in A.H. 1151.

It is divided, according to subjects, into twenty-one Babs, as follows: -1. Muhammad and his miracles, fol. 4b. 2. The first four Khalifs, fol. 17 b. 3. The Imams and Companions, fol. 31 b. 4. Saints, fol. 55 a. 5. Ulama, fol. 101 b. 6. Philosophers, fol. 144 b. 7. Kings, fol. 117 a. 8. Vazirs and favourites, fol. 132 b. 9. Secretaries, litterati, cup-companions, fol. 140 b. 10. Sages and physicians, fol. 143 a. 11. Poets, fol. 151 b. 12. Arabs of the desert, fol. 154 b. 13. Interpretation of dreams, fol. 163 b. 14. Generous men, fol. 166 a. 15. Misers, gluttons, and parasites, fol. 172 a. 16. Stories showing God's mercy, fol. 178 a. 17. Women and children, fol. 209 b. 18. Simpletons, liars, and false prophets, fol. 222 b. 19. Wits (wanting the beginning), fol. 223 b. 20. Curious facts relating to animals and countries, fol. 225 a. 21. Comical anecdotes, fol. 245 a.

This copy was written by Hidayat Ullah, for Latif Khan. The subscription is followed by some additional stories, foll. 250 b—259 a.

Egerton 1025.

Foll. 68;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-āmīz, in the latter half of the 18th century.

رنگین بهار

The story of prince Bahrām, and his loveadventures with the daughter of King Dārāb.

Author: Rāi Kirpādayāl, son of Rāi Mansārām, Khatrī of the Mangal tribe, حربا ديال

ولد راي منسارام كهترى قوم منكل

ابتداي نامه بر نام خداوند كريم

The author, who calls himself an inhabitant of Siyālkūt, Ṣūbah of Lahore, does not lay any claim to the invention of the story. His work is only a new version in ornate prose, interspersed with verses, of an old tale. The date of composition, A.H. 1155, is given in this couplet at the end:

بدل کشتم مخاطب از پی او بکفتا بوستانی رشك مینو

Add. 10,584.

Foll. 168; 7 in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Indian Shikastah-āmīz, in the 18th century,

The tale of Naurūz Shāh, قصمه نوروز شاه by Uditchand Kāyath, poetically surnamed 'Azīz, اودتجند كايتهه عزيز تخلص تازه حکایتی غریب و نو ایس روایتی عجیب Beg.

Naurūz Shāh, an Indian king, like his prototype of the Arabian Nights, takes every night a new partner to his bed. An accomplished lady, called Nīkdukht, contrives to prolong her spell of favour by telling him captivating tales on seven successive nights. The author's name and the date of composition, A.H. 1157, are found in some verses at the end. The latter is expressed by the chronogram, مجموعه مسرت جانهاي مقبلان

Foll. 2—4 and 141—167 contain forms of complimentary letters addressed to a sovereign.

Or. 1244.

Foll. 79;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{3}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with fourteen miniatures in Indian style, apparently in the 18th century.

قصه هير ورانجهه

The love-story of Hīr and Rānjhah (see p. 710 a), in prose and verse, by Mansārām Munshī, منسارام منشى

Beg. ציידיניט צוי לאה תו כהג פ ثناى صانع بهترين It appears from the introduction that the story had been originally composed in Hindī verse by Damodar, of Jhang Siyāl, Panjāb.

The date of the present version, A.H. 1157, is expressed in the final lines by the chronogram, قصه عاشقى تبام.

Add. 16,689.

Foll. 253; 13 in. by  $9\frac{3}{4}$ ; 25 lines,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.] بوستار، خيال

"The Garden of Fancy," a romance.

Author: Muḥammad Taķī ul-Ja'farī ul-Ḥusainī, poetically surnamed Khayāl, تقى الجعفري الحسيني المتخلص بخيال

The author, a pupil of Şābit (see p. 709 b), went to Bengal in the time of 'Alī Virdī Khān, and died A.H. 1173. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 193. In this voluminous work he relates at great length, and in familiar language, the endless and rather monotonous adventures of three imaginary heroes, and of a host of equally fictitious personages belonging to the world of the Jins and Peris, as well as to mankind. The three principal personages are generally designated by the titles of Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Akbar, Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Akbar, Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Akbar, Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Aṣghar. Their proper names are Shāhzādah Mu'izz ud-Dīn Abu Tamīm, Shāhzādah Khurshīd Tājbakhsh, and Shāhzādah Badr Munīr. The three stories form as many distinct threads, which are alternately taken up.

The present and the following three MSS. contain only a few detached volumes of that bulky composition, which, according to the conclusion of Add. 4939, consists of three parts called Bahār, subdivided into volumes (Jild). The entire work comprises no less than fifteen Jilds, some of which are again subdivided into two sections called Saṭar.

The first two parts (Bahār) consist together of six Jilds, while the third alone comprises nine.

It appears from the concluding lines of Add. 24,935, that the romance was written for the entertainment of two brothers, Navväb Najm ud-Daulah Muḥammad Ishak Khān, and Navvāb Rashīd Khān Sālār Jang (sons of Ja'far Khān, Nāzim of Bengal).

The present copy contains the third and fourth Jilds of Bahār II., both treating of the adventures of Mu'izz ud-Din. The first leaves of Jild 3 and the last of Jild 4 are lost, and the two volumes have been transposed in the binding, Jild 4 occupying foll. 1—161, and Jild 3 foll. 162—253.

آغاز جلد ,Jild 4 begins with the heading چہارم از بہار دویم از کتاب بوستان خیال کے آنرا معزنامہ کویند

A portion of Bahār II. is described under the title of معزنامه, in the Munich Catalogue, p. 57.

Add. 24,935.

Foll. 452; 174 in. by 114; 21 lines, 74 in.

long; written in large Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Shavvāl, the third year of 'Alamgīr II. (A.H. 1169, A.D. 1756).

Two portions of the same work, both belonging to Bahār III. The first, which relates entirely to the adventures of Ṣāḥib Kirān i A'zam, and is headed أغاز دفتر دويم المخامة بزرك كه مشتمل است بر احوال ظفرمال كتاب شاهنامه بزرك كه مشتمل است بر احوال ظفرمال is designated at the end as the second Saṭar of Jild 2 of Bahār III. It occupies foll. 1—277.

The second, foll. 278—452, treats chiefly of the history of Sāḥib Kirān i Akbar, but relates, in some parts, also to the adventures of Sāhib Kirān i A'zam.

At the end the author says that, after proceeding thus far, he had determined to make this portion a volume by itself, and to call it and, intending subsequently to devote an entire volume to the history of Sāḥib Kirān i A'zam and his companions. But it does not appear to what volume the present Saṭar belongs.

It is stated at the end, fol. 452, that this copy was written for Navvāb Mansūr ul-Mulk Sirāj ud-Daulah Bahādur Haibat Jang, by his librarian, 'Izzat-Ullah.

Add. 4939.

Foll. 415; 16½ in. by 11; 19 lines, 7¼ in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two 'Unvans and gold-ruled margins.

Two detached portions of the same romance, Bahār III.

The first, foll. 1—118, relates partly to the adventures of the Ṣāḥib Ķirān i A'zam, partly to those of the Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Aṣghar, Shāhzādah Badr Munīr.

The author says at the end that, after concluding the present volume, he proposes to begin the third Jild of Bahār III., the ninth of the whole work, which is to be devoted to the history of Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Aṣghar.

According to this the present volume would be the second Jild of Bahār III. Its contents, however, differ from those of Add. 24,935, which belongs to the same Bahār.

The second portion, foll. 119—415, is called, both at the beginning and at the end, the third Jild of Bahār III. It relates entirely to Ṣāḥib Ķirān i Aṣghar.

On the fly-leaf is written, "Presented by Claud Russell, Esq., Oct. 15, 1781."

Add. 26,291.

Foll. 349; 9¾ in. by 6¼; 17 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the latter part of the 18th century.

[WM. Erskine.]

Another copy of the section designated as (Add. 24,935, foll. 278—452).

Add. 7056.

Foll. 64; 10¼ in. by 6; 19 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, dated Murshidābād, the 6th year of Shāh 'Alam (A:H. 1178, A.D. 1764—5).

[J. HADDON HINDLEY.]

I. The tale of Malik 'Alī, son of the king of Bukhārā, and Mihr-Bānū, daughter of Khwārazmshāh, fol. 1.

II. The tale of the three Darvishes, constructed on the same plan as the Kissah i Chahār Darvīsh, and containing:—The tale of the first Darvīsh, or Prince Ḥāfiz of Khorasan. The tale of the second Darvīsh, or Khalīl of Balkh, the merchant's son. The tale of the third Darvīsh, or Afzal Khān, prince of Marv. The tale of the king of Khorasan, Ashraf Khān, fol. 16. See Sir Wm. Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 442.

III. The tale of the daughter of the king of Yaman and the two Vazīrs, Aṣaf and Kāmgār, fol. 36.

IV. The tale of Bihrūz, the merchant of Khorasan, and the daughter of the king of Kashmīr, fol. 44.

V. The tale of Farrukh Shāh, the prince of Khatā, who set out on his travels, and got a kingdom, fol. 51.

VI. The tale of the king of Kashghar and the Vazīr who said that there was no man in the world without sorrow, fol. 59.

Add. 25,838.

Foll. 214; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in small Nestalik, apparently in India, about the close of the 18th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

قصم اكر شاهزاده وكل پادشاه

The story of Prince Agar and King Gul, a fairy tale, beginning with the following heading: قصه منصور شاه و عاقل وزیر و خوشحال وزیر الن

Manṣūr Shāh, king of Khashkhāsh, and his Vazīr Khushḥāl obtain children through the blessing of a Faķīr. The first has a son called La'l Pādishāh, the second a son, Vazīr Maḥmūd, and a daughter called Agar. The prince having been carried away by the Parī La'l Dīv, Agar is substituted for it, and henceforth designated as Agar Shāhzādah. The Parī princess, Māhparvar, and the king of the Parīs, Gul Pādishāh, play also a leading part in the tale. It is written in homely language, and has a copious admixture of Indian words and phrases.

A Kissah i Agar Gul has been printed by Navalkishor, Lucknow, A.H. 1263. See Garcin de Tassy, Hist. de la Litt. Hind., 2nd ed., vol. ii. p. 469, and the Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1757.

Add. 7055.

Foll. 40;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 12 lines, 4 in.

long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the latter half of the 18th century.

[J. HADDON HINDLEY.]

A collection of amusing anecdotes.

بادشاهی از شخصی پرسید که علم تیراندازی میدانی .Beg.

According to an English note on the flyleaf, it was compiled by a Munshi named Yakin for the use of his pupils.

Add. 25,837.

Foll. 229; 8\frac{3}{2} in. by 4\frac{1}{2}; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in large Indian Nestalik, dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 1225 (A.D. 1810).

[WM. CURETON.]

قصه عزيز شاه و مسعود شاه

The story of Mas'ūd Shāh, son of 'Azīz Shāh, king of Isfahān, and of his love-adventures with Gīti-Arā.

اما راویان اخبارات رنکین و ناقلان حکایات Beg. شیرین روایت کردهاند که در ملك اصفهان بادشاهی بود

Many local words and phrases show that this romance was written in India.

Add. 7675.

Foll. 91; 9½ in. by 5½; 15 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, about the beginning of the 19th century.

[Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Fol. 1. The tale of Shīrzād, son of Gurgahan, emperor of China, and Gulshād, daughter of the Vazīr Farrukhzād, wanting a few lines at the beginning. This tale, which is endorsed حايت نه منظر "the story of the nine belvederes," comprises nine tales successively told by Gulshād to Shīrzād, each in one of the nine belvederes of the royal palace, in order to save the forfeited life of her father.

II. Fol. 71. A short version of the tale of Saif ul-Mulük and Badī' ul-Jamāl (p. 764 b), imperfect at the end.

Add. 16,865.

Foll. 12;  $7\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 11 lines,  $2\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik; correctly described on the fly-leaf as follows:—

"The Kazy and the Thief, حكايت قاضى, دود, a humorous tale in the Persian language. Copied from a MS. in the possession of the Rev. H. G. Keene by James R. Ballantyne, 1834."

حکایت چنین اورده اند که در شهر بغداد قاضی . Beg. بود در عهد هارون رشید

PROVERBS.

Or. 1613.

Foll. 269; 10‡ in. by 6; 19 lines, 3‡ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, with ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

جامع التمثيل

A collection of Persian proverbs.

Author: Muḥammad 'Ali Jabal-rūdī, محمد على جبل ودى

سپاس بیحد و ستایش بیعد بی مثلی را سزد

The author states that he had come to Haidarābād A.H. 1054, in the time of 'Abd Ullah Kuṭubshāh, and had been admitted to the literary assemblies held by the Vazīr Shaikh Muḥammad ul-Khātūn. In one of these the collection of Turkish proverbs made by order of Shāh 'Abbās having been mentioned, the Vazīr observed that Persian proverbs should also be compiled, and the author undertook to comply with his desire. He adds that the task had never been attempted before him.

The proverbs are alphabetically arranged, each letter forming a Fasl. Short verbal explanations are occasionally added. Anecdotes illustrating the origin and application of proverbs, texts from the Coran, and poetical quotations, are introduced at the end of the sections.

The work has been printed in Teheran, A.H. 1278. See Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 522. A collection of Persian proverbs has been published by Tho. Roebuek, Calcutta, 1824.

Or. 266.

Foll. 161;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

The same work, wanting the preface.

COLLECTANEA.

Add. 7611.

Foll. 571;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 7 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in large Naskhi with vowels, on gold-sprinkled paper; dated A.H. 1137 (A.D. 1724—5). [Cl. J. Rich.]

مقالات العارفين و مرآت السالكين

A collection of Sufi extracts, compiled by Sulaimān, سليمان

بهترين كلامى كه انتتاح مقالات ارباب يقين .Beg. بهترين كلامى كه انتتاح مقالات ارباب يقين .The author is designated in a nearly contemporary note on the first page as الامام والمرشد الكامل سيد الطايفه مولانا شيخ سليمان الهروي الانصارى

He wrote this compilation, as stated in the preface, in order that his disciples might dispense with other books. It consists of 292 prose-extracts and poetical pieces amounting to 3675 couplets.

The former are taken from the following works:—

1. لب الحققين by Allah Bakhsh B. Sayyid Ṣadr ud-Dīn Bhakarī, fol. 8 a.

- 2. مصباح الارواح by Shaikh 'Alī Tūnī, described as a contemporary of Bāyazīd Basṭāmī, who died A.H. 261, fol. 20 a.
- 3. The Book کتاب of Ṣā'in ud-Dīn 'Alī Tarikah (see p. 42 a), fol. 85 b.
- 4. شرح لبعات, a Commentary by Shāh Nūr ud-Dīn Ni'mat Ullah (see p. 634 b), upon the Lama'āt (see p. 594 b), fol. 124 a.
- نكرة الاوليا 5. by Shaikh 'Attār (see p. 344 a),
   fol. 128 b.
- לצוֹי וועלת by Khwājah ʿAbd Ullah Anṣārī (see p. 35 a), fol. 133 a.

The poetical extracts are taken from the following works:

- 1. Five poems of 'Aṭṭār, viz. جواهر ذات, مامه, and المرار نامه بهي سر نامه and المرار نامه (see p. 576), fol. 136 b.
- 2. The Dîvân of Shāh Ni'mat Ullah (p. 634 b), fol. 376 b.
- 3. The Divān of Shaikh Maghribī (p. 633 a), fol. 476 b.
- 4. Tarjī'-band of Ķāsim ul-Anvār (p. 635 a), fol. 543 b.
- Kalandar-Nāmah, by Amīr Ḥusainī (p. 608 a), fol. 549 b.
- The Divān of Shaikh Trāķi (p. 593 b),
   fol. 551 a.
- 7. Gulshan i Rāz, by Maḥmūd Shabistarī (p. 608 b), fol. 555 b.
- 8. Silsilat uz-Zahab, by Jāmī (p. 644 b), fol. 559  $\alpha$ .

The above shows that the compiler, of whom no other record has been found, lived after Jāmī, probably in the tenth century of the Hijrah.

Add. 16,860.

Foll. 69;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 21 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in India, in the 17th century. [WM. YULE.]

A volume of miscellaneous extracts by Bahā ud-Dīn Muḥammad 'Amilī, بهاء الدين (see p. 25 b).

اصحاب تفسير قران عظيم و ارباب ترجمه كتاب Beg.

The extracts are taken from Persian poets, and from Arabic works of history and theology, the latter translated into Persian. The author frequently adds verses of his own composition, and numerous passages from his work entitled سوائح طريق خجاز. He quotes among others, fol. 21 b, some verses written by him in Mashhad, A.H. 1007.

A similar collection of Arabic extracts by the same writer is described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 409, under the name of (see p. 26 a).

The Kashkūl of Bahā ud-Dīn 'Amilī has been printed in Teheran, A.H. 1266, and in Bulak. It is described by Goldziher in the Sitzungsberichte of the Vienna Academy, part 78. See Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. vi. p. 108.

Egerton 1016.

Foll. 446; 13½ in. by 7½; 21 lines, 5½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently early in the 18th century.

شاهد صادق

A large collection of extracts, moral sayings, historical anecdotes, and miscellaneous notices.

مادق بن Author: Ṣādiķ B. Ṣāliḥ Iṣfahānī, صادق بن صالح اصفهائي

الحمد لله تعالى و منه المبتدا واليه المنتهى . Beg.

Muḥammad Ṣādiķ B. Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ ul-Iṣfahānī ul-Āzādānī has given a sketch of his own life in the 12th Maţla' of the third volume (Mujallad) of his historical compilation entitled Ṣubḥ i Ṣādiķ (Or. 1728). Ho was born, A.H. 1018, in Sūrat, where his father served under the Khānkhānān 'Abd ur-Rahim. In A.H. 1027 he went to Ilāhābad with his father, who was there appointed by Prince Parviz as Divan of his household. After some years spent in studies at Patna and Jaunpur, Sadik went with his father in the train of Prince Parviz to the Decean, A.H. 1035, and, after the latter's death in the ensuing year, joined the camp of Shahjahan, where he was appointed news-writer (Vāķi'ah Navis). Having been presented at court, shortly after Shahjahan's accession, he obtained from that sovereign a Jagir in Bengal, proceeded to Jahangirnagar, then the capital of that province, and took part with the rank of Bakhshī in a war waged against a rebel Afghan chief by Kūsim Khān, then Governor of Bengal. He incurred, however, the displeasure of that Amir's successors, A'zam Khūn and Islām Khūn, was kept some time in confinement in Salimabad, A.H. 1048, and finally retired into private life.

Sādiķ gives in his memoirs copious specimens of his poetical compositions, in which he took the name of Ṣādiķī. He quotes also frequently verses of his numerous literary friends, and mentions as his master, fol. 230 a, Mullā Muḥammad Ḥusain Kashmīrī, who died A.H. 1037.

The author began to collect his materials, as he states in the preface, in A.H. 1054, and spent three years upon that task. When he was proceeding to put them into order, he was interrupted by a distant journey, which brought him to Jaunpūr, and it was only after settling in that place that he found the necessary leisure to complete the work. A.H. 1056 is incidentally mentioned, fol. 207 a, as the current year. The author refers in the same place to his compendium of history entitled one of the compendium of history entitled one of the compendium of listory entitled on

The work is divided into five books (Bāb), subdivided into numerous chapters (Faṣl), and a Khātimah. A full table of the contents is given at the end of the preface, foll. 4a-7a.

The principal topics of the five Babs are as follows:—

- I. God, the Prophet, prophetship and saintship (رلایت), faith, Islām, good and bad deeds, etc., in 107 Faṣls, fol. 7 a.
- II. Sovereignty, kingly power, rules and precepts relating to good government, in 77 Faşls, fol. 78 α.
- III. Reason, knowledge, failings, talents, etc., in 80 Faṣls, fol. 135 b.
- IV. Love, friendship, hatred, poverty, wealth, pleasure, sorrow, play, travel, etc., in 75 Faşls, fol. 212 b.
- V. World, time, stability and decay, death, life, spheres, elements, realms of nature, in 96 Faşls, fol.  $300 \ a$ .

Khātimah; an alphabetical list of proper names of places and men, with fixation of their spelling, and short notices, fol. 408 a.

Three of the subdivisions (Faṣls) are of exceptional length, viz. Faṣl 79 of Bāb III., foll. 207 b—238 a, which contains notices of remarkable events and of the death of celebrated men, in chronological order from the Hijrah to A.H. 1042. Faṣl 80 of the same Bāb, comprising Persian proverbs alphabetically arranged. Faṣl 51 of Bāb IV., foll. 331 b—359 a, which contains maps of the seven climates, and an alphabetical list of places, with their longitude and latitude.

On the first page of the MS. is written "R. W. Rotton, 14 April, 1791."

A copy is mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 52.

Add. 7719.

Foll. 279;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 17 lines, 3 in. long, with oblique lines round the margins; written in a small and indistinct Shafi'ā character, ornamented with rude flowery designs in the headings and margins; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1225 (A.D. 1810.)

[CL. J. RICH.]

A collection of extracts culled from the author's reading on various branches of human knowledge, by Muḥammad Ḥusain B. Karam 'Alī Iṣfahānī (see p. 137 a).

سپاس و ستایش ..... قیاس سزاوار .Beg. یکانه وجودی تواند بود

It appears from the preface that the work was written in Mashhad, and A.H. 1224 is mentioned, fol. 6 a, as the current year. The present MS. is, to all appearance, the author's autograph.

Contents: Astronomy, with tables and diagrams, fol. 4 b. Geography, fol. 17 b. History of the Prophets, Muhammad, 'Ali, the Imams, and the philosophers, fol. 44 b. Medicine, fol. 72 b. Principal dynasties of ancient and modern times, mostly in tabular form, fol. 92 b. This section concludes with a history of Fath 'Alī Shāh's reign, in which the events are chronicled year by year down to A.H. 1222. Notices on Sayyids, Vazīrs, and learned men, fol. 178 b. Religions and sects; notices on some Shiah doctors, fol. 182 b. Arab and Persian poets, with specimens of their compositions, fol. 285 b. The three realms of nature and the properties of minerals, plants, and animals, fol. 234 b. Knowledge of God; sayings of Ali and the Imāms, fol. 263 b.

The margins are crowded with additional extracts.

BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Add. 16,720.

Foll. 20; 9 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; 11 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the latter part of the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

An account of the principal works treating of Eastern, and more especially of Indian, history.

الحمد لله على افضاله والصلواة والسلام على Beg.

No title is given in the text; but in the table of contents the work is called ماثر نامه , a title which appears also on the fly-leaf. The author concludes by expressing a desire for the compilation of a history of the Moghul empire from the eleventh year of the reign of Aurangzib to the "present time," A.H. 1162.

راقمه ابو الحسن ولد : At the end is written

An English version is written in the margin. A table occupying five pages, foll. 2—4, shows the titles of the works mentioned in the text.

An English translation has been published under the title: "A Critical Essay on various MS. works, Arabic and Persian, illustrating the history," etc., London, 1832.

Add. 24,042.

Foll. 110; 10½ in. by 7½; 13 lines in a page; written in fair Nestalik, early in the 19th century.

[H. H. Wilson.]

A classed Catalogue of Oriental MSS. in the Library of the College of Fort William. It is a mere list of titles, mostly without author's name. It includes Persian and Arabic MSS., with some in the Indian vernaculars.

On the first page is written: "T. Roebuck, 26 Sept. 1812."

Add. 26,321. A & B.

A. A paper roll, 10 feet by 7 inch.;

written in Nestalik, early in the 19th century.
[WM. ERSKINE.]

A list of fifteen Persian MSS. relating to the history of India, with a detailed statement of the contents of some of them; endorsed by Mr. Erskine: "Catalogue of Persian books sent by Henry Russell, Esq."

Mr. (afterwards Sir Henry) Russell was Resident at the court of Haidarābād from 1811 to 1820. The MSS named in the list were added to the Erskine collection, and are now in the Museum.

B. A paper roll, 2 feet by 7, containing the titles of the same MSS.

Add. 25,864.

Foll. 37; 10½ in. by 6½; written in Nestalik, early in the 19th century.

[WM. CURETON.]

A catalogue of Persian, Arabic, and Hindī MSS. in the library of Muushī Rām Dayāl, with a Persian preface by the owner's son, Rām Partāb Sahā'ī Ilāhābādī, رام پرتاب

هرانکسی که بتعداد کتب الهی و شیرازه Beg. بندی نعت

It is arranged in alphabetical order according to the titles, and gives in four columns the title and description of each MS., the author's name, the number of leaves, and that of quires.

Prefixed are two horoscopes in Sanskrit, dated Samvat 1874 and 1877 (A.D. 1817 and 1820).

DRAWINGS AND CALLIGRAPHY.

Add. 18,801.

Foll. 44;  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{4}$ . An album of highly finished miniatures by Indian artists, mostly portraits of princes and amirs of the reigns of Jahangir, Shahjahan, and Aurangzib. It was made a Vakf, or pious donation, by Ashraf Khan, whose seal bears the date A.H. 1072, and whose portrait is found on fol. 6 with this inscription in Shikastah, portrait of the humble, "mule, "mule donor." Notes by the same hand are to be seen at the back of the other portraits, with the exception of a few, which are apparently subsequent additions. All bear later inscriptions in Nestalik, which do not always agree with the former, and are therefore not to be trusted. An English table of contents is prefixed to the volume.

Mīr Muḥammad Ashraf, son of Islām Khān Mashhadī (see below, No. 11), received the title of Ashraf Khān in the fourth year of Aurangzīb (A.H. 1071-2), was subsequently appointed to the office of Mīr Bakhshī, and died A.H. 1097. See Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 66.

In the following list of subjects, the names and designations taken from the donor's autograph notes are distinguished by inverted commas.

- 1. "Abd Ullah Khān, sovereign of Tūrān."
- 2. Shāh 'Abbās, of Persia.
- 3. "Ṣādik Khān," eousin of Aṣaf Khān, and father of Ja'far Khān, the Great Vazīr. Ṣādik Khān was Mīr Bakhshī under Jahān-gīr and Shāhjahān. He died A.H. 1043. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 368.
- 4. "Ḥakim Dā'ūd Takarrub Khān." He eame from Persia A.H. 1053, was raised to the Khanship in the 20th year of Shāhjahān, and died A.H. 1073. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 120.

- "Muḥammad 'Alī Beg, who came as ambassador to Shāhjahān."
  - 6. "The humble donor," i.e. Ashraf Khan.
- (7. According to the English table, a portrait of Aşaf Khān, now missing.)
- 8. Fancyportrait of a lady in male attire described as a European princess بادشاهرادی فرنك, a later addition. At the back is a calligraphic specimen dated A.H. 1182.
- 9. "Ilahvirdī Khān the elder." He was made Khān at the beginning of Shāhjahān's reign, was subsequently appointed Governor of Behar, and died A.H. 1070. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 50.
- The emperor Akbar, with Jahangir as a child.
- 11. "The late Navvāb Islām Khān." 'Abd ul-Salām Mashhadī, afterwards Islām Khān, father of the donor, was appointed to the Vazirate in the 13th year of Shāhjahān, and died A.H. 1057. See Ma'āşir, fol. 39.
- 12. "Fazl Ullah Khān, son of the donor's paternal uncle." Fazl Ullah Khān, son of Siyādat Khān, a brother of Islām Khān, was raised to the Khanship in the first year of Aurangzīb, and died in the twentieth of the same reign. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 77.
- 13. "Bahmanyār I'tikād Khān, son of Aṣaf Khān." He received the title of I'tikād Khān, with the office of Mīr Bakhshī, in the 25th year of Shāhjahān, and died in the 15th year of Aurangzīb. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 12.
- 14. "The emperor Jahangir, the emperor Akbar, the Khankhanan, and attendant."
  - 15 "Mahārājah Jasvant Singh," the Za-mīndār of Jaudhpūr, who fought Aurangzīb in support of Dārā Shikūh, but subsequently submitted to the victor and was appointed to the government of Mālwah. He died in the 22nd year of Aurangzīb. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 136.

16. "The emperor Jahangir."

17. "The emperor Shahjahan."

18. "Sa'id Khān Bahādur Zafar Jang," a Chaghatāi Amīr, son of Aḥmad Beg Khān Kābulī. He was made Khān in the 15th year of Jahāngīr, and Ṣūbahdār of Kābul in the 4th year of Shāhjahān. He died A.H. 1062. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 302, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 51.

19. "Ja'far Khān," son of Ṣādiķ Khān (see No. 3). He was appointed Vazīr by Shāh-jahān in the 31st year of his reign, and reinstated by Aurangzīb. He died A.H. 1081. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 130.

20. "Alā ul-Mulk Tūnī, entitled Fāzil Khān." He was Mīr Sāmān, or Lord Steward, under Shāhjahān and Aurangzīb, and died A.H. 1073. See Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 75.

21. Bāķir A'zam Khān Sāvajī," Mīr Bakhshī under Jahāngīr and Shāhjahān. He died as governor of Jaunpūr A.H. 1059. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 42.

22. A female figure worshipped by angels, endorsed حضرت مري, 'the Blessed Mary.'

23. Amir Timur on his throne, with courtiers and attendants.

24. "Mirzā Nūr ul-Ḥasan, son of Mirzā Muḥsin B. Aṣaf Khān Ja'far." Mirzā Ja'far Beg, afterwards Aṣaf Khān, Vazīr of Jahān-gīr, and governor of Prince Parvīz, died A.H. 1021. See Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 411.

25. "Şafī Mirzā, son of Shāh 'Abbās the elder," with hawk-bearer, hawk, and secretary.

26. "Lashkar Khān, son of Zabardast Khān, ambassador to Persia." He was sent by Shāhjahān to 'Abbās II. to congratulate him on his accession, A.H. 1052. He died as Mīr Bakhshī A.H. 1081. See Ma'āşir, fol. 433.

27. Aşaf Khān, i.e. Mîrzā Abul-Ḥasan, son of I'timād ud-Daulah, and Vazīr of Shāhjahān, who died A.H. 1051. See Ma'āşir, fol. 30.

28. "Sitting of His Majesty with princes and amīrs." Shāhjahān sits on his throne in full Darbār. His four sons, who stand at his side, and the amīrs who surround the throne, have their names written upon them.

"1'tikād Khān, son of Aṣaf Khān."
 See above, No. 13.

30. "Ḥakīm Masīḥ uz-Zamān," i. c. Ḥa-kīm Ṣadrā, son of Ḥakīm Fakhr ud-Dīn Shīrāzī. He came to India in the 46th year of Akbar, obtained the title of Masīḥ uz-Zamān in the 4th year of Jahāngīr, and died A.H. 1061. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 142, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 112.

31. "Mîr Muḥammad Sa'îd Mîr Jumlah, who became Khānkhānān in Hindustan." See above, p. 266 a.

32. "Mullā Sa'd Ullah, who became Khān and Vazīr of Hindustan," i.e. Sa'd Ullah Khān 'Allāmī, who was raised to the Vazīrate in the 19th year of Shāhjahān, and died A.H. 1066. See Ma'āşir, fol. 303, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 55.

33. "Khalil Ullah Khān Shāh-Ni'mat-Ullāhī," son of Mīrmīrān Yazdī. He was elevated to the Khānship in the 2nd year of Shāhjahān, and died A.H. 1072. See Ma'āşir, fol. 188, and Tazkirat, fol. 39.

34. "The emperor 'Alamgir" (Aurangzib).

35. "Dāniyāl Shāb," the eldest son of Akbar.

36. "Shā'istah Khān, son of Aṣaf Khān' (Abul-Ḥasan), originally called Mirzā Abu Ṭālib. He became Amīr ul-Umarā in the first year of Aurangzīb, and died A.H. 1105. See Ma'ūṣir, fol. 360.

37. "Ja'far Khān, son of Şādiķ Khān;" see No. 19.

38. "Mullā Shafī'ā, afterwards Dānishmand Khān," a native of Yazd, who held the office of Mīr Bakhshī under Shāhjahān and Aurangzīb, and died A.H. 1071. See Ma'āsir, fol. 209.

39. "Dārāb Khān, son of 'Abd ur-Raḥīm Khānkhānān; Afzal Khān Mullā Shukr Ullah; Rājah Mān Singh; Parvīz, and one of the descendants of Tīmūr." Dārāb Khān, governor of Bengal, was put to death, A.H. 1035, by Mahābat Khān. See Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 339. Afzal Khān died A.H. 1048; see Ma'āṣir, fol. 36. Mān Singh, Rājah of Amber, died in the 9th year of Jahāngīr; see Blochmann, p. 339. Parvīz, son of Jahāngīr, died at the age of thirty-eight years, A.H. 1035.

40. "The emperor Jahangir, Ilahvirdi Khan (see No 9), and Shaikh Shir Muḥammad Kavval (the singer)."

41. "Mirzā Nauzar, son of Mirzā Ḥaidar, and grandson of Mirzā Muzaffar Ḥusain Ḥandahārī, a relative of Shāh 'Abbās." This Amīr, a favourite of Shāhjahān, died A.H. 1074. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 512, and Blochmann, p. 461.

42. The emperor Humāyūn, attended by Mīrzā Shāhum, Lashkar Khān, and Khushhāl Beg, with two Ḥājis who recite the Fātiḥah (a miniature of the 16th century).

43. 'Umar Shaikh, father of Bābar, in a wild hilly scenery, with attendants.

44. "'Izzat Khān, son-in-law of 'Abd Ullah Khān Bahādur Fīrūz Jang." He was made Khān in the 4th year of Shāhjahān, and died A.H. 1042. See Ma'āṣir, fol. 378.

The miniatures are signed by the following artists:—Govardhan (No. 3, 31), Hūnhār (No. 6, 9, 11, 19, 24, 29), Chitarman (No. 20, 36, 37), Muḥammad Nādir Samarķandī (No. 21, 25, 26, 33, 35, 40, 44), Anūpchitar (No. 28, 32), Mīr Hāshim (No. 30, 41), and Bhāgvatī (No. 42).

Add. 5254.

Foll. 45;  $13\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $9\frac{1}{2}$ . [Sir H. SLOANE.] Portraits of princes and amirs of the courts of Dehli, Golconda, and Bijāpūr, in the latter part of the 11th century of the Hijrah, and of some princes of the same century. Most of them have the names added in the Persian character. Slips bearing Portuguese and English titles, and pasted at the bottom of each portrait, have in some cases been transposed. The subjects are as follows (the transcription of the Persian letterings is marked by inverted commas):—

Shāh 'Abbās II., fol. 1 a. "Shāh Sulaimān," fol. 1 b. "Ahmad Khān," foll. 2, 32 b. "Shāh 'Abbās the Great," fol. 3. "Muhammad Ibrāhīm," chancellor of Golconda (see Add. 22,282, fol. 24), fol. 4. "Fath Jang Khān," a general of Aurangzīb, who died in the Decean in the 26th year of the reign, foll. 5, 23 a. "Sultan 'Abd Ullah" (Kutubshāh, king of Golconda, A.H. 1035— 1083), foll. 6, 25 a, b. "The emperor Jahāngīr," foll. 7, 14. "Aurang Shāh" (Aurangzīb in his youth), fol. 8. Hindu ladies, foll. 9, 10. "Mīrzā Ahmad," son-in-law of 'Abd Ullah Kutubshāh, foll. 11, 20. "The emperor Akbar," fol. 12. "Shāhjahān," fol. 13." "Sultan Murādbakhsh," son of Shāhjahān, fol. 13. "Dārā Shikūh and Sultān Shuja'," sons of Shahjahan, fol. 14 b. "The emperor Aurangzīb," fol. 15 a. "Sultān Mu'azzam," afterwards Bahādur Shāh, fol. 15 b. Kāmbakhsh, the youngest son of Aurangzīb, fol. 16. Asad Khān, Vazīr of Aurangzīb, who was arrested by Farrukhsiyar, and died A.H. 1127, fol. 17. "Sultan Mahmud" (read Muhammad), the eldest son of Aurangzib, fol. 18 a. "Mir Jumlah" (see p. 266 a), fol. 18 b. "Muhammad Amīn Khān," son of the preceding, fol. 19 a. Maula Rūhā, fol. 19 b. "Rājah Karn," fol. 20 b. "Rājah Mān Singh," (a portrait of the same Rajah, Add. 7964, fol. 17 b, is inscribed "Rājah Rām Singh"), fol. 21 a. "Safshikan Khan," commander of Aurangzīb's artillery, who died A.H. 1085, fol. 21 b. "Rājah Bahār Singh" (see Add. 7964, fol. 13, where a portrait of the same officer is lettered "Rājah Bhāo Singh"), fol.

22 a. "Mirzā Ilich Khān" (probably the same as Mīrzā Irich Khān, who served in the Decean, and died as governor of Berar, A.H. 1096), fol. 22 b. "Maulā Samī'ā," fol. 23 b. "Shaikh Muhammad Khātūn," Vazīr of 'Abd Ullah Kutubshāh, fol. 24 a. "Sultān Muhammad Kuli" (of Golconda, A.H. 988-1020), fol. 24 b. "Sayvid Muzaffar," chancellor of Goleonda, fol. 26 a. "Shah Mirza," chancellor of Golconda, fol. 26 b. "Sayyid 'Ali, son of Sayvid Muzaffar," fol. 27 a. "Khairat Khan," fol. 27 b. "Niknam Khan," a eunuch, general to 'Abd Ullah Kutubshah, fol. 28 a. "'Abd ul-Jabbar Beg," Vazīr to Abul-Hasan Kutubshāh, fol. 28 b. "Maulā 'Abd uş-Şamad, Dahir," fol. 29 a. "Sulţān 'Abd ul-Hasan (Abul-Hasan) Kutubshāh" (of Golconda, A.H. 1083-1098), fol. 29 b. "Mīrzā Nāsir," minister to the king of Goleonda, fol. 30 a. "Shāh Rājū," confessor to the king of Golconda, fol. 30 b. "Hasan Khān," Vazīr to the king of Golconda, fol. 31 a. "Sharzah Khān," a general under the king of Golconda, fol. 31 b. "Husain Khān," Vazīr to the king of Golconda, fol. 32 b. "Mūsā Khān," general to the king of Golconda, fol. 33 a. "Mahmud 'Adilshah," son of 'Ali 'Adilshah, fol. 33 b. "Ikhlas Khān," general of the king of Bijāpūr, fol. 34 a. "Maulā 'Abd ul-Māli" (read Abul-Ma'ālī), fol. 34 b. "'Alī 'Adilshāh," king of Bijapur, A.H. 1048-1083, fol. 35 a. The bow-bearer of Shah 'Abbas, fol. 35 b. The ten Avatars of Vishnu, foll. 36-45.

Add. 7964.

Foll. 51; 11% in. by 8. Fifty-one portraits of Indian princes and amirs, with the names in the Persian character. The subjects of all but one are identical with those of the preceding collection, and the treatment is in most cases so similar, that they appear to be copies derived from the same originals.

The general arrangement also is nearly the same. The subject of the additional portrait is Afzal Khān, the Bījāpūr general, fol. 25.

Add. 22,282.

Foll. 26; 61 in. by 51. Twenty-six portraits of princes and amirs of the courts of Dehli, Golconda, and Bijāpūr, in the time of Aurangzib, with contemporary inscriptions in Dutch. The subjects are: Akbar, fol 1. Jahangir, fol. 2. Shahjahan, fol. 3. Dara Shikūh, fol. 4. Shāh Shuja', fol. 5. Murād Bakhsh, fol. 6. Aurangzīb, fol. 7. Sultān Mahmud, eldest son of Aurangzib, fol. 8. Mir Jumlah, fol. 9. Muhammad Amin Khān, son of Mīr Jumlah, fol. 10. Fath Jang Khan, fol. 11. Sivaji, 'the late Marattah prince,' fol. 12. 'Alī 'Adilshāh, 'late king of Bijāpūr,' fol. 13. 'Alī 'Adilshāh, son of the preceding (called Mahmud 'Adilshah in Add. 5254, fol. 33, b, and Add. 7964, fol. 28), fol. 14. Sultan 'Abd Ullah Kutubshah, 'late king of Golconda,' fol. 15. Sayyid Muzaffar, 'late state-chancellor of Golconda,' fol. 16. Niknam Khan, 'late general of Golconda,' fol. 17. Shāh Mīrzā, 'late state-chancellor of Golconda,' fol. 18. 'Abd us-Samad, 'late secretary of 'Abd Ullah Kutubshah,' fol. 19. 'Abd ul-Jabbar Beg, fol. 20. Sultan Abul-Hasan, 'present king of Golconda,' fol. 21. Shah Rajū, priest of the king of Golconda, fol. 22. Maduna Pandit, state-counsellor of Golconda, fol. 23. Muhammad Ibrāhīm, state-chancellor of Golconda, fol. 24. 'Abd ur-Razzāk, fol. 25. Sharzah Khān, colonel, fol. 26.

Add. 23,609.

Foll. 21; 16 in. by 11. Twenty-one portraits of Indian amirs of the 17th and 18th centuries, and specimens of penmanship, with illuminated borders; bound in stamped leather.

The following portraits have names added in Persian, or can be otherwise identified:— Mir Jumlah (see p. 779 b, No. 31), fol. 2. "Abd Ullah Kutubshāh," fol.3. "Faiz Ullah Khān," fol. 4. "Sazāvār Khān," who died in the 29th year of the reign of Aurangzib, fol. 5. "Guru Govind, the Sikh leader," fol. 7. "Miyān 'Abd ud-Hādi," fol. 9. "Nādir Shāh," fol. 10. "Shujā' ud-Daulah," Navvāb of Oude, fol. 11. "Iftikhār ud-Daulah Mirzā 'Alī Khān Bahādur," fol. 12. "Safdar Jang," Navvāb of Oude, fol. 13. "Mullā Dupiyāzah," a caricature of a fat and dwarfish old Mulla riding an emaciated hack, fol. 14. "Sayyid Niyaz Khan Bahādur, a kinsman (خويش) of the Vazīr Kamar ud-Dīn Khān," fol. 15. "Shāh Shujā', son of Shāhajhān," fol. 16. "Navvāb Muhammad Sādah Khān," fol. 18. bakhsh, son of Aurangzīb," fol. 19.

The calligraphic specimens, which are in Nestalik, Naskhi and Shikastah, have the following signatures and dates:—Pir 'Alī (a friend of Jami; see Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 43), fol. 3 b. Muhammad Husain, fol. 6 b. Ijāz-Rakam Khān, fol. 9 b. 'Alī Rizā ul-'Abbāsī, (of Tabrīz; he died some time after Shāh 'Abbās I.; see Tāhir Nasīrābādī, fol. 155), A.H. 1022, fol. 11 b. Mīr Imād (see p. 519 b), fol. 12. Muhammad Mumin ul-Husaini 'Arshi (who died A.H. 1091; see Mir'āt ul-'Alam, fol. 462), A.H. 1049, foll. 14, 16, 17. Mir 'Ali, fol. 19. 'Abd Ullah, A.H. 1057, fol. 20. Mu'izz ud-Din Muhammad ul-Husaini (of Kāshān, who went to India in the reign of 'Abbas I., and died there; see Tāhir Nasīrābādī, fol. 156, and Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 43), A.H. 986, fol. 21.

Add. 23,610.

Foll. 28; 17 in. by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ ; a volume containing thirty-six miniatures in Indian style, of the 18th century, and twenty calligraphic specimens, with broad illuminated margins.

The miniatures include, besides hunting scenes and fancy subjects, portraits of Indian princes and amirs of the 17th and 18th centuries, some of which are without names. The following can be identified:-Akbar, fol. 1. Jahangir, fol. 2. Parviz, fol. 3. Shahjahan, fol. 4. Akbar, with followers, hunting, fol. 5. Bīdārbakhsh, son of A'zam Shāh, fol. 6. Ghāzī ud-Dīn Khān Imād ul-Mulk, Vazīr of 'Alamgir II., fol. 9. Lutf Ullah Khān Sādik, the Khānsāmān of Muhammad Shāh, fol. 10. Muzaffar Khān, brother of Khāndaurān, who fell in the battle of Karnal, A.H. 1151, fol. 13. Timūr Shāh, son of Ahmad Shāh Durrānī, fol. 17. Itīkād Khān Akbarshāhī, fol. 20. 'Aklmand Khān (Don Pedro de Silva), fol. 21. 'Azīm ush-Shān, the second son of Bahādur Shāh, fol. 23. Shāh Sharaf Bu 'Alī Kalandar, an Indian saint, who died A.H. 724, fol. 25. Hazrat Kutb, i.e. the celebrated saint, Kutb ud-Din Kaki (p. 432 b), fol. 26. Rājah Jasvant Singh, fol. 27.

The calligraphic specimens contain the following signatures and dates:—Zarrīn-Raķam (Hidāyat Ullah; see p. 45 b), fol. 1. 'Alī (Mīr), fol. 2. Sayyid Mūsavī, fol. 4. Gulzār Raķam Khān, A.H. 1175, foll. 6, 21. 'Abd Ullah ul-Ḥusainī, A.H. 1013, fol. 7. Mīr Shaikh ul-Pūrānī, fol. 8. Sayyid 'Alī ul-Ḥusainī ut-Tabrīzī (Javāhir Raķam; see below, 21,928, fol. 6), A.H. 1073, 1075, foll. 10, 12. Muḥammad Hāshim ul-Ḥusainī, fol. 15. Mīr 'Abd Ullah, fol. 18. Raushan-Raķam, fol. 22. Mahdī, A.H. 1114, fol. 26. Mirzā Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ, fol. 27.

On the cover is the Persian stamp of Major Polier, with the date A.H. 1181.

Add. 21,928.

Foll. 35; 18 in. by 14. An album of miniatures and calligraphic specimens, with wide and richly ornamented borders; bound in stamped leather.

The miniatures, thirty-four in number, are in the best Indian style, apparently of the 17th and beginning of the 18th century. They represent various scenes of Indian life and of Eastern fiction, and include some portraits which bear no names. Among the latter those of Jahängir and Aṣaf Khān (Mirzā Abul-Ḥasan), fol. 3 b, of Akbar, fol. 4 a, of Shāh 'Abbās I., fol. 5 b, of Muḥammad Shāh, fol. 7 b (see Add. 22,363, fol. 22), and of Shāh Jahān sitting with his four youthful sons before a holy Shaikh, fol. 14 a, are easily recognized. Two miniatures, on foll. 17 b, 18 a, are evidently imitated from European models.

The calligraphic specimens, which are in Nestalik, are due to some of the best penmen of the 10th, 11th and 12th centuries of the Hijrah. They bear the following signatures and dates :- Mir 'Ali ul-Kātib, foll. 1, 8, 11, 13, etc. Muhammad 'Imad ul-Husaini, A.H. 1017, foll. 2, 30. Javahir Rakam Khan (Mir Sayvid 'Ali Khan, of Tabriz, writingmaster and librarian of Aurangzib, died A.H. 1094; see Mir'at ul-'Alam, p. 463), foll. 6, 15. Muhammad Yar, master of Farkhundalı Akhtar, son of Bahadur Shah, fol. 7. 'Abd ur-Rahim 'Anbarin Kalam, foll. 9, 29. Muliammad Mūsā, fol. 10. Vahīd, A.H. 1152, fol. 12. 'Abd Ullah ul-Husainī ut-Tirmizi (surnamed Mushkin Kalam, see p. 154 a), A.H. 1011, fol. 16. Sultan 'Ali Mashhadi (see p. 573 a), fol. 17. Hidayat Ullah Zarrin-Rakam, A.H. 1112, fol. 18. Muhammad Murad ul-Katib, foll. 22, 32. Mir Husain ul-Husainī ul-Kātib, foll. 23, 31. Ahmad ul-Husaini, foll. 23, 31. Nür ud-Din Muhammad Lähiji, fol. 25. Muhammad Husain ut-Tabrizi (in the reign of Shah Tahmāsp, see 'Alamārāi, fol. 44), fol. 27. 'Abd ul-'Azīz, fol. 34.

Add. 11,747.

Foll. 61;  $14\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ ; a collection of Indian miniatures of the 18th century, bearing the Persian seal of Sir Elijah Impey.

Foll. 2—28 and 57—61 form one uniform series, and represent groups of figures, chiefly females, in various attitudes and different surroundings. These are the conventional symbols of the musical modes called Rāgs and Rāginīs, the names of which are written at the back in the Devanagarī and Persian characters.

The rest of the volume contains favourite subjects of Eastern fiction, as Krishna and the Gopis, Kāmrūp and Kāmlatā, Farhād and Shīrīn, Lailī and Majnūn, etc., and scenes of Indian life. It includes also a few portraits, some of which bear names, as those of Jahāngīr, fol. 33, Aurangzīb, fol. 34, 'Azīm us-Shān (son of Shāh 'Alam Bahādur) and his son Karīm ud-Dīn, fol. 44. At the back of some of the drawings are found specimens of Persian calligraphy.

Add. 18,800.

Foll. 12; 13 in. by 9½; bound in stamped leather.

Eleven portraits of Indian princes, with ornamental borders, and twelve calligraphic specimens in the Naskhi character; apparently of the first half of the 18th century. Five of the portraits bear names in the Persian character, viz. Muḥammad Maḥfūz, Muḥammad Aḥmad, Akbar Pādishāh, Ḥasan Ķulī Khān, and Navvāb Ḥusain Kulī Khān.

The last two are probably meant for Hasan 'Alī and Husain 'Alī, the two Sayyids of Bārhah.

The calligraphic specimens are signed by Faiz Ullah, pupil of Yākūt Raķam Khān, Ḥusain ud-Dīn Khān, and Muḥammad Shukr Ullah.

Add. 18,802.

Foll. 22; 11½ in. by 7; bound in stamped leather.

Forty-two miniatures in Indian style, of the early part of the 18th century, enclosed in ornamental borders, and representing, for the most part, Hindū ladies in various attitudes. There are also portraits of Aurangzīb and Farrukhsiyar.

Add. 22,363.

Foll. 28; 16 in. by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ ; a collection of twenty-eight large miniatures in fine Indian style, of the 18th century, with illuminated borders.

They represent subjects of Eastern fiction, incidents of the legend of Krishna, symbolical figures of Rāginīs, and hunting scenes. There are also a few portraits, one of which, fol. 22, bears the name of Muḥammad Shāh, fol. 22.

A calligraphic specimen, fol. 9 b, is signed Muḥammad 'Abid B. Muḥammad Hāshim Kuraishī, and dated Akbarābād, A.H. 1125.

Add: 18,803.

Foll. 21; 14 in. by 10; miscellaneous Hindū miniatures of the 17th and 18th centuries, representing mythological subjects, female figures emblematic of the Rāginīs, and scenes of Hindū life. The last three are portraits. The first of these, a Moghul warrior drinking, is lettered Hulākū Khān. The second, a young prince riding, hawk in hand, is inscribed رفيع شاء شه زاده , probably Rafī'ush-Shān, the third son of Shāh 'Alam Bahādur Shāh. The third, a gentleman in the European costume of last century, has no name. Some specimens of Nestalik writing are signed Mīrzā Ṣāliḥ and Mīr 'Imād.

Add. 21,154.

Foll. 24;  $15\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $10\frac{1}{2}$ ; a collection of Hindū miniatures of the 18th century, and calligraphic specimens.

The miniatures represent Indian ladies, and scenes of Hindū life and romance. They also include some portraits bearing the following names:—Shāh 'Abbās, fol. 12. The grandson of Tānā Shāh (i.e. of Abul-Ḥasan Ķutubshāh), fol. 15. 'Ināyat'Alī Khān Bangash, fol. 17. Rasūl Khān Bangash, fol. 18. Rājah Mān Singh, fol. 19. Nūr Jahān Begam, fol. 20.

Seven of the calligraphic specimeus are detached leaves of the Dīvān i Shāhī (p. 640 a). Two, foll. 17, 18, are fragments of the tale of Gopīchand and Mirgāvatī, a scene of which is depicted on fol. 6 a. Others bear the signatures of Kashfī (p. 154 a), fol. 9 a, 'Abd ul-Khāliķ B. Ḥabīb Ullah ul-Haravī, A.H. 990, fol. 11 a, Muḥammad Ṣādiķ, A.H. 1102, fol. 14 b, and Ķiyām ud-Dīn Khān, fol. 22 b.

Add. 15,526.

Foll. 22; 18 in. by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ . A volume containing twenty-six miniatures in fair Indian style, of the 17th and 18th centuries, with some specimens of calligraphy.

The miniatures, which represent mostly scenes of Hindu life and of Eastern fiction, include also the following portraits:—Chānd Bībī of Aḥmad Nagar, the wife of 'Alī 'Ādīl Shāh, fol. 1. Farrukhsiyar, fol. 8. Muḥammad Mu'azzam (afterwards Bahādur Shāh), fol. 9. 'Alīmardān Khān (of Ḥaidarābād, who died in the fiftieth year of Aurangzīb's reign; see Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 70), fol. 12. Sulaimān Shikūh, son of Dārā Shikūh, fol. 14. Sayyid Muzaffar, chancellor of Golconda, fol. 16. Sulṭān Maḥmūd (Muḥammad), the cldest son of Aurangzīb, fol. 17.

Two European engravings, a Dutch landscape, fol. 2, and the assumption of the Holy Virgin, fol. 12, have been inserted.

The calligraphic specimens, which are in Nestalik, Naskhi and Shikastah, show the following signatures and dates:—Hidāyat'Alī Tajallī Vilāyat Raķam Ḥaidarābādī, A.H. 1179. They are Shīrīn Rakam, A.H. 1134, Javāhir Rakam Ṣānī, A.H. 1134, Muḥammad Ismā'īl, Abul-Bakā ul-Mūsavī, A.H. 1101, and Muḥammad Ḥusain B. Sharaf ud-Dīn 'Alī.

Add. 22,470.

Foll. 32; 15 in. by 11; an album containing thirty-two highly finished Indian miniatures, of the 17th and 18th centuries, with calligraphic specimens; bound in painted covers.

The miniatures, which mostly represent scenes of Indian life and Eastern fiction; include also portraits of princes, amīrs, and saints, to some of which names are added. The following can be identified:—

Akbar sitting on his throne, surrounded by officials, to most of whom names are added, fol. 4. Prince Dāniyāl, fol. 5. Shāh Shujā', fol. 6. Jahāngīr, with suite, crossing a river in boats, fol. 13. Farrukhsiyar, fol. 19. Muḥammad Amīn Khān, fol. 20. The Vazīr Ḥasan 'Alī Khān (afterwards Sayyid 'Abd Ullah Khān Ķutb ul-Mulk), fol. 29. 'Abd ul-Majīd Khān, fol. 30.

The portraits of saints, as Khwājah Aḥrār (p. 353 b), fol. 1, Bairāgī Rāmdās, fol. 11, and Shāh Madār (p. 361 b), fol. 14, are probably imaginary.

The specimens of penmanship are signed by Mir 'Alī, foll. 1, 24, 31, Muḥammad Murād fol. 2, Muḥammad Ḥusain ut-Tabrīzī, foll. 8, 18, 28, Minūchihr, A.H. 1075, fol. 12, Khādim 'Alī, A.H. 1189, fol. 15, Sulṭīn 'Alī Mashhadī, fol. 17, Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ ul-Ḥusainī, fol. 27.

An English note on the fly-leaf states that the MS. had been taken from the library of Hafiz Rahmat (see p. 212 a), at the time of his death.

Or. 375.

Foll. 39; 17 in. by 13; a collection of Hindū drawings of various sizes, of the 17th,

18th, and 19th centuries, containing portraits of Indian princes and amīrs, and some fancy subjects. [Geo. Wm. Hamlton.]

The portraits are those of Akbar, fol. 1, Jahangir, fol. 2, Shahjahan, as prince, fol. 3, Shāhjahān, as emperor, fol. 4, Dārā Shikūh, foll. 5, 6, Nür Jahan Begam, fol. 7, Muhammad A'zam Shāh, fol. 8, Farrukhsiyar, fol. 9, Akbar Shah II., foll. 10, 11. Muhammad Bahadur Shah, fol. 12, Nadir Shah, fol. 13, Ranjit Singh, fol. 14, Amir Khān, fol. 15, Kamar ud-Din Khān, fol. 16, Shāistah Khān, fol. 17, Khānkhānān, fol. 18, Ghāzī ud-Dīn Khān, fol. 19, Khān-Daurān Khān, fol. 20, Lālah Hazara Beg, fol. 21, Shahnavaz Khan, fol. 22, Hakim Muhtadi 'Ali Khan, fol. 23, the Maharajah of Udaipur, with queen and female attendants, fol. 24, Mahārājah Jagat Singh of Jaipūr, fol. 25, Rājah Bīrbal, with attendants, fol. 26, Rana Pirthi-Das, fol. 27, General Perron with wife, fol. 28, Ranjit Singh, fol. 29, the saint Kabir, Pir Dastgir, fol. 31, Shaikh Salim Chishti, fol. 32.

Add. 5717.

Foll. 66; 13 in. by 7\frac{3}{4}. Miscellaneous Hindū drawings of various sizes, mostly black, or slightly tinted, of the 17th and 18th centuries; collected in Lucknow, 1785—88.

They represent hunting scenes, fights of elephants, figures of large animals cunningly made up of smaller ones, mythological subjects, scenes of Hindū life, Faķīrs, etc.

There are also some portraits. The following have names:—Jalāl ud-Dīn Rūmī, foll. 44, 60, Dārā Shikūh, with his son Sulaimān Shikūh, fol. 45, Mīr Muḥammad Sa'īd, fol. 46, Bābar, fol. 52.

Add. 5027 B.

(Originally numbered Sloane 2925).

Foll. 44; 8½ in. by 12. Album of Engelbert Kaempfer, containing drawings by himself and by Persian artists, as follows:—Pen and ink drawings, by Kaempfer, of Yazdīkhāst, fol. 1, Hormuz, fol. 3, a fortress on a hill, without name, fol. 4, and the column of horns, Isfahan (see Amœnitates Exoticæ, p. 291), fol. 5. Native drawings representing a scene from Laila and Majnūn, foll. 6, 7; costumes of various classes in Persia and neighbouring countries, with Persian lettering, foll. 8—21; various animals found in Persia and Irak, with their names in Persian, foll. 22—34, 38—44.

From a note on fol. 42 the above drawings appear to have been executed for Kaempfer, in Isfahan, A.H. 1096, by Jānī, son of Ustāz Bahrām. The same name and date appear on a lady's portrait, by the same artist, fol. 37.

Map of the world, transcribed by Kaempfer from a Persian original, fol. 35. Map of the northern parts of Persia, from Isfahan to the Caspian, with names in French, by Kaempfer.

Or. 1372.

Foll. 51;  $16\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $10\frac{1}{2}$ ; bound in painted covers. [Sir Charles Alex. Murray.]

An album of miniatures and specimens of calligraphy, with rich 'Unvan, and ornamental borders.

The miniatures, which are partly in the Persian and partly in the Indian style, represent, for the most part, fancy figures and varied scenes of Eastern life. They include, however, a few portraits, to some of which names have been added, as follows:—Ḥakīm Shifā'ī, a physician and poet of the reign of Shāh 'Abbās I., fol. 7 a. Aṣā Hādī, with a lady, fol. 10 b. Sulṭān 'Alā ud-Dīn [B.] Fīrūz Shāh and Khwājah Ḥasan (see p. 618 a), fol. 15 a. Shāh Salīm (Jahāngīr), with hawk-bearer, fol. 19 a.

Four engravings, German and Flemish, of the 16th and 17th centuries, have been inserted. See foll. 36, 38, 50, 51.

The names of the following painters are found on some of the Persian miniatures:

Rizā i 'Abbāsī, who lived under Shāh 'Abbas I., foll. 4 b, 7 a, 11 a, 34 b, Muḥammad Kāsim, apparently of the same period, foll. 27 a, and Bihzād, a painter of the reign of Sultān Ḥusain Baikarā (see Memoirs of Baber, p. 197), fol. 50 a.

The ealligraphic specimens, mostly in large Nestalik, are by celebrated penmen of the 10th, 11th, and 12th centuries of the Hijrah. They bear the following signatures and dates: Mīr 'Alī ul-Kātib (see p. 531 a), A.H. 939, and Bukhārā, without year, foll. 5—15, 18, 19, 49. Mīr 'Imād ul-Ḥusainī (the first calligrapher of the time of Shāh 'Abbās I.; see p. 519 b), Isfahan, A.H. 1023, foll. 16, 35. 'Abd ur-Rashīd ud-Dailamī, Isfahan, A.H. 1025—1052, foll. 16, 17, 20—23, 38—48. Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ B. Abu Turāb, Isfahan, A.H. 1093—1120, foll. 1—4, 24—37.

Add. 7468.

Foll. 100;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; an album of calligraphy, with some miniatures; mounted in cloth and enclosed in painted covers.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

The specimens of penmanship in Nestalik, Naskhi, and Shafi'āi, are mostly of the 18th and the beginning of the 19th centuries. The following names are found in the signatures, or in the notes of the collector, with the accompanying dates: - Ḥasan Shāmlū, of Herat (reign of Shāh 'Abbās II.; see Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh), fol. 6. Mīr Imād, foll. 7, 92. Shafi'ā ul-Ḥusainī, A.H. 1148, foll. 16, 75. Mīrzā Zain ul-'Abidīn (reign of Shāh Sulaimān; see Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh), A.H. 1127 and 1105, foll. 19, 52. Mīrzā Abul-Ķāsim Injū Shīrāzī, A.H. 1180, foll. 23, 53. Ummīdī, foll. 46, 47, Muhammad Muhsin Isfahānī, A.H. 1149, fol. 49. Darvish Majid, foll. 60, 72, 73. Mīrzā Hasan Kirmāni, fol. 61. Mīrzā Kūchak, pupil of Darvish Majid (the collector speaks of him as "now" living in Isfahan), foll. 66, 67, 96.

The collector dates one of his notes at Isfahan, A.H. 1228.

Among the miniatures, which are mostly in the Indian style of the 18th century, there are, besides fancy subjects, portraits to which the following names are added:—Shāhrukh, fol. 14. Tīmūr, fol. 15. 'Iṣmat of Bukhārā, with Bisāṭī of Samarķand (see pp. 736 b, 735 a), fol. 32. Ḥāfiz, with Abu Isḥaķ Shīrāzī (see p. 634 a), fol. 33. Valī Ķalandar, fol. 44. Vais Ḥakīm ul-Mulk (apparently a portrait of Aurangzīb), fol. 50. Khwājah 'Abd Ullah Marvārīd (of Herat, a poet and calligrapher, who died A.H. 922), fol. 51. Sa'dī, fol. 63. Shāhjahān (two profile portraits, one of which is lettered Akbar Shāh), foll. 90, 91.

Add. 27,271.

Foll 18; 112 in. by 8, written on gold ground, with coloured borders, and mounted on cloth; enclosed in painted covers.

[SIR JOHN MALCOLM.]

Eighteen specimens of Persian penmanship, in the character called Tarassul, signed Muḥammad Kāzim ul-Vālih ul-Işfahānī (sec p. 723 a), and dated A.H. 1225.

They contain forms of official and complimentary letters, frequently repeated.

Or. 1373.

Foll. 40; 11% in. by 7%; an album of calligraphic specimens, with illuminated borders and ten miniatures; mounted on cloth, and enclosed in painted covers.

[SIR CHAS. ALEX, MURRAY.]

The 'calligraphic specimens in Naskhi, Nestalik, and Shikastah, have the following signatures and dates:—Fazl Ullah ul-'Amili, A.H. 1254, foll. 13, 14. 'Abd ul-Majīd (Darvīsh), Iṣfahān, A.H. 1173, fol. 21. Ibn 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad ul-Ḥusainī, A.H. 1199, fol. 31. Aḥmad un-Nairīzī, A.H. 1117, fol. 32. Ķā'im Maķām, foll. 11, 12, 35, 36. Shāh Maḥmūd, fol. 40.

Most of the miniatures represent fancy figures in the Persian style of the 17th and 18th centuries. One of the earliest, fol. 37, has for its subject the reception of Khān 'Alam, the envoy of Jahāngīr, by Shāh 'Abbās I., which took place in Kazvīn, A.H. 1027.

Add. 4832.

A single leaf, 14 in. by 8. A letter endorsed by Alex. Dow, "Fine writing of Aga Reshidee Chaun Husseini, first master in this art." The writer, who signs 'Alī, requests a continuance of friendly support for his son Muḥammad Bāķir. At the back is the seal of Rashīd Khān Ḥusainī, with the date A.H. 1118. An English translation is subjoined.

Add. 4833.

Four leaves, bound up with the preceding, and endorsed by Alexander Dow, "Allahabad, 1763," and "Benares, 1764."

Four calligraphic specimens, two of which are signed Rahm Ullah ul-Ḥusainī, and Mir Fakhr ud-Din Ḥusain Khān Ni matullāhī.

Add. 21,474.

Foll. 13; 14½ in. by 12; autographs and calligraphic specimens collected by Lewin Bowring, Esq., in Dehli, A.D. 1854. They are signed by the following penmen:—Munshi Dipchand, of Dehli, Samvat, 1903 (A.D. 1846), foll. 1. Muḥammad Kulī, of Peshāwar, A.D. 1854, fol. 2, 10. Abuz-Zafar Sirāj ud-Dīn Bahādur Shāh, emperor of Dehli, fol. 3. Mīrzā Dārābakht Valī 'Ahd, 'the late heir to the throne,' fol. 4. Mīrzā Muḥammad Sulṭān Fatḥ ul-Mulk Shāh Valī 'Ahd, 'heir to the throne,' fol. 5. Muḥammad Amīr Rizavī, known as Sayyid Amīr, of Dehli, A.H. 1270, foll. 6, 7. 'Ibād Ullah, fol. 8. Muʿjiz-Raķam Khān, of Kandahār, foll. 11—13.

The specimens include verses in Urdu, Pushtū, Panjābī and Ķashmīrī.

Add. 15,969.

Three sheets, 30 in. by 21, containing bird's-eye views by native artists of royal gardens and palaces, endorsed: "Presented to Ozias Humphrey at Lucknow, May 11th 1786, by Col. Anthony Polier. It represents the inside and the amusements of the Sultan's Zinnana."

Egerton 1061.

A paper slip, 42 feet by  $13\frac{1}{2}$  in. Coloured drawing, by native artists, of the cortège of Shujā' ul-Mulk, king of Kābul, with the names of the principal officers and corps added in Persian; 19th century.

Egerton 1062.

A paper slip, 22 feet 9 in. long by 14 in. A panoramic view, by native artists, of the city of Benares, as seen from the river, with the names of the Ghāts and principal buildings in Persian; 19th century.

Add. 22,716.

Thirteen sheets, the largest of which measures two feet and a half in breadth by 23 inches in height. They contain coloured drawings, carefully executed by native artists in the present century, of the principal buildings of Agra, as follows:—1. Mausoleum of Akbar at Sikandrah. 2. Gate of the Mausoleum. 3. Mausoleum of I'timād ud-Daulah (father of Nūr Jahān), on the other side of the Jumna. 4. The Dīvān Khās, or audience-hall, inside the Fort. 5. Dehli gate of the Fort. 6. Rauzah Munavvarah Mumtāz Maḥall, or Tāj Maḥall (see p. 430 a), viewed from the Jumna. 7. Enclosure of the tombs of Mumtāz Maḥall and Shāhjahān. 8. Tomb of Shāhjahān. 9. Tomb of Mumtāz Maḥall, 10—13. Detail of ornament and inscriptions on the sarcophagus.

Add. 8893, Art. II., No. 1.

A single sheet, 24 in. by 26; 6 lines in Nestalik.

Fac-simile of a Persian inscription in old Dehli, stating that on the first of Rabī' I., in the year 101 [read 1015], Ṭāhir Muḥammad [B.] 'Imād ud-Dīn Ḥasan B. 'Alī سبزواري came from Agra, in attendance upon the Shāhzādah Sulṭān Khūram, visited the sepulchres of the saints, and set out on his way to the court of His Majesty Nūr ud-Dīn Muḥammad Jahāngīr Pādishāh Ghāzī in Lahore.

The inscription relates to the author of the Rauzat ut-Ṭāhirīn (see p. 119 b), and shows that he accompanied Sulṭān Khūram, afterwards Shāhjahān, when that prince was summoned by Jahāngīr from Agra to Lahore. The prince's meeting with his father took place on the 12th of Rabī II., A.H. 1015. See Toozuki Jehangeerce, p. 36, and 'Amal i Sālih, fol. 19.

An inscription in Persian verse by the same Muḥammad Ṭāhir, dated A.H. 1014, is engraved upon the tomb of Amīr Khusrau. See Āṣār uṣ-Ṣanādīd, Appendix, p. 37, No. 38.

MANUSCRIPTS OF MIXED CONTENTS.

Harl. 500.

Foll. 138; 8½ in. by 5; 17 lines, 2½ in. long, in a page, written partly in Nestalik, partly in Naskhi; dated from Ṣafar, A.H. 1010, to Zulķa'dalı, A.H. 1012 (A.D. 1601—1604).

I. Foll. 1—18. The beginning of the Gulistān of Sa'dī (see p. 597 a).

II. Foll. 20—39. Tuḥfah i Shāhidī (see p. 513 b).

III. Foll. 40-73. ميالهاديد

A Persian manual in ten sections (Ķism), and four chapters (Faṣl), giving grammatical forms and familiar words, with their Turkish equivalents.

Author: Muḥammad B. Ḥājī Ilyās, محمد

الحمد لله القوى الجبار والصلوة Beg.

See Haj. Khal., ii. p. 243, Krafft's Catalogue, p. 6, and the Leyden Catalogue, vol. i. p. 98.

IV. Foll. 73—106. جمع مختصر, a treatise on Persian prosody and poetical ornaments.

Author: Vahid Tabrizi, وحيد تبريزي

سپاس بى قياس واجب التعظيم را Beg.

The author, whose full name was Vaḥīd ud-Dīn, wrote it for his brother's son. Hence it is designated in a Latin notice prefixed to the MS. by Solomon Negri as Braserzadeh (عادرالات). Copies are mentioned in the Jahrbücher, vol. 62, Anzeigeblatt, p. 11, and the catalogues of St. Petersburg, p. 436, Vienna, vol. i. p. 206, Gotha, p. 14, and Munich, p. 120.

The author is not to be confounded with a later writer, Maulānā Vāḥid الحد Tabrīzī, a Sufi and poet, for whom Shāh 'Abbās II. entertained great regard, and who died in Isfahan A.H. 1080. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 497, and Hammer, Redekünste, p. 380.

V. Foll. 108—138. A versified Arabic-Turkish vocabulary, without preface or title.

خبر اتمك قبله اوپمق زرع اكمك قول غلام .

It consists of twenty-two sections, each on a different rhyme, and has no systematic arrangement of words. This is apparently the work of 'Abd ul-Latif B. Firishtah, known as كتاب فرشته ارغلى or لغت ابن فرشته ارغلى . See the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 116, and Krafft's Catalogue, p. 7.

Harl. 5446.

Foll. 45; 64 in. by 41; 14 and 11 lines, written in Naskhi and Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 1—15. An extract beginning, باب اندر منافع حشرات و حيوانات

It treats of the magical or medicinal properties of certain parts of various animals. It also contains recipes for the keeping off of insects, and others relating to sexual intercourse and parturition.

II. Foll. 16—45. An abridgment of the Book of Precious Stones, beginning, بدانکه این مختصریست از جواهر نامه

It contains twelve chapters (Bāb), treating of the following stones: diamond, yāķūt, ruby, emerald, pearl, turquoise, bezoar, amber, lapis lazuli, coral, cornelian, and jasper. The values are estimated in florins, and the European (Firangī) jewellers are frequently referred to.

Harl. 5464.

Foll. 163;  $5\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 11 lines,  $1\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1078 (A.D. 1667).

A volume of miscellaneous tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 83. The following are partly Persian:

I. Foll. 67—144. The Pand Nāmah of 'Aṭṭār (see p. 579 b), with Turkish glosses.

II. Foll. 146—163. A short Arabic treatise on the conjugation of the Persian verb, with the heading, القواعد و الامثلا.

In the subscription it is designated as المحال المحال. This is the title of a Persian dictionary by Muḥammad B. Pīr 'Alī ul-Birgavī (who died A.H. 981; see Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 91), from which the above tract is probably taken.

Harl. 5468.

Foll. 103; 5 in. by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ ; 6 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in coarse Naskhi; dated Rabi II., A.H. 1069 (A.D. 1658).

A volume containing Arabic prayers, with Persian rubrics, and a short Shī'ah catechism entitled اصول دين, in Persian, foll. 74—85. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 382.

Harl. 5490.

Foll. 371; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; about 17 lines; written in Naskhi and Nestalik, about A.H. 1076 (A.D. 1666).

A volume of miscellaneous tracts, mostly Turkish. The following contain Persian texts:—

I. Foll. 19-120. The first part of a

Turkish commentary upon the Masnavi (see p. 584 b), entitled, مجموعة اللطائف وهامورة المعارف.

The author, whose name does not appear, was, according to Haj. Khal., vol. v. pp. 375, 377, Rusūkh ud-Dīn Ismā'īl B. Aḥmad uk-Anķuravī ul-Maulavī, known as Ismā'īl Dadah, who died A.H. 1042.

The work is stated in the preface to have been compiled from two distinct commentaries previously written by the author, entitled فاتح and الأبيات and الأبيات. It was written by desire of Sultan Murād B. Aḥmad, and completed A.H. 1039.

The present fragment comprises the Arabic preface, and the beginning of the poem, down to this line (Bulak edition, p. 10):—

II. Foll. 197—213. Hundred sayings of 'Alī, with a paraphrase in Persian quatrains, by Rashīd ud-Dīn Vaṭvāṭ (see p. 553 b), and a Turkish version in similar form.

III. Foll. 214—220. Forty sayings of Muḥammad (Ḥadīṣ), in Arabic, with a paraphrase in Persian quatrains.

انما الاعمال بالنیات و لکل امرء ما نوی Beg. اصل اعمال نیت نیکوست نیت نیک دار ای مهتر زانکه هرکارنیکونیت نیست هست آن جملکی هبا و هدر

Royal 16, B. xxI.

Foll. 27;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $10\frac{1}{4}$ . Miscellaneous Oriental papers. The following are Persian:—

I. Foll. 6—12. An almanack for the "year of the hen," تخاتری يسيل, which began on the 11th of Shavvāl, A.H. 1042 (March, 1633), giving the positions of the planets for each day.

II. Fol. 12. A slip of pink paper, with 16 lines in large Dīvānī. A petition addressed by three native servants of the East India Company at Sūrat, namely Chauth, Tulsīdās, and Benīdās, to the King of England (Protector Cromwell), asking compensation for damages suffered during the Dutch war, "signed by them, in the Gujrātī character, dated Swally Marine, January 26th, 1655."

Lansdown 1245.

Foll. 146; 9½ in. by 5½; 25 and 16 lines; written in the 17th and 18th centuries.

[N. BRASSEY HALHED.]

I. Foll. 2—131. A horoscope of the birth of Shāhjahān, with astronomical tables.

Author: Fath Ullah B. 'Abd ur-Rahman uz-Zubairi ul-Burūji, عبد الرحين البروجي الزبيري البروجي حمد متواتر وثناء متكاثر مر مبعودي را سزد Beg.

The author, who wrote during the reign of Shāhjahān, bases his calculation of the position of the heavenly bodies at the emperor's birth on the statement of the contemporary astrologers, who had fixed it at 12 Gharīs and 3 Pals of the night before Thursday, the 30th of Rabī' I., A.H. 1000.

II. Foll. 132—146. An almanack for the "year of the hare," توشقان يبيل, corresponding to A.H. 1172-3 (A.D. 1759), written in Bengal for Navvāb Mīr Muḥammad Ja'far Khān.

Arundel Or. 8.

Foll. 148; 8 in. by 5½; 14 and 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 1—75. A collection of short tracts relating to the rules and traditions of the religious order called Ahl i Futuvvat (see p. 44 a). They are in Turkish, with the exception of the last two, foll. 72—77, which are Persian, and treat of the origin of the felt-cloak and other garments of Bābā 'Amr, a patron of the order.

II. Foll. 76-139. Preface and first part of the Divan of Hafiz. Select pieces, mostly of religious character, from the Divans of the following poets:—Lisānī (p. 656 b), Dā'ī Shīrāzī (a disciple of Ni'mat Ullah Valī; he collected his Divan A.H. 865. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 387, and Mir'at Jahannuma, fol. 347), Khusrau (p. 609 a), Sa'dī, Hāfiz, Shams i Tabrīz (p. 593 a), Khākānī, Ahmad i Jām (p. 551 b), Jāmī, Asafī (p. 651 b), Kāsim (p. 635 b), and Sabūhī (a Sūfī, of Chaghatāi extraction, who lived in Herat, and later in India. He died in Agra, A.H. 972 or 973. See Badāoni, vol. iii. p. 257, Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 582, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 43, 125).

The latter portion, foll. 132—139, is chiefly taken up by Turkish poems.

III. Foll. 149-148. A Turkish tract on the Salmani order.

Egerton 695.

Foll. 192; 94 in. by 5. [ADAM CLARKE.]

I. Foll. 1—90; 12 lines, 2½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

ديوان اثر

The Divan of Aşar.

بکش بوادی افتادکی تن خودرا بخاک نهان سازدشمن خودرا

Shafi'ā, surnamed Aṣar, a native of Shīrāz, who had lost his sight at the age of nine years, lived in Isfahan in the time of Sulṭān Husain (A.H. 1105—1135). He was considered the first poet of his time, and especially excelled in satire. He died in Lār, A.H. 1113, or, according to Sirāj, Oude Catalogue, p. 149, A.H. 1124. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 53, Ātashkadah, fol. 119, and the Oude Catalogue, pp. 138, 344.

Contents: Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 1 b, Rubā'īs, fol. 80 b. Maṭāli', or openings, and fragments of Ghazals, in alphabetical order, foll. 85 b—90. Ķaṣīdahs, in praise of Muḥammad, 'Alī, and the Imāms, foll. 1 b—45 b, in the margins.

II. Foll. 91—192; 15 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik.

اطيفه فياضي

Letters of Shaikh Faizī (see p. 450 a), edited by Nūr ud-Dīn Muḥammad.

يا ازلى الظهور يا ابدى الخفا Beg.

The editor was the son of 'Ain ul-Mulk, a physician of Shīrāz, who had risen to high favour with Akbar, and died in the 40th year of the reign (A.H. 1003. See Badāonī, vol. ii. p. 403, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 480). His mother was a sister of Shaikh Faizī and Shaikh Abu'l-Fazl. He says in his preface that, while the poems of Faizī, as Markaz i Advār and others, had been collected and arranged by Shaikh Abulfazl, his prose compositions had been neglected. In order to save them from oblivion, he made the present collection in the year indicated by the above title, i.e. A.H. 1035.

The work is divided, according to the preface, into five Laṭīfahs, three Manṭūkahs, and a Khātimah. The first five sections contain Faiẓī's letters to Akbar, fol. 97 a, to Shaikhs and 'Ulamā, fol. 131 a, to physicians, fol. 157 b, to Sayyids and Amīrs, fol. 174 a, and to relatives, fol. 184 a. Faiẓī's preface to his Dīvān is prefixed.

The remaining sections, which contained invocations by Shaikh Abulfazl, letters of Shaikh Abu'l-Khair (a brother of Faizī), letters addressed to Faizī, and some compositions of the editor, are wanting in this copy.

Egerton 707.

Foll. 181;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 11 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in plain Nestalik; dated Muharram, A.H. 1217 (A.D. 1802).

[ADAM CLARKE.]

I. Foll. 2—62. قصة سيت بسنت, the story of two brothers, Sit and Basant, a Hindū tale.

دانایان اسمار و راویان اخبار چنین روایت Beg.

II. Foll. 63—137. ذخيرة الفواد, a treatise on the religious observances of the Hindūs.

سپاس بیعد و ثناء بیعد مر خالقی را ، Beg.

It is stated to have been written for the use of the Hindūs in A.H. 1210, Faṣlī 1203, A.D. 1796, and comprises the following three Bābs:—1. Fast days (Brat) throughout the Hindū year, from Chait to Phāgun, fol. 64 b. 2. Cosmogony and origin of castes, fol. 114 b. 3. Orders of Hindū devotees and their distinctive marks (Tilak), fol. 126 a.

III. Foll. 138—181. A tract beginning, مضمون این کتاب متضمی بر چهار باب, and divided into four Bābs, as follows:—1. Ages of the world, fol. 138 b. 2. The ten Avatārs, fol. 149 a. 3. The seven planetary divinities, and their invocations, fol. 169 a. 4. The twelve solar mansions, fol. 179 a.

The last two tracts contain several Sanskrit. Slokas in the Persian character.

Copyist: عليبيك

The MS. was written for Mr. Henry George Keene, whose name and scal are found on the fly-leaf, with the date, March, 1802.

Egerton 1004.

Foll. 204;  $10\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1232 (A.D. 1817).

I. Foll. 4—57. Zafar Nāmah i 'Alamgīrī, by 'Akil Khān (see pp. 265 a, and 699 a), wanting the introduction.

A table of the Timurides from Babar to Shāh 'Alam, and a list of the children of Shāhjahān and Aurangzīb, are prefixed, fol. 3.

II. Foll. 57—70. Extract from the Shāh jahān-Nāmah (i.e. 'Amal i Ṣāliḥ, see p. 263 a), relating to the eapture of Dārā Shikūh, and the death of Shāhjahān (corresponding to Add. 26,221, foll. 669—678). Letter of Shāhjahān to Ķuṭb ul-Mulk (the king of Golconda), enjoining him to put down offensive Shī'ah practices; the latter's answer, dated Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1045. Letter of 'Adil Khān, of Bijāpūr, to Shāhjahān, and the latter's letter to 'Ādil Khān, dated the 23rd of Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1045 (see 'Amal i Ṣāliḥ, foll. 373—375), fol. 66.

III. Foll. 70—114. Extract from the Khizānah i 'Amirah (see p. 373 a), comprising the lives of Nizām ul-Mulk Aṣaf Jāh and his children, Burhān ul-Mulk Sa'ādat Khān, Ṣafdar Jang, Shujā' ud-Daulah and Shāh 'Alam, Aḥmad Shāh Durrānī, and Ishāk Khān Mūtaman ud-Daulah (corresponding to Or. 232, foll. 25—98).

IV. Foll. 115—125. Letter of Nādir Shāh to his son Rizā Kulī Mīrzā, announcing his victory in India. Letter of Shāh 'Abbās I. to Jahāngīr, relating to his capture of Kandahār (A.H. 1031, see 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 380), and the latter's answer, fol. 120 a. Letter of Aurangzib, on his march upon Kandahār, to his father, Shāhjahān (A.H. 1062), fol. 121. Letters of Shujā' ud-Daulah to Najīb Khān and Shāh 'Alam, fol. 122 a.

V. Foll. 126—135. Five letters, پيغ رقعه by Maulānā Zubūrī (see p. 742 a, v.).

Some Ghazals by the same author are written in the margins from fol. 115 to 122.

VI. Foll. 135—204. Letters of Rājah Lachhmī-Narāyan, Munshī, رتعات لچهمی نراین, edited by Muḥammad Faizbakhsh B. Ghulām Sarvar, of Kākūrī (see p. 309 b).

هرچند طوطی شکرین مقال خامهرا در برابر . آئینه بیان

From a memoir of the author's life, prefixed by the editor, we learn that he descended from a Lahore family settled in Dehli, that his father's name was Rāi Manī Rām, and that he was a pupil of Sirāj ud-Dīn 'Alī Khān Arzū (see p. 501 b). Having been driven from Dehli by the invasion of Ahmad Shah Durrānī, Laehhmī-Narāyan stayed some time in Aurangabad and Bareli, and settled in Lucknow, where he found a protector in Shah Madan. After his patron's imprisonment by Shāh Shujā', he obtained, on the recommendation of Akhund Ahmad 'Ali, employment under Navvāb Muḥammad Javāhir 'Alī Khān, Nāzir of Faizābād (see p. 309 b), and spent there seven years, in constant intercourse with the writer of this notice. He then passed into the service of Asaf ud-Daulah in Lucknow; but subsequently returned to Faizābād, where his mind became deranged. Three years later, the editor obtained possession of his papers, and compiled the present collection, which he completed A.H. 1205.

The dates of the letters range from A.H. 1183 to 1195. Some are mere rhetorical exercises addressed to the author's pupil, Shaikh Bāķir 'Alī, sister's son to Ākhund Aḥmad 'Alī; others are written in the name of Navvāh Javāhir 'Alī, Ākhund Aḥmad 'Alī, and Bahū Begam, to the successor of Governor Hastings (Sir John Maepherson), Shāh 'Alam, Āṣaf ud-Daulah, and others, while a few are addressed by the author in his own name to the editor.

A tabulated index of the contents is given on fol. 125 b. The work has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1265.

Egerton 1008.

Foll. 167;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 13 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in plain Nestalik, apparently in India, early in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 1—69. خزقه, a treatise on sexual intercourse.

Author: Murtaza Kuli Shāmlū, مرتضى

Beg. سبحان الله رنك اميزى بساط حبد وسپاس حكيمى
Murtazā Ķulī Khān, son of Ḥasan Khān
Shāmlū, governor of Khorasan (see p. 682 a), stood in high favour with Shāh Sulaimān
(A.H. 1077—1105), who appointed him to the office of sword-bearer, ششير بردار, and to the government of Kum. He is described as a poet of taste, and an elegant Shikastahwriter. See Ṭāhir Naṣīrābādī, fol. 32, Riyāz ush-Shuʿarā, fol. 437, and Ātashkadah, fol. 11.

This work, written in a highly artificial and ornate style, is dedicated to the Shāh (probably Shāh Sulaimān). It is divided into thirty sections, which, in conformity with its title Khirkah, or "patched cloak," are termed **!* "patches." Two copies are described in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 81, No. 232, and p. 151.

II. Foll. 70-74. A short Arabic-Hindustani dictionary of drugs.

III. Foll. 75—167. ام العلاج, a treatise on purgatives considered in connection with the age and temperament of the patients, the season of the year, and other conditions.

Author: Amān Ullah, entitled Khānah-Zād Khān Fīrūz Jang B. Mahābat Khān Sipahsālār B. Ghayūr Beg, امان الله مخاطب بخانه زاد خان فيروز جنك بن مهابتخان سپهسالار بن غيوربيك (see p. 509 b).

Beg. جان داروی که مزاج بخردی را از فساد نقصان. The work, which is dedicated to Jahangir, was written in A.H. 1036. It is divided into a Mukaddimah and six Babs, comprising sixty-three Fasls.

Egerton 1009.

Foll. 218;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in.

long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

A miscellaneous volume, containing,—
I. A collection of medical prescriptions, without any preamble, or methodical arrangement, fol. 2. II. Extracts relating to compound medicaments, in Persian and Arabic, fol. 74 b. III. Descriptions of compound medicaments, alphabetically arranged, foll. 107 b—215 b.

At the end of this last section are found the words, بنقل من قرابادین هجیب الدین السمرقندی, which leave it uncertain whether Najīb ud-Dīn us-Samarķandī is named as the author of the treatise, or of the last prescription only.

The volume is endorsed قرابادین سعدالدین لبیب, but in the text Sa'd ud-Dīn Ṭabīb is only quoted as the author of an observation on the use of naphtha, with which the book begins.

Egerton 1024.

Foll. 163; 11 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 18 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Indian Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1229 (A.D. 1814).

Prose works of Mīrzā Ķatīl (see p. 64 b), as follows:—

I. Foll. 2—20. Letters written from the court of Fath 'Alī Shāh to the author's patron in India.

صبحدمی که سلطان اریکه رابع افلاك

These letters deal less with public events than with personal and familiar incidents, or what may be termed the "chronique scandaleuse" of the residence. Their approximate date may be inferred from their including, fol. 7, a contemporary record of the capture and blinding of Zamān Shāh, the Afghan ruler of Kandahār, by his brother Mahmūd Shāh, an event of A.H. 1217. See Brydges, Dynasty of the Kajars, p. 159. The title رساله قانون مرزة حسن is written by a later hand on the first page.

A larger and later collection of Mirzā Ķatīl's letters, compiled A.H. 1232 by his pupil Imām ud-Dīn, has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1259-60, under the title of معدى الفوائد معروف رقعات ميرزا قتيل, and reprinted in Cawnpore, A.H. 1264.

II. Foll. 21—34. شجرة الاماني, a treatise on the niceties of Persian grammar and idioms.

نصم ترین کلامی که از جوش صفا ، Beg.

This work, written at the request of Sayyid Amān 'Alī, from whose name the title is derived, was composed, as appears from the preface of art. iv., in A.H. 1206. It is divided into six " branches" (فرة), subdivided into "fruits" (ثهرة).

2. Ellipses of particles. 3. Compounds, درکیب. 4. Peculiarities of the Persian of Iran, Turan, and India. 5. Elegance of diction.

The Shajarat ul-Amānī has been lithographed in Lucknow, 1841.

III. Foll. 35—70. Nahr ul-Faşâhat (see p. 520 b).

IV. Foll. 71—131. چار شربت, another treatise on Persian composition.

Beg. نورشی زبان فصیم بیانان

Katīl wrote it on his return from Kālpī to Lucknow, after an absence of two years and a half, in A.H. 1217, at the request of Mīr Muḥammad, the younger son of Mīr Amān 'Alī. It is divided, as its name implies, into four Sharbats, variously subdivided, on the following subjects: 1. Persian prosody and rhyme. 2. Modern idioms and figurative phrases. 3. Elegant expressions, faulty phrases used in India, and models of epistolary composition. 4. Short vocabulary and grammar of the Turkī language (the Persian equivalents are frequently written in numerical figures).

The Chahār Sharbat has been lithographed in Lucknow, A.H. 1268.

V. Foll. 132—163. A treatise on Arabic grammar, without title or preface.

It contains the conjugation of the verb and its secondary forms, a classed vocabulary of nouns, and a sketch of the syntax. In the subscription the treatise is called قانون مجدد and ascribed to Mirzā Katīl.

Egerton 1028.

Foll. 87; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; about 17 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the latter half of the 18th century.

Foll. 2—34. Inshāi Harkarn. See
 p. 530 a.

II. Foll. 35—52. A tract on the atoning efficacy of worship at the Siva shrines of Benares, translated from a Sanskrit original entitled Panchakroṣī, پنچکروشی, by Kishan Singh, poetically surnamed Nashāṭ, son of Rāi Prān Nāth, Khatrī of the Mangal tribe, an inhabitant of Siyālkūt, من سنکه مختلص به کهتری قوم منکل ساکن سیالکوت نشاط ولد رای پران ناته کهتری قوم منکل ساکن سیالکوت

حمد و ثنای بی پایان و ستایش و نیایش بیکران . Beg

The Panchakroşa is a portion of the Kāsī-Māhātmya; see Aufrecht, Bodleian Catalogue, p. 28.

III. Foll. 53—57. غريب الانشا, a short narrative in ornate prose, written in imitation of the Shash-Jihat and the Badā'i' ul-Jamāl of Dīvān Rūp-Narāyan Ṣāḥib.

Author: the same Kishan Singh.

Beg. سخن سازی زبان شیرینکار به تحمید صانعی است. The work was written, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1157.

IV. Foll. 58—86. سراج الطريق, the story of Naskit ناسكيت, son of the devotee Ūdālik, اودالك, and of his visit to the realm of Yama, جم ډوري, apparently translated from a Sanskrit original.

ان داستان غرابت نشان را بعبارت فارسی ا

Add. 5622.

Foll. 285;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century,

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

I. Foll. 1—38. راحت القاوب, satirical sketches of some contemporaries, by Ni mat Khān 'Alī (see p. 268 b).

افرین سخن افرینی را که در صلای ثنایش Beg.

The names of the objects of the author's satire are disguised under various riddles.

II. Foll. 39—99. Journal of the siege of Haidarābād, by the same (see p. 268 a).

III. Foll. 100—117. Husn u 'Ishk, by the same (see p. 703 b).

IV. Foll. 117—121. A letter beginning, حكيم حقيقي ميرزاى دوستان, apparently by the same.

V. Foll. 121—130. Three short prose pieces, entitled مناظره وشرمه, مناظره زلف مناظره چشم و سرمه by Akā Abul-Kāsim.

VI. Foll. 130—133. A letter written by Ţāhir Naṣīrābādī (see p. 368 b), in answer to the Uzbak ambassador.

VII. Foll. 133—137. Short pieces in prose and verse, by Mîr Sayyid 'Alī Mihrī, headed بحر طویل میر سید علی مہری

Mîr Sayyid 'Alî, whose father Sayyid Musā'id was a native of Jabal 'Amil, was born in Isfahan, and held the office of Malik ush-Shu'arā under Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain (A.H.

1105—1135). He died in that Shāh's reign, leaving about six thousand lines of poetry. See Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 440, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 277.

VIII. Foll. 137—145. تضا و قدر, "Fate and Destiny," a Maşnavî by Muḥammad' Kulī Salīm (see p. 738 a).

شنیدم روزی از خونابه منوش Beg.

See the Oude Catalogue, p. 556, Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 122, the Munich Catalogue, p. 4, and Bland, Earliest Persian Biography, p. 163.

A Maşnavî of the same name, by Mîr 'Alî Rizā Tajallī, has been lithographed in the press of Gulzār i Hind, A.H. 1283.

IX. Foll. 145—159. Short pieces by the three following poets: 1. Navvāb Rustam Jang Makhmūr (Murshid Ķulī Khān, of Sūrat. He lived at the court of Āṣafjāh, who died A.H. 1161, and survived him but a few years; see the Oude Catalogue, p. 194). 2. Murtaṣā Ķulī Beg Vālā (a native of Īrān, who entered the service of Sarbuland Khān, and, after that Amīr's death, A.H. 1090, went to Bengal, where he died; see Riyāṣ ush-Shu'arā, fol. 500). 3. Ṭughrā (see p. 742 a).

X. Foll. 160—164. Letters and short prose pieces by Ni'mat Khān 'Alī.

XI. Foll. 165—172. Some poetical pieces by the same.

XII. Foll. 172 b—285. A Maşnavî containing short moral tales and anecdotes, probably by the same Ni mat Khān.

حمد و شکر اورا که هر چه هست ازوست . Beg. دام هستی حلقه دار از های و هوست

Add. 5629.

Foll. 297;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; about 18 lines,  $3\frac{5}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated 'Azīmābād, A.H. 1153-8 (A.D. 1740-5).

[N. Brassey Halhed.]

I. Foll. 1—14. Arabic verses of the Divan of Hafiz, with interlinear Persian version. Exposition of the spiritual meaning attached to the names of material objects, and glossary of some rare words occurring in the Divan. Commentary on some difficult verses of the same Divan. The title given in the subscription is فرهنك ديوان خواجه حانظ

II. Foll. 18—28. A versified Persian-Hindustani vocabulary, divided, according to subjects, into twenty sections.

It was completed, as stated in the last line, in A.H. 990. Three additional sections at the end are stated to be due to another author. The title in the subscription is مقبول صبيان.

III. Foll. 31—33. Khāliķ Bārī. See p. 516 b.

IV. Foll. 34—41. A tract on archery, called in the subscription رساله تير و كمان.

اما بعد این رساله ایست در بیان تیر انداختن Beg.

V. Foll. 41-45. Hindustani verses.

VI. Foll. 46—50. Two series of Ghazals, consisting of one Ghazal for each letter of the alphabet. In the first the takhallus is فرشته, in the second عبود.

A Dîvān of Firishtah, called from its first words Mā Muķīmān, is noticed in the Mackenzie Collection, ii. p. 142, Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 43, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 397. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 83.

VII. Foll. 54-63. An alphabetical vocabulary of Persian verbs, conjugated through all tenses, with the Hindustani equivalents.

VIII. Foll. 64—70. سورة زبور, the Sūrah of David put into Arabic verse by Ibn 'Ab-bās (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 312, art. 34), with a paraphrase in Persian verse, and a poetical prologue by Naķī, نقى.

IX. Foll. 71—101. Jāmi ul-Ķavānīn. See p. 414 b.

X. Foll. 102—143. Inshāi Harkarn. See p. 530 a.

XI. Foll. 144—192. أرهنك بدائع الانشا, a glossary to Inshāi Yūsufī. See p. 529 a.

XII. Foll. 193—294. Badā'i' ul-Inshā (see p. 529 a), with interlinear glosses.

Add. 5660, F.

Foll. 28; 15½ in. by 10½; a volume of miscellaneous contents. The following are Persian:—Three poems on the wickedness and wretched end of Nand Kumār, foll. 25, 26. Invocations to Muḥammad and 'Alī, written so as to form the outline of two horses, fol. 27. The words عاصيان, in ornamental letters, fol. 28.

Add. 6541.

Foll. 156; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Masulipatan, A.H. 1197 (A.D. 1783).

[JAMES GRANT.]

Foll. 9—127. Lubb ut-Tavārīkh. See
 p. 104 a.

A very full table of reigns occupies foll. 2—8.

II. Foll. 128—156. A part of Rauzat ut-Ţāhirīn (see p. 119 b), viz., the preface, table of contents, and the first five pages of Kism I.

Add. 6587.

Foll. 216; 113 in. by 74; from 17 to 20 lines, about 5 in. long; written by different hands in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1197 (A.D. 1783). [James Grant.]

Foll. 3—29. Malfūzāt i Amīr Tīmūr (see p. 177 b), viz.: 1. the Institutes, imperfect at the end (White's edition, pp. 156—390), fol. 3 b. 2. Extracts from the Designs and Enterprises, fol. 22 α. 3. Continuation of the Institutes (Add. 26,191, foll. 326-347) abridged, foll. 23 b—29 b.

II. Foll. 20—27. Extracts from the Muntakhab ul-Lubāb (see p. 232 b), relating to Todarmal, to Murshid Ķulī Khān, to the reforms effected by Aurangzīb in the collection of the revenue, etc.

III. Foll. 38—45. History of the Osmanli Sultans (from Mir'āt uṣ-Ṣafā; see p. 129 a).

IV. Foll. 46—90. The first portion of the Khizānah i 'Amirah (see p. 373 α), ending with the notice on Aḥmad Shāh Durrānī.

V. Foll. 91—96. History of Malabar (from the Tārīkh i Mamālik i Hind, by Ghulām Bāsiţ; see p. 237 a).

VI. Foll. 96—104. Account of Küch Bahār, and Assam, with a detailed narrative of the campaign of Khānkhānān Muḥammad Mu'azzam Khān; see p. 266 a.

VII. Foll. 105—108. Account of Gond-wanah, and of Tibet, from the Akbar Namah.

VIII. Foll. 109, 110. Account of Kashmir, and of Bijāpūr, from the Iķbāl-Nāmah of Mu'tamad Khān (see p. 255 a).

IX. Foll. 111, 112. Account of Baglānah, from the Ma'āşir ul-Umarā, and of Mālvah, from the Iķbāl-Nāmah.

X. Foll. 113—119. History of the kings of Bengal and Jaunpür (from the work of Ghulām Bāsit; see p. 237 a).

XI. Foll. 120—125. Biographical notices on Muḥammad Khān Bangash and his sons, on Sayyid Sa'ādat Khān Burhān ul-Mulk and his successors, on 'Alī Muḥammad Khān Rohillah, Najīb ud-Daulah, Mirzā Najaf Khān, Ja'far Khān Naṣīrī, afterwards Murshid Ķulī Khān, and his successors in Bengal, and on some other amīrs. Account of the Marattahs, Sikhs, Jāṭs, and the English. The author, whose name does not appear, wrote about A.H. 1200, as a decided partisan of the British rule.

XII. Foll. 126—133. Chronological sketch of the Hindū and Muslim kings of Dehli, سلسله سلاطين هنود و مسلمين, from Judishtir to the accession of Muḥammad Shāh, A.H. 1131; followed by a tabulated list of reigns.

XIII. Foll. 133—142. Tables of the dynasties of India, from the Hindū period to the sixth year of Farrukhsiyar (A.H. 1129), from the Dastūr ul-'Amal of Hādī 'Alī Khān.

XIV. Foll. 143—159. Tables of the principal dynasties of the East, from the early kings of Persia to the time of Karīm Khān Zand.

The length of the several reigns is given in parallel columns according to Ḥamzah Iṣfahānī, and other authorities, the latest of which are Ḥabīb us-Siyar, Lubb ut-tavārīkh, Rauzat uṭ-Ṭāhirīn (p. 119 b), and Mirāt uṣ-Ṣafā (p. 129 a).

XV. Foll. 160—184. History of the Safavis from the Mir'āt uṣ-Ṣafā.

XVI. Foll. 185—216: History of Persia from the death of Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain to the death of Karīm Khān Zand, A.H. 1193, by Razī ud-Dīn Tafrishī, رضى الدين تفرشي

حبد و سپاس مالك الملكى را سزاست كه .Beg. تاج خلافت

The author states in a short preamble that he had not at hand any record of that period, nor had he been a witness of the events recorded, but he had compiled this account from the information of trustworthy persons.

He begins his narrative with the invasion of Maḥmūd Shāh and the proclamation of Shāh Tahmāsp in Ķazvīn, in the month of Muḥarram, A.H. 1135.

A table of contents, foll. 1 a-2 b, is prefixed to the volume.

Add. 6588.

Foll. 94; 9\frac{2}{3} in. by 6; 12 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the latter part of the 18th century. [James Grant.]

I. Foll. 1—5. Extracts from the Muntakhab ut-Tavārikh (p. 222 b), and the Akbar Nāmah, relating to some administrative changes introduced by Akbar, Λ.II. 982, 937 and 990.

II. Foll. 6—15. Chronology of the Timurides from Timur to Shāh 'Alam's accession in Dehli, A.H. 1185.—Obituary notices, relating mostly to Indian saints.—Enumeration of Hindū and Muslim sciences.

III. Foll. 15—47. دستور العمل شاهجهاني, An official manual, containing rules of conduct for civil servants, a statistical account of the Ṣūbalıs, and the titulature of princes and dignitaries.

Beg. منشور الادب شاهنشاهی و دستور العمل کاراگاهی The work was written in the reign of Aurangzib.

IV. Foll. 47-63. Moral sayings of Shāhjahān, recorded by Aurangzib. Last directions of Aurangzib, and some of his familiar letters (shukkah).

V. Foll. 64—94. خلاصة السياق, a treatise on arithmetical notations, and the keeping of public accounts.

احقر العباد اکر چه در نن سیاق چندان . وتوف نداره

The author, who does not give his name, states that he had written this work in the 47th year of 'Alamgir's reign, A.H. 1115.

II. Foll. 102—241. The Memoirs of Bābar, translated from the Turkī by Mīrzā Pāyandah Ḥasan Ghaznavī and Muḥammad Ķuli Mughūl Ḥiṣārī.

بر ضمایر ارباب بصایر مخفی و مستور نماند . Beg.

This translation is earlier than the better known version of Mīrzā 'Abd ur-Raḥīm (see p. 244 a). It differs from it in wording, sometimes in meaning, and does not on the whole keep so close to the text. It has, however, the same abrupt breaks in the narrative. There are, besides, some gaps in the present copy.

In a preface, which the continuator, Muhammad Kuli, has prefixed to his part of the work, fol. 147, he states that a portion of the Memoirs had been translated in Bābar's time by Shaikh Zain (see Or. 1999), and that in the reign of Akbar, A.H. 994, Bihrūz Khān, "now" entitled Naurang Khan, son of "the late" Kuth ud-Din Muhammad Khān Bahādur Beg Atālik Beglarbegi, being but imperfectly acquainted with Turki, desired to procure a plain and faithful Persian version of a work, which every devoted servant of the dynasty was bound to know. Pursuant to his commands Mirzā Pāyandah Hasan Ghaznavi translated the first six years and a portion of the seventh. The writer, who had grown up in the service of His Highness, was then ordered to translate the remaining portion of the work, beginning with the latter part of A.H. 906, and ending with A.H. 935 (sic).

Naurang Khān was the son of Kuth ud-Dīn Khān Atgah, who had been appointed Atālīķ, or governor, to prince Salīm (Jahāngīr) with the title of Beglarbegī, and died A.H. 991. He served with distinction in several campaigns under Akbar, and died as governor of Jūnāgarh in the 39th year of the reign (A.H. 1002). See Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 411, Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 101, and Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 333.

Contents: First part of the Memoirs, from the beginning, A.H. 899, to the flight of Babar to Samarkand after his defeat by Shaibānī Khān, in the month of Shavvāl, A.H. 906 (Erskine's translation, pp. 1-94), fol. 102. Preface of Muhammad Kuli, fol. 147 b. Continuation of the Memoirs down to Babar's arrest in Karnan (Erskine, pp. 94-122), fol. 148 a. Second part of the Memoirs, from A.H. 910 to 914 (Erskine, pp. 127-235), fol. 160 b. The year 926 (Erskine, pp. 281-284), fol. 205 b. The year 925, from the beginning to the 8th of Sha'bān (Erskine, pp. 246-272), fol. 207 b. The year 933, from the beginning to the 14th of Jumāda I. (Erskine, pp. 343—353), fol. 219 b. The year 935, from the beginning to the 1st of Shavval (Erskine, pp. 382-422), fol. 224 a-241.

Add. 6590.

Foll. 241;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{3}{4}$ ; 24 lines,  $5\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 1203 (A.D. 1789). [James Grant.]

I. Foll. 4—101. Malfūzāt i Amīr Tīmūr (see p. 177 b), containing:—the preface of Ahū Tālib. The Memoirs, from the beginning to the account of Tīmūr's attack upon Urūs Khān, foll. 4 b—81 a (i.e. a little more than the portion translated by Stewart, which ends on fol. 79 b). The Institutes, imperfect in the end (White's edition, pp. 156—360), fol. 81. The Designs and Enterprises, imperfect at the beginning (White's edition, pp. 116—152), fol. 95. The continuation of the Institutes, imperfect at the end, and defective in the body of the work (corresponding to Add. 26,191, foll. 326—337), fol. 98.

II. Foll. 102 b—241. واقعات بابرى, the Memoirs of Bābar (see p. 244 a).

The first two parts begin on foll. 102 b and 160 b. Of the third and fourth there are only the following fragments:—A.H. 926 (Translation, pp. 281—284), fol. 205 b. A.H. 925 (Translation, pp. 246—272), fol. 207 b. A.H. 933 (Translation, pp. 343—353), fol. 219 b. A.H. 935 (Translation, pp. 382—422), fol. 224 a.

A table of contents, including both works. occupies foll. 1—3.

Add. 6591.

Foll. 136; 6¾ in. by 4; 14 lines, 2⅓ in. long; written in Nestalik, with seven Unvans, and gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazān, A.H. 884 (A.D. 1480).

[JAMES GRANT.]

I. Foll. 1—18. فال نامه امام جعفر, the book of divination ascribed to Imām Ja'far Ṣādīķ. Beg. الحمد لله . . . بدانك اين ضمير بغايت خوب و مجربست

It is stated in the preamble that this Fāl, or Zamīr ضمير, on which Imām Ja'far had spent fifty years, was kept as a great treasure by the Khalīfs, and that Sultan Maḥmūd, who had received it from them, kept it by him for constant use. It contains in tabular form Coranic verses, with the answers which they are supposed to give to various questions.

II. Foll. 19—90. A medical treatise on the means of guarding against injuries, رساله, purporting to have been translated, with additions, from the Arabic of Abu 'Alī B. Sīnā.

افتقاع سخن سزاواربغام حکیمیست که بدن آدم را .Beg.

The translator, whose name does not appear, dedicates the work to Amīr Jamāl ud-Daulah vad-Dīn Ḥusain Tarkhān.

III. Foll. 91—93. A short extract from the Zakhīrah (see p. 466 b), on prognostics or premonitory symptoms, ققمة المرنة.

IV. Foll. 94—109. مدخل منظوم, a manual of astrology, in Maṣnavī rhyme.

مرد دانا سخن ادا نکند تا بنام حق ابتدا نکند

The author, whose name does not appear, concludes his prologue with a short eulogy on Jamāl ud-Dīn Abū Maḥāmid Muḥammad B. Ahmad.

A versified astrological treatise by Mubārak عوزى, or عوزى, is mentioned by Haj. Khal. under مدخل; see vol. v. p. 472, and Add. 7446, fol. 436.

V. Foll. 110—121. مدخل رمل, a versified manual of geomancy, without preface or author's name.

فرد و سه زوج شکل اعیانست دانشش بر حکیم انسانست

VI. Foll. 122—125. ضمير خسرواني, a book of divination in verse, ascribed to Buzurjmihr بوزرجمبر

VII. Foll. 126—136. A short treatise on the good and evil effects of wine, مختصر در مضار جنس الاجناس, in four Faṣls, without author's name.

حمد وسیاس وشکربی قیاس پادشاهی را سزاست . Beg.

Add. 6601.

Foll. 116; 8½ in. by 5; from 13 to 17 lines; written in Nestalik and Shikastah-āmīz. The first part is dated in the 8th year of Shāh 'Alam (A.H. 1180, A.D. 1766).

[JAMES GRANT.]

I. Foll. 1—42. Familiar letters of Aurangzib, رتمات عالم گیری. The collection begins with a preamble in which the designations of the princes and amīrs are explained, and in which reference is made to Farrukhsiyar, probably the reigning emperor at the time of compilation.

The contents, which are in part identical with those of the Dastūr ul-'Amal Agahī (see p. 402 a), are as follows:—Seven letters to prince Mu'azzam Shāh 'Alam Bahādur. Seventy to prince Muḥammad A'zam. One to prince Muḥammad Akbar. One to Kāmbakhsh. Two to Mu'izz ud-Dīn. Four to 'Azīm ud-Dīn. Twenty-five to Bīdārbakht. One to Shāyistah Khān. Twenty-two to Asad Khān. Four to Ghāzī ud-Dīn Khān. Four to Zulfaķār Khān. Four to Chīn Ķilēh Khān. One to 'Aķil Khān. Seven to Ṣadr ud-Dīn Muḥammad Khān. Five to Muḥammad Amīn Khān. One to Luṭf Ullah Khān. Two to Ḥamīd ud-Dīn Khān. Fourteen to 'Ināyat Ullah Khān.

The collection printed in Lucknow, A.H. 1260, under the title رتعات عالمكير, contains letters addressed to the same persons, but generally much shorter. See p. 401 b.

II. Foll. 43—62. An account of the Marattah Peshväs, from the appointment of Bājī Rāo to that office by Rājah Sāhū to the negotiations carried on by Raghūnāth with Colonel Upton in Purandhar, A.D. 1776.

مادهو راو پسر ناراین راو ولد بالا راو

III. Foll. 63—116. Tabulated notices relating to the principal inhabitants of Surat and Bombay in A.H. 1189, to the distances between the chief towns of India, fol. 64, to the measurements of Tāj Maḥall, fol. 67, and to the Ṣūbahs of India under Akbar and Farrukhsiyar, fol. 109.

Add. 6603.

Foll. 103; 8½ in. by 5½; from 13 to 16 lines; written by various hands in Shikastahāmīz and Nestalik, about the close of the 18th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

I. Foll. 1—27. An account of the Marattah empire, compiled A.H. 1197, without preface or author's name.

مهاراجه راجه ساهو بهونسله در ستاره .Beg. مهاراجه ستاره

Contents: Notice on the great offices of the court, viz. Pirtī-Nidhī, Panḍit Pardhān, Sipahsālār, Pharnavīs, Mantrī, etc., and on the men who held them from the time of Sīvājī to the date of composition, fol. 1 a. Account of the towns, forts, and parganahs of the provinces of Pūnah and Satārah, fol. 4 a. A short history of the Marattahs from their origin to A.H. 1197, with detached notices on the leading families and chiefs, viz. the Bhonslahs, the Rājahs of Satārah, Rānojī Sīndhiyah, Mahādajī Holkar, Dāmānjī Gāikwār, Gobind Rāo Bondelah, Raghojī Bhonslah, Jādū, etc., fol. 10 b.

II. Foll. 28-39. احوال نواب حيدر عليخان, a history of Ḥaidar 'Alī Khān, of Maisūr, from his birth to A.H. 1196.

The author, whose name does not appear, remarks, in a short preamble, that Ḥaidar 'Alī was the only man in India who had shown himself able to cope with the English power. He traces the origin of his family to Kuhīr, ,a town twenty-eight Kos west of Ḥaidarābād, in which his forefathers held the office of Ķāzī from the time of Sultan 'Abd Ullah. His grandsire Dūst Muḥammad settled in Kolār, district of Surā, province of Arcot, where he married the daughter of a noble Sayyid, and had a son called Mīr Fatḥ 'Alī, afterwards Fatḥ Nāik, the father of Ḥaidar 'Alī. The latter is said to have been born A.H. 1131.

At the end the author states that, at the date of writing, namely on the 29th of Zulka'dah, A.H. 1196, the chances of war were still undecided. But the death of Ḥaidar 'Alī on the first of Muḥarram, A.H. 1197, is briefly recorded in a subsequent addition.

III. Foll. 40—84. An alphabetical glossary of the technical terms used in the collection of revenue, compiled for the use of English officials by Khwājah Yāsīn, of Dahā, خواجه یسین ساکن دها

حمد بیحد متعهد روزی عباد را سزد Beg.

IV. Foll. 85—103. Tables of the revenue of the Sūbahs of Irān and Hindūstān, and of the distances between the principal places of India.

Add. 6631.

Foll. 123;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{5}{4}$ ; 12 lines, 3 in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Aḥ-mad-ābād, Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1138 (A.D. 1726).

[J. F. Hull.]

I. Foll. 1—95. مظهر الآثار, a Sufi poem by Hāshimī, هاشمي

Mīr Hāshimī Kirmānī, surnamed Shāh Jahangir, who was said to descend from two great saints, viz., on his father's side, from Shāh Kāsim Anvār, and, through his mother, from Shah Ni'mat Ullah Vali, is described as the most eminent Sufi of his time. He went from his native Khorasan to Sind in the early part of the reign of Mīrzā Shāh Hasan Arghun and stayed some years at the court of that prince, who gave him the greatest marks of favour. He set out for the Hijaz in A.H. 946, and was slain on the way by brigands near a place designated as Kij Mukrān, کیم مکران. See 'Alī Shīr Ķāni', Add. 25,189, fol. 525. In the Nafa'is, Oude Catalogue, p. 55, A.H. 948 is given as the date of his death. Compare Haft Iklim, fol. 121, Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 520, Atashkadah, fol. 68, Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 420, and Haft Asman, pp. 90-99.

Shah Ḥasan (as he is called in the present poem), son of Shāh Beg, reigned, according to 'Alī Shīr, fol. 269, from A.H. 928 to 962. Firishtah, who calls him Shāh Ḥusain, says that he died A.H. 962, after a reign of thirty-two years. See the Bombay edition, vol. ii. p. 621.

In a prologue of considerable extent the poet pays a tribute of praise to his predecessors and models, Nizāmī, Amīr Khusrau, and Jāmī, authors of the Makhzan ul-Asrār, Maṭla' ul-Anvār, and Tuḥfat ul-Aḥrār, and says that two generations (karn, i.e. sixty years) after the last of them the key of speech had been given to him by divine love:—

He concludes with a dedication to Shah Hasan, and adds that this poem is the first of a Khamsah:

It is stated at the end that it was completed in Tattah, A.H. 940:

The poem is divided into three Rauzahs and twenty Mau'izahs. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 606.

II. Foll. 96—107. معراج الخيال, an erotic poem by Mullā 'Alī Rizā Tajallī. Sec p. 738 a.

III. Foll. 108—117. An extract from the Subhat ul-Abrar (see p. 644 b).

IV. Foll. 118—123. قراعد القران, a treatise in twelve chapters (باب) on the correct pronunciation of the Coran.

Author: Yar Muhammad B. Khudadad Samarkandi, يار محمد بن خداداد سمرقندي

Beg. حمد بي حد و ثناي بي عد حضرت قادري را The work is dedicated to Abul-Ghāzī 'Ubaid-ullah Bahādur Khān (who reigned in Māvarā un-Nahr, A.H. 939—946). The present copy breaks off at the beginning of Bāb 3.

At the end is found the seal of Nīk 'Alam Khān, a dependent of Nizām ul-Mulk Aṣafjāh, with the date A.H. 1153.

Add. 6632.

Foll. 139; 8½ in. by 6; 11 lines, 4½ in. long; written in large Nestalik; dated Jumadā II., A.H. 1192 (A.D. 1778). [J. F. Hull.]

I. Foll. 1—68. تصد كام روپ, the tale of Kamrūp.

Munshi 'Alī Rizā, who wrote the present volume, professes to have translated this tale, which he calls تصد کلاکام, from the Hindu tongue زبان هندری for Captain John Ritchie. This version, which is written in the colloquial Persian of India, is quite distinct from that which has been mentioned p. 763 b.

II. Foll. 69—114. The tale of Madhumālat تصه مدحمالت and Prince Manohar, in Muṣnavī (see p. 700 α).

and that it consists of 952 distichs.

For Hindi and Dakhni versions of the tale of Madhumālat see Garcin de Tassy, Litt. Hind., 2nd edition, vol. i. p. 388, and vol. ii. p. 486.

III. Foll. 115—139. The Pand-Nāmah of 'Attār (see p. 579 b).

منشى على رضا : Transcriber منشى على رضا

Add. 6641.

Foll. 195; 9½ in. by 5¾; from 12 to 15 lines, about 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

[J. F. Hull.]

I. Foll. 1—67. The Līlāvatī, translated by Shaikh Faizī; see p. 449 b.

II. Foll. 68—149. The Bij-Ganit, translated by 'Aṭā Ullah Rashidi; see p. 450 b.

III. Foll. 150—195. The writer's manual, دستور العمل نویسندکی

The contents, mostly in tabulated form, are arranged in three Bābs, as follows:

I. Numerals, weights, measures, and divisions of times, fol. 151 a. II. Names of the signs of the zodiac and asterisms, of the Rāginīs, and of the Hindū sciences and Shāstras, fol. 153 b. III. The numeral notation called Siyāk, and models of official accounts, fol. 162 a.

Add. 6931:

Foll. 203; 13 in. by 8; about 25 lines, 4 in. long; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1811.

I. Foll. 1—65. Notices on the Amīrs, 'Ulamā, and poets, of the reign of Akbar, from the Ṭabakāt i Akbarshāhī; see p. 220 a.

II. Foll. 66—88. Preface and Bāb 4 of the A'īn i Akbarī (see p. 248 α), with the English translation of some passages.

III. Foll. 89—125. The early kings of Persia, from the Rauzat us-Ṣafā, with lists of kings derived from other sources, and extracts from "P. Bizari Rerum Persicarum historia."

IV. Foll. 126—203. History of the kings of India during the four ages of the world, by Pandit Krishnanand, son of Pandit Anandkhan Jī, چن کرشنانند خلف پندت آنند کهی جی

سپاس بیقیاس مر آن قادر بیچون را Beg.

The author, a native of Dehli, had resided for years in Benares, where his father was in the employ of Mr. Jonathan Duncan. Having subsequently proceeded to Bombay, and entered the service of Mr. Duncan, then governor of that city, he commenced by his order, on the 15th of May 1807, the present compilation, based on the Harivansa and the Bhāgavata Purāna.

Add. 6932.

Foll. 550; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1814—1816.

Notes and extracts relating to Persian history.

I. Foll. 1—56. Early kings of Persia, from the Dabistān, Rauzat us-Ṣafā, Farḥat un-Nāzirīn, Jahān-ārā, and Burhān Ķāṭi.

II. Foll. 112—136. Extracts from the Tabakāt i Aulād i Changīzkhānī, relating to the successors of Hulāgū, and, more fully, to the Ilkānī dynasty down to the death of Sultan Aḥmad B. Uvais, A.H. 813.

III. Foll. 136—151. Extracts from the Zafar Nāmah of 'Alī Yazdi, the Ma'āṣir i Raḥīmī (see Elliot, vol. vi. p. 237), the Latin version of Abulfaraj, and Pococke's supplement, relating to Tīmūr and his successors in Persia down to the extinction of the Ak-Kuyūnlus, A.H. 914.

IV. Foll. 153—161. The Safavis, from Pococke's Supplement.

V. Foll. 162—203. "Cosmogonical Dynasties anterior to the Pishdadian," from the Dabistan and the Muntakhab ul-Lughat; Persian and English.

VI. Foll. 204-382. Notes and extracts relating to the Pishdadians, Kayānians and Sassanians, from Burhān Ķāṭi', Jahān-ārā, Rauzat uṣ-Safā, etc.

VII. Foll. 383—387 and 416—518. The Abbasides from Rauzat us-Şafā.

VIII. Foll. 388-415. The Ashkanians from Jahān-ārā.

IX. Foll. 519-533. Timūr's wars in Persia from A.H. 782 to 794, from the English translation of Zafar-Nāmah.

X. Foll. 535—550. Lists of Eastern Dynasties, Persian and English. A list of-Arabic and Persian historical works.

Add. 6933.

Foll. 277; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley on paper watermarked 1811—1814.

Notes and extracts relating chiefly to the history of India and China, compiled about 1820.

Contents: - Chronological sketch of a scheme towards forming an epitome of the history of Hindoostan, fol. 1. Cosmogony and early dynasties of the Hindus, from Firishtah (Dow's Hindoostan), Mas'udi, Abu 'I-Fazl, Rādhākant, etc., English and Persian, fol. 8. "Chronicon XIX seeulorum post diluvium, analyzante E. A. Maarshamo," fol. 89. Tables showing how the Hindu, Egyptian and Chinese chronology may be reduced to that of the Bible, fol. 139. "Chinese or Khataian History, from Beidavee" (Nizām ut-Tavārīkh); Persian and Latin, fol. 153. Account of Shah Rukh's embassy to China, from the Matla us-sa'dain; Persian and English; fol. 230. Route of John Bell, of Antermony, from St. Petersburg to Pekin, and extracts from his travels, fol. 238. List of the kings of Khatai, Persian, fol. 262.

Add. 6936.

Foll. 362; 123 in. by 8; written by J. Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1814—1818.

I. Foll. 1—18. "Remarks on the modern state of Afghanistan;" sketch of the history of the Afghans; enumeration of their tribes and clans; from Elphinstone's Caubul.

II. Foll. 19—118. "Illustrations of Afghan history from Asiatic authors;" consisting chiefly of lists of saints from the Malfūzāt i Sulṭānī, by Khwājah Nizām ud-Dīn (Auliyā), and tables of the Afghan tribes from the Makhzan i Afghānī (see p. 210 a); Persian and Euglish.

III. Foll. 120—249. Extracts from the Favātih of Ḥusain B. Mu'in ud-Dīn Maibudī (see p. 19 b).

IV. Foll. 250—362. The Divan of 'Ali, with a Persian paraphrase by the same author (see p. 19 a).

Add. 6937.

Foll. 185; 12 in. by 8; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1811—1815.

I. Foll. 1—176. The Kayānian dynasty, and the Greek philosophers, from the Rauzat uş-Ṣafā, with extracts from Jahānārā, and Khulāṣat ul-Akhbār; Persian and English.

II. Foll. 177—185. Account of Diu, and of the extraordinary adventures of Maulānā Ismā'il and a party of one hundred Turks, in search of the gold-mountain, dated A.H. 969, with the heading:

ذکر جزیره که مشهور است بدیو حمل در راهی که از دکن به میروند تازه پیدا شده

Add. 6945.

Foll. 369; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1805—1820.

Headings of historical works relating chiefly to India, viz.:- Tabakāt i Akbarī (see p. 220 a), fol. 1. Lubb ut-Tavārikh Hind (p. 228 b), fol. 10. Tārīkh Ilāh Virdī Khān, by Yūsuf 'Alī Khān, son of Ghulām 'Alī Khān ("an intimate friend of Mahābat Jang. He married a daughter of Sarfaraz Khan"), fol. 18. Tārīkh i Jauhar Shāhī (see p. 246 a), fol. 19. Siyar ul-Mutaakhkhirin (see p. 280b), fol. 22. Farhat un-Nazirin (see p. 131 a), fol. 50. Ma'āşir i Jahāngīri (see p. 257 a), fol. 59. Nafahāt ul-Yaman, Calcutta, 1811, fol. 62. Mujmal i Tārīkh ba'd-Nādiriyyah, a history of Nadir Shah's death and of the subsequent period down to the death of Karim Khān (A.H. 1193), fol. 69. This work, apparently written in India, has a preface, in which the author states that it is in part translated from Arabic records. The first در بیان مجملی از احوال اواخر نادر شاه heading is وسبب قـتل اوالغ Vāķi'āt i Kashmīr (p. 300 a), fol. 78. "Genghiz Khan Namah" (i.e. Habib us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1 and 2), fol. 81. Rauzat us-Safa, fol. 89. "Two volumes of treatises (on philosophy, mathematics, etc.), found in the fortress of Gwalior," fol. 165.

List of printed Arabic books, from 1505 to 1810, fol. 168. Short notices on some Oriental books and MSS., fol. 178. Notes on the Persian Mahābhārat (from a MS. in four volumes, Chetham Library, Manchester), fol. 186.

Headings and extracts from the following works:—Aḥvāl i Paighambarān (i.e. I'jāz i Muṣṭafavī, by Mīr Muḥammad Ṣāliḥ Kashtī; see p. 154 a), fol. 194. Tazkirat ul-Mulūk, an abridgment of Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, compiled in Bījāpūr and brought down to A.H. 1017, with an extract on Pegu, fol. 234. Ma'āṣir i Raḥīmi (see p. 131 b), fol. 250. Kachkūl (of Bahā ud-Dīn 'Āmilī; see p. 775 a), fol. 261. "Faraj ba'd az Shiddat" (see p. 751 b), fol. 305. The Maṣnavī (see p. 584 b), fol.

318. Two Arabic Tazkirahs (Yatīmat ud-Dahr and Dumyat ul-Kaṣr), fol. 322.

Three Arabic poems, viz. Yā dāra Mayyah, Lāmiyyat ul-'Arab, and al-Ķaṣīdat ut-Tanṭarāniyyah, fol. 342. Tuḥfat ul-'Irāķain (sec p. 560 b), Persian and English, fol. 353.

Add. 6946.

Foll. 118; 9 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1805—1810.

Notes and extracts relating to the genealogy of the Patriarchs and to the nations which Eastern tradition connects with them, from the Burhān i Ķāṭiʻ, Tārīkh i Guzīdah, Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, Khulāṣat ul-Akhbār, Firishtah, etc., in Persian, English, and Latin.

Add. 6947.

Foll. 286; 9 in. by 7½; written by the Rev. J. Haddon Hindley, on paper water-marked 1804—1816.

Miscellaneous notes and extracts. The following are Persian:—The tale of Hatim Ta'i (see p. 764 a), with the English translation of some passages, fol. 76. Headings of the following works: A treatise on medicaments, classed, according to diseases, in thirty-eight chapters, Persian and English, fol. 166. The Dîvan of Ḥakīm Sanā'ī (see p. 551 a), fol. 172. A medical work not named (Ma'dan ush-Shifā Sikandarshāhī; see p. 471 b), fol. 200. Ikhtiyārāt i Badi'i (see p. 469 a), fol. 223. Song of a Georgian boy, Ballad of Lutf 'Ali Khan, Ghazals by Fath Alī Shāh, Muhtasham, Rakīb, and Jāmī, with English translations.

Add.6962.

Foll. 252; 13 in. by 8; written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1810—1813.

Headings of the Maşnavî (see p. 584 b), fol. 1. A portion of the Shāhnāmah, (Macan's edition, pp. 1030—1080), Persian and English, fol. 111.

Add. 6998.

Foll. 236; 9 in. by 71; about 9 lines, written by the Rev. John Haddon Hindley on paper water-marked 1808.

I. Foll. 1—211. The Sad Dar (see p. 48 b), transcribed from Roy. 16, B. vII., with Hyde's Latin version.

II. Foll. 212—236. Tables of the Divans of Hazin (see p. 715 b), and Alisan.

Khwājah Aḥsan Ullah, entitled Zafar Khān, and poetically surnamed Aḥsan, governor of Kābul, and subsequently of Kashmīr, under Shāhjahān, died A.H. 1073. See Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 374, and the Oudo Catalogue, p. 325.

Add. 7053.

Foll. 210; 9½ in. by 5½; about 15 lines, mostly written diagonally, in Nestalik, with silver-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century.

[J. H. Hindley.]

Verses from Sa'di's Gulistān, and Bustān, fol. 2. Detached verses of Mirzā Ṭāhir Va-hīd (see p. 189 b), fol. 42, and of Ni'mat Khān 'Alī (see p. 268 b), fol. 49. Rubā'is of Ķudsī (see p. 684 b), fol. 55. Detached verses and Ghazals of Ṣā'ib (see p. 693 a), fol. 66, and of Kalīm (see p. 686 b), fol. 123. Rubā'is of Ķudsī, Saḥābī (see p. 672 a), and some other poets, fol. 155.

Add. 7057.

Foll. 65; 8 in. by 6; 11 lines, 4\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastah-āmīz, on European paper, apparently in India, about the beginning of the 19th century.

J. H. HINDLEY.

I. Foll. 2-35. Detached tales in the colloquial Persian of India.

پسر لقمان آنوقت که سفر رفتن شوق کرفت

Prefixed is a note relating to the price of shawls in Bombay.

II. Foll. 36—65. A fragment of Sa'di's Gulistān.

Add. 7608.

Foll. 184; 7½ in. by 4½; 15 or 16 lines, 3§ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, probably in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 1—34. خلاصة الاسلام, a popular treatise, in twenty-two Bābs, on religious duties and observances, according to the Hanafī school, by Ismā'īl B. Luṭf Ullah ul-Bākharzī, اسماعيل بن لطف الله الباخرزى

حمد و سپاس و ثنای بیقیاس خداوندی را .Beg. که مجموع

II. Foll. 35—38. چېل حديث, forty Ḥadīṣ, with a paraphrase in Persian quatrains, imperfect at the end.

من حفظ من امتى اربعين حديثا كتب الله له . Beg. يوم القيامة فقيها عابدا

هر که او جل حدیث یاد کرفت از احادیث مهتر عالم

III. Foll. 39—45. لوامع الاذكار, forty Ḥadiş, relating to the praise of God, in five Faşls, compiled and translated by Jalāl B. Muḥammad B. 'Ubaid Ullah ul-Ḥā'inī, جلال بن محمد

جمیع محامد حضرتی حذاوندی را که یاد کرد Beg.

IV. Foll. 45—184. A full treatise on legal prayer and ablution, according to the Hanafi school. It begins with some sayings of Muḥammad taken from the Targhīb uṣ-Ṣalāt, (by Muḥammad B. Aḥmad uz-Zāhid; see Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 282), and is slightly imperfect at the end.

الحد لله رب العالمين . . . اما بعد اين حديث . Beg. چند از كتاب ترغيب الصلوة انتخاب شد

Add. 7615.

Foll. 80; 8 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}; 18 lines, written diagonally, in Nestalik; dated Baghdad, A.H. 1226 (A.D. 1811). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 2-37. مرآت للقيقه, an account of various sects.

لحمد لله . . . اما بعد بر رای صافیه ارباب . . . اما بعد بر رای صافیه ارباب بصیرت و ایقان

It was written by a Mussulman, who does not give his name, for Mr. Rich, then British Resident in Baghdād, and treats of the ancient philosophers, the Magians, Manes, Mazdak, the Jews, Christians, Muslims and Sufis.

II. Foll. 39—58. Letter of Fath 'Alī Shāh to Sulaimān Pāshā, Governor of Baghdād, relating to the raid of the Vahhābis upon Karbalā (A.H. 1216), with the Pāshā's answer. See Brydges, Dynasty of the Kajars, p. 154.

III. Foll. 59—63. Short poems by Tūfān and contemporary poets. Mīrzā Tayyib, of Hazār-Jarīb, Māzandarān, surnamed Tūfān, died in Najaf, according to a chronogram of Luṭf 'Alī Khān, fol. 186, A.H. 1190.

IV. Foll. 63—30. An account of the war of Alexander with Darius, compiled for Mr. Rich by Amīr Aḥmad ul-Ḥasanī ul-Lārījānī, امير احمد للسنى اللاريجاني

كيفيت وقوع محاربه فيمايين اسكندر ودارا : Heading

Add. 7621.

Foll. 179;  $5\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $1\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, probably in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—74. The treatise of Mir Husain Mu'amma'i on versified riddles (see p. 649 b).

II. Foll. 75—179. Manāzir ul-Inshā by Khwājah Maḥmūd Gāvān (sec p. 527 b).

This copy wants a leaf at the beginning, three after fol. 79, and about twelve at the end. A spurious beginning and end have been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 7649.

Foll. 110; 11 in. by 7; 25 and 31 lines, about 5 in. long; written in Naskhī; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1017 (A.D. 1608), and A.H. 1113 (A.D. 1701). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—96. Nusakh i Jahān-ārā. See p. 111 b. The later dynasties are brought down in marginal notes to A.H. 1193. Some additions by a still later hand come down to A.H. 1226.

II. Foll. 97—110. A commentary by Jāmī (see p. 17 a) on some verses of the Sufi poem القصيدة للحرية of Ibn ul-Fāriz (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 401 a, and Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 537).

سبحانه من جميل ليس لوجهه نقاب الا النور .Beg

The commentary is called لرامع, and each of its paragraphs is headed لاصعة. It is mentioned under the former title by Lārī in the life of Jāmī, fol. 172, and by Sām Mīrzā, fol. 82. The date of composition, A.H. 875, is expressed in a Rubā'ī at the end by the words شهر صفر.

Add. 7654.

Foll. 318; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 and 21 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik and Naskhi, in the 17th and 18th centuries.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 3—92. The first portion of 'Alam Arāi 'Abbāsī (see p. 185 a), viz., the preface, introduction, and the reigns of Shāh Ismā'il, and Shāh Ṭahmāsp, in the same recension as Add. 17,927 (see p. 187 a), corresponding to foll. 5 b—149 b of the same MS. A false beginning and end, foll. 1, 2, 93—97, have been added by a later hand, that of Muḥammad Ḥusain B. Karam 'Alī Iṣfahānī (see p. 137 a).

II. Foll. 99—164. A collection of state letters that passed between Shāh Ismā'īl, fol. 97, Shāh Ṭahmāsp, fol. 108, Shāh Ismā'īl II. and Shāh Sulṭān Muḥammad, fol. 186, and the contemporary sovereigns of Māvarā un-nahr, Egypt, Turkey, and India. It appears, from the original pagination, to have lost the first thirty leaves: A false beginning, foll. 97, 98, has been supplied by the same hand as above.

Letters of 'Abd ul-Mūmin Khān to Shāh 'Abbās I., and of the latter to Sultan Sulaimān, are found in the margins of foll. 50—62.

III. Foll. 196—318. Makṣad II. of 'Alam-Ārāi (see p. 186 a), wanting the biographical notices at the end; dated Rajab, A.H. 1038.

Add. 7666.

Foll. 372; 9 in. by 5; 17 lines, 3\frac{1}{6} in. long; written in Nestalik and Naskhi, apparently in the 16th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—317. The latter half of the Persian translation of Ibn Khallikān (see p. 334 a), beginning with Saif ud-Daulah Ghāzī B. 'Imād ud-Dīn Zingī, and corresponding to Add. 16,714, foll. 216—409, and to M'Guckin de Slane's translation, vol. ii. p. 440—vol. iv. p. 602.

II. Foll. 318-348. An abridgment of the Kitab ul-Mu'jam (see p. 811, Add. 7712).

III. Foll. 349—372. A compendium of geography, beginning with the heading object بار بحر اخضر

It consists of four chapters, treating of seas, fol. 349 b, rivers, fol. 351 b, mountains, fol. 353 a, countries and towns, fol. 356 b, each of which contains detached notices arranged in alphabetical order. It evidently formed part of a more extensive work, including history and biography; for the author refers incidentally to his account of Alexander, fol. 366 a, of the Khalif al-Mansūr, fol. 359 a, and of the philosophers and poets of Ghaznīn, fol. 368 b.

The author speaks of Azarbā'ijān with a certain predilection, as though it were his native land, and his reference, under Kazvīn, fol. 369 b, to the pleasantries of 'Ubaid Zākānī and other friends خوش طبيعهاي عبيد on its inhabitants, seem to imply that he was a contemporary of that poet, and wrote before the invasion of Timūr, of which no mention is made. 'Ubaid Zākānī died A.H. 772; see Taķī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18.

The geographical notices are extremely inaccurate, and deal mostly in mythical legends and childish fables.

Add. 7667.

Foll. 368; 82 in. by 5. [Cl. J. Ricii.]

I. Foll. 1—78; 21 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated A.H. 1022 (A.D. 1613).

The Tuhfat ul-Irāķain (see p. 560 b), with the preface.

The latter wants the first three pages. A false beginning has been prefixed by a later hand.

The subscription states that this copy was written by Kāni'ī for "the most elegant of poets," Auliyā Beg, جبة انصح الشعرا جناب حضرت اوليا بيك

II. Foll. 79—368; 17 lines, 3 in. long; written in neat Nestalik, probably in the 16th century.

The Tazkirah of Daulatshih (see p. 364 a). This copy contains at the end, fol. 363 a, an additional notice of a seventh contemporary poet, Amīr Ḥusain Jalā'ir. It wants the latter part, about five leaves, of the history of Sultān Ḥusain. A spurious conclusion has been supplied by a later hand.

Add. 7685.

Foll. 167; 8½ in. by 5½; 18 and 16 lines, 4 in. long; written in Shikastalı-āmīz, early in the 19th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—130. Lață'if ul-Lughāt; see
 p. 590 b.

II. Foll. 131—159. Three Arabic tracts, described in the Arabic Catalogue, p. 459.

III. Foll. 160—165; 16 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long, in a page.

Account of a debate which had taken place in Isfahan, in Rabī' I., A.H. 1221, between the author and Padre Joseph, and in which the former attempted to refute the doctrine of atonement.

The author refers in the preamble to a treatise which he had written after a previous controversy with the same Padre, and in which he established the divine mission of Mohammad by proofs drawn from the Pentateuch and the Gospel, رساله اثبات نبوت باخیل

Add. 7689.

Foll. 209; 8 in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; written in Naskhi and Shikastah-āmīz, early in the 19th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

 Foll. 1—35. Inshā, or forms of letters, in Turkish.

II. Foll. 39—111; dated Zulka'dah, A.H.1218 (A.D. 1804).

Forms of letters to be written by, or addressed to, persons of various classes, as 'Ulama, Sayyids, Daftardars, Amīrs, Mustaufīs, Kāzīs, merchants, Sultans, princes, Vazīrs, etc.

The preface contains some remarks on the value of the art of epistolary composition, and general directions to letter-writers.

III. Foll. 111—149. A similar collection, with the heading من منتخب بحر الانشا.

It contains a letter of 'Urfī (see p. 667 α) to Ḥakīm Abul-Fatḥ, and one of Mīrzā Muḥammad Ashraf to İbrāhīm Khān.

IV. Foll. 150—191. The Lavā'iḥ by Jāmī (see p. 44 a); dated Baghdād, A.H. 1223 (A.D. 1808.

V. Foll. 192—209. Forms of letters in Turkish.

Add. 7690.

Foll. 264; 9 in. by 6; 13 lines, 33 in long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 1—138. منشأت مرزا طاهر وحيد, prose compositions of Mīrzā Ṭāhir Vaḥīd (see p. 189 b).

مكتوبيكه مصحوب كلب على سلطان بخوندكار . Beg

This collection, which has been printed in Calcutta, 1826, and in Lucknow, 1844, consists of letters addressed in the name of Shāh 'Abbas II. to contemporary princes, amīrs and dignitaries, and of prefaces composed by Ṭāhir for various works, among others, for his own history of Shāh 'Abbās. The royal letters are addressed to the Sultan of Turkey, Shāhjahān, Dārā Shikūh, Murādbakhsh, Aurangzīb, the king of Bījāpūr, Kutubshāh, 'Abd ul-'Azīz Khān ruler of Balkh, Abul-Ghāzī Khān ruler of Urganj, and the emperor of Russia.

II. Foll. 139—241. Letters of Mirzā Bīdil (see p. 706 b), with a short preface by the author.

Sayyid Shukr Ullah Khān died, as has been stated p. 370 a, A.H. 1108. His sons are mentioned in the Tazkirat ul-Umarā, foll. 69 a and 59 b. The first, Mīr Karam Ullah, received the title of 'Aķil Khān in the latter part of the reign of Aurangzīb.

III. Foll. 242—264. جامع الامثال, Persian proverbs, arranged in alphabetical order, by Hādī B. Muḥammad Mahdī ul-Ḥusainī, ابن هادي الحسيني

اما بعد چنین کوید اقل العباد

The work is based, as stated in the preamble, upon an earlier collection designated as منتنب, to which the author added, at the request of the friend who had shown it to him, such proverbs as he could recollect.

Add. 7696.

Foll. 97; 8 in. by 4\frac{2}{3}; 17 and 14 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Nestalik and Naskhi; dated Muharram, A.H. 1065 (A.D. 1654). . [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—24. A treatise on almanacs, by Naşîr ud-Dîn Ţūsī. See p. 452 b.

II. Foll. 24—32. A treatise on horoscopes, beginning with the heading در شرف و هبوط ستارکان

It is divided into many short sections headed نصل, but not numbered.

III. Foll. 33—45. Madkhal i Manzūm; see p. 801 a.

IV. Foll. 49—97. The astronomical treatise of 'Alī Ķūshī. See p. 458 a.

ابن مولانا محمد صالح محمد زمان الرازي : Copyist

Add. 7707.

Foll. 295; 10 in. by  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $4\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik; dated Jumāda I., A.H. 27 (probably for 1027 = A.D. 1618). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—239. Nuzhat ul-Ķulūb. See p. 418 a.

The third Makalah, or geographical portion of the work, is defective and out of order. It wants the greater part of Kisms II.—IV.

II. Foll. 240—295. Favātiķ ul-Maibudī. See p. 19 b.

Add. 7712.

Foll. 390;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{3}{4}$ ; 23 lines,  $4\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Naskhi; Ṣafar, Ramaẓān, A.H. 1113 (A.D. 1701—1702).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 1—237. Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'ī. See p. 469 a.

II. Foll. 238—319. كتاب البعجم في آثار , a history of the early kings of Persia, from Kayūmars to Anūshīrvān.

مضل الله ,Author: Fazl Ullah ul-Ḥusaini

الحسيني ان احق ما يغنج بـ الكلام Beg.

The author, who calls himself as above in the preface, fol. 246 b, must have been a Sayyid, and was, according to the Jahān-ārā, fol. 138, a native of Ķazvīn. He must therefore be distinguished from his namesake, Izz ud-Dīn Fazl Ullah, father of the historian Vaṣṣāf, with whom he has been wrongly identified by Amīn Rāzī, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 37, and others. The latter, who was no Sayyid, and was born in Shīrāz, died A.H. 698 (see p. 162 a), probably before the composition of the present work.

3 c 2

The Mu'jam is written in an extremely ornate and laboured style. A wordy preface, foll. 238—247, is chiefly taken up by a panegyric upon the reigning prince, Atābak Nuṣrat ud-Dīn Aḥmad B. Yūsuf Shāh, of the dynasty of Lur Buzurg, who succeeded his brother Afrāsyāb, slain by the Moghuls at the close of A.H. 695, and died, after a long and prosperous reign, in A.H. 730 or 733. See Guzīdah, fol. 156, Jahānārā, Add. 7649, fol. 52, and Mīrkhwānd, History of the Atabeks, pp. 66—68.

Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 628, who calls the author Fazl Ullah B. 'Abd Ullah ul-Ķazvīnī, assigns to the work a date obviously too early, viz. A.H. 654. Compare Morley's Catalogue, p. 132, the Munich Catalogue, p. 78, and Sir Wm. Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 315.

III. Foll. 320—390. Akhlāķ i Muḥsinī. See p. 443 b.

Add. 7720.

Foll. 123;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; from 7 to 10 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Naskhi and Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—21. A treatise on logic, beginning: بدانکه آدمی را قوتیست دراکه که منتقش کرده در وی صور اشیا چنانکه در آئینه

It is the work known as الرسالة الكبرى في, by Mīr Sayyid Sharīf Jurjānī (see p. 522 a), noticed by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. pp. 416, 446, by Sprenger, Zeitschrift, vol. 32, p. 9, and printed in the Majmū'ah i Manṭik, Lucknow, 1819, pp. 10—50. It is found with a commentary in Add. 25,869. See p. 440 a.

II. Foll. 22-62. The same treatise, with a Latin translation written over the text, wanting nine leaves at the beginning, and imperfect at the end.

III. Foll. 63—106. جام گیتی نیا, a philosophical treatise, with a Latin translation, written by the same hand as the preceding.

Beg. سپاس حکیمی را که انکار حکما وانظار علماء On the first page is found the following title:—

"Universum, seu, ut Persæ vocant, poculum mundi, opera Georgi Strachani Mernensis Scoti in Latinum idioma traducta (sic) 1634."

The work is dedicated to a Shāhzādah not named, described as the ruler of the land (Fārs). It is divided, as stated in the preface, into an introduction (Fātiḥah), thirty Makṣads, and a Khātimah. The present copy, however, ends with Makṣad 27.

An Arabic version has been edited with a a Latin translation, under the title of "Synopsis propositorum sapientiæ Arabum philosophorum," by Abraham Ecchellensis, Paris, 1641. The author, who is called Kāzī Zādah Ḥusain in a copy noticed in Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. v. p. 262, and Kāzī Mīr Ḥusain ul-Maibudī by Haj. Khal., vol. ii. p. 499, has been already mentioned, p. 19 a.

In a copy of the Persian text noticed by Uri, p. 283, the work is ascribed to a later writer, Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Manṣūr, who died, according to the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, A.H. 948.

The following notice, written by Mr. Rich on the fly-leaf, relates especially to the last two articles. "This volume is a very great curiosity; it contains two Persian tracts with an interlinear translation, the work and writing of Strachan, a Scotchman who lived much among the Mowali Arabs when they were the princes of the desert. He was a friend of Pietro della Valle, in whose travels much mention is made of him. Baghdad, 1816." A sketch of Strachan's life will be found in "Viaggi di P. della Valle," Rome, 1658, vol. iii. p. 493.

IV. Foll. 107—123. A geographical account of the Persian empire, endorsed, انتخاب از کتاب سور [صور] اقالیم Beg. انتخاب از که از Beg. کتر مد

This work, which appears to have been written for a Begzādah called Isḥāķ, in the reign of Shāh 'Abbās I. (A.H. 996—1038), consists of a meagre enumeration of the Persian provinces, and their principal towns, with the distances between them. At the end is a table of the longitudes and latitudes of the chief cities of Persia, foll. 121—123.

Add. 7721.

Foll. 277; 8½ in. by 5½; written by different hands in various characters, for the most part A.H. 1222 (A.D. 1807).

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 1—8. The Lavā'iḥ of Jāmī. See p. 44 a.

II. Foll. 11—16. Explanation of terms used by official writers, in tabular form, with the heading, قاعدة در بسيان خلاصه الفاظى كه نـزد العربر مصطلم است

III. Foll. 17—32. Copies of some letters that passed between Fath 'Alī Shāh and Sulaimān Pāshā, Governor of Baghdād, on the subject of the raid of the Vahhābis upon Karbalā in A.H. 1217, and of letters written in the same year by the governor of Baghdād to the British. Consul, Mr. Harford Jones (afterwards Sir H. J. Brydges). They were transcribed for Mr. H. Jones by some person in the employ of Sulaimān Pāshā.

IV. Foll. 32—49. Fragment of Vāmiķ u 'Azrā, رامق و عذرا, a Maşnavî by Nāmī (i.e. Mirzā Muḥammad Ṣādiķ; see p. 196 a). It begins with the following line, which belongs to the early part of the prologue:—

Further on the poem is described as the fourth of a Khamsah بہر چارم کنے بر می ساختم, and the poet adds that he had chosen a theme hitherto unsung in preference to the worn out tale of Shīrīn u Khusrau:

قصه شیرین و خسرو شد کهن باز گو از وامق و عذرا سخی تاکنون این داستان راکس نکفت مشقب خامه دری زیشان نسفت

It is well known, however, that the same story has been treated by two poets of the fifth century of the Hijrah, 'Unsurī and Fasiḥī, and by one of the tenth, Zamīrī, who lived at the court of Shāh Ṭahmāsp. See Hammer, Redekünste, pp. 42, 46, Wamik und Asra, Vienna, 1833, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 27.

V. Foll. 52-67. Ghazals by Ţūfān (see p. 808 a, iii.), Hātif, and Mushtāķ.

Sayyid Alimad of Isfahan, surnamed Hātif, was a friend of Lutf 'Alī Khān, who speaks of him about A.H. 1190 as still living. See Atashkadah, fol. 197. Some of his Ghazals have been translated by J. M. Jouannin, Mines de l'Orient, vol. ii. p. 307. See also Bland, Century of Ghazals, x., and Defrémery, Journal Asiatique, 5° Série, vol. vii. p. 130.

Mushtāķ, whose proper name was Mīr Sayyid 'Alī, was also a native of Isfahan and a friend of Luṭf 'Alī Khān, who collected his poems after his death. See Atashkadah, fol. 194, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 442.

VI. Foll. 68, 69. Fragment of Majnūn and Lailā, a Maşnavī, by Mirzā Ṣādiķ Nāmī. See art. iv.

VII. Foll. 70-75. Kaşīdah, by Tūfān, and some short pieces.

VIII. Foll. 76—128. Farhād u Shīrīn, by Vaḥshī. See p. 663 b.

IX. Foll. 128—146. Tarkīb-band in praise of 'Alī, and some shorter poems.

X. Foll. 147—162. دفع الشك والمين في تحرير, an Arabic treatise on the poems called Zajal and Mawāliyā, by Tāj ud-Dīn 'Abd ul-Vahhāb ul-Banvānī.

XI. Foll. 163—192. أنيس العشاق, a treatise on the poetical description of female beauty, with examples from classical poets; wanting a few lines at the beginning.

Author: Ḥasan B. Muḥammad, entitled ash-Sharaf, commonly called ar-Rāmī, حسن محمد الملقب بالشرف المشهور بالرامي

The work is divided into nineteen chapters treating severally of the various parts of the face and body. The contents are stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 83, Anzeige-blatt, p. 23, and in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 414. See also Stewart's Catalogue, p. 71, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 122.

From the author's reference, in the extant portion of the preface, to a visit paid by him to the tomb of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī at the time of composition, it is evident that the work was written in Azarbā'ijān; but there is some uncertainty about its date. Haj. Khal. states, vol. i. p. 488, that it was completed A.H. 826, and dedicated to Abul-Fath Uvais Bahādur. At that date, however, Āzarbā'ijān, having been wrested from Ķarā Yūsuf by Mīrzā Bāisunghur in A.H. 823, formed part of the empire of Shāhrukh.

Shaikh Uvais, of the Ilkānī dynasty, the prince to whom the work seems to have been dedicated, reigned from A.H. 757—776. Two other circumstances make it probable that this was the period at which the author lived. He refers in the preface to Auhadī, who died A.H. 738 (see p. 619 a), as a poet of his time, and further on, fol. 190 a, he mentions as his own master, Ḥasan B. Maḥmūd Kāshī, a poet who, according to Takī Kāshī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, died A.H. 710.

It must be noticed, however, that a still later date, viz. A.H. 878, is assigned by Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 21, to another work of the same writer, also dedicated to Uvais Shāh, namely a commentary on حدائق السحر. Compare Krafft's Catalogue, p. 21.

XII. Foll. 193—212. A treatise on rhyme, without title or author's name.

Beg. حمد بيحد و ثناي بيعد مر خالقي، اكم زبان The author frequently quotes the حداثق of Shams i Kais, and, among late poets, Ṣa'ib, who died A.H. 1088.

XIII. Foll. 212—240. مجمع الصنائع, a treatise on poetical figures.

Author: Nizām ud-Dīn Almad B. Muhammad Ṣālih uṣ-Ṣiddīķī ul-Ḥusainī, نظام الدين احمد بن محمد صالم الصديقي الحسيني الحمد لله الذي انعم علينا وهدانا Beg.

It was completed, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1060, the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Shāhjahān. The same date is fixed by a versified chronogram in the preface. The author mentions incidentally a Maṣnavī entitled آرام جان, composed by his father in A.H. 1056.

The work consists of four chapters (Faṣl), as follows:—1. Various kinds of composition.

2. Word-ornaments. 3. Concetti, صنائع معزى

4. Plagiarisms, or borrowed ideas. Appendix on technical terms.

The present MS. is imperfect at the end. A complete copy is found in Add. 12,560.

XIV. Foll. 242—245. An Arabic treatise on philosophical terms, الاصول والضوابط الحكمة

XV. Foll. 247—255. An extract relating to some curious combinations of numbers, with diagrams. The heading is, باب سیم در فرایب اوضاع اعداد ذکر شطری از نوادر وغرایب اوضاع اعداد

XVI. Foll. 256—267. Moral sayings of 'Alī in Arabic, نثر اللالي.

XVII. Foll. 268—277. Ghazals rhyming in Alif, by Mushtāķ. Sec p. 813 b.

Add. 7722.

Foll. 202; 8½ in. by 5½; 17 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Baghdād, Muḥarram, A.H. 1225 (A.D. 1810).

[Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—39. A treatise on astronomy, by Muḥammad Ḥusain B. Karam 'Alī Iṣfa-hānī (see p. 137 a), in the author's handwriting.

حمد بیعد عظمت کبریای رسد که موافق

The work, written for Aķā Aḥmad Lābijānī, includes a versified treatise on the astrolabe, foll. 27—38.

II. Foll. 40—44. A treatise on the preparation and preservation of medicaments, in six Faşls and a Khātimah, extracted from the عتار الادريه of Ḥājī Zain ud-Din 'Aṭṭār (see p. 469 a).

فصل اول در امتیاز میاز میان دوا و غذا Beg.

III. Foll. 44-62. Two extracts from the Tuhfat ul-Müminin (see p. 476 b).

IV. Foll. 64—196. Alchemical tracts in Arabic. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 464.

V. Foll. 197—207. A treatise on instantaneous cures, translated from the Arabic of Muḥammad B. Zakariyyā ur-Rāzī, by Muḥammad Ḥusain Ibn Karam 'Alī (see art. i.).

Beg. الخاهش جناب سيد عريز القدر

The title of the Arabic work is دستور الطب See Uri, p. 288, منى سر الصناعة و برو الساعة xeii., art. 6.

Add. 7723.

Foll. 78; 7½ in. by 4¾; 19 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz and Naskhi, apparently in the 17th century.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

I. Foll. 1-14. A tract on the rational explanation of the Mi'raj.

Beg. سپاس و ستایش خداوند زمین و اسمان را It is commonly ascribed to Abu 'Alī B. Sīnā. See the Dabistān, Troyer's translation, vol.iii. pp. 176—200, where extensive extracts are given, and Haj. Khal., tit. رسالة في المعراب, vol. iii. p. 443.

II. Foll. 15—48. A philosophical treatise on crafts and professions, their relative importance and mutual relations, endorsed كتاب معرفة الصنايع

الحمد لله . . . غرض از این رساله بیان حد . . Beg. صناعت است

In another copy, Add. 16,839, xxii., Amīr Abul-Ķāsim ul-Fandarsakī, الفادرسكي is named as the author.

Mir Abul-Kāsim, who came of a family of Sayyids settled in Astrābād, took his Nisbah from Fandarsak, a neighbouring town (see Burhan i Kaţi'). He is described as the most eminent philosopher and Sufi of his time, and stood high in the estimation of Shah 'Abbas I., whom he is said, however, to have scandalized by his habit of mixing with the lowest orders and attending cock-fights. He spent many years in India, and was twice introduced to Shahjaban by the Vazir Asaf Khān (Abul-Hasan), namely in the first and tenth years of the reign, A.H. 1037 and 1046. But he subsequently returned to his native country, and died in Isfahan during the reign of Shah Safi, A.H. 1038-1052. The present work, commonly designated as صناعات, is mentioned as the most popular of his writings. See Tahir Nasrabadi, fol. 119 a, Amīn, Pādishāh Nāmah, fol. 425, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 31, and Atashkadah, fol. 86.

According to the Dabistan, Mir Abul-Kasim became, through his intercourse with the disciples of Kaivan, much imbued with Pārsī ideas. See Troyer's translation, vol. i. p. 140, vol. iii. pp. 205, 206.

The word oile, "craft," is taken by the author in an exceptionally wide sense, and is made to include the highest forms of human activity. His first chapter treats of prophets, Imams, and philosophers.

III. Foll. 49—78. Eleven Sufi tracts, by Muhammad Dihdar, محبد دهدار.

Khwajah Muhammad Dihdar, son of Khwajah Mahmud, belonged to a family of Arab extraction settled in Havizah, a town of Khūzistān, and subsequently in Shīrāz. He went to India under Akbar, and became intimate with the Khānkhānān 'Abd ur-Rahim, to whom several of his treatises are dedicated. He died in Sürat under Jahängir (according to Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 393, A.H. 1016), leaving poetical compositions in which he took the name of Fani, and many prose works, among which glosses to the Nafahāt, Rashahāt, and Gulshan i Raz, and a commentary upon the preface of Tibyān, are mentioned. See Riyāz ul-Auliyā, fol. 169, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 330. Some of his tracts are noticed in the Jahrbücher, vol. 85, Anzeigeblatt, p. 54, and the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 455.

The subjects of the present treatises are the following:—1. Spiritual meaning of the Zikr, fol. 42 b. 2. Comments on the verse . Coran, lvi. 74, fol. 54 b فلا اقسم بمواقع النجوم 3. Free-will and predestination, fol. 56 a. 4. Defence of Muhyi ud-Din Ibn ul-Arabi against 'Alā ud-Daulah (see p. 413 a), and Gīsū Darāz (see p. 347 b), fol. 61 b. 5. Relato individuals, انسان كلي to individuals, fol. 64 a. 6. Muhammad and the universal soul روح اعظم, fol. 66 a. 7. Relation of individual minds to the ten intellects, fol. 68 b. 8. Comparison of the insight of previous prophets and of Muhammad, fol. 69 b. 9. Mutual relations of men, and the twelve Imams, fol. 71 b. 10. Comments on 'Ali's saying with regard to the existence of Adam before creation, fol. 75 a. 11. The beginning of light and the world of darkness. This last tract is imperfect.

Add. 7737.

Foll. 253; 9 in. by 6\frac{2}{4}; 18 lines, 4\frac{2}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabī' II., A.H. 1033 (A.D. 1624). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—72. اخلاق شهسيه, a treatise on ethics, in prose and verse, by Ḥasan B. Rūz-bahān, حسن بن روزبان احمدك يا ذا الجود والفضل و الأحسان . Beg.

The preface contains a eulogy upon the Vazīr Shams ud-Daulah Muḥammad, from whose name the title is derived. The author states further on that he had been determined, after long delays, to issue the present work by the appearance of the Akhlāķ i Muḥsinī (a work completed A.H. 900; see p. 443 b).

It is divided into fourteen Bābs and a Khātimah.

Dr. Sprenger, who notices the work in the Zeitschrift der D. Morg. Gessellschaft, vol. xiii. p. 540, calls the author Ḥasan B. Rūzbahān Shīrāzī.

II. Foll. 73—137. Manţik uţ-Ţair. See p. 576 α.

III. Foll. 137—242. Muşibat Nāmah. See p. 576 b.

IV. Foll. 242—253. Gulshan i Rāz. See p. 608 b.

Add. 7776.

Foll. 121; 12 in. by  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ; 23 lines,  $5\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in four gold-ruled columns, with two Unvāns, and 36 miniatures in Persian style; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1004 (A.D. 1596). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1-64. Mihr u Mushtari. See p. 626 a.

In this copy the date of composition, fol. 64 a, is not A.H. 778 as in the above copy, but A.H. 748, فاجرت رفته حا و ميم با ذال

ie الدين محمد لاهجى : Copyist

II. Foll. 65—121. Duval-Rānī Khizr Khūn. See p. 612 a, xiv.

عبد اللطيف بن نعمان : Copyist

Add. 7802.

Foll. 110; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; 15 lines, about 3in. long; written by various hands in Nestalik and Shikastah-\text{\text{\text{a}miz}}, apparently in the 17th century. [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 1—63. Prologue of a Maşnavî in the measure of the Makhzan ul-Asrār, with a dedicatory epistle in prose to some patron of letters not named.

ای خرد مرحله پیمای فکر Beg. قدرت بازوی توانای فکر

The author, who designates himself only by his poetical surname Afitab أنتا برقاقة, mentions, as his models, the works of Nizāmī, Khusrau, Jāmī, and lastly the Markaz i Advār of Faizī (see p. 671 a). This line, نطق , shows that he was a native of Khorasan, while from his appeals to the Shāh's indulgence, and some references to Kirman such as this, جند دل من غم كرمان خورد, it is evident that he had fallen into disgrace, and had been some time confined, much against his will, to that city.

Foll. 39—55 are occupied by some Kaṣidahs and Ghazals, apparently by the same poet. These also contain references to the author's compulsory stay in Kirman, as in the following line: كرمان كشيده كرد من ازتار كام اردهاست كم حلقه در او كام اردهاست. One of the Kaṣidahs fixes the period of the poet: it is addressed to the Kūrchī Bāshī Murtazā

Kulī Khān, an Amīr of the Shāmlū tribe, who, as we learn from Ṭāhir Naṣrābādī, fol. 30, held the government of Kirmān in the reign of Shāh 'Abbās II. (A.H. 1052—1077). Another is in praise of Shāh 'Abbās.

II. Foll. 64—110. Letters and other prose pieces, without author's name.

سپاس کبریای احدیت بمثابه ایست که .Beg. ادب آموزان

The letters are mostly written in the name of Ḥasan Khān, and of 'Abbās Ķulī Khān, to whom the author appears to have acted as secretary.

Hasan Khān B. Husain Khān Shāmlū, governor of Khorāsān (see p. 682 a), was a great patron of poets, and the author of a Dīvān, a preface to which is found in the present collection. His son, 'Abbās Ķulī Khān, who succeeded him in the government, was still living when Ṭāhir Naṣrābādī wrote, i.e. A.H. 1083; see fol. 29.

Add. 7819.

Foll. 189; 9½ in. by 5½; 19 lines, 2½ in. long, with 28 lines round the margins; written in small Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1056 (A.D. 1646). [Cl. J. Rich.]

I. Foll. 2—154. ديوان نظيري نيشاپورى, the the Divan of Nazīrī of Nīshāpūr.

This poet, whose proper name was Muhammad Husain, went to India, after a stay of some years in Kāshān, and became a favourite follower of that great lover of poetry, the Khānkhānān 'Abd ur-Raḥīm Khān. After a pilgrimage to Mecca, performed in A.H. 1012, he adopted a religious life, and settled in Aḥmadābād, where he died A.H. 1022 or 1023. See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 515, Blochmann, Aīn Akbarī, p. 579, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 318, Badāonī, vol. iii. p. 355, Riyāz, fol. 457, and Ouseley's Notices, p. 252. Contents: Ķaṣīdahs, Tarkībs, Tarjī's and Ķiṭ'ahs, arranged apparently in chronological order, with rubrics due to the author, showing for whom and on what occasion the several pieces were composed. The poems are addressed to the Khānkhānān, to Akbar and Jahāngīr, to 'Abd Ullah Khān of Gujrāt, to Akbar's son, prince Murād, Naurang Khān, A'zam Khān Kūkah, and other Amīrs. Some arc elegies on the death of the author's children and of contemporary poets. The section is imperfect in the beginning.

2. Ghazals in alphabetical order, fol. 70, beginning:

This section has two lacunes after foll. 123 and 141, and breaks off at the beginning of letter J.

II. Foll. 155—188. The Ghazals of Vaḥshī (see p. 664 a), wanting the first part of letter 1, and the latter part of letter  $\omega$ , with the rest of the alphabet.

III. Foll. 155—188, and 2—30 (margins).
The Divān of Shāpūr. See p. 674 b.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, imperfect at the beginning, fol. 155. Ghazals in alphabetical order, with a lacune extending from letter to letter, foll. 175—188, 2—23. Two Tarjī'-bands, fol. 24.

IV. Foll. 30—127 (margins). ديوان شيخ the Divān of Shaikh 'Alī Naķī, of Kamrah.

This poet and his brother Ulfatī came of the family of the Shaikhs of Kamrah, a borough situate near Jarbādķān, in Irac. 'Alī Naķī was the panegyrist of Shāh 'Abbās I. (A.H. 995—1038), and of Ḥātim Beg, who was that king's Vazīr during the early part of his reign. He is mentioned as still alive in the Haft Iķlīm, a work written A.H. 1002. He died, according to Ṭāhir Naṣrābādī, fol. 176, in A.H. 1012, or, as stated in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 460, A.H. 1013. Dr. Sprenger gives a later date, viz. A.H. 1030 or 1031. See the Oude Catalogue, pp. 91, 514.

Contents: Kaṣīdahs, fol. 30 a. Ghazals, in alphabetical order, fol. 64 a. Rubā'is, fol. 117—127.

V. Foll. 128—154. Select Ghazals from the Dīvān of Fighānī (see p. 651 a), in alphabetical order; wanting the latter part of letter  $\uparrow$  and the rest of the alphabet.

Add. 7827.

Foll. 89;  $11\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 25 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi' II., A.H. 997 (A.D. 1589). [Cl. J. Rich.]

A volume of poetical extracts in Persian and Turkī, including connected series of Ghazals by the following poets: Ķāsim i Anvār (p. 635 a), foll. 16—29. Jāmī (p. 643 a), foll. 31—35. Navā'ī (Mīr 'Alī Shīr, p. 366 a), by whom are some Tarkīb-bands and a collection of Ghazals entitled غرائب الصغر in Turkī, foll. 41—53. Humāyūn (p. 735 b), foll. 54—57. Aṣafī (p. 651 b), foll. 78—80.

Add. 7828.

Foll. 54;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; about 17 lines, 4 in. long; in the handwriting of Mr. Rich; dated Dec. 25th, 1803. [Cl. J. Rich.]

A volume of miscellaneous extracts, containing an Arabic notice on the fire-temples, headed عربى [Shahristānī] من شاهرستان, fol. 1. The prologue and epilogue of Ṣad Dar i Nazm (see p. 48 b), fol. 2. Extracts from Khwānd Amīr on the early kings of Persia, fol. 6, from the Bahāristān and Yūsuf u Zulaikhā of Jāmī, fol. 7, from the Zīj i Muḥammad-Shāhī (see p. 460 b), fol. 16, from the Futūḥ Ibn Aʿṣam (see p. 151 a), fol. 21, from the Maķāmāt of al-Ḥarīrī, fol. 24, from Saʿdī; Ḥāfīz, Firdūsī, etc.

Add. 7938.

Foll. 49; 7\frac{3}{4} in. by 5; written in Divani and Nestalik by different hands, apparently in the 16th and 17th centuries.

[Cl. J. RICH.]

Ghazals by Kātibī, Hilālī, Āhī, Āṣafī, Ahlī, Ḥāfiz, Jāmī, Shahīdī, Ḥairānī, Saifī, and Ḥairatī, foll. 23—33.

Ķasīdahs by Kātibī, Khwājūi Kirmānī, and Ibn Ḥusām, foll. 35—46.

The rest of the volume contains forms of letters and poetical extracts in Turkish.

Add. 8149.

Foll. 83; 9 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 5½ in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated 'Azīmganj, province of Murshidābād, in the month of Asin of the Bengali year 1128, the fourth of the reign (of Muḥammad Shāh = A.H. 1134-5, A.D. 1721).

I. Foll. 1—28. تصه المير المومنين حسن و حسين, history of the Amīr ul-Mūminīn Ḥasan and Ḥusain from their birth to the death of the former, poisoned by Yazīd, and to the martyrdom of the latter in Karbalā.

II. Foll. 29—82. حكايت محمد حنفيه, history of Muhammad, son of the Hanafiyyah, from the time when the tidings of his brother Husain's death reach him to the time when he releases the latter's son, Zain ul-'Abidin, from captivity, and finds the charred body of the accursed Yazid at the bottom of a well.

The above stories are apparently detached portions of a late composition exhibiting the Shi'ah legend in its most exuberant growth.

Add. 8908.

Foll. 218; 9½ in. by 6; 13 lines, 4 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated February, A.D. 1819.

 Foll. 1—39. The diary of the siege of Ḥaidarābād. See p. 268 α.

II. Foll. 40—218. The third volume of the Ikbāl-Nāmah (see p. 255 a), wanting the concluding notices on the Vazīrs and celebrated men of the reign.

بختاور سنکه ولد منشی صاحب سنکه : Copyist ملازم مهاراجه نراندر کرهمت بهادر

Add. 8919.

Foll. 86; 9½ in. by 6½; 14 lines in a page; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 1—13. Alphabetical list of Persian verbs, with their Hindustani equivalents.

II. Foll. 14—22. Alphabetical list of Hindustani verbs, with their Persian equivalents.

III. Foll. 23—86. Lailā Majnūn, by Hātifī. See p. 652 b.

Add. 8991.

Foll. 161; 9½ in. by 5; 14 and 16 lines, 2½ and 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 2—126. The Shāhnāmah of Mirzā Ķāsim Gūnābādī (see p. 660 a), wanting four leaves after fol. 97, three single leaves after foll. 113, 117, and 121, and about four at the end.

II. Foll. 127—140. An alphabetical series of Ghazals, by Ṭāhir, طاهر.

The series is imperfect at the beginning, and has some other lacunes. The author names in one passage, fol. 135, Sāib Tabrīzī, who died A.H. 1088 (see p. 693 a), as his model, and it appears from another line, fol. 128 a, that he lived in Isfahan.

3 D 2

III. Foll. 141—161. A fragment of the Inshā of Yūsufī. See p. 529 a.

Add. 9697.

Foll. 95; 8\frac{3}{4} in. by 6\frac{1}{4}; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Shikastah-\text{\text{\text{a}miz}}, about the close of the 18th century.

 Foll. 1—16. Forms of official documents and civil contracts.

II. Foll. 17—54. دستور الصبيان, the Munshi's manual, containing models of letters and official papers.

Author: Shaikh Anis ud-Din, son of Kazi Na'im ud-Din, of the town of Chanwah, Bardwan, شيخ انيس الدين ولد قاضى نعيم الدين

ساكن قصبه چنوه

Beg. چون حمد و ثناى حضرت افريدكار ليم چوجه The author was, in A.H. 1175, Munshī to Gandarbh-Dās, Nāib Zamīndār of Hijlī. He compiled the present work shortly after, and inserted in it many of his own letters. The present copy is imperfect.

III. Foll. 55—70. Copies of letters written to various officials in Bengal, in the time of Mīr Ja'far and Clive, by a person in the Company's employ.

IV. Foll. 71—95. Fragment of Bahār i Dānish. See p. 765 b.

Add. 10,463.

Foll. 28; 10 in. by 6\(\frac{1}{4}\); from 12 to 19 lines; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1233 (A.D. 1818).

Foll. 1—17. Nān u Ḥalvā. See p. 679 α.

II. Foll. 18—23. Six Kaşīdahs from the Dīvān of Sa'dī.

III. Foll. 24—27. A fragment of Haft Paikar. See p. 567 a.

Add. 10,579.

Foll. 271;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{3}{4}$ ; from 15 to 25 lines; written in Nestalik and Shikastahāmīz, in India.

I. Foll. 1—48; dated Muḥarram, A.H. 1096 (A.D. 1684).

A commentary on some difficult verses of the first part of Iskandar Nāmah (see p. 568 a).

Author: Ḥāmid B. Jamāl Bukhārī ul-Ḥa-sanī ul-Jaunfūrī, حامد بين جمال بخارى الحسنى الجونفورى

حمد بى نهايت وسپاس بيغايت مرحضرت . The work is dedicated to Farīd ud-Dīn Abul-Muzaffar Shīr Shāh (A.H. 946—952). It is mentioned in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 439, under the title of كشف الدقائق.

II. Foll. 49—271; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1149 (A.D. 1736).

A commentary on some poems of Khākānī by Muḥammad Shādiyābādī. See p. 561 b. This copy contains only 34 Kasīdahs.

Add. 10,587.

Foll. 34;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $2\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastahāmīz; dated A.H. 1175 (A.D. 1761-2).

I. Foll. 1—9. Mi'rāj ul-Khayāl. See p. 738  $\alpha$  and 803  $\alpha$ .

III. Foll. 10—34. Sūz u Gudāz. See p. 674 a.

Add. 11,633.

Foll. 242;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by 5; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 2—81. واتعات مشتاقى "Memorable events of Mushtākī," a collection of detached narratives and anecdotes relating to the sovereigns of the Lodi, Timuride, and Sūr dynasties.

Author: Mushtāķī, commonly called Rizķ Ullah, مثتاتي عرف رزق الله

حمد و ثناي مر بادشاهي را كه خطبه احديت . Beg.

Shaikh Rizk Ullah, of Dehli, the eldest son of a well-known devotee, Shaikh Sa'd Ullah (the grandfather of Shaikh 'Abd ul-Hakk Dihlavi; see p. 14 a), was born A.H. 897, and became, as a child, the Murid of a renowned saint, Shaikh Muhammad Maikan, of Milavan (a town near Kinnauj), who died A.H. 906. Rizk Ullah led the wandering life of a Fakir, and associated with thousands of holy Shaikhs. He was deeply versed in the history of saints and kings, and died at the age of ninety-two years, A.H. 989, leaving several poetical compositions in Hindi and Persian. In the former he took the name of Rajan, while in the latter he adopted the takhallus Mushtāķī. notices of his life by his nephew Abd ul-Hakk, in Akhbar ul-Akhyar, foll. 142, 215, and in his memoirs, Or. 1696, fol. 84. Compare Rivaz ul-Auliya, fol. 121, Tarikh i Khānjahānī, fol. 4, and Dorn, History of the Afghans, p. 3.

An account of the work, with copious extracts, is given in Elliot's History of India, vol. iv. pp. 534—557. A translation is preserved in manuscript, Add. 20,773, foll. 128—187.

The contents are arranged under the following heads: Bahlūl Lodī, fol. 3 a. Sikandar Lodī, fol. 8 a. Ibrāhīm Lodī, fol. 40 b. Bābar, fol. 42 a. Humāyūn, fol. 44 b. Akbar, fol. 45 b. Shīr Shāh Sūr, fol. 46 a. Islām Shāh, fol. 56 b. Ibrāhīm, fol. 60 b. Character and rule of Islām Shāh, fol. 74 a. Muḥammad Shāh, called 'Adlī, fol. 76 b. Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Khiljī, of Mandū, fol. 79 b.

The present copy breaks off in the last section, fol. 81 b; it wants about twelve folios.

II. Foll. 82-242. A portion of Zubdat ut-Tavārīkh (see p. 224 b), corresponding to foll. 151-376 of Add. 10,580.

The last page, containing a subscription dated A.H. 1089, is by a later hand.

Add. 12,560.

Foll. 203; 9 in. by 5; 15 lines, 3\frac{1}{8} in. long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Sha'ban, A.H. 1228 (A.D. 1813).

I. Foll. 2—83. Majma' uṣ-Ṣanā'i'. See p. 814 b, xiii.

II. Foll. 84, 85. Reply of Mulla Muhammad Țāhir Ghanī (see p. 692 a) to a charge of plagiarism founded on the discovery of a verse of his in a copy of the Tārīkh i Badāonī (see p. 222 b).

III. Foll. 85—103. Firdausiyyah, by Tughra. See p. 742 b, ii.

IV. Foll. 104—121. Panj Ruķ'ah and Mīnā Bāzār, by Zuhūrī. See p. 742 a, v. iv.

.V. Foll. 122—134. گل کشتی, a Maşnavî on the art of wrestling, by Mîr Najāt.

در کپ عشق هر آن نامه که دلخواد بود Beg.

Mīr 'Abd ul-'Al Najāt, son of Mīr Muḥammad Mūmin, a Ḥusainī Sayyid of Isfahan, is described as a skilled accountant and consummate wit. He began life as Mustaufī of the Ṣadr Mīrzā Ḥabīb Ullah, discharged the same office in Astrābād, and was employed as secretary by Shāh Sulaimān and Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain. He was about thirty years of age in A.H. 1076 (see Ķiṣaṣ ul-Khāṣānī, fol. 168), and as he reached, according to Ḥazīn, Oude Catalogue, p. 137, the age of eighty years, he must have died about A.H. 1026. See Ṭāhir Naṣrābādī, fol. 254, Ātashkadah, fol. 86, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 512.

The author of the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 470, reflects severely on the low tone of Najāt's compositions, and says, that he shares with Zulālī (p. 677 a), Jalāl Asīr (p. 681 b), and Shaukat of Bukhārā (who lived in Khorasan and afterwards in Isfahan, and died A.H. 1107; see Mir'āt Jahānnumā, fol. 362), the blame of having debased poetry by lowering it to the level of vulgar speech and trivial jokes.

The date of composition, A.H. 1112, is expressed by the following chronogram in the epilogue:

غنچه کل که بود بر سر دل تاریخست

The poem has been elucidated in India by two commentators, Arzū and Ratan Singh, and has been printed in Lucknow, A.H. 1258. Copies are noticed in Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 258, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 4.

VI. Foll. 134—140. سيزده بند, a satire by Ḥakīm Sharaf ud-Dīn Shifā'ī, imperfect at the end.

ای صدر نشین کشته در ایوان Beg.

Iskandar Beg, who calls the author Ḥakīm Tīmūr Shifā'ī, of Isfahan, speaks of him, 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 243, as a distinguished physician, wit, and poet, a favourite companion of Shāh 'Abbās I., but universally dreaded for his malignant epigrams and ruthless satire. He adds that he died in Isfahan, A.H. 1037. According to others his original name was Sharaf ud-Dīn Ḥasan. See Ṭāhir, fol. 158, Mir'āt i Jahānnumā, fol. 362, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 237, Atashkadah, fol. 100, the Oude Catalogue, p. 570, and Haft Āsmān, p. 134.

Shifā'i's Dīvān is described in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 600.

VII. Foll. 141—168. Extracts from Nizāmī's poems and Firdūsī's Shāhnāmah.

VIII. Foll. 169—177. Love-letters of Duvalrānī and Khizr Khān, from the poem of Amīr Khusrau. See p. 612 a, xiv.

IX. Foll. 177—185. Extract from Vis u Rāmīn, a Maşnavī by Fakhrī Jurjānī. جو رامین دید کورا دل بیازرد Beg.

Fakhr ud-Dīn As'ad Jurjānī composed this poetical version of a romance, originally written in Pehlevi, in Isfahan, about A.H. 440, at the request of 'Amīd ud-Dīn Abul-Fatḥ Muzaffar, of Nīshāpur, who governed Isfahan for Sultan Tughrul, the founder of the Saljūķ empire. See Guzīdah, fol. 242, Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. ii., Juz 4, p. 85, Haj. Khal. vol. vi. p. 468, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 465, the Oude Catalogue, p. 338, and Haft Āsmān, p. 17.

The poem has been published, from a defective copy, in the Bibliotheca Indica, 1864. Extensive extracts are given in the Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 323, and Khulāṣat ul-Afkār, fol. 209. An analysis of the contents by K. H. Graf is to be found in the Zeitschrift der D. Morgenl. Gesellschaft, vol. 23, pp. 375—433.

The present extract corresponds to pp. 248—252, 261—269 of the printed edition, from which, however, it differs very considerably.

X. Foll. 186—197. Love-letters of Lailā and Majnūn, from Nizāmi's poem. See p. 566 b.

XI. Foll. 200—203. Ghazals by Hilālī. See p. 656 a.

On the fly-leaf is written: "Purchased of W. Campbell Richley, a soldier, who stated it to have been part of the plunder found within the fortress of Ghuznee, when captured by the English troops under Sir John Keane, in 1839."

Add. 14,374.

Foll. 109; 9 in. by  $7\frac{3}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, late in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 2—11. Life of Bībī Juliana, endorsed احوال ہی جلیانا

مستایش و نیایش احدی را که صانع جز و کل Beg.

The author, کستن برویت (Gaston Bruit), states that Monsieur Gentil, at whose request he had written this account, had come to India in A.H. 1165, twenty-two years before the date of composition (which therefore must be A.H. 1187), and, having entered the service of Shujā' ud-Daulah, had been settled for the last twelve years in Faizābād.

Colonel Jean-Baptiste Joseph Gentil, the able assistant of Shujā' ud-Daulah in the organization of his army, left India shortly after that prince's death (A.H. 1188), and died in his native town, Bagnols, in a state of great poverty, in 1799. See Langlès, Bibliothèque Universelle.

According to the present memoir, Bibi Juliana had been captured as a child, with three thousand Portuguese, in the early part of Shahjahan's reign, and given as a slave to one of the ladies of the court. Having been married to a European, who soon after fell in battle, she was attached to the household of Prince Mu'azzam (afterwards Bahādur Shāh) and his mother, whom she served with singular devotion during their long confinement. After the prince's accession she rose to a position of great trust and influence, and maintained it during the early part of the reign of Muhammad Shah, whose deliverance from the galling yoke of the Sayyids she is said to have obtained by means of a vow to S. John.

She died at Dehli, in great repute of sanctity, some years after that event (according to Tarikh i Muḥammadī, fol. 277, in Rabī' I., A.H. 1147), when a relative, Bibī Pasquale , succeeded to her office and assumed her name.

A French translation of the work by Prof. E. H. Palmer will be found in the Nouvelles Annales des Voyages, 1865, tom. ii. pp. 161—184, and a notice on Juliana in Gentil's Mémoires sur l'Indoustan, pp. 367—380.

II. Foll. 12—80. Memoirs of Shaikh Hazin. See p. 381 a.

Add. 16,701.

Foll. 126; 8 in. by 5; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulka'dah, the sixth year of Farrukhsiyar (A.H. 1129, A.D. 1717). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—91. Zikr ul-Mulūk, by 'Abd ul-Ḥakk Dihlavī. See p. 223 b.

عبد الجليم خيرابادي : Copyist

II. Foll. 92—126. Account of Aurangzīb's victories over Jasvant Singh and Dārā Shikūh, from the 'Alamgīr Nāmah (see p. 266 b); corresponding to pp. 59—105 of the Calcutta edition.

Add. 16,703.

Foll. 111; 9 in. by 5½; 15 and 17 lines, about 3 in. long. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—71. نظام التواريخ, a general history of Persia from Adam to A.H. 674.

Author: Kāzi'l-kuzāt Nāṣir ud-Dīn Abu Sa'id 'Abd Ullah B. Kāzi'l-kuzāt Imām ud-Dīn Abil-Kāsim 'Umar B. Fakhr ud-Dīn Abil-Ḥasan 'Alī ul-Baizāvī, المقاة المام الدين ابو سعيد عبد الله بن قاضى القضاة المام الدين ابى القاسم عمر بن فخر الدين ابى الحسن على البيضاوى حمد بى نهايت و شكر بسى غايت مبدعى را .Beg. المحد بى نهايت و شكر بسى غايت مبدعى را

The author, whose well known commentary upon the Coran (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 64), has made the name familar in Europe, was the son of Imām ud-Dīn Abul-Kāsim 'Umar, who, as stated in the present work, fol. 62, held the office of chief judgo in the kingdom of Fārs under the Atābak Abu Bakr B. Sa'd. Nāṣir ud-Dīn, who also discharged the functions of Kāzī in Shīrāz, spent the latter part of his life in Tabrīz, where he died, according to the Vāfī bil-Wafayāt, fol. 99, A.H. 685. A later date, however, A.H. 692, is assigned to his death by al-Yāfī (see Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 1, p. 77), and Ḥamd Ullah Mustaufī who mentions the Nigām ut-Tavārīkh as one of his sources, states that the author died after A.H. 710.

In a short preface written on the 21st of Muḥarram, A.H. 674, Baizāvī says that, having composed in early life works on every branch of the sacred sciences, he now proposed to write a compendium of the history of Iran from Adam to his own time.

The work is divided into four Kisms, as follows: I. Prophets, saints, and kings, from Adam to Noah, fol. 3 b. II. Early kings of Persia, in four dynasties, fol. 6 b. III. The early Khalifs, the Umayyades, and Abbasides, fol. 32 a. IV. Dynasties contemporary with the Abbasides, viz. Şaffāris, fol. 46. Sāmānis, fol. 47 a. Ghaznavis and Ghūris, fol. 48 a. Dailamis, fol. 51 b. Saljūķis, fol. 56 a. Salghuris, fol. 59 a. Ismā'īlis, fol. 64 b. Khwārazmis, fol. 66 a. Moghuls, fol. 67 b.

The time of composition is fixed not only by the date given in the preface, but also by the author's statement that the Salghuri dynasty had ruled 131 years from its origin, in A.H. 543, to the "current year," which must therefore have been A.H. 674.

The last section, however, has a conclusion of later date than the preface, but apparently also due to the author, in which Abāṣā Khān is spoken of as dead, and the Ṣāḥib Dīvān as being still at the height of his power. It must therefore have been written between A.H. 680 and 683. The same conclusion is found in another copy, Or. 1583.

A further continuation, foll. 69 b—71, ending with the accession of Ghāzān Khān, A.H. 694, in whose reign it was written, cannot be ascribed to Baizāvī. This latter appendix occurs also in another MS., Or. 1859, foll. 98—102. There is also an addition of later date than the conclusion in the account of the Salghuris, for it is brought down to the death of Abish Khātūn, A.H. 686.

The contents of the Nizām ut-Tavārīkh have been fully stated by S. de Sacy, Notices et Extraits, vol. iv. pp. 672—695, Hammer, Jahrbücher, vol. 81, Anzeigeblatt, p. 37, and Sir H. Elliot, History of India, vol. ii. pp. 252—258. See also Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 354. Copies are mentioned in Stewart's Catalogue, p. 7, Uri, p. 215, Ouseley's MSS., No 686, Leyden Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 1, Vienna Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 60, and Upsala Catalogue, p. 162. A Turkish translation, in which the history is brought down to A.H. 973, is preserved in Add. 6020. Another is noticed in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 91.

The present copy is apparently of the 16th century, but the latter portion, foll. 55—71, which is by a later hand, is dated A.H. 1072 (A.D. 1662).

II. Foll. 72—91. A versified abstract of Indian history, from the time of the Muhammadan conquest to A.H. 1133, by 'Abd ullah Yakin, عبد الله يقين

The whole poem is on the same rhyme. It was written, as stated in the prologue, at the request of Sābit Kadam Khān, an amīr of the court of Muḥammad Shāh.

In the concluding lines the author claims descent from the Moghul Chākui Purlās واكوى پرلاس, the grandson of Ķarāchār, and gives A.H. 1133 as the date of composition.

Shāh Yakīn is mentioned in Hamīshah Bahār as 'now' (i. e. A.H. 1136) living in Dehli. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 130.

The present copy is dated in the 28th year of Muḥammad Shāh (A.H. 1158, A.D. 1745).

III. Foll.92—111. مراة المراتب واسباب المغفرة a treatise on the attributes of God as expressed by His names.

Author: Bāyazīd [B.] Ibrāhīm, بايزيد ابراهيم.

Beg. حمد بي قياس وسپاس بي انتها مر حضرت

The work is divided into several sections called مرتبة.

The present copy appears to be of the 16th century.

Add. 16,779.

Foll. 583; 10½ in. by 6½; 17 lines, 3½ in. long, and 38 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 3—583. Dīvān i Şhams i Tabrīz. See p. 593 a.

ای طایران قدس را عشقت فزوده بالها .Beg در خرمن سودای تو روحانیانرا حالها

At the end of the alphabetical series of Ghazals are found some Tarji-bands, fol. 552 b, and a few Rubā'is, fol. 578 b.

The margins, which form a consecutive text, contain:—

II. Foll. 3—151. The Divan of Sana'i (see p. 551 a), with a prose preface beginning: سپاس و ستایش مبدعی را که بسخن باك سخن دان

The author states that he had been induced to collect his poem by the instances of his friend, Ra'is Ahmad B. Mas'ud.

The Divan begins on fol. 12 a, with a long Kaşıdah, the first line of which is طلب ای عاشقان خوش رفتار طرب ای نیکوان شیرین کار

This poem is quoted by Daulatshāli, fol. 50 a, and in the Haft Iklim, fol. 132.

III. Foll. 155—166. Some Ghazals by Amir Sayyid 'Alī Hamadāni, who uses both 'Alī and 'Alā'i as his takhallus. See p. 447 b.

ای کرنتاران عشقت نارغ از مال و منال و الله

IV. Foll. 166—181. Ghazals by Sayyid Muḥammad Nūrbakhsh, who has been already mentioned, p. 650.

Beg. زتاب عکس رویت شد خور سرکشته هر جای At the end are some Rubā'is, fol. 175 b, and Maşnavis, fol. 176 b.

V. Foll. 187—319. The Divan of Kasim i Anvar. See p. 635 b.

VOL. II.

Add. 16,800.

Foll. 63; 5\frac{3}{2} in. by 3; 11 lines, 1\frac{7}{6} in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with two Unvans and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1-55. The third Daftar of Silsilat uz-Zahab. See p. 644 b.

II. Foll. 56—63. جيليه, "Jamīliyyah," a tract, in Maşnavī rhyme, on the filiation of the Nakshabandi order.

بعد حمد خدا و نعت نبی Beg. کوش کن در ره خدا طلبی

The author, whose name does not appear, enumerates five successive heads of the order from Khwājah Aḥrār, who died A.H. 895, to his own time. From this it may be conjectured that he wrote in the latter half of the 11th century of the Hijrah. The title is contained in the following line at the end:

بکتابت چو آمد این منظرم بجیلیه کردمش موسوم
Sir Gore Ouseley's name is written on the first page of the MS.

Add. 16,806.

Foll. 89; 9½ in. by 5½; written by various hands, apparently in India, in the 17th and 18th centuries. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—18. نصاب الصبيان, an Arabic-Persian vocabulary. See p. 504 a.

II. Foll. 19—69. A portion of the Divān of Ḥāfiz, extending from letter to c.

III. Foll. 70—77. An extract headed نصلیت در روایات و نقلها و نصایح, and beginning with an anecdote relating to Anisi Shāmlū, a poet who lived at the court of 'Alī Ķulī Khān, governor of Herat, and died in Burhānpūr, A.H. 1014 (see Blochmann, Ain i Akbari, p. 578). It consists chiefly of Mukaṭṭaʿat by Ibn Yamīn (Amīr Fakhr ud-Dīn Maḥmūd of Faryūmad, who died A.H. 745; see Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18), and of miscellaneous anecdotes classed under the headings of modesty, meekness, justice, beneficence, patience, and love.

IV. Foll. 78—89. Țariķ 5 of Ķism I. of the Tuhfat ul-Müminin (see p. 476 b).

The volume bears the stamp of General Claud Martin (see p. 2a).

Add. 16,819.

Foll. 217;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; from 21 to 24 lines,  $4\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, about A.H. 1152 (A.D. 1739). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—4. Extracts from Akhlāķ i Manṣūrī اخلاق منصورى, by Mīr Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Manṣūr.

The author was the son of the celebrated philosopher Mīr Ṣadr ud-Dīn Muḥammad of Shīrāz. He held for some time the office of Ṣadr under Shāh Ṭahmāsp, but resigned it in consequence of his orthodoxy having been impugned by the Mujtahid Shaikh 'Alī B. 'Abd ul-'Al, and retired to Shīrāz, where he died A.H. 948, leaving numerous philosophical and scientific works enumerated in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 380.

The contents have been stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 81, Anzeige Blatt, p. 29, and in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 292.

II. Foll. 5—54. Majlis 4—11 of Abvāb ul-Jīnān, ابواب للنان, an ethical work based on the Coran and the moral precepts of the Imāms, by Mīrzā Muḥammad Rafī' Vā'iz Ķazvīnī, who died about A.H. 1105; see p. 698 a.

The work, which is divided into a Mukaddimah and sixteen Majlis, has been lithographed in Teheran A.H. 1274, and in Lucknow 1868. The edited portion, however, is described by the author at the end as forming the first only of eight Bābs, which the entire work, according to its title, was intended to comprise. In the former of the above editions the preface contains a eulogy upon the reigning sovereign Shāh 'Abbās II. (A.H. 1052—1077). The present fragment corresponds to pp. 52—189 of the Teheran edition.

A copy is described, without author's name, in the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii, p. 293.

III. Foll. 55—73. Nikāt i Mīrzā Bīdil; see p. 745 b.

IV. Foll. 81—86. Lavā'iḥ by Jāmī; see p. 44 a.

V. Foll. 89—95. ميرزا نامه, the book of the Mīrzā, or perfect gentleman, containing rules of good manners.

Beg. قلمی در کنم بنام خدا میرزا نامه را کنم انشا The work, which is anonymous, was apparently written in India.

VI. Foll. 97—149. A collection of letters and other compositions in ornate prose, without title or preface.

The author's name, Muhammad Khalil محمد خليل, occurs incidentally on foll. 136 a, 147 a; and it appears from another passage, fol. 116 b, that his takhallus was old, and his surname (lakab) . Several letters addressed by him to Zib un-Nisā Begam, the eldest daughter of Aurangzib, seem to show that he was attached to that princess's service. There is also one written to her brother, Shahzadah Muhammad A'zam, fol. 142 a, and another to Aurangzib's head secretary, Mulla Makhdum Fazil Khan, fol. 147 a. That amir received the title of Khan in A.H. 1095, and died in 1099. See Maasir ul-Umara, fol. 406. The letter addressed to him must have been written between those two dates.

VII. Fol. 150. Copy of a letter written by Shāhjahān to Shāh 'Abbās I. at the time of his reconciliation with Jahāngīr and his return to Māndū (A.H. 1032). VIII. Foll. 153—155. اعتقاد نامه, a short exposition in Maşnavî rhyme of the Muḥammadan creed, probably by Jāmī (see Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 591—3).

IX. Foll. 175—180. Medical advice, in verse, by Yūsufī. See p. 475 b.

The last couplet contains the date of composition, A.H. 913, expressed by the words فوايد اخيار.

The rest of the volume is occupied by short poetical pieces, Persian and Hindustani, and miscellaneous notices relating to medicine, the interpretation of dreams, and astrology.

Add. 16,821.

Foll. 131; 7 in. by 4\frac{3}{4}; 15 lines, 2\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in small Shikastah-\text{\text{\text{amiz}}}, probably in India, in the 17th century.

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 2—99. اشعة اللمات (see p. 594 b), with copious marginal notes.

II. Foll. 100—131. شرح الرباعيات, a commentary by Jāmī on Sufi Rubā'is.

The author, who gives his name at the end, states in the preface that in his Rubā's on the nature of God and on His various manifestations he had been prevented, by the necessities of rhyme and metre, from giving his thoughts their due development, and had therefore deemed it desirable to add some explanations in prose. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 447, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 373.

Add. 16,824.

Foll. 266;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 15 lines,  $3\frac{7}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 1215 (A.D. 1801). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1-92. تكميل الايمان و تقوية الايقان An exposition of the Sunni creed.

Author: 'Abd ul-Ḥakk B. Saif ud-Dīn ut-Turk ud-Dihlavī ul-Bukhārī, عبد للق بن سيف (see p. 14 a).

الخمد لله الذي هدانا سواء الطريق

A copy is mentioned in the Munich Catalogue, p. 128.

A Hindustani translation, entitled Sabīl ul-Jinān, has been published in India.

II. Foll. 93—108. A treatise on the use of the quadrant, رساله در اعتمال ربع مجيب

ieر سراج , Author : Nur (B.) Siruj, فور سراج

حمد بی نهایت علیمی را و ثنای بی غایت Beg.

It is divided into an introduction, nineteen Bābs, and a Khātimah.

III. Foll. 109—165. The history of Shīr Shāh, by 'Abbās Khān (see p. 242 b), with a preamble, which differs from the copy above described.

هر جنس حمد واهب خالق بریه را سزد

A doxology of four lines is followed by this heading:

طبقه سیوم در ذکر احوال سلطنت شیر شاه سور از قوم لودی انغان

IV. Foll. 166—239. A cosmographical work already described. See p. 417 a, ii.

V. Foll. 240—246. Chronological sketch of the Sultans of Dehli from the Muslim conquest to Shāh 'Alam.

VI. Foll. 247—254. An account of the course of the river Gomatī, by Fath Chand, son of Udit Rāi, a Kāyath of Balgrām.

Beg. بعد از حمد بيعد احد الصمد This work was written, as stated in the 3 E 2 preamble, in A.H. 1180, at the request of a Christian priest, only designated as Padrc Sāḥib.

VII. Foll. 255—266. مجمع البحرين, a treatise on the technical terms of Hindu pantheism and their equivalents in Sufi phraseology.

دارا شکوه Author: Dārā Shikūh, دارا شکوه Beg. بنام انکه او نامی ندارد بنام انکه خوانی سر برآرد

In a preface found in another copy, Add. 18,404, ii., the author says that he had embraced the doctrine of the Sufis, and that, having ascertained in his intercourse with Hindu Fakirs that their divergence from the former was merely verbal, he had written the present work with the object of reconciling the two systems. He completed it, as stated at the end, in A.H. 1065, when he was forty-two years old. See the Munich Catalogue, p. 140.

Add. 16,825.

Foll. 47;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 7 and 9 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [WM. YULE.]

Foll. 1—9. Forty sayings of Muḥammad, with the Persian paraphrase of Jāmī.
 See p. 17 α.

II. Foll. 10—39. Risālah i Khwājah 'Abd Ullah Anṣārī (see p. 35 a); dated Zulḥijjah, A.H. 1048 (A.D. 1639).

III. Foll. 40—47. A religious tract, the author of which designates himself, as in the preceding, by the name of 'Abd Ullah.

بسمك القدوس قدسنى منّى الهي اين چه .Beg. فضل است

It is endorsed رساله سيد على همداني. See p. 447 b.

Add. 16,832.

Foll. 442; 11 in. by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 19 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Naskhi, Nestalik, and Shikastah-āmīz, from A.H. 1165 to 1174 (A.D. 1751—1761). [WM. YULE.]

Sufi and Shī'ah tracts, in Arabic and Persian, collected and transcribed by Sayyid 'Alī Naķī Khān B. Sayyid Abu Ṭālib ul-Ḥusainī ul-Mashhadī, who dates successively from Radaulī, Lucknow, Faizābād, Ilāhābād, Aḥ-madnagar, Fatḥpūr, Shāhjahānābād, and Lucknow.

On fol. 7 is an autograph note of the poet Hazīn (see p. 372 b), stating that he had perused this valuable collection on the fifteenth of Rajab, A.H. 1172, and had given it the name of الفرائد العليه.

Foll. 2—4 contain some verses of another poet, Matīn (who died A.H. 1175; see the Oude Catalogue, p. 487), the last of which is a chronogram on the birth of a son of the collector, dated Ilāhābād, A.H. 1172.

A table of contents has been prefixed by 'Alī Naķī Khān on fol. 7 b.

I. Foll. 8—22. حق اليقين في معرفة رب العالمين, a treatise, in eight Bābs, on God and His attributes, man's free will, and future life, by Maḥmūd Shabistarī (see p. 608 b, and Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 79).

ای پیداتر از هر پیدائی و ای اشکاراتر

II. Foll. 22—24. رقعات بايزيد بسطامى, letters on Sufi subjects, ascribed to Bāyazīd Basṭāmī (Abu Yazīd Ṭaifūr, who died A.H. 261; see Ibn Khallikān's translation, vol. i. p. 662, Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 62, and Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 287).

III. Foll. 24—34. Commentary of Jalāl ud-Dīn Davānī (see p. 442 b) on a Ghazal of Hāfiz, beginning:

IV. Foll. 34—62. Commentary of Jāmī on the mystic poem of Ibn Fāriz. See p. 808, Add. 7649, ii.

V. Foll. 62—73. Jāmī's Lavā'iḥ. See p. 44a.
 VI. Foll. 73—77. نكات عشره, ten observations on man considered as a manifestation of God, by Ni'mat Ullah Valī (see p. 634 b).

الحمد لله الذي عين اعيان العالم بعين وجوده . Beg.

VII. Foll. 77—81. بجمع الاسرار, a Sufi tract in thirteen sections called 'Asrār,' by the same author.

از مبداء و از معاد بشنو خبری Beg.

VIII. Foll. 81—86. شرح فاتحة الكتاب, a commentary upon the Fātiḥah, by the same.

الحمد لله الذي نوّر قلوب اوليائه بانوار العرفان . Beg.

IX. Foll. 86—105. طعن بر مجتهدين, a tract addressed to the doctors of the Law, rebuking them for their hatred of Darvishes, by Ṣadr ud-Dīn Muḥammad ush-Shīrāzī.

Beg. سپاس وستایش بی انتها بروردگاری را سزاست. Mullā Ṣadr ud-Din Muḥammad B. Ibrāhīm Shīrāzī, commonly called Mullā Ṣadrā, a pupil of Mīr Bāķir Dāmād, is regarded in Persia as the most eminent philosopher of his time. He died in Baṣrah, on his way to Meeca, in A.H. 1050. See Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 554, and Gobineau, Religions de l'Asie, p. 84. He is often confounded with Mīr Ṣadr ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Mīr Ghiyāṣ ud-Dīn Manṣūr Shīrāzī, an earlier philosopher and theologian. The latter, born in Shīrāz A.H. 828, was slain, as stated in the Majālis ul-Mūminīn, by the Bāyandarī Turkomans. A.H. 903.

X. Foll. 105—133. الواردات القلبية, an Arabic tract by the same writer; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 401.

XI. Foll. 133—137. substitution that the substitution of contemplative life, by Amīr Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī (see p. 447 b).

حمد و ثنای نا مقاهی پروردکاریرا که استحکام .Beg

It is evidently translated, but without acknowledgment, from the Arabic work of Najm ud-Dīn Kubrā, which is found further on, foll. 342—344 (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 401, viii.).

XII. Foll. 137—145 چہار عنوان, a Sufi tract, by Bābā Afzal ud-Dīn Kāshī.

الحمد لله رب الارباب و مسبب الاسباب العمد لله

Afzal ud-Din Muhammad, of Kāshān, a renowned Sufi and poet, is mentioned in the Atashkadah, fol. 107, as a contemporary of Nasir ud-Din Tusi, who composed verses in his praise, and who was, according to the Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 13, his sister's son. He died, as stated by Taki Kashi, Oude Catalogue, p. 17, A.H. 707. The following works are ascribed to him in the Haft Iklim, , جاودان نامه ,رة انجام نامه ,مدارج الكمال : £fol. 384 the first three of رانشا نامه and عرض نامه which are noticed by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 469, vol. iii. p. 515, vol. ii. p. 582. The story of his having been carried away to Ghaznin by Sultan Mahmud Ghazi, which is related in the same work, and would make him three centuries earlier, must refer to another person. The Ruba'is of Afzal Kāshī are mentioned in Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 90.

The present tract is avowedly derived from the Kimiyāi Sa'ādat of Ghazālī, a work written about A.H. 500. See p. 37 a.

XIII. Foll. 146—162. اوصاف الاشراف, a treatise on spiritual life, by Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. Ḥasan uṭ-Ṭūsī (Naṣīr ud-Dīn; see p. 525 b).

سپاس بیقیاس بار خدای را بسبب انکه هیم عقل را Beg. ا

The author wrote it, as stated in the preface, some time after his Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī (see p. 441 b), by desire of the Ṣāḥib Dīvān, Muḥammad B. Bahā ud-Dīn Muḥammad ul-Juvainī.

See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 44, No. 80, and Fleischer, Dresden Catalogue, No. 348.

XIV. Foll. 163—296. كلمات مكنونه, one hundred sayings of Imams and Sufis, in Arabic, with comments in Persian prose and verse.

Author: Muḥammad B. Murtazā, called Muḥsin, صحمد بن مرتضى المدعو بمحمد بن مرتضى

الحمد لله الاول في اخريته الاخر في اوليته

Muhsin, of Kāshān, whose original name was Muḥammad B. Murtazā, and poetical surname Faiz فيض, was a disciple of Mullā Sadrā (see above, art. ix.), who gave him his daughter in marriage. He was called from Kāshān to Isfahan, in A.H. 1067, by Shāh Abbās II., who took great delight in his society. He followed his celebrated master in the attempt of reconciling Sufism with orthodoxy, and wrote no less than seventy-six works and tracts on theological subjects, besides a Dīvān of ten thousand lines. He died in Kāshān after A.H. 1090. See Zīnat ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 554, Kişaş ul-Khāķānī, fol. 156, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 346, Atashkadah, fol. 110, and Gobineau, Religions de l'Asie, p. 91.

The date of composition, A.H. 1057, is expressed by the title.

XV. Foll. 296—303. تدقيق التحقيق, a tract on the presence of God in man.

Author: Sayyid Ja'far ur-Rūḥī un-Ni'matullāhī, سيد جعفر الروحي النعبت اللهي الله لا اله الا هو الحي القيوم هو الاول والاخر Beg.

The date of composition, A.H. 1152, is conveyed in a chronogram at the end. The collector, 'Alī Naķī Khān, says that he had met the author both before and after that date.

At the end is a commentary by the same writer upon three Sufi verses of Shaikh 'Abd ul-Kaddūs Gangūhī (an Indian saint, native of Gangū, who died A.H. 945; see Akhbār ul-Akhyār, fol. 177).

XVI. Foll. 303—319. A tract on resurrection and future life, by Naṣīr ud-Dīn Tūsī (see art. xiii.).

ربنا لا تزغ قلوبنا بعد اذ هديتنا

This work, which is designated in the preface as تذكرة, is headed آغاز و انجام. It is divided into twenty chapters (Fasl).

XVII. Foll. 322—330. Refutation of a work entitled کشف الغطا, commonly known as عرض مکرر, in which the author, 'Abd ul-'Azīz, advocated the paramount claims of Abu Bakr and 'Umar to the Khilāfat.

Author: Ghulām Muḥyu-d-Dīn B. Ghulām Ashraf, poetically surnamed Rif'at, علام الدين بن غلام اشرف المتخلص برفعت الحمد لله رب العالمين . . . اما بعد فقير Beg. حقير غلام صحيح الدين

In the table the work is called رفع شبهه

XVIII. Foll. 330—344. Three Arabic tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 401, articles vi.—viii.

XIX. Foll. 344—360. مدارج الكمال, a Sufi work in eight sections called كشايش.

Author: Bābā Afzal Kāshī.

اما کشایش در اول که کوهر مردم

The author states that this is a translation of the work written in Arabic by himself under the same title. See above, art. xii.

XX. Foll. 360—368. انوار الحكمت moral, and religious precepts, by the Imām Muhammad Ghazālī (see p. 37 a).

الحمد لله الذي نور مصابيع القلوب بانوار حكمته . Beg.

XXI. Foll. 368—378. رساله جبر و اختيار, a tract on necessity and free will, in ten chapters, by Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī.

الحمد لله رب الارباب و مسبب الاسباب Beg.

XXII. Foll. 378—381. An Arabic tract on the same subject.

XXIII. Foll. 381—391. A metaphysical tract on consciousness and cognition, headed المعام نامة, in three chapters, by Bābā Afzal Kāshī (see above, art. xii.).

Beg. منتهاه الحمد لله اصله الحمد و وليه و منتهاه XXIV. Foll. 391—415. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 401, art. ix.

XXV. Foll. 415—442. جاويان نامد, a metaphysical tract on self-knowledge and on the beginning and end of being, in four chapters, by Bābā Afzal Kāshī (see above, art. xii.).

The margins, which form a consecutive series, contain:—

XXVI. Foll. 9—38. Gulshan i Rāz; see p. 608 b.

XXVII. Foll. 38—83. Zād ul-Musāfirīn; see p. 608 a.

XXVIII. Foll. 83—95. Nān u Ḥalvā, by Bahā ud-Dīn ul-'Amilī; see p. 679 a.

XXIX. Foll. 95—100. شير و شكر, "Milk and Sugar," a Şufi poem by the same, with a short prose preface.

It is mentioned among Bahā ud-Dīn's works in the Atashkadah.

XXX. Foll. 102 a—229. Arabic poems and tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 402, artt. x.—xxvi.

XXXI. Foll. 230—241. A commentary upon the Lama'āt of Fakhr ud-Dīn 'Irāķī (see p. 594 b).

Beg. مپاس و ستایش پرورد کاری را که پرتوی از لهات. The commentary is called in the subscription ضو اللهات. In another copy, Add. 16,839, fol. 56, the author's name is given. It is Ṣā'in ud-Din 'Ali Tarikah (see p. 42 a), and the date of composition, stated at the end, is A.H. 815. See Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 335.

XXXII. Foll. 242—296. Arabic tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 403, artt. xxvii.
—xxxiii.

Add. 16,837.

Foll. 510; 12½ in. by 7; 21 lines, 4 in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with Unvan and gold-ruled margins; apparently in the 17th century.

[WM. YULE.]

A large collection of Sufi tracts, several of which bear the name of the celebrated saint and prolific Sufi writer, Shāh Ni mat Ullah Valī (see p. 634 b), whose life is also inserted, foll. 339—354. It may be presumed that those which are anonymous are due to the same author.

I. Foll. 1—24. A tract without title or author's name, endorsed مجمع الفتو, and consisting of Sufi comments, in prose and verse, on detached verses of the Coran. It begins with the first verse of the Sūrat ul-Fath, or chap. xlviii., انا فقنا لك فتجا مبينا, which is followed by an exposition of three kinds of فتو, or revelations.

II. Foll. 25-59. A commentary on the Lama'āt of Fakhr ud-Din 'Irāķī (see p. 594 b).

الحمد لله اذى نور وجه جبينه بتجليات الجمال . Beg.

Passages of the text marked with the letter و (i.e. عراتی) alternate with comments distinguished by the letter (i.e. (i.e. انعبة الله).

III. Foll. 61—100. A commentary on a portion of the Fuṣūṣ ul-Ḥikam of Muḥyi ud-Dīn Ibn ul-'Arabī (see Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 424).

بدان اي سالك مسالك طريقه كه بزبان . Beg. اهل حقيقه

IV. Foll. 101—118. Explanation of some difficult verses in the same work.

الحمد لله والصلوة . . . يا اخى ايدك الله بروح . . Beg. الارواح اعلم

V. Foll. 119—128. Another commentary upon the same work, endorsed جواهر ترجمه نقوش نصوص الحكم

الحمد لله . . . حمدى كه سنراى او بود او كويد . Beg.

VI. Foll. 129—168. A Persian paraphrase of the Istilāḥāt uṣ-Ṣūfiyyah of Kamāl ud-Dīn 'Abd ur-Razzāk Kāshī, endorsed شرح مال الدين عبد الرزاق كاشي المطلاحات وسيط شيخ كمال الدين عبد الرزاق كاشي see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 400 a.

سپاس بی قیاس حضرت واجب الوجودی .Beg را که خواص امت

From the concluding lines it appears that the work had been written down from the dictation of Ni'mat Ullah.

VII. Foll. 169—175. A Sufi tract, with the heading رسالة نكات در تحقيق وجود الحمد لله . . . قال اهل الحق الموجود ما له تحقق . Beg.

VIII. Foll. 176—180. A tract on various kinds of knowledge, endorsed معرفات.

الحمد لله . . . قال الله تعالى سنريهم آياتنا . . Beg. في الآفاق

IX. Foll. 181—189. A metrical paraphrase of the Sufi aphorisms, واردات, of Imam 'Abd Ullah Yāfi'i, by his disciple Ni'mat Ullah Valī, with the heading ترجمات واردات امام

الحمد لله ... اين عنايت بين كه باما كرد ... الطاف خدا

X. Foll. 190—191. The treatise of the soul, رساله نفس

الحمد لله ... قال الله تعالى ان النفس لامارة بالسوم ...

XI. Foll. 122—196. Maşnavīs of Shāh Ni'mat Ullah. The first has the heading رَاش نامة, and begins:

> ای نهانی طالب فقر و ادب کرطلبکاری بیا از خود طلب

XII. Foll. 198-206. Short tracts endorsed: بشارت نامه در میان ذوق رساله روح و شرب رساله نکات در حواس رساله صفات مهدی و شرب

XIII. Foll. 207—211. A treatise on the conventional terms of the Sufis, by Shaikh 'Irāķī (see p. 594 b), مصطلحات صوفيه شيخ عراتي

شکر و سپاس موجود برا که اعیان اشیارا Beg.

XIV. Foll. 212—246. Tracts endorsed: رساله ررساله در تطبیق انفس و آفاق ,جامع لطائف ,رساله تسویه آدم و نفع روح ,اصول عشره در طریق سلوك ,اعتقادات ,سوال كمیل و جواب امام ,رساله در زخیه .لوایم ,گی العارفین ,رساله در تحقیق مناقب

XV. Fol. 247. Filiation of the Fakīr's cloak of Aḥmad Shāh, انسب خزقه احمد شاه.

Aḥmad Shāh Bahmanī, who reigned A.H. 825—838, had sent a deputation to Ni'mat Ullah Valī with the request to be admitted as one of his disciples. See Firishtah, vol. i. p. 433.

XVI. Foll. 248—256. A tract entitled ساله تحقیقات

للمد لله الذي خلق الانسان على صورته Beg.

XVII. Foll. 257—264. Answers of Shaikh Muḥyi ud-Dīn Ibn ul-'Arabī to the questions of 'Alī Ḥakīm Tirmizī, على امام على بواب سوالهاى امام على translated from the Arabic.

XVIII. Foll. 270—276. رسالة البيان, an exposition of the Sufi doctrine, by Ni mat Ullah.

الحمد لله . . . ابتداء سخن بنام یکی Beg.

XIX. Foll. 281—291. Commentary upon the Işţilāḥāt of Kamāl ud-Din. See above, art. vi.

بعضى زاصطلاحات كردم بيان روشن Beg.

XX. Foll. 318—323. A tract entitled کشف الاسرار در تنزلات خمس

للمد لله الذي تجلى فاته لذاته باحديثه. Beg.

XXI. Foll. 332-335. Answers to the questions of Sultan Sikandar, رساله در جواب, سلطان سكندر.

Mīrzā Iskandar, son of 'Umar Shaikh, held the government of Fārs and Kirmān under Shāhrukh from A.H. 812 to 816.

XXII. Foll. 339—354. Life of Shah Ni'mat Ullah Vali, مناتب حضرت شاء نعبه الله ولي

Author: 'Abd ul-'Azīz B. Shīr Mulk B. Muḥammad Vā'izī, عبد العزيز بن شير ملك بن محمد واعظى

سپاس و ستایش بعد و قیاس مر حضرت

It is dedicated to 'Alā ud-Dīn Alimad Shāh B. Alimad Shāh Valī Bahmanī (see art. xv.), who reigned from A.H. 838 to 862.

XXIII. Foll. 463—473. A tract entitled "Revelations," رساله مكاشفات

یا حبیبی من انت و من هو لست انا

XXIV. Foll. 475—486. A tract on the degrees of spiritual ecstasy, مراتب الرنديه

للمد لله . . . سخن از ذوق رند ميكويم

XXV. Foll. 487—510. The conventional terms of the Sufis اصطلاحات صونيه, by Kamāl ud-Dīn 'Abd ur-Razzāķ Kāshī, in Arabic. See above, art. vi.

The remaining portions of the volume contain upwards of sixty Sufi tracts, which are mostly, if not all, by Ni'mat Ullah; they are of too small extent and of too little importance to be separately enumerated.

On fol. 256 is a note stating that the MS. had been thus far collated in Ramazān, A.H. 1090 (A.D. 1679).

Add. 16,839.

Foll. 360; 10½ in. by 6½; 28 lines, 4½ in. long; written in small Naskhi, apparently about the close of the 17th century.

WM. YULE.

I. Foll. 2—16. A treatise on the mystic meaning of the letters composing the name of عبد باقر

Author: Muhammad Kāsim B. 'Abd ul-Ķādir Tūnī, محمد قاسم بن عبد القادر توني

Beg. اسم سامی اختر بالغ نظر اوج تقدس ذات It is stated at the end to have been written by the author in his native city Tun, when he was past fifty years of age.

کتاب مناظرات خبس از .31 –16 II. Foll. 16 بقالی الدین علی ترکه اصفهانی الدین علی ترکه اصفهانی اول مناظرة عقل با عشق دوم مناظرة وهم با عقل سیوم مناظرة وهم با خیال چهارم مناظرة سمع با بصر پنجم مناظرة عاشق با معشوق

Five contests, or allegorical debates, by Ṣā'in ud-Dīn 'Alī Tarikah (see p. 42 a), viz. between reason and love, opinion and reason, opinion and fancy, hearing and sight, lover and beloved.

الحمد لله الذي رتب نظام برية العالم الذي رتب نظام برية العالم

HI. Foll. 32—62. Eight mystic tracts by the same writer, viz. 1. On the dot, رساله نقطه 2. On the meanings of letters, رساله حرف. 3. On the origin and end of being, رساله قابلية, 4. On capacity, رساله اطوار ثلثه, 4. On capacity, رساله اطوار ثلثه, 5. On three schools of Sufism, رساله الحجام, 6. On the end, رساله الحجام, 7. On the splitting of the moon, رساله شق قمر, 8. Commentary upon the Lama'āt (see p. 831 b, art. xxxi.).

IV. Foll. 62—66. بحرطويل, a tract in praise of Muḥammad and 'Alī, and a Ķaṣīdah in praise of Imām Riṣā, both by Mirzā Ķāsim Tūnī (see art. i.).

V. Foll. 66—69. صحت ومرض, "Health and Disease," a Sufi tract by Fuzūlī.

VI. Foll. 70—71. The fourth Faşl of Kanz ul-'Ulum, treating of Simiya, in Arabic. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 463 b.

VII. Foll. 72—78. موجودات موجودات, a metaphysical tract on the categories of beings, by Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī (see p. 525 b).

قال مولانا سلطان الحكما . . . اندر قسمت . . . Beg. موجودات و اقسام ان

VIII. Foll. 78—84. رساله موجزة في المنطق, a short treatise on logic by the same writer.

دانستن چیزها از دو نوع خالی نبود یا دانستن ·Beg

IX. Foll. 84—90. حق اليقيى, by Shaikh Maḥmūd Chabistarī. See p. 828 a, Add. 16832, i.

X. Foll. 90—96. بشرح رباعيات, a commentary by Jāmī on his Sufi Rubā'īs. See p. 827 a.

حمدا لاله هو بالحمد حقيق

XI. Foll. 96—112. شرح ربا عيات, a commentary by Jalāl ud-Dīn Muḥammad Davānī (see p. 442 b), on his Sufi Rubā'is.

حمدا لاله شمل الخلق الاه لا معبود سواة بل ليس سواة

XII. Foll. 112—119. Arabic tracts. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 454 a, iii., iv.

XIII. Foll. 119—121. Sufi Ruba'is by Salmān, Mīr Ḥusainī, Jāmī, and Muḥammad Dihdār (see p. 816 a).

XIV. Foll. 121—132. Arabic tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 454, artt. v.—vii.

XV. Foll. 132—145. A treatise on crafts by Mīr Abul-Ķāsim Fandarsakī. See p. 815 b.

It is stated in the heading to have been transcribed from a copy corrected by the author.

XVI. Foll. 145—151. Miscellaneous extracts, including one from the introduction of Jāmī's Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, and an Arabic tract. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 454, ix.

XVII. Foll. 151—157. A tract on the Mi'rāj, ascribed to Abu 'Alī Ibn Sīnā. See p. 815 b.

XVIII. Foll. 157—166. Three Arabic tracts by Ibn Sīnā, etc. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 454, art. x.—xiii.

XIX. Foll. 166—170. تاریخ الحکما, a short account of ancient sages and philosophers.

اسپاس و ستایش حکیمی را که اول بی اواست Beg.

XX. Foll. 170—194. Forty Ḥadīş (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 455, xiv.), and miscellaneous extracts.

XXI. Foll. 194—201. Auṣāf ul-Ashrāf by Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī. See p. 830 a, xiii.

XXII. Foll. 205—215. Translation of the sayings of Hermes the Great, "who is the prophet Idrīs," in thirteen chapters.

XXIII. Foll. 215—226. كتاب نفس, the Book of the Soul, in three Makālahs, purporting to be translated from Aristotle.

چنین کوید دانای یونان که دانش از چیزهای .Beg. خوب و کرامی است

XXIV. Foll. 226—234. Madārij ul-Kamāl. See p. 831 a, xix.

XXV. Foll. 234—238. مقصد الاقصى, a treatise on Sufism, in eight chapters (Fasl).

Author: 'Azīz B. Muḥammad un-Nasafī, عزيز بن محمد النسفي

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد چنين كويد اضعف . Beg. الضعفا و خادم الفقرا

According to Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 90, the work, originally written in Arabic, was translated by Kamāl ud-Dīn Ḥusain Khwārazmī, who died A.H. 845. The present copy does not contain any mention of the translator.

XXVI. Foll. 238-249. Another tract on the same subject, in six Babs, without title or author's name.

باب اول در سخن اهل تصوف در معرفت . ذات خدای تعالی

Miscellaneous XXVII. Foll. 249-297. extracts, with short Sufi and cabalistic treatises.

xxvIII. Foll. 297—344. جذوات , a treatise on the mystic meanings of the detached letters in the Coran.

Author: Muhammad Bākir Dāmād, باقر داماد

عينان عينان لم يكتبهما قلم Beg.

Mir Muhammad Bāķir, a native of Astrābad, received the surname of Damad from his father Mir Shams ud-Din Damad, so called as 'son-in-law' of the famous Mujtahid Shaikh 'Ali B. 'Abd ul-'Al. Having studied in Mashhad, he rose to great eminence in all branches of philosophy and theology, and stood high in favour and influence at the court of Shah 'Abbas I. He died at an advanced age in Najaf, A.H. 1040, a date aروس : fixed by a contemporary chronogram ا مردة داماد. He left numerous works, سدرة ,شرح كليني ,افق المبين ,صراط المستقيم such as the present work, رسبات , الفنقهي and others, besides some poetical compositions in which he assumed the name of Ishrak. See 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 38, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 38, Mir'at ul-'Alam, fol. 121, Zinat ut-Tavārīkh, fol. 553, aud Haft Asmān, fol. 154.

The work is divided into twelve preliminary chapters called جذوة, and a large number of sections termed ...

XXIX. Foll. 344-360. Arabic tracts. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 455, xix. and xx.

Add. 16,840.

Foll. 508; 10 in. by 7; 19 lines, 41 in.

long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century. WM. YULE.

A collection of Sufi treatises, mostly by Sayyid 'Ali Hamadani. See p. 447 b.

I. Foll. 2—153. Zakhīrat ul-Mulūk (see p. 447 b), wanting a few pages at the beginning.

II. Foll. 154—156. A tract on contemplation, with the heading رساله نورية. It consists chiefly of extracts from the writings of Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī.

III. Foll. 157—161. A notice on Sayyid Muḥammad Tālakānī and his spiritual pedigree, by his disciple 'Ali Muhibbi, Je المتخلص بمحبى

The subject of the notice was a disciple of Muhammad Nürbakhsh, who died A.H. 869. See p. 650 a.

IV. Foll. 161-169. Letters of Mir Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī on spiritual subjects, with the heading رساله مكتوبات.

تا مهندسان کارکاه تقدیر نقوش صور Beg.

V. Foll. 169-171. Spiritual pedigree of Sharaf ud-Din Mahmüd Mazdakani, the Shaikh of Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī.

VI. Foll. 172-178. A tract on the Zikr, with the heading اسناد اوراد فتحيه عن احد من

VII. Foll. 179-187. On the bodily and در معرفت صورت, moral features of man و سیرت انسان

حمد و سیاس و ثنای بی تیاس حضرت . Beg. صانع حكيمرا

VIII. Foll. 188-199. Ghazals by Sayyid 'Ali Hamadani.

IX. Foll. 200-207. Rules to be observed by disciples and devotees, در بیان اداب مبتدی و طالبان حضرت صدي 3 F 2

X. Foll. 207—210. Answer of Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī to some questions relating to the name of Hamadān.

XI. Foll. 210—276. Eighteen short tracts by the same author, some of which have headings as follows: مكتوبات اميريه, fol. 218. مكارم, fol. 225. مارساله واعده, fol. 228. والله المخالق المحقائق, fol. 230. وساله المحقائق, fol. 235. وساله اعتقادیه, fol. 248. وساله اعتقادیه, fol. 248. وساله فتوحیه fol. 248. مشکل حل , fol. 268. مشکل حل , fol. 268. مشیم , fol. 260.

XI. Foll. 276—279. صفة الأداب, rules of Sufi life, in seven Bābs, by Najm ud-Dīn Kubrā.

This celebrated saint, a native of Khīvah, died, according to the Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 480, A.H. 618.

XII. Foll. 279—299. Seven tracts by Sayyid 'Alī Hamadānī, five of which have the following headings: سالت حضرت رسالت مضرت, fol. 291. رساله خطبه اميريه, fol. 292. مواطريه, fol. 292. مواطريه, fol. 298.

XIII. Foll. 299—325. Three collections of Ḥadīş, in Arabic. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 406, artt. i.—iii.

XIV. Foll. 326—347. A treatise on the real nature of penitence, در حقائق توبة, in four Bābs.

حمد و ثنای نا متناهی حضرت حکیمی را که .Beg. حقایق آثار

XV. Fol. 347—385. Two Arabic treatises. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 406, artt. iv. and v.

XVI. Foll. 385—389. A tract headed رساله واردات

رب اشرح لی صدری و یسر لی امری

XVII. Foll. 389—395. A tract on intellect, عقل, and its attributes, and on various degrees of capacity for the apprehension of truth, in three Bābs.

حمد و ثناي نا متناهى آن فاطر حكيم را كه Beg. الشعه انوار

XVIII. Foll. 395—399. سير الطالبين, a tract on the duties of the Murid or disciple, according to the teaching of Sayyid 'Alī, by Burhān B. 'Abd uṣ-Ṣamad.

حمدى كه بزورق ورق اصداق بصاير اولى الابصار . Beg.

XIX. Foll. 399—405. Three tracts, headed مكارم الاخلاق and مكارم الاخلاق, the same as above, art. xi.

XX. Fol. 405. حل القصوص, a Persian commentary by Sayyid 'Alī on the Fuṣūṣ ul-Ḥikam (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 406, art. vi.; and Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 426), slightly imperfect at the end.

Add. 16,851.

Foll. 151;  $10\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 6; 19 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Lahore, Sha'bān, A.H. 1114, and Sanbhal, Ramazān, A.H. 1115 (A.D. 1703-4). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 2—92. مفتاح المعانى, an alphabetical glossary to the letters of Abul-Fazl. See p. 396 a.

Author: Shaikh Muhammad 'Alī Fārūkī, الحمد لله على كل حال والصلوة و السلام Beg.

The work, which is dedicated to Jahangir, was completed, as stated in the preface, in A.H. 1035.

II. Foll. 95—126. مفتاح الاخلاق, an alphabetical glossary of Arabic words and phrases in the Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī (see p. 441 b).

Author: 'Abd ur-Raḥmān B. 'Abd ul-Karīm 'Abbāsī Burhānpūrī, عبد الرحمن بن عبد الكريم عباسي برهانيوري قسم أول مشتهلست برحل لغات و اصطلاحات . Beg.

An appendix called قسم دوم, foll. 121— 126, contains a translation of the Arabic passages in the order of the text. The date of composition, A.H. 1085, is found in another copy, Or. 1913.

III. Foll. 127—141. A versified Arabic-Persian vocabulary, without title or author's name.

شکر خدا کز کرم و لطف ان چند لغت چون درر نظم دان

The author groups together, quite irrespective of their meaning, such words as have the same final letter, or present similar combinations of dotted or undotted letters.

IV. Foll. 143—151. رساله تير اندازي, a treatise on archery, in Masnavī rhyme.

According to a short preamble the tract had been originally written in prose by a man called Shahbāz شهباز, for the Shāhzādah, son of the sovereign of Irac, شاوزاده والانزاد والانزاد والى عراق

Add. 16,855.

Foll. 22; 9½ in. by 7½; written in Nestalik, in the latter part of the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—15. An account of the Indian coins, their weights and legends, from the earliest times to Shah 'Alam, in tabular form, with some drawings.

نظر فیض اثر بر دارنده سند جاه وجلال

It is dedicated to the Vazīr Shujā' ud-Daulah, and was written, as stated on fol. 13 b, A.H. 1186. II. Foll. 16—22. A short sketch of Nādir Shāh's history down to his return from India to Persia (A.H. 1052).

ذكر احوال نادر شاة راوي اين اخبار چنين Beg. نقل ميكند

Add. 16,859.

Foll. 166; 8 in. by 5½; 15 lines, 4 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Jumāda II., in the 34th year of 'Alamgīr (A.H. 1102, A.D. 1690). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—127. Letters of Khānjahān Sayyid Muzaffar Khān.

عرضداشت پیر غلام ندوی زمین عبودیت . Beg.

The first letters, foll. 1—25, are addressed to the emperor (Shāhjahān), and relate chiefly to engagements with the Bondelah chief Prithīrāj, about A.H. 1049; the others are written to various amīrs and private persons.

Sayyid Muzaffar Khān, of Bārhah, afterwards Khānjahān, held the post of Governor of Gwalior from the accession of Shāhjahān to his own death, which happened in A.H. 1055. See Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 184.

II. Foll. 128—137. A notice on Rājah Jagat Singh, son of Rājah Bāsū, and Zamīndār of Mau and Pathān, Panjāb, relating chiefly to the expedition sent against him, under command of Khānjahān Sayyid Muzaffar Khān, in the 15th year of Shāhjahān's reign (A.H. 1051-2).

مجملی از احوال و اوضاع جکت سنکه پتهانیه .Beg.

The author, who had been attached to the expedition of Khānjahān as official newswriter (see fol. 130 b), states at the end that Jagat Singh was then in the districts of Kandahār and Bust engaged in keeping down the rebels.

Jagat Singh died shortly after, A.H. 1055. See Maāşir ul-Umarā, fol. 257 b. III. Foll. 137—146. واقعة جهوجهار سنكه an account of Jhojhār Singh Bondelah, Rājah of Ūnchah, by Shaikh Jalāl Ḥiṣārī.

از جمله وقایع و سوانحه کلیه که در عهد دوات . Beg.

This notice begins with a sketch of Jhojhār's predecessors, and in particular of his father Barsingh Deo, the murderer of Abulfazl, and of the early eareer of Jhojhār. It dwells chiefly on the expedition sent against him by Shāhjahān under command of Sayyid Khānjahān, which ended in his overthrow and death, A.H. 1044.

See the account of that campaign in the Pādishāh Nāmah, ii., p. 94, and the life of Jhojhār Singh in Maāşir ul-Umarā, fol. 251, and Tazkirat ul-Umarā, fol. 136. Compare Thornton, East India Gazetteer, under 'Oorcha and Bundeleund.'

IV. Foll. 146—166. كواليار نامه, a history of Gwaliyor from its origin to A.H. 1055, by the same author.

حمد صانعی خداوند شوکت که قلعه متین

The author states at the end, fol. 160 α, that he had spent his life as secretary in the service of Sayyid Muzassar Khān, entitled Khānjahān, who had been in command of Gwaliyor from the beginning of Shāhjahān's reign to the time of writing, viz. the 16th year of Shāhjahān, corresponding to A.H. 1050. (The date is wrong; for the 16th year of Shāhjahān began in Jumāda II., A.H. 1052).

In the preface, foll. 146 b—148 a, the author, after mentioning the most remarkable buildings erected at various times in Gwaliyor, and the holy men who dwelt there, states that he had taken the present account from a Hindi work, in which an old Brahman called Siyām had written down the local traditions.

At the end is found a subsequent addition, foll. 160—166, in which the author records the death of Khānjahān in A.H. 1055, and the appointment of his successors Sayyid Sālār and Sayyid 'Alim. This is followed by an account of the assassination of Ṣalābat Khān by Amar Singh, a Rathor Rājpūt, in A.H. 1054.

It has been already noticed, p. 304 a, that a later history of Gwaliyor, by Hīrāman, has been almost entirely transcribed from the present work.

Add. 16,863.

Foll. 430;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 18 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, dated Hūglī, Rabī' I., A.H. 1123 (A.D. 1711).

[WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—83. چارچین برهیی, "The four parterres of Barahman (Chandarbhān)," or memoirs of the author's life and time, with specimens of his poetical compositions. See p. 397 b.

چمن اول مشتمل بر سیرابی و شادابی . همیشه بهار

The work was written shortly after A.H. 1057; the restitution of Balkh to Nazr Muhammad, which took place at that date, is mentioned, fol. 54 b, as a recent transaction. It is divided into four Chamans. The first contains descriptions of various festivals at Court, with pieces of poetry recited by the author on those occasions. The second, fol. 17 b, describes the splendours of the Court, the daily occupations of Shāhjahān, his new capital Shāhjahānābād; and the principal cities and Ṣūbahs of the empire. The third, fol. 55 a, contains the author's life and some of his letters. The fourth, fol. 71 b, deals with moral and religious thoughts.

Another copy, Or. 1892, contains an additional introduction.

II. Foll. 84—103. ابو الفضل, familiar letters of Abul-Fazl to friends, collected and edited, with a short preface, by his nephew, Nür Muḥammad (see p. 792 a).

بعد از انشا حمد و ثنا حضرت خداوند .Beg.

They have been printed in Calcutta, A.H. 1238. See also the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 26.

III. Foll. 103—119. Complimentary letters, mostly addressed to men of rank in Bengal.

IV. Foll. 122—429. Anvār i Suhailī.See p. 756 a.

بشناتهه برهمن کشمیری : Copyist

Add. 16,871.

Foll. 344; 9½ in. by 6; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabi' I., A.H. 1216 (A.D. 1801). [WM. YULE.]

A treatise on mechanical contrivances for purposes of utility or amusement.

Author: Shaikh Abu l-'Izz B. Ismā'ıl Razzaz Khūzī, شيخ ابو العز بن اسماعيل رزاز خوزى تفحص كردم از كتابها متقدمان وعلما متاخران . Beg.

The author says in his preface that, after testing by experiments the devices of ancient and modern writers, with many of his own invention, he had exhibited his results to Abul-Fath Mahmud B. Muhammad Kizil Arslan, Muhammad Kizil Arslan, Ilduguz, Atabak of Azarbaijān, reigned from A.H. 582 to 587), and had availed himself of the experience and advice of that master of the art in composing the present work, which he wrote under the auspices of the reigning Imām, Nāṣir Abul-Abbās Aḥmad, Amīr ul-Mūminīn (A.H. 575—622).

The work is divided into six sections زوع, comprising altogether fifty figures شكل. They treat of the following subjects:—1. Hour-glasses, ننگام (Arabie بنگام; see Haj. Khal., vol. i., p. 69), dials, and other instruments for the measurement of time, fol. 2 b. 2. Magical cups آرندها, and other devices connected with wine-drinking, fol. 123 b. 3. Magical ewers and basins, ابریقا و طاس , fol. 184 b. 4. Fountains, fol. 233 a. 5. Pumps and other contrivances for raising water, fol. 262 b. 6. Secret locks, etc., fol. 278 a.

Many spaces intended for diagrams have been left blank.

II. Foll. 295—344. خوان نعبت, an Indian cookery book, consisting of detached recipes, without preface or author's name.

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد حق جل جلاله و عم . . . Beg. نواله درين بهن خوان عطا

Copyist: محمد امین بیك

Add. 16,876.

Foll. 24; 7½ in. by 4½; 12 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, in the latter part of the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

منازل الفتوح

"The stages of victory," by Muḥammad Ja'far Shāmlū, محمد جعفر شاملو

حمد و سیاس بیعد و عد خالقی را سزاست .

It was written by desire of the Safavi prince, Abul-Fath Sultān Muḥammad Shāh Bahādur Khān (see p. 133 b). The author, who calls himself a born servant of the Safavi house, states in the preface that he had served in his youth Shāhrukh Shāh, a descendant on his mother's side of the same family (see p. 194 b), and had been attached towards the end of his career to Muḥammad Beg Khān Hamadānī in India, but that for twenty-five years in middle life he had followed Ahmad Sultān Durrānī in his successive incursions into Hindustan, and had been engaged in that prince's victorious encounter with Visvās Rāi and Bhāo on the field of Pānīpat, A.H. 1174. He adds that his record of that battle is based upon his own observation and upon information received from trustworthy reporters.

It must be noticed, however, that his account is upwards of thirty years posterior to the event; for the prince at whose suggestion it was written did not reach India until A.H. 1205. Muḥammad Beg Khān Hamadānī, afterwards Iftikhār ud-Daulah Fīrūz Jang, was one of the principal officers of Najaf Khān, who died A.H. 1196, and survived his chief several years. Both he and Sindhiah, who died A.H. 1208, are spoken of by the author as dead.

The work consists of two distinct parts, viz.:-

I. Foll. 1—10. Description of the route from Kandahār to Dehli, with notices on the principal stages.

II. Foll. 11—24. Account of the battle of Pānīpat.

A translation by Major Fuller is preserved in manuscript, Add. 30,784, foll. 81—100. The greater part of it will be found, with an account of the work by Prof. Dowson, in Elliot's History, vol. viii. pp. 144—157.

Add. 17,955.

Foll. 218;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 14 and 16 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated A.H. 1169 (A.D. 1755).

I. Foll. 17—55. مختصر شافی, a manual of medicine and astrology.

حمدو سیاس بی قیاس تحفه بارکاه بادشاهی سزد . Beg.

The work is dedicated to a sovereign designated as Shāh Ḥasan, described as conqueror of the realms of Cæsar and Khākān, of Cæsar and Khākān, igenties فاتح ملك قيصر و خاقان (probably Shaikh Ḥasan Ilkānī, who reigned A.H. 737—757).

It is divided into a Mukaddimah, two Maksads, and a Khatimah, as follows:—Mukaddimah treating of the pulse, hygiene, humours of the body, etc., in twelve Fasls, fol. 25 a. Maksad I. Treatment of diseases, in ten Bābs, fol. 28 a. Maksad II. treating of the spheres, planets, calendar, etc., in fourteen Fasls, fol. 44 a. Khātimah. Medical prescriptions, fol. 51 b.

A full table of contents is prefixed, foll. 6-11.

II. Foll. 55—66. List of medicaments mentioned in the Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'ī (see p. 469 a).

III. Foll. 71—78. A short dictionary of names of drugs, in Arabic, Persian, and Hindi.

IV. Foll. 79—174. رياض الأدريع, a treatise on medicaments, by Yūsufī. See p. 475 b.

للمد لله الذي خلق لكل داء دواء الله الذي خلق لكل داء دواء

We learn from a Kit'ah at the beginning that it was written for Humāyūn in A.H. 946. It is divided into two Bābs, treating of simple and compound medicaments, in alphabetical order.

V. Foll. 174—218. A collection of medical extracts and prescriptions. It includes a treatise on the healing properties of natural substances, foll. 196—211, described at the end as abridged from the Tibb Davā'iyah of Ḥakīm Ismā'īl, physician of Tīmūr,

انتخاب طب دوايه حكيم اسمعيل تمور شاهي

Add. 17,958.

Foll. 63;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Zulka'dah, A.H. 123 (probably for 1123, A.D. 1711).

I. Foll. 2—39. التحفة الملك شاهيه, a treatise on alchemy درعلم اكسير, translated from an

Arabie work ascribed to Abu 'Alī Mansūr B. Nizār al-Ḥākim Billah (more correctly al-Ḥākim Bi Amr-illah) المواجع منصور بن نزار الله

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد بدانكه در ملك نشست . . . ونوزده سال

It is stated in a short preamble that al-Hākim, who sat on the throne from A.H. 386 to 410 (the real date of his disappearance is A.H. 411; see Ibn Khallikān, de Slane's translation, vol. iii. p. 449), had written the original work for his son Abu 'l-Husain. The translator, who does not give his name, says that he had been ordered to prepare a version of that treatise, which he calls zeric lede, which

II. Foll. 39—53. An alchemical tract headed باب , in which each section begins, as in the preceding, with the words "O my son," ای پسر من

III. Foll. 54—62. Another tract on the art of gilding and on various alloys, with the heading باب اندر تلویم وترکیب

Add. 17,967.

Foll. 78; 9 in. by 6½; written by different hands, about the beginning of the 19th century.

I. Foll. 1-10. Alchemical recipes.

II. Foll. 11—21. Table of the contents of Kisms 1.—111. of منتخب التواريخ (see p. 122 b), drawn up by Munshī Ghulam Muḥammad, A.H. 1222.

III. Foll. 21—78. Extracts relating chiefly to alchemy, with English notes by Doctor Pouget.

Add. 18,404.

Foll. 259; 10 in. by 6½; from 17 to 21 vol. 11.

lines, about 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Rabī' I., the 5th year of 'Alamgīr II. (A.H. 1172, A.D. 1758). [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—230. Translation of the Upanishads by Dārā-Shikūh. See p. 54.

In this copy the translator's preface is followed by a glossary of Sanskrit terms, and a table of the Upanishads.

II. Foll. 231—248. Majma' ul-Baḥrain. See p. 828 a, vii.

III. Foll. 248—259. An abstract of conversations between Bābā La'ldās and Dārā Shikūh on the life and doctrine of Hindū Faķīrs, انتخاب جواب و سوال بابا لعلداس وبادشاء المكوة زادة حق پزوة دارا شكوة

اول انکهاز ورود کلمه معظمه ادم در بهشت میرود .Beg

A copy is mentioned by Prof. Palmer in his Catalogue of King's College Library, No. 14.

Add. 18,417.

Foll. 23; 7½ in. by 4½; 14 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

[WM. YULE.]

Manāzil ul-Futūli. See p. 839 b.

Add. 18,422.

Foll. 43; 7<sup>3</sup> in. by 6; from 14 to 20 lines, 4 in. long; written in Shikastah, in the 18th century. [WM. YULE.]

I. Foll. 1—28. Dastūr ul-'Amal Āgahī (see p. 402 σ), wanting the first page and the latter part of the work.

II. Foll. 30—43. Account of the author's journey from Cawnpore to Benares, and back through Jaunpur and Partubgarh to Lucknow, from the 23rd of April 1798 to the 8th of October in the same year, with descriptions and historical accounts of the localities traversed.

On fol. 29 b, Major Yule has written: "Journal of my friend Muhummud Buqqa (عجد با

Add. 18,870.

Foll. 411; 9½ in. by 5¾.

I. Foll. 2—143; 15 lines, 3¾ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Ḥaidarābād, Jumāda I., A.H. 1252 (A.D. 1836).

A collection of medical prescriptions classed under the diseases, beginning with the heading امراض الراس الصداع

This is a late compilation written in India. Ghāzi ud-Dīn Khān, Vazīr ul-Mamālik (A.H. 1174) is mentioned on fol. 64 a. A table is prefixed, foll. 2—4.

II. Foll. 144—289; written by the same hand.

تاليف شريف

Indian materia medica, or dictionary of simple medicaments.

Author: Ḥakīm Muḥammad Sharīf Khān, son of Ḥāzik ul-Mulk Ḥakīm Muḥammad Akmal Khān, حكيم محمد شريف خان ولد حادق الملك حكيم محمد اكمل خان

برك درختان سبز در نظر هوشيار Beg.

The author says in the preface that, having found the and and art from complete, he had undertaken to supplement them from Hindū works, as well as from experience gained by himself and his forefathers before him. He adds that he had performed that task while besieged by the unbelievers and deprived of books.

In the introduction the author says that, with regard to the names of drugs, he conforms with the usage of Shāhjahānābād (Dehli). Another copy, Or. 1696, contains a dedication to Shāh 'Alam (A.H. 1173—1221), and another work of the same writer علاج expresses by its title the date of its composition, A.H. 1177.

The Talif i Sharif has been lithographed in Dehli with the Alfaz ul-Adviyah, A.H. 1265. See the Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, vol. 20, p. 620, and Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1901. A second edition, lithographed in Dehli, A.H. 1280, contains, besides, the Tuhfah i 'Alamshāhī or Khavās ul-Javāhir by the same author, also dedicated to Shah 'Alam, and some other medical tracts by the author's grandson, Ghulam Muhammad B. Hakim Muhammad Sādik 'Alī Khān B. Hakīm Muhammad Sharīf Khān. An English translation, entitled "the Taleef Shereef, or Indian materia medica," has been published by Dr. George Playfair, Calcutta, 1833.

III. Foll. 290—411; 21 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; dated Shavv\(\bar{a}\)l, A.H. 1101 (A.D. 1690).

خواص الحيوان

A work on the medicinal properties of animals, extracted from Damīrī's Arabic work called حيوة الحيوان (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 215).

Author: Muḥammad Taķī Tabrīzī, son of Khwājah Muḥammad, عهد محمد محمد ابن خواجه تقى تبريزى

حمد بیخد و ثنای بیعد خداوندیرا که مشکوة . Beg. بنیان حیوانرا

The work of Damīrī having been mentioned in an assembly of learned men in the house of the author's patron, Navvāb Mīrzā Muḥammad Ibrāhīm, son of Ṣadr ud-Dīn Muḥammad, during the reign of Shāh 'Abbās II. (A.H. 1052—1077), the author was desired to write the present abridgment, in which he followed the alphabetical order of the original. See Stewart's Catalogue, p. 96.

Add. 18,873.

Foll. 239;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 25 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in.

long; written in small Nestalik; dated Kazvin, Rajab, A.H. 999 (A.D. 1591).

I. Foll. 1—88. The first portion of the sixth volume of the Rauzat us-Ṣafā, corresponding to pp. 1—84 of the Bombay edition.

II. Foll. 89—239. The latter half of the first volume of Ḥabīb us-Siyar, beginning with p. 24 of Juz 2, Bombay edition.

Add. 18,879.

Foll. 214; 9 in. by 7; 13 and 11 lines, written in Nestalik, on English paper water-marked 1809.

 Foll. 1—152. Letters and other prose compositions of Mirzā Ţāhir Vaḥīd.

الحمد لله . . . نامه که مصحوب شاهقلی بیك . Beg. در طلب تندهار ببادشاه هندوستان نوشته شد

The contents agree substantially with those of Add. 7690, i. See p. 810 b.

II. Foll. 153—214. The first half of Daftar II. of Inshā i Abul-Fazl. See p. 396 a.

Add. 18,882.

Foll. 85; 9 in. by 5; 17 lines, 3\frac{3}{4} in. long; written in Shikastah-\text{\text{\text{a}miz}}; dated Shavv\text{\text{\text{a}}}, A.H. 1081 (A.D. 1671).

I. Foll. 1—14. A collection of letters and short prose compositions by Nūr ud-Din Muhammad (see p. 792 a), imperfect in the end.

بعد حمد الله أكبر و شفيع روز محشر Beg.

The dates of the letters range from A.H. 1025 to 1037. Some are written from Jahān-gīrnagar, Bengal, others from Lahore. The collection includes a dedication of the لطيفة (see p. 792 a) to the author's patron, Khānahzād Khān Fīrūzjang (see p. 509 a).

. II. Foll. 15-85. The memoirs of Timur.

(see p. 177 b), containing:—The Institutes, wanting about three pages at the beginning (White's edition, pp. 162—408). The Designs and Enterprises (White's edition, pp. 2—152).

Add. 19,344.

Foll. 24; miscellaneous Oriental papers, collected by George Viscount Valentia, of which the following are Persian:—

I. Foll. 1—6. Letters written to Lord Valentia, by the following native princes:

1. Udit Nārāyan Singh, Rājah of Benares, apologizing for not calling upon Lord Valentia in Benares (March 1803; see Lord Valentia's Voyages and Travels, vol. i. p. 104).

2. Vazīr ul-Mamālik Sa'ādat 'Alī Khān, sending his affectionate remembrance and his portrait; dated 28 Sha'bān, A.H. 1218 (December 1803). See ib., pp. 135—175.

3. Shahāmat 'Alī Khān, called in the endorsement Mirza Jungly, referring to the late Navvāb's regard, and assuring Lord Valentia of the Begam's and his own friendship.

II. Transcript of a Kit'ah engraved on the bridge of Jaunpur, and containing the date of its construction, A.H. 975. See ib., p. 124.

For the rest of the contents see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 532.

Add. 19,497.

Foll. 191; 10 in. by 6; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1244 (A.D. 1829).

I. Foll. 1—109. Memoirs of Shaikh Muhammad 'Alî Ḥazīn. See p. 381 a.

II. Foll. 110—191. Notices on contemporary poets, by the same. See p. 372 b.

Add. 19,619.

Foll. 310;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $2\frac{5}{8}$  in. 3 G 2 long; written in Nestalik, with gold-ruled margins; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1103 (A.D. 1692). [Samuel Lee.]

I. Foll. 3—128. جام جهان نهای عباسی, a treatise on wine, its beneficial properties, and legitimate use.

Author: Ķāzī B. Kāshif ud-Dīn Muḥam-mad, قاضي بن كاشف الدين محمد

صافترین صهبائیکه از پرتو اشعه انوار آن Beg.

Mīrzā Ķāzī, whose father Kāshif was physician to Shāh 'Abbās I., was born in Isfahan, and became Shaikh ul-Islām in that city. He died in Ardabīl A.H. 1075. See Ķisas ul-Khākānī, fol. 159.

This work was written, as stated in the preface, by order of Shāh 'Abbās I. It is divided into a Mukaddimah, thirty Bābs, and a Khātimah, and was completed in Rajab, A.H. 1037, a few months after the Shāh's death.

II. Foll. 129—156. رساله چوب چينى, a tract on the medicinal properties of the Chūb i Chīnī, or China root, coffee, and tea, by the same author.

This work was also written in the reign of 'Abbās I.

The Chūb i Chīnī, also called بيخ چينى, is here said to have been introduced by Europeans and to have spread in Irak at the beginning of the reign of Shāh Ismāʿīl.

An earlier but insufficient account of it, by "the late" 'Imād ud-Dīn Maḥmūd (see p. 474 a), is mentioned in the preface.

The work is divided into the following three Bābs:—1. China root, in fourteen Fasls, fol. 130 a. 2. Coffee, fol. 154 a. 3. Tea, fol. 155 b.

III. Foll. 157—162. رساله افيون, a treatise on the beneficial and injurious properties of opium, by Maḥmūd B. Mas'ūd uṭ-Tabīb ('Imād ud-Dīn; see p. 474 a).

الحمد لله المحمود في كل افعاله والصلوة والسلام .Beg

The treatise is divided into a Mukaddimah, an Aşl, and a Khātimah. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 368.

IV. Foll. 243—247. Two Arabic tracts; see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 458.

V. Foll. 247—262. رساله ع چوب چینی, a treatise on China root, by 'Imād ud-Dīn Mahmūd.

پوشیده نماند که این بیخ چینی که دراین تاریخ . Beg.

See above, art. ii., Haj. Khal. vol. iii. p. 386, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 112, the Copenhagen Catalogue, p. 44, and Fleischer's Leipzig Catalogue, p. 513.

VI. Foll. 263—265. Another treatise on the same subject.

Author: Nur Ullah, commonly called 'Ala, ie, الله مشهور بعلا

اما بعد چنین کوید محرر این رساله ومقرر Beg. این مقاله

The author, who wrote in A.H. 944, says that he had spent twenty years in India, and had obtained his information on China root from a European physician. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 386.

VII. Foll. 265—270. A tract on the Pāzahr or bezoar-stone, by 'Imād ud-Dīn Maḥmūd (see p. 474  $\alpha$ ).

VIII. Foll. 270—285. Extracts from the Nauras i Shāhī on the bezoar and precious stones; miscellaneous notices on aphrodisiacs, weights and measures, and on China root.

IX. Foll. 285—308. A treatise on Atashak, or venereal disease, by 'Imād ud-Dīn Maḥmūd.

و بعد چون مرضی که معروفست باتشك در .Beg. زمان سابق

That disorder, formerly unknown, had lately been treated of by Mir Bahā ud-Daulah Nūrbakhshi. The author improved the leisure he enjoyed during a stay at Mashhad to write a fuller account of it.

Add. 19,621.

Foll. 150; 8 in. by 5; 13 lines, 23 in. long, with 22 lines in the margins; written in fair Nestalik; dated Jumāda II., A.H. 1139 (A.D. 1726). [Samuel Lee.]

I. Foll. 3—121. The Divān of Ķāsim Divānah. See p. 707 b.

II. Foll. 1, 2, and margins of foll. 3—150. Maḥmūd and Ayāz, by Zulāli, with the preface. See p. 677 a.

Add. 19,623.

Foll. 162; 8½ in. by 5¾; 10 and 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written apparently early in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 1—32. The Shi'ah creed by Ibn Bābavaih. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 385.

II. Foll. 33—72. ترجمة المقائد, a popular exposition of Shi'alı tenets, by Mulisin B. Murtazā (see p. 830 a).

حمد بیعد و ثنای بسیعد خداولد جهان آرای Beg.

It is also called an account of its division into eight chapters called "gates." These chapters treat of God's existence, unity, holiness, of prophetship, Imamat, resurrection, the terrors of death, heaven and hell.

HI. Foll. 73—162. ترجمه توحيد مفضل, a discourse of the Imām Ja'far Ṣādiķ on the proofs which the scheme of creation affords of the existence, unity, and attributes of the Creator; translated from the Arabic by Mu-

محدد تبقى ,hammad Taķī B. Muḥammad Bāķir بن محمد باقر

الحمد لله الذي هدانا الى توحيدة بصفوته

Add. 19,661.

Foll. 109; 8 in. by  $4\frac{5}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in fair Nestalik, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 16th century.

I. Foll. 1—50. Khulāṣat ul-Khamsah, Sec p. 575 a.

یوسف کشیری : Copyist

II. Foll. 51—109. Majma' ul-Abkār, by 'Urfī. See p. 667 b.

Add. 19,809.

Foll. 89; 9½ in. by 5½; 21 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Aurangābād, Ṣafar, A.H. 1090 (A.D. 1679).

I. Foll. 5—30. Gulshan i Rāz. See p. 608 b.

II. Foll. 31—53. كنز الرموز, a Sufi poem, by Amîr Ḥusainî (see p. 608 a).

باز طبعم را هوائی دیکراست Beg باز طبعم را هوائی دیکراست

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 431, Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 254, Krafft, p. 66, Ouseley's Catalogue, No. 677, and the Gotha Catalogue, p. 12.

III. Foll. 54—87. Zād ul-Musāfirīn, by Amīr Ḥusainī. See p. 608 a.

Add. 21,589.

Foll. 527; 13\(\frac{3}{4}\) in. by 9\(\frac{1}{4}\); 25 lines, 6 in. long; written in small Nestalik, with 'Unvan and gold-ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 1246 (A.D. 1830). [James Bird.]

I. Foll. 1—338. تحفقة الكرام, a work on general history from the earliest times to A.H. 1180, comprising a special history of Sind.

بعد حمد خالقی که آثارات کون مکان

The author, the fourth son of Sayyid 'Izzat-Ullah, who died A.H. 1161, traced his origin to Kāzī Shukr-Ullah, a distinguished Sayyid of Shīrāz, who had settled in Tattah A.H. 927 (see fol. 316 b). 'Alīshīr, who was born A.H. 1140, began writing poetry at the early age of twelve, under the takhallus of Mazharī, which he afterwards changed to that of Kāni'. He composed a poem of about 3000 distichs on the story of Kāmrūp and Kāmlatā in A.H. 1169, another Maṣnavī, Kazā u Kadar in A.H. 1165, a poem entitled in A.H. 1171, and several prose works, one of which is called it ca

The author states in the preface that he had begun the present work in his 40th year, and that the date of composition, A.H. 1180, is conveyed by the title تخفت الكرام. Two versified chronograms at the end give A.H. 1181 as the date of its completion. But it must have received later additions; for more recent dates are mentioned, as A.H. 1183, foll. 195 a, 198 a; and in one passage (fol.

288) the narrative is brought down to A.H. 1188.

An account of the work, with some extracts, is given in Elliot's History of India, vol. i. pp. 327—351. Some chapters translated by T. Postans will be found in the Journal of the As. Soc. of Bengal, vol. vii., pp. 96—104, and 297—310.

It is divided into three volumes (Mujallad), the contents of which are as follows:—

Volume I., divided into a Mukaddimah and three Daftars; viz. Mukaddimah. Creation and Genii, fol. 2 a.—Daftar I. Prophets, fol. 3 a. Ancient kings of Persia, Arabia, etc., fol. 38 a. Sages, saints, and poets, anterior to the Islam, fol. 62 b.—Daftar II. Genealogy of Muhammad, fol. 73 b. His life, fol. 75 a. The first four Khalifs, fol. 87 b. The Imams, fol. 100 b. Descendants of the Imams, fol. 112 b.—Daftar II., in three Tabakahs: 1. Umayyades, fol. 116 b. Amirs of the Umayyades, fol. 120 b. Men who rose against the Umayyades, fol. 124 b. 2. Abbasides, fol. 132 a. Abbasides of Egypt, fol. 146 b. Amīrs and Vazīrs of the Abbasides, fol. 147 a. Men who rose against the Abbasides, fol. 156 b. The Karmatites, fol. 158 b. 3. Dynasties contemporary with the Abbasides.

This last Tabakah is subdivided into nine sections (Asas), as follows: 1. Tabiris, Saffarīs, Sāmānis, Ghaznavīs, Ghūrīs, Al i Buvaih, Saljūķīs, Khwārazmshālis, Atābaks, Ismā'ilis of Egypt, Ayyūbis, Ismā'ilis of Kuhistān, Al i 'Abd ul-Mūmin, Karākhitā'is of Kirmān, fol. 160 b.—2. Cæsars, Saljūks of Rūm, Dānishmandis Salīkis, Mangūchakis, Karāmān, Zulkadr, fol. 169 a.—3. Sharīfs of Mecca and Medina, fol. 169 b.—4. Chingiz Khān and his descendants in Ulugh Yūrt, Dasht Kipchāk, Īrān, and Tūrān; the Shaibānis, and the Khans of Kashghar, fol. 169 b .-5. Local dynasties of Iran after the Moghuls, namely, the Chaupānis, Ilkānis, Al i Muzaffar, Kurts, and Sarbadars, fol. 179 b.-6. The Karā Kūyunlus, fol. 183 a.—7. The Ak Kūyunlus, fol. 183 b.—8. The Safavīs, ib.—9. Timūr and his successors in Īrān and Tūrān, foll. 183—186.

Volume II. contains an Introduction (Mukaddimah) on the inhabited quarter of the globe, and seven sections (Makalah), treating of the seven climates. The principal countries and cities belonging to each climate are enumerated, with accounts of their rulers and biographical notices of their celebrated men. The contents are :- Mukaddimah, fol. 186 b. First climate, fol. 187 a. Second climate, fol. 190 a. Kings of the Deccan, ib. Kings of Bengal, fol. 199 b. Third climate, fol. 201 b. Kings of Hindustan, from Mahmud Ghaznavi to 'Alamgir II., fol. 231. Princes and Amirs of the Dehli empire, foll. 240 b, 241 b. (The last portion of this section, the whole of the fourth, and the first part of the fifth, are missing. The latter part of the fifth, foll. 242-247, treats of Samarkand, Kash, Nasaf, Nakhshab, Karshi, Bukhara, etc.). Sixth climate, fol. 247 b. Sultans of Käslighar, fol. 249 a. Seventh climate, fol. 252 a. Khātimah; distances between the principal cities, fol. 253 a.

Volume III., treating of the history of Sind. The author mentions as his sources, in the first place, an ancient record of the Arab conquest, which 'Ali B. Ḥāmid B. Abī Bakr ul-Kūfī, of Uehh, translated from the Arabic, A.H. 613 (see p. 290 b), then the histories of Mīr Ma'ṣūm Bhakarī (p. 291 a), and Mīr Muḥammad Ṭāhir Nisyānī (p. 292 b), the Arghūn Nāmah, Tarkhān Nāmah, and Beglar Nāmah (see Elliot, vol. i. pp. 289 and 300).

Contents: Mukaddimah. Description of Sind, fol. 254 b. Tabakah i Rāyān, or Hindū Rājahs, fol. 255 b. Tabakah i Barāhimah, rule of the Brahmans, fol. 256 a. Conquest by Muhammad B. Kāsim, fol. 257 b. Governors under the Umayyades, fol. 260 a.

Governors under the Abbasides, fol. 261 a. Governors under the Sultans of Ghaznah, Ghūr, and Dehli, fol. 261 b. Tabakah i Sumarah, fol. 263 b. Jams of the Sammah tribe, fol. 267 a. Tabakalı i Arghun, fol. 269 a. Tabakah i Tarkhan, to the death of Ghāzī Beg, A.H. 1021, with an account of the conquest of Sind by Akbar, fol. 272 a. Amirs of the Arghun and Tarkhun dynasties, fol. 279 a. Amirs of the Timurides, and governors of Tattah, from A.H. 1002 to 1149, fol. 281 a. Rule of the Kalurah Abhāsiyyah family from its origin to A.H. 1188, fol. 284 a. Enumeration of the cities and towns of Sind, with notices of the Sayyids, Shaikhs, and other eminent men of each, beginning with Multan and closing with Tattah, fol. 288 b.

II. Foll. 339—447. odusto, lives of celebrated Shaikhs, and heads of religious orders, from the time of Muhammad to the close of the twelfth century of the Hijrah, by the same author.

منت خدايرا عز وجل كه بنداي هدايت انتما .Beg

This work was composed, it is stated, in A.H. 1202 (a date expressed by the title), when the author had nearly completed his 63rd year. He had written in the same year two other works on kindred subjects, entitled deal and significant many and deal without deal with the same year and deal with the same year deal with the same year and deal with the same year deal with the same year and deal with the same year deal with the same year two other works on kindred subjects, entitled with the same year and same year.

It contains an introduction treating of the Vilāyat, or saintship, fol. 340 a, and twelve sections termed Mi'yār, on the following subjects:—

1. Holy men of the first century, namely, the first four Khalifahs, the uncles and cousins of the Prophet, his principal Companions, the first three Imāms and their children, fol. 341 b. 2. Holy men of the second century, including especially the founders of the fourteen Khānavāds, or religious families, fol. 350 a.

The remaining Mi'yars, treating, in the same order, of the saints of each succeeding century, begin as follows:—

3, fol. 357 a.—4, fol. 367 a.—5, fol. 375 a.
6, fol. 379 b.—7, fol. 391 b.—8, fol. 401 b.
9, fol. 410 b.—10, fol. 421 a.—11, fol. 428 b.
12, fol. 436 a.—They all contain numerous notices, arranged in chronological order.

on the poets of Sind, alphabetically arranged according to their names or poetical surnames, with copious specimens of their compositions, by the same author, Mīr 'Alīshīr Ķāni'.

تحمد من خص بالقوة النطقية الانسان خص بالقوة النطقية الانسان

The author states that, having found that the two Tazkirahs most frequently quoted in his day, namely كلمات الشعراء by Mu-hammad Afzal Sarkhush (see p. 369 a), and by Mīr Ghulām 'Alī Azād (see p. 374 a, No. 14), were very deficient with regard to the Sind poets, and that there existed no special work on that subject, he had undertaken the present composition in A.H. 1169, while engaged upon his poem of Kāmrūp and Kāmlatā, and had completed it in A.H. 1174, a date expressed by its title.

The author devotes an extensive notice to himself, foll. 498—509, in which he gives copious extracts from his poems and prose works.

It appears from the subscriptions, foll. 185 b, 338 b, 447 b, that this volume was written by Mihr 'Alī Ḥusainī for an amīr of Sind named Mīr Murād 'Alī Khān Tālpar.

Add. 21,625.

Foll. 34; 12 in. by 9. Miscellaneous Oriental papers collected by Cl. J. Rich (see the Arabic Catalogue, p. 530).

The following are Persian:-

Fol. 4. A detached leaf of the Iskandar Nāmah of Nizāmī, containing the rubric حرب سكندر با روسيان روز ديكر

Foll. 5—11. Original minutes of the examination of two troopers, Hāshim Khān and Nūr Khān, arrested by order of Capt. James W. Skinner on a charge of bribery, at Sīkrah, Bikānīr, and tried in June and July 1813.

Add. 22,695.

Foll. 159; 10 in. by 7.

I. Foll. 2-39; 25 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in minute Nestalik, apparently in the 15th century.

A history of the Saljūķis, from their origin to their extinction in A.H. 590.

Author: Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. Muḥammad B. 'Abd ullah B. un-Nizām ul-Ḥusaini, عمد بن محمد بن محمد بن محمد بن محمد بن محمد بن الله بن محمد بن النظام للسيني

The author, who occasionally diverted his mind from the pursuit of divinity and law by perusing the records of history, fell in, as stated in the preface, with a book in which the writer, only designated as an had ریکی از ائمہ فضل شعار ,had recorded the rise and progress of the Saljūkis down to the end of the reign of Sultan Mahmūd B. Muhammad B. Malakshāh (A.H. 511-525), an epoch which he looked upon as the beginning of their decline. sidering, however, that several mighty sovereigns of the same line had sat upon the throne during a subsequent period of nearly eighty years, the author had been induced to compose a complete history of the dynasty. The preface concludes with a panegyric on a just and powerful Vazīr, whose name is not explicitly stated, but is said to adorn the work. From this it may be supposed that its title 'Irāķiyyah is derived from the Vazīr's surname "'Irākī."

The work is written in ornate prose, freely interspersed with Arabic and Persian verses, much in the style of the well-known contemporary writer, Vaṣṣāf. The time of composition is fixed by an incidental mention of Uljāitū as the reigning sovereign (A.H. 703—716), and a description of his splendid residence, namely Sulṭāniyyah, which was founded A.H. 705 (see D'Ohsson, vol. iv. p. 485).

The earlier history referred to in the preface is probably the Saljūk Nāmah of Zahīr ud-Dīn Nīshāpūrī mentioned as one of the sources of the Guzīdah. See Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 606.

H. Foll. 40—159; 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in the 16th century.

A history of the Karā-Khitā'is of Kirmān from their rise to their downfall.

The author's name, Nasir ud-Din, is not found in the preface; but it occurs in the following line, the first of a poem composed in his praise by the Sadr Mayd ud-Din, and quoted on fol. 119:

His father, Khwājah Muntajab ud-Dīn 'Umdat ul-Mulk Yazdī, bad left his native place Yazd, A.H. 650, as stated fol. 80, to attach himself to Ķuṭb ud-Dīn Muḥammad, Sultan of Kirmān, and had become the trusted adviser of that sovereign. Nāṣir ud-Dīn, who was brought up by his uncle, Shihāb ud-Dīn Abul-Ḥasan 'Alī Yazdī (see fol. 94), was appointed by Pādishāh Khātūn, A.H. 693, although still young, to the head-secretaryship of the chancelry, ديوان رسائل وانشا (see fol. 129).

The author states in the preface that a partial account of the Karā-Khitā'is had been written under the title of Tarikh i Shāhī by Khwajah Shihab ud-Din Abu Sa'id; but the events which followed the death of Padishah Khātūn (A.H. 694) had not yet been re-At the request of some friends, who regarded him as one of the most elegant writers of the age, he took up the subject, and brought down the history to the extinction of the dynasty. The work was written at the beginning of A.H. 716, and dedicated to an illustrious Amir sent at that time by the Ilkhani Court to Kirman, Isan B. Amīr Zingī, ايس قتلغ نويان B. Amīr Zingī, a noble Uighur, who traced his origin to Altan Khan.

Contents: Preface, including a review of the principal dynasties of Iran, fol. 40 b. Sketch of the early history of Kirman, fol. 54 a. (For a more detailed account of that period the reader is referred to the work of Afzal ud-Din Kātib Mustaufi.) Nusrat ud-Din Kutlugh Sultin Burāk Hājib, the founder of the dynasty, who died A.H. 632, after a reign of fifteen years, fol. 67 a. Kutb ud-Din Abul-Fath Muhammad B. Jamtimur, nephew and successor of the preceding, fol. 72 b. Rukn ud-Din B. Burāk, who succeeds A.H. 633, fol. 75 a. Second reign of Kuth ud-Din, A.H. 650-655. Regency of 'Ismat ud-Din Kutlugh Turkan, the widow of the preceding, fol. 86 b. Muzaffar ud-Din Hajjāj Sultan, son of Kutb ud-Din, fol. 88 a. Jalal ud-Din Suyürghatmish, son of the preceding, who succeeds his father A.H. 681, fol. 104 a The daughter of the above, Padishah Khatun, A.H. 691-694, fol. 124 a. Muzaffar ud-Din Muḥammad Shāh, son of Ḥajjāj Sultān, who succeeds A.H. 694, fol. 136 b.

The detailed narrative comes to a close with the account of the chequered and intermittent rule of the last-named sovereign, who died at the age of twenty-nine years (A.H. 703). It is followed by a brief record of the appointments of Kuth ud-Din Shāh Khātūn (read Shāh Jahān) by Ghāzān (A.H.

703), fol. 155 b, and of Nāṣir ud-Dīn Muḥammad B. Burhān by Uljāitū (A.H. 707), who was still on the throne at the time of composition, fol. 157 b.

Haj. Khal., who ealls the author Nāṣir ud-Dīn Munshī Kirmānī, speaks of an appendix eoming down to the reign of Abu Saʿīd. See vol. iii. p. 618. Aecounts of the Ķara-Khitāʾis will be found in Tārīkh i Vaṣṣāf, vol. iii., where their history is brought down to A.H. 694, in the Guzīdah, and, with full details, in the geographical work of Ḥāfiz Abrū, foll. 147—155. See also Rauzat uṣ-Ṣafā, vol. iv. p. 128, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 2, p. 10.

Add. 22,789.

Foll. 340;  $9\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 14 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Shabān, A.H 1250 (A.D. 1835).

I. Foll. 1—292. گلشی خسروی, a copious collection of select pieces in verse and in prose, compiled by Bakā for Mīrzā Khusrau Beg. According to a versified chronogram at the end, fol. 292 a, the work was completed in A.H. 1246:

The first or poetical portion, although including verses of some early poets, deals chiefly with those who flourished in Persia about the close of the twelfth and in the first half of the thirteenth century of the Hijrah, as Sulaimān Ṣabāḥī (see Atashkadah, fol. 180), Sayyid Muḥammad Hātif (see p. 813 b), Luṭf 'Alī Beg Azur (see p. 375 a), Fatḥ 'Alī Khān Kāshī, surnamed Ṣabā (see p. 722 a), 'Abd ul-Vahhāb Nashāṭ (see ib.), etc. It contains the following divisions:— Kaṣīdahs, fol. 5 a. Ghazals, without alphabetical arrangement, fol. 57 b. Detached verses in alphabetical order, fol. 85 b. 'Rubā'īs alphabetically arranged, fol. 114 b. Mukhammasāt, fol. 125 a. Kiṭ'ahs, fol. 131 b. Maṣnavīs, fol. 141 b.

The last section includes two longer poems of the kind ealled ", by Mihri Arab, and Mīrzā Abd ullah, surnamed Ishķ.

The prose portion, which is taken from some elegant writers who lived in India under Shāhjahān and Aurangzīb, contains:— Journal of the siege of Haidarābād by Ni'mat Khān 'Ālī (see p. 268 a), fol. 160 b. "Beauty and Love," by the same (see p. 703 b), fol. 210 b. A satire on doctors, by the same (see p. 744 b), fol. 223 a. حسن و عشق "Beauty and Love," by Tughrā. Bahāriyyah and Murtafi'at مرتفعات, by the same (see p. 742), fol. 231 a. شهر آشوب, by Mīrzā Muhammad Shafi' Munshi, fol. 241 b. This last piece is a statement addressed to the lawyers of Iran, respecting the estate of the late Shahzadah (Muhammad Akbar, the eldest son of Aurangzīb), who died in Persia in A.H. 1118, and to whose service the writer appears to have been attached.

II. Foll. 293—338. رمز الرياحين "the secret language of sweet-scented flowers," a description, in Maṣnavī rhyme, of the royal garden of Saʻādat-ābād, at Isfahan (see Ouseley's Travels, vol. iii. p. 19).

Author : Ramzī, رمزی

The author, whose proper name was Mīrzā Hādī, son of Mīrzā Ḥabīb, was a native of Kāshān. He is mentioned in the Ķiṣas ul-Kbākānī, a work written A.H. 1076, fol. 170, as a poet and skilled painter, who was then past thirty years of age.

After a eulogy on the reigning sovereign, Shāh 'Abbās II., the poet relates how he had been summoned to the Shāh's presence in the royal garden, and desired to write a poem in praise of it. The work concludes, however, with an address to Shāh Sulṭān Ḥusain, who ascended the throne in A.H. 1105.

The present copy contains twenty-nine coloured drawings representing the various flowers described in the poe:n.

The last two leaves contain a satire by Mirzā Sharif on one of the Mustaufis of Shāh Ṭahmāsp. A table of contents has been prefixed to the volume, foll. 1—3.

Add. 23,496.

Foll. 252; 10 in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 21 lines, 6 in. long; written in bold Naskhi; dated Shīrāz, Muḥarram, A.H. 847 (A.D. 1443).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

I. Foll. 2—246 a. The first volume of the Persian Tabari (see p. 68), containing little more than a quarter of the work.

This copy has no preface, but only a short doxology in Persian, beginning:

سپاس و افرین وستایش خدای کامکار کامران وآفریننده زمین وزمان را

The text is in some parts considerably abridged: the introduction, which precedes the account of the creation of Adam (Zotenberg's version, pp. 9—72) is condensed to seven leaves, foll. 4—10. The history is brought down to the death of Yazdajird ul-Aşim (Zotenberg's version, vol. ii. p. 104).

It is stated in the subscription that the MS. was transcribed by Bahā ud-Dīn B. Ḥasan B. Bahā ud-Dīn, an attendant of the shrine of Ḥājī Bahā ud-Dīn 'Uşmān, near Shīrāz, and that it belonged to the Ṣadr Ra'īs Nizām ud-Dīn, son of the Ṣadr Ḥājī Fakhr ud-Dīn Aḥmad.

The first half of a table of contents, occupying four pages at the beginning, has been supplied by a later hand.

وصيت نامه بيغمبر صلى . II. Foll. 246-252 b. وصيت نامه بيغمبر صلى "the testament of the Prophet," consisting of moral precepts addressed by Muhammad to 'Alī, and handed down by the latter.

روايت است از امير المومنين على عليه التحية . Beg. والثما وكرم الله وجهه كه كفت روزى رسول الم

Written by the same scribe as art. i., and dated A.H. 848.

Add. 23,558.

Foll. 361; 11½ in. by 7½; 23 lines, 4¾ in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz; dated Ṣafar, A.H. 1100 (A.D. 1688).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

I. Foll. 2—243. Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'i. See p. 469 a.

In the subscription of the first Makalat, the work is designated as Miftah ul-Khaza'in, commonly called Ikhtiyarat i Badi'i. But the former title belongs to another treatise by the same author. See ib.

II. Foll. 243—276. خواص الاشيا, a treatise on the medicinal properties of natural substances, without author's name.

اما بعد این کتاب را خواص الاشیا می نامند . Beg. مشتمل بر شانزده باب

It is said in the preamble that the number of Bābs had been reduced from sixteen to eight. In the text, however, nine chapters are found, treating of the following subjects: Properties of various parts of the human body منانع انسان, fol. 244 a, of quadrupeds, fol. 245 b, birds, fol. 254 b, reptiles and insects, fol. 259 b, fruits and flowers, fol. 262 a, seeds, fol. 270 b, herbs, fol. 271 b; leaves, fol. 272 a, gums, ib., and stones, fol. 273 a.

III. Foll. 276 6—294. A treatise in ten chapters (Fasl) on hemorrhoids and three kindred diseases, بواسير و رئم بواسير و رئم بواسير و شقاق

Author: Muhammad B. Jamal, called 'Ala ut-Tabib, محمد بن جمال الدعو بعلاء الطبيب

3 11 2

للمد لله الذي ابدع بفضله في الانسان عجايب. Beg. الدراعات

IV. Foll. 296—305. An extract relating to the medicinal properties of various kinds of food, without title or author's name.

قانون . . . . اول بطریق قیاس نتوان دانست . Beg. وقیاس ان باز بتوسط طبعها

The rubrics have not been inserted.

V. Foll. 306—361. قرابادین للکیم شفائی, a treatise on compound medicaments. See p. 473 b.

Add. 23,568.

Foll. 102; 7 in. by 5; from 18 to 23 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in small Nestalik; dated A.H. 889—894 (A.D. 1484—1489).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

I. Foll. 2—31. شرح محتصر در معرفت تقویم, a commentary upon the treatise of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Tūsī on the almanac, with the text. See p. 452 b.

Beg. الله احمد على نعمايه واشكر على آلايه واصاى From a passage, fol. 7 a, in which the date of Naurūz is fixed for A.H. 727, it becomes probable that the commentary was written in that year.

II. Foll. 32—53. اصول البلاحم, a treatise on prognostics to be drawn from eclipses, storms, and other phenomena, according to the time of their appearance in the solar year.

Author: Abu'l-Fazl Hubaish B. Ibrāhīm ut-Tiflīsī, ابو الفضل حبيش بن ابراهيم التفليسي

شکر و سپاس مر خدایرا جل جلاله و عم .Beg. نواله که جهانرا

The work is intended, according to the preface, to elucidate two books called كتاب, one of which is ascribed to Daniel, and the other to Ja'far Sādiķ. The author says that he had written it after completing another work, entitled قانون الادب (see Haj. Khal., vol. iv., p. 494, and the Munich Catalogue, p. 110), and that he had drawn its matter from Greek and Arabic writers. It is divided into twenty-five Fasls.

The author, who wrote several other works on medicine and astrology, is stated by Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 25, to have dedicated one of them to Kilij Arslān Rūmī, while he composed another, كفاية الطب, for Abul-Ḥāriṣ Malakshāh (see the Gotha Catalogue, p. 64). The former of these princes was apparently Kilij Arslān B. Mas'ūd, who died A.H. 588, after a nominal reign of nineteen years, during the latter part of which he had been confined in Kūniyah by his son Kuṭb ud-Dīn Malakshāh. See Kāmil, vol. xii. pp. 31 and 57. Wüstenfeld, Arabische Aertzte, p. 30, mentions the author without fixing his period.

The present work is mentioned by Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 111, under the title of ملحمة; but the author's name is altered to Jalīs. For similar works see the Bodleian Catalogue, vol. ii. p. 332, note i.

III. Foll. 55—77. هداية النجوم, a manual of astrology.

Author: Nāṣir ud-Dīn Ḥaidar B. Muḥam-mad ush-Shīrāzī.

شکر و سیاس خدایرا که منزه است ذات او .Beg.

The author states that he had written it A.H. 687, after finishing another work called زيج رصد السيار. It is divided into thirty Bābs, partly disposed in tabular form.

V. Foll. 86—101. An account of the institution of Naurūz by the early kings of Persia and of various usages and observances connected with that festival.

ابن کتابیست که تالیف کردهاند در کشف Beg. حقیقت نوروز

Add. 23,580.

Foll. 378; 10 in. by 7; 23 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, with Unvan, gilt headings, and gold-ruled margins; dated Ramazan, A.H. 891 (A.D. 1486).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

رشف النصائم الايمانيه مداليه النصائم الايمانيه الديانيه a collection of Hadis, or sayings of Muḥammad, with Sufi comments, translated from the Arabic of Shihāb ud-Dīn 'Umar B. Muḥammad us-Suhravardī, شهاب الدين عبر بن محمد السهوردي

This celebrated Sufi was born, A.H. 539, in Suhravard, near Zanjān, in Irak, and died in Baghdād, A.H. 632. See his life in Ibn Khallikān, de Slane's translation, vol. ii. p. 382, the Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 544, and Majālis ul-Mūminīn, fol. 315. The Arabic work is mentioned, under the title of work is mentioned, under the title of his in the last two of the sources above quoted. Compare Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 465, who notices a Persian translation by Mu'in ud-Dīn Yazdī (see p. 168 a).

The translation is divided into fifteen Babs and two Khatimahs. The present copy wants the preface and a portion of the first Bab. The translator's name does not appear.

II. Foll. 156—378. جمع البحرين, a Sufi allegory, in which man is represented as a kingdom, the Khalifah or sovereign of which is the spirit.

Author: Shams ud-Din Ibrāhīm, Muhtasib of Abarkūh, المحتب بابراهيم الحتب بابرقوم

شكر و سياس بي التباس و حمد و ثنا Beg.

It is stated in the preface that the long contemplated work had been delayed by a journey which the author was compelled to take in A.H. 711, and by the loss of his books at sea. He subsequently proceeded to Tustar in the train of one of the late rulers of the land, and thence to the shrine of the Imām Zain ul-'Abidīn (in Medina), where he settled in the monastery of Shaikh Ṣadr ud-Dīn. There he wrote the present work in A.H. 714, in obedience to a behest conveyed to him in a dream by 'Alī.

It is divided into seven Kisms, each of which comprises five Babs. A full table of contents is given at the end of the preface. The author inserts occasionally verses of his composition in which he takes the poetical surname of Muhtasib.

Add. 23,569.

Foll. 135; 7½ in. by 3½; 18 lines, 1½ in. long; written in Naskhi, with three 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated A.H. 1055—1057 (A.D. 1645—1647).

[ROBERT TAYLOR.]

 Foll. 1—46. The astronomical treatise of 'Alī Ķūshī. See p. 458 α.

II. Foll. 46 b—56. Tashrih ul-Aflāk, by Bahā ud-Dīn 'Amilī, in Arabic. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 622 b.

III. Foll. 56 b—77. A treatise on the almanae by Naşîr ud-Dîn Tusî. See above, p. 452 b.

1V. Foll. 78—103. A treatise on the astrolabe by the same. See p. 453 a.

V. Foll. 103 b—185. Khulāṣat ul-Ḥisāb. Sec the Arabic Catalogue, p. 622 b.

Add. 24,041.

Foll. 430; 83 in. by 6; from 11 to 15

lines; written in Nestalik, early in the 19th century. [H. H. Wilson.]

I. Foll. 1—96. نيرنـگ ظهور, an account of the mythology, castes, and sects of the Hindus.

The author, whose name does not appear, states in the preface that he had written some years previously a shorter treatise on the same subject. The work is divided into seven chapters termed Jalvah, and subdivided into Furūghs.

Contents: 1. Creation, Brahma, fol. 5 b. 2. The four and twenty Avatārs, fol. 8 a. 3. The four castes, fol. 23 a. 4. Their ramifications, fol. 26 a. 5. Hindū doctrines; fol. 37 a. 6. Hindū faķīrs, fol. 46 a. 7. Hindū sects, fol. 53 b.

This last chapter, which is said to follow the same arrangement as the author's previous treatise, is divided into nine sections. The first contains an introduction. The six next following treat of the Vaishnavas, Shaivas, Shāktas, Nānakshāhīs, Jainas, and Vedantīs. The eighth contains a census of Benares compiled by the author A.D. 1800, fol. 81 b. The ninth enumerates the Hindū sciences and the standard works on each, fol. 86 b.

This is in all probability the work referred to by H. H. Wilson in his "Sketch of the religious sects of the Hindūs," p. 6, and ascribed by him to Sītal Sinh, Munshī of the Rājah of Benares. A similar work of the same author, Silsilah i Jogiyān, is noticed in the Mackenzie Collection, vol. ii. p. 143.

II. Foll. 97—180. The tale of 'Ain ul-Baṣar and Munīr ul-Mulk, in Hindustani.

III. Foll. 181—198. Chronological account of the kings of Dehli from Fīrūz Shāh, A.H. 633, to Aurangzīb, with the legends of their coins; written in January, A.D. 1809, for Mr. Foster.

IV. Foll. 199-355. A Maşnavî on Tauhīd in Hindustani, eight lines in a page.

V. Foll. 356-410. An abstract of Indian history, without preface or author's name.

It contains a short account of the cosmogony and divisions of the world according to the Hindūs, of the Ṣūbahs of India and their revenue, of the early kings of India and of the kings of Dehli from the Muslim conquest to Shāh 'Alam, A.H. 1204.

VI. Foll. 411—417. A list of the early kings of Persia, and of the sovereigns of Bengal.

VII. Foll. 419—429. Tabulated list of the sovereigns of Hindustan from Judhishtir to Shāh 'Alam.

Add. 25,016.

Foll. 134; 6 in. by 4; 11 lines, 2 in. long; lithographed in small Nestalik; dated Ramazān, A.H. 1248 (A.D. 1832).

I. Foll. 1—108. The Journal of the siege of Ḥaidarābād, by Ni'mat Khān 'Ālī. See p. 268 α.

II. Foll. 109—132. Husn u 'Ishk, by the same. See p. 703 b.

The last two folios contain a eulogy on the author by the editor, Mīrzā Ḥamzah Māzandarānī.

Add. 25,493.

Foll. 138; 7 in. by 4; 15 lines, 2½ in. long; written in fair Nestalik in two gold-ruled columns, with 'Unvān, probably in the 17th century.

I. Foll. 2—58. Rauzat ul-Anvār, by Khwājū Kirmānī. See p. 621 a.

On fol. 12 there is a considerable gap, without any apparent break. It extends from the latter part of the prologue to the fourth Maķālah, and corresponds to foll. 156—161 of Add. 7758. The last page is also wanting.

II. Foll. 59—132. Mazhar ul-Aşār, by Hāshimī. See p. 802 b.

Add. 25,791.

Foll. 111;  $7\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 14 lines (3 in. long) in a page; written in a small and plain Nestalik, and dated (fol. 36 b) Muharram, A.H. 1208 (A.D. 1793).

[WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 2-36. An abridged recension of the Institutes of Timur (Jos. White's edition, pp. 156-408), with the continuation.

II. Foll. 38—77. Two extracts from the Tārīkh i Nādirī (see p. 192), relating to Nādir Shāh's invasion in India and to his death, and corresponding to foll. 166—188 and 227—237 of Add. 6576.

III. Foll. 78—111. راجاولی, an account of the kings of Dehli from Judhishtir to Shāhjahān, giving the name and length of reign of each.

شنو زولی وفای دنیا ای شاه Beg.

The author, who designates himself by the poetical surname Vali, is called in the subscription Banvāli Dās, Munshī of Dārā Shikūh, بنواليداس المخطص بولى منشى سلطان دارا . In other copies he is called Bhavānī Dās . A Maşnavī ascribed by Dr. Sprenger to Valī Rām, called Banvālī Dās, Oude Catalogue, p. 589, is probably also due to him.

Add. 25,792.

Foll. 202;  $9\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $3\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik; dated Fathābād, Ṣafar, A.H. 1066 (A.D. 1656).

[WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 1—107. Zikr ul-Mulūk, by 'Abd ul-Ḥakk Dihlavī. See p. 223 b.

II. Foll. 109—130. An extract relating to 'Alī, from the Manāķib Murtazavī of Mīr Ṣāliḥ (see p. 154 a). Rules for bloodletting. An account of the Hindū Jugs, or ages of the world. An anecdote of Abu 'Alī Ibn Sīnā. Account of Shaddād, the King of Yaman. Historical anecdotes relating to 'Imād ud-Daulah, 'Azud ud-Daulah, Māmūn, Shāh Shujā', Rashīd and the Barmakides. An account of the embassy sent by Mīrzā Shāh Rukh to China, A.H. 822; from Maāṣir ul-Buldān, and other extracts.

III. Foll. 131—199. The Institutes of Timūr, fol. 131 a. The Designs and Enterprises, fol. 170 a. Continuation of the Institutes (Add. 26,191, foll. 326—347), slightly imperfect in the end, fol. 188 b.

Add. 25,823.

Foll. 105; 12 in. by 8; from 13 to 15 lines, 3½ in. long; written in Nestalik, for a Mr. Rigby, dated Sūrat, Jumāda II., A.H. 1231 (A.D. 1815). [WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 1—73. The Divān of Hilāli. See p. 656 a.

II. Foll. 74—105. A collection of Hindustani poems, including elegies on the death of Hasan and Husain, with a few Persian verses.

Add. 25,835.

Foll. 246; 9 in. by 51; from 15 to 17

lines, about 4 in. long; written in Nestalik; apparently in India, about the close of the 18th century. [WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 4—60. انيس احسن, the tale of 'Aķil, the carpenter's son, Prince Ķais, and Princess Gītī-Afrūz.

Author: Ahsan Ullah, احسن الله

بعد از حمد و سپاس داوری که هفت ورق Beg.

The author states at the end that he had written this tale in Shāhjahānābād during the reign of Aurangzīb. The date is enigmatically conveyed by the following line:

با انیس احسن و خوش قلب را از دست ده "With a fair and sweet mate let loose the heart," which, interpreted as a chronogram, probably means: "from the total formed by the words انیس احسن وخوش, i. e. 1152, let go the heart, or the value of the middle letter, of بست, viz. 60." This would give A.H.1092.

II. Foll. 61—149. قصة شير مردان على مرتضى, the story of Shīr Mardān 'Alī Murtazā.

الحمد لله . . . اما راویان اخبار وناقلان بلاغت . . . آثار کذارندکان اسرار

It comprises a series of fabulous narratives relating to the favourite hero of a Shī'ah legend, as follows:—'Alī's expedition against Zumrah the fire-worshipper, king of the Barbars, fol. 61. The story of Ḥanafiyyah Bānū, a daughter of the Ḥaiṣar of Rūm, captured by 'Alī, and of the son she bore him, Shāhzādah Muḥammad i Ḥanafiyyah, fol. 71. 'Alī's encounter with a dragon in the Maghrib, fol. 89. 'Alī's expedition against the infidels, in revenge of Amīr Ḥamzah's death, fol. 98, etc.

III. Foll. 150—246. The tales of a parrot (see p. 753 a), wanting a page at the beginning, and breaking off in the twenty-second tale.

Add. 25,843.

Foll. 215; 14 in. by 8½; 29 lines, 5¼ in. long; written in Nestalik; dated Akbarābād (Agra), A.H. 1082 (A.D. 1671).

[WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 2—72. Akhlāķ i Nāṣirī, the ethics of Naṣīr ud-Dīn Ṭūsī (see p. 441 b), with the earlier preface mentioned p. 442 a. The later preface has been added in the margin.

II. Foll. 73—180. The Rubā'is of Mullā Saḥābī (see p. 672 a), about five thousand in number, alphabetically arranged.

III. Foll. 181—215. Theological tracts by Manşūr (Ghiyāş ud-Dīn; see p. 826 a), Aķā Ḥusain Khānsārī, and Muḥammad Bāķir Dāmād (see p. 835 a), in Arabic.

Add. 25,856.

Foll. 308;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; from 11 to 15 lines a page; written by several hands, in Faizābād, Oude, about A.H. 1230 (A.D. 1815). [WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 1—53. برق لامع, a Hindustani Maşnavī, composed in refutation of سيف قاطع, a Sunni poem, A.H. 1231.

II. Foll. 54—109. صراط النجاة, a Shī'ah manual on the laws relating to ablution, prayer, and fasting, in nine Bābs.

Author: Muḥammad Ḥusain Ṭihrānī, حمد طهراني

شکر بیچد و ثذای بی عدد مر خدائرا سزد که .Beg

The author, a Shi'ah convert, wrote it in Mashhad by order of the great Mujtahid Sayyid 'Alī ut-Ṭabāṭabā'ī, as a popular grammar.

abridgment of that learned man's Arabic treatise, designated as شرم مختصر نافع.

III. Foll. 110—184. صحيفة الابرار در بيان A work treating of Shi'ah traditions relating to 'Alī, and of some nice points of Shī'ah law.

Author: Alımad B. Muhammad Rizā B. Muhammad Bāķir ul-Māzandarānī, احمد بن المعادد رضا بن محمد رضا بن محمد رضا بن محمد رضا بن محمد رضا بن محمد رضا بن محمد باقر المازندراني

الحمد لله الذي أكرمنا بالدين المشهور والعلم الماثور .Beg

The work, which consists of an introduction and eight chapters (Faşl), is dedicated to Navvāb Muḥammad Dārāb 'Alī Khān Bahādur (steward of the Begam of Oude from A.H. 1196 to A.H. 1230; see p. 310 a).

IV. Foll. 185—193. الماله عبر و تفويض ملا 193. Comments on a saying of Imam Rizā relating to free will and predestination, by Mullā Muḥammad Bāķir (see p. 20 a).

الحمد لله . . . اما بعد شيخ صدوق محمد بن . . . . اما بعد شيخ صدوق محمد بن

V. Foll. 194—308. در بحر المناقب, a work treating of the merits and prerogatives of 'Ali.

Author: 'Ali B. Ibrāhīm, surnamed Dar-على بن ابراهيم الملقب بدرويش برهان, الماهيم الملقب

سپاس بی تیاس و ثنای بی منتها مرحضرت مبدع . Beg

It is stated to have been abridged from an extensive Arabic work of the same author entitled بعر المناتب (see Bibliotheca Sprenger., No. 167). It is divided into an introduction and twelve Babs.

Add. 25,860.

Foll. 173; 8½ in. by 6½; 16 lines, 4½ in. long; written in a cursive character; dated Mednipūr, Orissa, A.H. 1224 (A.D. 1809).

[WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 1—41. منتخب النعو, a treatise on the rules of syntax applied to Persian, and illustrated by poetical quotations.

Author: Amīr Ḥaidar Ḥusainī Balgrāmī, امير حيدر حسيني بلكرامي

حمد فاعل اشيا حق جل و علا را بكدام نحو Beg.

This work was written, as stated in the preface, in A.H. 1214.

II. Foll. 42—89. منتخب الصرف, a treatise on the formation of Arabic words used in Persian, by the same author.

برارباب تتبع محاورات السنه عمختلفه هویداست. HI. Foll. 90—111.

Author: Raushan 'Alī Anṣārī Jaunpūrī, روشن على انصارى جونپوري

بعد حمد حضرت افریدکار و نعت رسول Beg.

Raushan 'Alī, known as the author of several treatises on arithmetic and grammar, and of an imitation of Ḥarīrī's Maķāmāt, died as professor in the College of Fort William, Calcutta, about A.D. 1810. See Tārīkh i Farrukhābād, Or. 1718, fol. 177, and above, p. 311 b.

The work, which is founded on the Farhang i Rashīdī (see p. 500 b), is divided into a Muķaddimah, eleven Bābs, and a Khātimah. It has been printed in Calcutta, A.H. 1232 and 1249, and lithographed in Lucknow.

IV. Foll. 112—170. The prose works of Zuhūrī (see p. 741 b, artt. i.—v.), wanting the latter part of the Ruķa'āt.

Add. 25,866.

Foll. 111; 103 in. by 7; 18 lines, 41 in. long; written in Nestalik, with four 'Unvans; dated Jumada I., A.H. 1229 (A.D. 1814). [WM. CURETON.]

Four prose works by Mīrzā Ķatīl, viz.: Letters from Persia, fol. 1. Shajarat ul-Amānī, fol. 19. Nahr ul-Faṣāḥat, fol. 31. Chār Sharbat, fol. 62. Sec p. 794 b, artt. i—iv.

Add. 25,871*.

Foll. 177;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; written by several hands, apparently in India, in the 18th and 19th centuries. [WM. CURETON.]

I. Foll. 2—36. A treatise on astronomy by 'Alī Kūshī. See p. 458 α.

II. Foll. 39—54. A short treatise on Arabic conjugation, called in the subscription ميزان عربى. See p. 523 b, Add. 5566.

III. Foll. 55—107; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1231 (A.D. 1816) رساله والمالة بيلى, a treatise on Arabic flexion, translated from the English of (John) Baillie, Professor of Arabic in the College of Fort William.

لحمد لله رب العالمين . . . اما بعد اين رساله . Beg. ايست در صرف انتخاب شافيه وفصول اكبرى

IV. Foll. 109—157; dated Rabī' II., 24th year of Shāh 'Alam (A.H. 1196, A.D. 1782).
Journal of the siege of Haidarābād, by Ni'mat Khān 'Alī. See p. 268 α.

V. Foll. 158—169. A portion of a collection of anecdotes in Arabic.

VI. Foll. 171—177. The Pand-nāmah of Sa'dī, imperfect at beginning and end.

Add. 26,173.

Foll. 68;  $8\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines, 3 in. long, in a page; written in Nāskhi and cursive Indian Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

A scrap-book containing prayers, and short poems in praise of Muhammad, in Arabie, Persian and Hindustani.

Add. 26,237.

Foll. 215; 9 in. by 5; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik, in India; dated A.H 1192 and 1200 (A.D. 1778 and 1786.)

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—77. Dastür ul-'Amal Agahî.'-See p. 402 a.

II. Foll. 78—128. رساله سالار جنگ, an account of Dehli, by Navvāb Dargāh Ķulī Khān Bahādur Sālār Jang Mūtaman ud-Daulah.

It was written, as stated in a short preamble, during the author's stay in the capital, whither he had followed Nizām ul-Mulk Aṣafjāh. This probably happened in A.H. 1150, when the latter Amīr was called by Muḥammad Shāh to Dehli, and stayed there two months (see Ma'āṣir ul-Umarā, foi. 567). Shaikh Ḥazīn, who came to India A.H. 1147, is mentioned by the author as one of the poets of Dehli; but there is no reference to the invasion of Nādir Shāh which took place in A.H. 1151.

Dargāh Ķulī Khān, son of Khānadān Ķulī Khān, traced his origin to the Būrbūr, a Turkish tribe fixed near Mashhad, but his forefathers had settled in India under Shāhjahān. Born in Sangmīr, Deccan, A.H. 1122, he rose in the service of Nizām ul-Mulk Āṣaf Jāh, who kept him in constant attendance upon himself. He received from Ṣalābat Jang the title of Mūtaman ud-Daulah, and the Ṣūbahdārī of Aurangābād, and died A.H. 1180. See Ḥadīkat ul-'Ālam, vol. ii. p. 283.

The author notices not only the sacred edifices and places of public resort, the festivals, and the tombs of the saints, but also the celebrated Shaiklis, poets, singers, and dancers, who lived at that time in Dehli.

III. Foll. 129—176. دستور نظم, a treatise on Persian prosody.

Author: Sayyid Muḥammad B. Muḥammad Bāķir Mūsavī, poetically surnamed Vā-lih, سيد محمد بن محمد باقر موسوي مخطص بواله

برجسته مصرعی که از رنکینی و رسائی چون سرو .Beg

This elementary treatise, which the author wrote at the instance of some friends in A.H. 1140, is divided into a Mukaddimah, three Bābs, and a Khātimah. The metres are illustrated by numerous examples, among which are many verses of the author's composition.

IV. Foll. 177—215. نسخه و آتشبازی, a treatise on pyroteeliny.

حمد و سیاس بعد مر خدائرا که نار را بر خلیل .Beg

It is a compilation from the most approved works on the subject, divided into twenty chapters. Its approximate date may be inferred from a reference to a firework prepared for the Shab i Barāt of A.H. 1183.

Add. 26,243.

Foll. 69; 8½ in. by 6; from 15 to 17 lines, about 4 in. long; written in a cursive Indian character, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—11. The first part of the Journal of the siege of Ḥaidarābād, by Ni'mat Khān 'Alī. See p. 268 a.

II. Foll. 12—68. فوايد عليشيرى, a commentary on some difficult verses in the first part of the Iskandar Nāmah of Nizāmī, by Muḥyi ud-Din B. Nizām ud-Din; imperfect at the end.

مساس بیقیاس مردارای کونین را که میزان اشعار .Beg.

The author, who was a disciple of Sayyid Ashraf Jahāngir (see p. 412 a), compiled it A.H. 956, from the marginal notes of a writer designated as Shaikh Muḥaddis, and from other sources, by desire of his patron, Naşīr ud-Dīn Miyān 'Alī Shīr.

See Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 522.

Add. 26,267.

Foll. 41; 9½ in. by 7; 15 lines, 4½ in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, on paper water-marked 1806. [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—37. Counsels of Nizām ul-Mulk (sec p. 446 a), wanting the last quarter of the work (Or. 256, foll. 71—93).

II. Foll. 37 6—41. Notice on the life of Maulana Muhammad Kazī, بيان احوال حضرت مولانا محمد قاض

This Shaikh, originally called Muḥammad B. Burhān ud-Dīn, was a native of Samar-kand, and became a disciple and Khalīfah of the well-known chief of the Nakshabandī order, Khwājah 'Ubaid Ullah Aḥrār (see p. 353 b). He is the author of the Silsilat ul-'Ārifīn (see Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 607), in which he gave an account of his own life. Having left Bukhārā at the time of the Persian conquest, A.H. 916, he settled in Andajān, and died A.H. 921. See Tārīkh i Rashīdī (supra, p. 167 b), and Ṭabakāt i Shāhjahānī, fol. 145.

The author of the notice, whose name does not appear, had received his information from the disciples of Muḥammad Ķāzī.

Add. 26,273.

Foll. 143; 8 in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, about the beginning of the 19th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—109. History of the Decean from the rise of the Bahmani dynasty to A.H. 1203.

برضمایر آگاهدلان بیدار مغز ظاهر و باهر است . Beg. عرضمایر آگاهدلان بیدار مغز ظاهر و باهر است

This work, which has neither title nor preface, was written, as appears from a reference to the current year, fol. 15 a, in A.H. 1203. The substantial agreement of the chapter relating to the Marattas with the Bisāṭ ul-Ghanā'im of Lachhmī Narāyan Shafīk (see p. 328 b) leads to the inference that it is due to the same author. It is probably a later edition or abridgment of the history of the Deccan which Lachhmī Narāyan is known to have written A.H. 1200, a date expressed by its title تنبيق شكرف (see p. 238 b).

Contents:-Introduction treating of the wealth of the Deccan, the manners and character of its inhabitants, and their mode of warfare, fol. 2 a. The Bahmanis from their origin to the rise of Amir Barid, fol. 3 a. The kings of Bijanagar from the accession of Tamrāj to the death of his son Rāmrāj, in A.H. 972, fol. 6 a. The 'Adilshāhīs of Bijāpūr down to the capture of Sikandar, A.H. 1097, fol. 15 b. The Nizāmshāhīs of Daulatābād down to their extinction, A.H. 1040, fol. 43 b. The Kutubshāhīs down to the capture of Golconda, A.H. 1098, fol. 64 b. Some chiefs who attained a short lived independency, viz. Bahādur Gilānī, in Kokan, Dastūr Dīnār, an Abyssinian eunuch, in Ḥasanābād and Sāghar, Fathullah 'Imad ul-Mulk in Berar, Amīr Kāsim Barīd in Bedar, fol. 67 a. Aşafjah Nizām ul-Mulk, and his successors, the Nizāms of Haidarābād, down to the peace made by Nizām 'Alī with Nānā Pharnavīs, fol. 68 b. The Marattas from the rise of the Bhoslah family to the battle of Panipat, A.H. 1161, which is described at great length, fol. 74 a. Here the copy breaks off, the death of Jankoji being the last event recorded.

II. Foll. 110—136. رساله نانك شاه, an account of the Sikhs from their origin to A.H. 1178.

Author: Budh Singh, of the Khatri caste, surnamed Arūrah, بدة سنكه قوم كهتري عرف ارورة

Beg. کار پردازان ایجاد و تکوین که عبارت از قضا
The author, who describes himself as a servant of the Dehli Court and an inhabitant of Lahore, states in the preface that he had written this work by desire of Major James Mordaunt, نواب معین الدوله نصیر الملك میجر جمس, who had arvived at the capital A.H. 1197, and to whose service he was attached. He adds that he had been assisted in its composition by Lālah 'Ajā'ib Singh, of the Sūraj tribe, کارین سورج

The narrative, beginning with a short notice on Nānak and a meagre enumeration of his successors, becomes fuller for the time of Gūrū Gobind, and still more so for the subsequent period, in which transactions are recorded year by year, from A.H. 1131 to 1178. The last event mentioned is the attack of the Sikhs on Aḥmad Shāh Durrānī, during his retreat across the Satlaj, A.H. 1178. The author adds that from that time to the date of composition the Sikhs had remained in undisturbed possession of their territories.

III. Foll. 137—143. Fragment of a chronicle written in the reign of Farrukhsiyar. It contains an account of that emperor's accession in Dehli, and of the expedition of 'Abd uṣ-Ṣamad Khān, Ṣūbadār of Lahore, against the Sikhs, which ended in the capture and execution of their chief Bandā (A.H. 1126. See Khāfī Khān, vol. ii. p. 761).

جلوس میمنت: It begins with the heading: مانوس محمد فرخ سیر پادشاه غازی بر تخت فرمانروای در شاه جهان اباد و کشتن محمد معز الدین و ذو الفقار خان

The author, whose name does not appear, states incidentally, fol. 141 b, that he served at that time as Na'ib under 'Arif Beg Khān, governor of Lahore.

On the fly-leaf of the MS. is written, "From Gen. Malcolm to Wm. Erskine, Nov. 1811."

Add. 26,275.

Foll. 49; 8 in. by 6; from 10 to 20 lines; written by several hands, apparently in the 19th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 1—13. A short account of the Marattas from the rise of Sīvajī to the death of Narāyan (A.H. 1188).

Author: Munshi Husam ud-Din, منشى

اول کسی که بر سر قوم مرهته نامور و مشهور

As the son of Narāyan, Mādhū Rāo, who was born A.H. 1188 (see Grant Duff, vol. ii., p. 264), is spoken of as a child of two years; the work must have been written A.H. 1190. It concludes with a description of the Marattah country, its produce, trade, and customs.

II. Foll. 14—25. Extract from the Matla' us-Sa'dain (see p. 181 b), relating to the embassies sent by Shāhrukh to China. See Journal des Savants, vol. xiv. p. 308.

IV. Foll. 33—35. An account of the incursions of the Vahhābīs into Ḥijāz and Yaman, A.H. 1217 and 1218, by Munshī Ḥājī 'Abd Ullah Makkī.

V. Foll. 35—44. Preface of the Divân of Hāfiz, with some Ķaṣīdahs.

VI. Foll. 45—49. A fragment of Fava'id Ziya'iyyah. See the Arabic Catalogue, p. 232 b.

Add. 26,292.

Foll. 114; 8 in. by 4½; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in cursive Shikastah-āmīz, apparently in India, in the 17th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—86. Nuzhat ul-Arvāḥ. See p. 40 a.

II. Foll. 86 b—94. Risālah i Khwājah 'Abd Ullah Anṣārī. See p. 35 a.

III. Foll. 94 b—114. The Lavā'iḥ of Jāmī. See p. 44 a.

Add. 26,293.

Foll. 105; 7 in. by 4; 14 lines, 2¼ in. long; written in fair Shikastah-āmīz; dated Sha'bān, A.H. 1079 (Λ.D. 1669).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—86. سراج المنير, a collection of moral anecdotes.

ستایش کریمی را که حلیه خلتش زیوریست . زیبنده

The author describes in a fanciful prologue, evidently imitated from Sa'di's Gulistān, an enchanted garden in which he culled these flowers for his friends. The work is written in ornate prose, interspersed with verses, and is divided into twenty sections called Lam'ah, a table of which is given in the preface. They treat of good manners, modesty, meekness, justice, liberality, patience, and other virtues, or of passions and vices, each of which is illustrated by the precepts of Muhammad and by anecdotes, chiefly relating to prophets and saints.

The author gives his name at the beginning of the epilogue, fol. 85 b. Although it has been purposely obliterated in the present MS., it appears, from the faint lines still visible, to be Ibn Shams ud-Din Muḥammad Sharif ابن شبس الدین محبد شریف, as in two other copies noticed in Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. ii. p. 58, and vol. iv. p. 498.

Before the epilogue is found the statement that "the book was finished" at the end of Rabi' I., A.H. 1030. Whether that date refers to the composition of the work, or to the transcription of some earlier copy, remains doubtful: the fact that the second of the MSS. above mentioned is said to bear a still earlier date, viz. A.H. 1024, favours the latter alternative.

II. Foll. 88—103; about 30 lines in a page, written diagonally, in minute Nestalik.

The preface of Nauras, Gulzār i Ibrāhīm, and Khwān i Khalīl, by Zuhūrī (see p. 741 b, I.—III.), and a letter to Shaikh Abul-Fazl by the same.

Add. 26,294.

Foll. 124;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{2}$ ; 13 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written partly in Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century, partly (foll. 94—124) in cursive Shikastah-āmīz, in the 18th century. [WM. Erskine.]

I. Foll. 2—18. Notice on the life and miracles of Khwājah 'Abd ul-Khāliķ Ghuj-davānī, عبد الخالق غجدواني

This eelebrated saint, son of Shaikh 'Abd ul-Jamīl of Malāṭiyah, and one of the four Khalīfahs of Khwājah Yūsuf Hamadānī, who died A.H. 535 (Nafaḥāt, p. 428), was born in Ghujdavān, near Bukhārā, and died there, according to the Riyāz ul-Auliyā, fol. 62, A.H. 575, leaving a book of precepts, Vaṣiyyat Nāmah, to his disciples (Haj. Khal., vol. vi. p. 444). See Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 431, Rasha-ḥāt, foll. 6 and 12, and Haft Iklīm, fol. 582.

II. Foll. 19—50. Sayings of Khwājah Bahā ud-Dīn Nakshaband, collected by Muhammad B. Muhammad Hāfizī Bukhārī.

The subject of the notice, the founder of the order called after him Nakshabandī, was born in Bukhārā A.H. 728, and died A.H. 791. See Nafaḥāt, p. 439, Rashaḥāt, fol. 31, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz. 3, p. 87.

The work was written, as stated in the preface, at the request of 'Alā ud-Dīn Muḥammad Bukhārī, surnamed 'Aṭṭār, one of the leading disciples of Bahā ud-Dīn (who died A.H. 802; See Nafaḥāt, p. 445).

The writer of the notice, better known as Khwājah Muḥammad Pārsā, an eminent follower of the same master, died in Medina, A.H. 822. See Nafaḥāt, p. 448, Rashaḥāt, fol. 33, and Ḥabīb us-Siyar, vol. iii., Juz 3, p. 142.

The work, which is endorsed مقامات خواجه is described in Krafft's Catalogue, p. 113, under the title رسالة القدسيه النقشبنديه. Compare Stewart's Catalogue, p. 28.

III. Foll. 51—71. Sayings and miracles of Khwājah 'Alā ud-Dīn Bukhārī ('Aṭṭār; see the preceding art.), imperfect at the end.

IV. Foll. 72—76. Comments on a Rubā'i of Abu Sa'id B. Abil-Khair (see p. 738 b), beginning حورا بنظاره، نكارم صف زد, and supposed to possess a healing virtue.

V. Foll. 77—78. Observations of Jāmī on the hidden meanings of the Kalimah, or Creed.

VI. Foll. 79—86. Teachings of Khwājah 'Abd ush-Shahīd فوايد حضرت خواجه عبد الشهيد on the rules and observances of religious life.

ای درویش اکر همت و قوت زانت هست

VII. Foll. 87—93. Comments on this Hadīş, لا يسعنى ارضى ولا سمائى ولكن يسعنى قلب by Farīd Mas'ūd Abu Bakr 'Umar Ṣalāḥ Bukhārī.

VIII. Foll. 94-96. Explanation of Mu-

این کان ربنا ,hammad's answer to the question این کان ربنا

اي پاك زحين ومبرا ز مكان Beg.

IX. Foll. 97—100. Jāmī's comments on a mystic couplet of Amīr Khusrau, beginning:

X. Foll. 102-104. Another recension of art. v.

XI. Foll. 105—112. Sufi notes of Khwājah Muḥammad Pārsā (see art. ii.) found in the margins of some of his books.

Beg. بعد از كشايش مقال ستايش خبسته مال The title للاشيه القدسيه is found in the subscription.

XII. Foll. 113—116. A tract on the road leading to communion with God, رساله، by Jāmī.

سر رشته دولت ای برادر بکف آر Beg.

XIII. Foll. 117—124. A tract in prose and verse, by Jāmī, on the mystic meaning of the plaintive flute mentioned in the first line of the Maşnavī.

عشق جز نای وما جز نی نه ایم

Add. 26,295.

Foll. 128; 7 in. by 4½; 17 lines, 2¾ in. long; written in Naskhi, with two 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins, apparently in the 18th century. [Wm. Erskine.]

I. Foll. 2-51. مرج البحرين و جامع الطريقين, a treatise showing that Sufism may be brought into harmony with orthodoxy.

Author: 'Abd ul-Ḥaķķ B. Saif ud-Din Dihlavī (see p. 14 a).

لحمد لله رب . . . اما بعد ميكويد فقير حقير عبد لحق

II. Foll. 52-86. تفسير آية النور, comments of the same upon the Coranie verse الله نور (Sur. xxiv., v. 35).

الحمد لله الذي نور السموات والارض بنورة . Beg.

It is an enlarged edition of a previous tract of the author, based upon Ghazālī's شكاة الانوار (Haj. Khal., vol. v. p. 558).

III. Foll. 86—95. A treatise by the same on the practice observed by Muhammad with regard to dress, رساله مختصر در بیان آداب لباس آداب طباس حضرت سید البشر

بعد حمد و ستایش الهی و پس نعت و تحیت . Beg.

The author refers occasionally to his Persian translation of the مشكوة المصابع (see p. 14 a).

IV. Foll. 97—128. A description of the personal appearance of Mulammad حليه جليه by the same.

بسم الله والحمد لله على جودة ونواله والصلوة .

It is extracted from the work entitled بدارج النبوة, which the author had just completed. The Madārij has been printed in Lucknow, A.H. 1283.

Add. 26,296.

Foll. 99; 7 in. by 4½; 9 and 13 lines, about 3 in. long; written in Shikastah-āmīz, and Nestalik, apparently in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—17. اخلاق النبى, a tract on the character of Muḥammad, without author's name.

الحمد لله . . . ابن رساله ایست در بیان شمه . . . ابن رسالت از اخلاق حضرت رسالت

II. Foll. 19—99. A new recension of the Faşl ul-Khiţāb, in which the Arabic texts are translated into Persian.

سپاس بي اندازه آفريد كارى را كه محمدرا صلى .Beg. الله عليه بهترين پيغامبران

The author of the original work, who is not named by the translator, is Khwājah Muḥammad Pārsā, who has been already mentioned, p. 862 b. The Faṣl ul-Khiṭāb contains an account of the lives of the twelve Imāms, based upon the most authentic Sunni records, to the exclusion of Shī'ah traditions, which are rejected as arrant heresies. Its contents have been stated in the Jahrbücher, vol. 84, Anzeigeblatt, p. 37, and in the Vicnna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 421. Compare Rauzat ush-Shuhadā, fol. 123, Haj. Khal., vol. iv. p. 422, Stewart's Catalogue, p. 29, and the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 215.

The date of the present recension, A.H. 1010, is expressed by the versified chronogram:

زنی کو ز تاریخ این نامه دم بر آر از دم خاندان کرم

Add. 26,297.

Foll. 19;  $6\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $4\frac{1}{4}$ ; 12 and 16 lines; written in Naskhi, in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINK.]

I. Foll. 2—14. A metaphysical tract on the various degrees of existence, بيان مراتب, ascribed in the endorsement to Mir Sayyid Sharif (see p. 522 a).

بدان وفقك الله تعالى وايانا كه اصحاب .Beg. بعث و نظر

II. Foll. 15—19. A short treatise on Physiognomy, قيانة

Author: Muhazzib ud-Dīn Aḥmad B. 'Abd ur-Rizā, مهذب الدین احمد بن عبد الرضا

وبعد فيقول لجاني الراجي عفو ربه الغفور

Add. 26,299.

Foll. 116;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{3}{4}$ ; 17 lines,  $3\frac{3}{4}$  in. long; written in cursive Nestalik, in India, A.H. 1159 (A.D. 1746). [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 1—84. Favātiḥ i Maibudī. See p. 19 b.

II. Foll. 85—95. A tract on the soul. Beg. اما بعد كلام سيد الانام كر يا على اذا تقرب

The author, whose name does not appear, states the opinions of various schools, such as the Ash'arīs, Mu'tazilahs, Sufis, the Greek philosophers, etc., as to the nature of the human soul.

العقيدة الاسلامية .6 III. Foll. 105 6—111 العقيدة الاسلامية الكلامية

A rational demonstration of the Sunni Creed, in Arabic, by 'Abd ul-Hamīd B. Zakariyyā B. Muḥammad ul-Kūfī.

The rest of the volume contains short notes and extracts on religious and metaphysical subjects.

Add. 26,301.

Foll. 30;  $8\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 7; 11 lines, about  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the early part of the 19th century. [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 2—14. An account of some natural curiosities in the Maghrib, Spain, and other countries, translated from the Arabic of Sayyid 'Abd ul-Vahhāb.

منكه سيد عبد الوهاب باشنده و ديار عرب ام .Beg

It is stated that 'Abd ul-Vahhāb had written it at the request of his friend, Ḥāj Muḥammad Ibrāhīm Parkār. The translator says at the end that he had received it from the author.

It is endorsed نسخهء اخبارات نادره و اقليم مغرب and described on the fly-leaf by Mr. Erskine as "written originally in Arabic by Syud Abdul Wahab of Bushire, about A.D. 1803."

II. Foll. 15—23. A sketch of the political situation of Turkey, Arabia, Berbera, and the Somali coast, about A.D. 1803.

از اخبار کویان بلاد روم چنان بظهور پیوسته

The author, who does not give his name, had visited Medina under the Vahhābī rule. The tract, which appears to have been written in Mocha, is endorsed نسخه و احوالات عجيبه

بلاد روم

III. Foll. 24—30. The Vahhābī creed, عقيدة وهابى, apparently translated from the Arabic.

On the fly-leaf is written in Mr. Erskine's hand: "The above three tracts were translated into Persian by Kazee Shahaboodeen Muhuree of Bombay."

Add. 26,303.

Foll. 49;  $12\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 and 11 lines; written in Nestalik, the first part, foll. 1—37, dated Sūrat, A.H. 1257 (A.D. 1841), the second A.H. 1219 (A.D. 1804).

[WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 1—30. اخلاق ظهيريه, a treatise on ethics and politics.

سپاس و ستایش مر خدایرا کر بقدرت Beg.

The author is named in the present MS. Fath Ullah B. Ahmad B. Muhammad Shīrāzī, and in another copy noticed in Mélanges Asiatiques, vol. iii. p. 493, Fath Ullah B. Ahmad B. Mahmud Shahristani, called Sabzavari. He says in his preface that the two best works on ethics, viz. the Akhlāķ i Nāsirī (see p. 441 b), and the Akhlak i Sultani, written in India for Sultan Muhammad Junah (A.H. 725-752; see p. 73 a), had from their prolixity fallen with the lapse of time into neglect. The present treatise, abridged from those two works, is dedicated to Zahir ud-Din Amir Ibrāhim Shāh, whose enlightened rule is said to have given peace and security to the people of Yazd.

No notice of that prince has been found. The work is apparently earlier than the Akhlāķ i Jalālī and the Akhlāķ i Muḥsinī (see pp. 442, 443), both written at the close of the ninth century of the Hijrah.

Contents:—Mukaddimah. Classification of the sciences, translated from Abū 'Alī Ibn Sīnā, fol. 2 b. Maķālah 1. Ethics proper, fol. 7 a. Maķālah 11. Duties of man towards his family and fellow men, fol. 10 b. Maķālah 111. Duties of rulers, fol. 17 b.

II. Foll. 31—37. Risālah i Khwājah 'Abd Ullah Anṣārī. See p. 35 a.

III. Foll. 38—49. The moral poem known as Pand Nāmah i Sa'dī.

کریها به بخشای بر حال ما Beg.

This poem, which contains in its last line the name of Sa'dī, is of doubtful authenticity: it is not found in the Kulliyāt of that poet. It is ascribed, however, to Sa'dī in the Tārīkh i Muḥammadī (see p. 84 a), a work written A.H. 842, fol. 134, and has been included in the Calcutta edition of the Kulliyāt. An English translation has been published in Calcutta, 1788. A French version has been given by G. de Tassy in his Exposition de la foi musulmane, Paris, 1822. The text has been edited with a Latin version by G. Geitlin, Helsingfors, 1835.

Add. 26,318.

Miscellaneous Oriental papers, written about the beginning of the 19th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

The following are Persian :-

A. Two sheets, 17½ in. by 12. A table of the Divān of Ḥāfiz, made, as stated in Mr. Erskine's Catalogue, on the copy kept at the poet's tomb, and giving the first line of each Ghazal.

B. Three leaves, 8 in. by 6, 12 lines. A panegyric on a Mr. Skene اسكين, by Ṣafdar 'Alī Shāh Munsif (see p. 725 a).

C. A single leaf, 19 in. by 84, with flowery designs in gold and silver. Application of a musician called Pirt'hāshankar پرتهاشنکر to the governor of Sūrat for permission to perform in his presence.

D. A single leaf, 13 in. by 8½. Letter of a Persian official to a Turkish Vazīr, acknowledging the receipt of a letter through Ahmad Chalabi, and informing him of the latter's gracious reception by the Shāh. It bears a stamp with the name 'Abd ul-Vahhāb ul-Mūsavī.

Add. 26,319.

Foll. 30; 9 in. by 5\frac{3}{4}. [WM. ERSKINE.]

I. Foll. 1—4. A vocabulary of familiar words and phrases in Lakī &, a Kurdish dialect, with the Persian equivalents.

هات آمد هاتکه آمدهاست تی آیت می آید Beg. هات

II. Foll. 5—7. A similar vocabulary of the Kurdish dialect of Ardalān, کردی سنه اردلانی

دره آمد هاتوه آمده است دیئی می آید Beg.

It appears from a short preamble, dated Bushire ابوشهر, April 12, 1811, that both the above vocabularies were compiled by Muhammad Ḥusain Khān for General Sir John Malcolm.

III. Foll. 9, 10. A short English-Kurdish vocabulary, containing a few common words of the latter language in the Roman character.

IV. Foll. 11—16. "A Glossary of Turkī and other uncommon words in the Memoirs of Baber," giving the words in the order in which they occur in the text, with their Persian equivalents.

. V. Foll. 18—30. جام جهان نهای, a metaphysical tract on the various degrees of existence or self-consciousness مراتب وجود, with two circular diagrams; without author's name.

Beg. حمد بیحد و شکر بسیعد سزای ذاتی که وحدتش This copy is dated Rajab, A.H. 1141 (A.D. 1729).

Add. 26,320.

Foll. 22; 11¼ in. by 4¼; about 12 lines; written in rude Naskhi and Nestalik, apparently in India, in the 18th century.

[WM. ERSKINE.]

A scrap-book containing invocations to Muḥammad, and poems in his praise, in Arabic, Persian, and Hindustani.

Add. 26,322.

Miscellaneous Oriental papers collected by Cl. J. Rich in Baghdad, early in the 19th century. [WM. Erskine.]

The following contain Persian texts:-

I. Specimens of penmanship in various characters, with dates ranging from A.H. 1098 to 1229, on 31 leaves of various sizes.

III. Forms of official letters, dated Baghdad, A.H. 1213 (A.D. 1798); endorsed by Mr. Rich: "The writing of Mirza Reza, Persian secretary to the Pasha of Baghdad. The character is Teressul."

V. A Kasīdah in praise of Mr. Rich, by Sayyid Kātib.

VIII. A circular table of the musical moods, with some Persian verses relating to the subject.

Add. 27,259.

Foll. 544; 11 in. by 7; 27 lines, 2 in. long, with 42 lines in the margins; written in a minute and neat Nestalik, with eleven highly finished 'Unvāns and gilt headings; dated Zulhijjah, A.H. 821 (A.D. 1419).

[Sir John Malcolm.]

- I. The Khamsah, or five poems, of Nizāmī (see p. 564), viz.:—
- 1. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 1. The date of composition, A.H. 559, is found in the following line, fol. 44 b:

The first page has been supplied by a later hand.

- 2. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 46. Dated A.H. 576 (see fol. 160 a), as noticed above, p. 566 b.
- 3. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 162. The date of composition, A.H. 584, is found on fol. 170 b.
- 4. Haft Paikar, fol. 248. The poem is dated, as above, p. 567 a, A.H. 593 (see fol. 343 b). The name of the king to whom it is dedicated is written, fol. 253 b, Arslān, يادشاه ارسلان كشور كير
- 5. Iskandar Nāmah. First part with the heading شرف نامه اسكندرى, fol. 345. Second part with the heading أقبال نامه اسكندرى, fol. 476. In the latter both prologue and epilogue are addressed to Nuṣrat ud-Din, and the date of composition, A.H. 592, is found in the following lines, fol. 544 b:

The record of Nizami's death mentioned p. 564 b is not found in this copy.

The margins contain the following :-

II. The Khamsah, or five poems, of Amīr Khusrau (see p. 611 a), viz., Maţla' ul-Anvâr (wanting the first page), fol. 2 a. Shīrīn u Khusrau, fol. 66 b. Majnūn u Lailā, fol. 165 b. Hasht Bihisht, fol. 228 b. A'inah i Sikandarī, fol. 310 b.

III. گل و نوروز, the love-adventures of prince Naurūz and princess Gul, in Maşnavī rhyme, by Jalāl جلال, fol. 416 b.

Jalāl ud-Dīn Aḥmad, commonly called Jalāl Ṭabīb, is described in a contemporary work, Or. 165, fol. 107 (see p. 873 a), as a skilled physician and elegant writer, who left, besides the present poem, treatises on Arabic and Persian prosody, a work entitled Nuzhat ul-Arvāḥ, and an extensive Dīvān. He was much in favour with the princes of the Muzaffar dynasty, Shāh Maḥmūd and Shāh Shujā', and died, according to Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, A.H. 795. See Daulatshāh, V. 11, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 315, and Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 109.

The poem, the subject of which is stated in the prologue to be a story of the author's invention, is dedicated to a prince called in the text Ghiyāş ud-Dīn, and in the heading Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Kaikhusrau. The date of composition, A.H. 734, is stated at the end. fol. 448 a:

Ghiyāş ud-Dīn Kaikhusrau, son of Sharaf ud-Dīn Maḥmūd Shāh Injū, held some provincial government under his father. He established himself in Shīrāz A.H. 735, but was overpowered and thrown into prison by his brother Jalāl ud-Dīn Mas'ūd Shāh A.H. 738. See Shīrāz Nāmah, fol. 89.

A copy is noticed in the Upsala Catalogue, p. 103.

IV. Gul u Naurūz, by Khwājū (see p. 622 a), fol. 449 b. It wants the latter part, corresponding to foll. 103—117 of Add. 7758.

Copyist: تورانشاه

On the first page of the MS. is a note dated A.H. 1225, stating that it was then the property of an Amīr of the Ķāchār family, Muhammad Ḥasan Khān, Ishik-Aķāsī-Bāshī.

Add. 27,261.

Foll. 546; 7½ in. by 5; 25 lines, 3 in. long, and about 60 in the margins; written in minute Naskhi and Nestalik, and richly ornamented with 'Unvāns, gilt headings, illuminated borders, twenty-one whole-page miniatures, and some coloured drawings of smaller size, the whole of the finest work; dated from Jumāda I., A.H. 813 (fol. 110 b) to Jumāda II., A.H. 814 (A.D. 1410—1411).

[Sir John Malcolm.]

This curious volume, which from its compactness and the great variety of its contents may be called a pocket-library, was written for a grandson of Tīmūr, Jalāl ud-Dīn Iskandar B. 'Umar Shaikh, who was at that time ruling over the province of Fārs as a vassal of his uncle Shāhrukh, and who, having rebelled against his suzerain, was vanquished and put to death in A.H. 817.

The following inscription, written in the Şulşī and Kūfī characters, and enclosed in a rich border, at the beginning of the volume, contains the name and titles of its princely owner: الاكرم سلطان سلاطين الاعظم والخاقان الاعجم ظل الله في الارضين الاكرم سلطان سلاطين العرب والعجم ظل الله في الارضين قهرمان الهاء والطين المواثق بالملك الاكبر جلال الدنيا والدين اسكندر خلد الله ملكة الهم اعز الاسلام بدوام دولته وارفع اعلامه بخلود ملكة وابد على رؤس الانام ظل رافته وعلى صفحات الايام رسوم معدلته

The first portion of the volume was written by Muḥammad ul-Ḥalvā'ī, who calls himself, from the name of his royal patron, al-Jalālī ul-Iskandarī, and the latter portion, foll. 372 —542, by Nāṣir ul-Kātib.

A page of the MS., fol. 340 b, has been reproduced by photography in the Oriental Series of the Palæographical Society, No. 49.

The contents are as follows:

The Khamsah, or five poems, of Nizāmī, viz., 1. Makhzan ul-Asrār, fol. 3.—2. Khusrau u Shīrīn, fol. 28.—3. Lailā u Majnūn, fol. 90.—4. Haft Paikar, fol. 138. The king for whom the poem was written (see p. 567 a) is thus designated, fol. 141 a:

شاه کرب ارسلان کشور کیر به از ارب ارسلان بتاج و سریر نسل افسنقری موید ازو اب و جد با کمال اعجد ازو

5. Iskandar Nāmah. Part I., headed نامه اسكندري, fol. 190. Part II., with the heading, نامه اسكندري, fol. 259. The prologue of the latter contains the dedication to the king of Mausil, 'Izz ud-Dīn Abul-Fath Mas'ūd, which has been noticed p. 569 a. Towards the end of the same part there is a lacune corresponding to pp. 174—187 of the Calcutta edition. The next leaf, fol. 294 a, contains the last lines of an epilogue addressed to the same king Mas'ūd.

II. Foll. 294 b—301. Three episodes from the Shāhnāmah of Firdūsī. They relate to Siyāvush and Sūdābah, Bīzhan and Manīzhah, and Bīzhan's rescue from the well by Rustam. See Macan's edition, pp. 396—399, 755—760, and 795—799. To the above is subjoined, without any apparent break, an extract from the Humāi Humāyūn of Khwājū (see p. 620 b), in which it is related how Humāi slew the demon Rand and released Parīzād from captivity. See Add. 18,113, foll. 16, 17.

III. Foll. 301 b—309. Ķaṣīdahs in praise of Muḥammad and the Imāms, by the following poets:—Anvarī (see p. 554 a). Sūzanī (died A.H. 569; see Daulatshāh, ii. 10, and Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 16). Sharaf ud-Dīn Shafrūh (died about A.H. 600; see Daulatshāh, iii. 6, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 17). Fakhr ud-Dīn ʿIrāķī (see p. 593 b). Nāṣir Bajjaʾī (of Bajjah, near Rāmjird, Fārs. He died A.H. 715; sec the Oude Catalogue, pp. 17, 85, Guzīdah, fol. 243, and Haft Iķlīm, fol. 96). Kisāʾī (he was born in Marv, A.H 391, and addressed a poem to Sultan Maḥmūd Ghaznavī; see Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 374, Haft Iķlīm, fol. 221, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 3). Ḥamzah Kūchak. Futūḥī (of Marv, a contemporary of Adīb Ṣābir and Anvarī; see Haft Iķlīm, fol. 224, and the Oude Catalogue, p. 4).

Kasidahs displaying artifices of composition, by Rashid ud-Din Vatvāt (see p. 553 a) and Shihāb ud-Din. Tarji's by Fakhr ud-Din 'Irāki (see p. 593 b).

IV. Foll. 309 b—313. الكلام في مدايج الكلام ألى مدايج الكلام. A Ķaṣīdah ingeniously contrived so as to offer examples of all the Persian metres. - Author: Ķivām ud-Din Zul-Faķār, الدين ذو الفقار

چمن شد از کل صد برك تازه دلبروار

This poet, whose proper name was Sayyid Kivām ud-Dīn Ḥusain B. Ṣadr ud-Dīn ʿAlī, left his native country Shīrvān for Irak, and, having been recommended by the Vazīr Muḥammad Māsarī to the Atābak of Lur, Yūsuf Shāh, attached himself to that prince, in whose praise he composed many poems. He died A.H. 689. See the Atashkadah, fol. 26, and Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 17. Yūsuf Shāh, who ruled as a vassal of the Moghuls, lived under Abāķā Khān and Arghūn, and died, according to the Guzīdah, A.H. 680.

An earlier date is assigned to Zul-Faķār by Daulatshāh, iii. 2, and by the author of the Haft Iķlim, fol. 538, according to whom he lived under Sultan Muḥammad B. Tukush Khwārazmshāh (A.H. 596—617), and wrote a poetical history of his reign in the measure of the Shāhnāmah.

The Kaşīdah is addressed to the Vazīr Fakhr ud-Dīn Muḥammad ul-Māsarī, and forms an acrostich containing his names and titles. It is quoted by Daulatshāh as the prototype of the artificial Kaṣīdah of Salmān Sāvajī.

V. Foll. 314—340. Select Ghazals, about 200 in number, by various poets, among whom the most frequently quoted are the following:—Sa'dī. Fakhr ud-Dīn Trāķī (sce p. 593 b). Nāsir Bukhārī (p. 735 a). Nizārī Kuhistānī (died, according to Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, A.H. 720. He is stated in the Riyaz, fol. 452, to have been a friend of Sa'dī; see also Daulatshāh, iv. 14, and Haft lklim, fol. 335. His Kulliyāt are noticed in the St. Petersburg Catalogue, p. 365). Salman (p. 624 b). 'Imad Fakih (a holy Shaikh who lived in Kirman in the time of Shah Shuja', and died, according to Daulatshah, v. 1, and Riyaz ush-Shu'ara, fol. 298, A.H. 773. See the Oude Catalogue, p. 436, and Haft Asman, p. 77). Amīr Kirmanī, who uses Mir for his takhallus (according to Daulatshāh, iv. 20, a contemporary of Khwājū). Sayyid Ni'mat Ullah (p. 634 b). Sayyid Jalal (son of 'Azud ud-Din, of Yazd, Vazir of Muhammad Muzaffar. See Daulatshah, v. 9. He died, according to Taki, Oude Catalogue, p. 18, A.H. 793). Hāfiz. Khusrau Dihlavî (p. 609 a). Hasan Dihlavî (p. 618 a).

VI. Foll. 340 b—342. A manual of astronomy, with the heading مختصر در علم هيأت

Author: Jamshid B. Mas'ud B. Mahmud, surnamed Ghiyāş, محمود بن محمود بن محمود الملقب بغياث لحمد لله الذي خلق السموات والارضين Beg.

The author states in a short preamble that he had written this treatise by order of Sultan Jalāl ud-Dunyā vad-Dîn Amîrzādah Iskandar Bahādur Khān (the royal owner of the MS.).

He was subsequently employed by Mīrzā Ulugh Beg, as has been above stated, p. 456, in the astronomical observations commenced at Samarkand A.H. 823, and died shortly after.

The work is divided into twenty Babs; but the present copy breaks off in the sixth. Six leaves, which probably completed it, are lost.

VII. Foll. 343—344. مختصر در علم اقليدس, elements of geometry, consisting of a few theorems from the first book of Euclid, with diagrams.

اما بعد این رساله مشتمل است بر جند شکل . Beg

VIII. Foll. 344, 345. رساله کبریت احبر an alchemical treatise, written for Sultan Jalāl ud-Dīn Iskandar.

سپاس بی قیاس صانعی را که خاك دركاه او .Beg

IX. Foll. 345 b—348. فقه در مذهب شيعه, a manual of Shī'ah law, according to Imām 'Alī B. Mūsā ar-Rizā.

اما بعداین کلمه چنداست در شرح کلمات مرتضوی . Beg

X. Foll. 348—364. فقه ابو حنيفه, a treatise on the law of religious observances according to Abu Ḥanīfah.

كتاب الطهارة قال الله تعالى يا ايها الذين آمنوا .Beg

XI. Foll. 365—372. معرفت تقويم و اسطرلاب a treatise on the computation of the calendar and the use of the astrolabe, with tables of the conjunctions of the planets.

اما بعد این مختصریست در معرفت تقویم .Beg اسطرلاب

It consists of two Bābs, each of which is divided into ten Faṣls.

XII. Foll. 372 b—542. روضة العنجمنين, an extensive treatise on astrology, in fifteen Makālahs.

سپاس خدایرا که افرید کارجهانست و روزی دهنده . Beg

The author, who does not give his name, states in the preface that, although astrology was not his profession and the period of leisure to write this treatise for the use of beginners, and he dwells at some length on the manifold difficulties which former works presented to the student. He had submitted it, as he says at the end, fol. 542 b, for approval to his master Abul-Hasan 'Alī B. Ibrāhīm un-Nasavī; and it appears from another passage, fol. 531 b, that the last named astronomer lived in the fifth century of the Hijrah; for he had dedicated his abridgment of the Şuvar ul-Kavākib of 'Abd ur-Raḥmān Ṣūfī to Sayyid Murtazā, who died A.H. 436.

The years 442 and 443 of Yazdagird which are given as examples of calculations, foll. 444 b and 479 b, and correspond with A.H. 465, 466, were probably the current years at the time of composition; and it must be noticed that in the chapter on eras, fol. 383, no mention is made of the Tārīkh i Jalālī instituted by Malak Shāh A.H. 471. The archaic character of the language and spelling is quite in keeping with that early date.

The work is divided into fifteen Makālahs, variously subdivided into Bābs, with the following headings: * " اعباد الملل و التواريخ " معرفت التقويم والاختيارات * " اعباد الملل و التواريخ " المدخل الى علم النجوم * ه مسايل في العلل و الاسباب * " معرفت الاسطرلاب * " الاختيارات * " الضمير والخبي * " و زيج التقويم * ١٠ احكام سنى العالم * ١١ اعمال مواليد و تحاويل سالها * ١٠ النمودارات * " در احكام مواليد * و احكام سنى المواليد * « ١٠ احكام سنى المواليد *

The margins, which form a distinct series, contain:—

XIII. Foll. 3—112. The Ilāhī Nāmah of Farīd ud-Dīn 'Aṭṭār. See p. 576 α, art. ii.

XIV. Foll. 111—142. Mantik ut-Tair, by the same. See ib., art. i. It breaks off in the beginning of Makālah II.

XV. Foll. 142 b—287. An anthology containing select pieces of upwards of three hundred poets, from the fifth to the ninth century, classed according to their subjects or metrical forms under the following headings: Praise of God, توحيد. Praise of the Prophet, تنحيد. Exhortation and advice, تنجيد منظم و تصيحت على . Forms of adjuration, تنجيات. Retirement and virtues, عزات و مكارم اخلاق . Complaints of fortune and the world. Descriptions of the four seasons. Bacchic poems, خریات . Petitions, and various descriptions, ماتهسات و ارصاف. Laudatory poems. Artifices of versification, صنعت. Miscellaneous subjects. Ghazals. Tarji's. Mukaṭṭaʿāt. Mutafarriķāt. Rubāʿis.

In some of the first of the above divisions are found select verses ascribed to poets of the earliest period, as Firdūsī, Kisā'ī, fol. 144 b, Asadī, 146 a, Farrukhī, 147 b, 'Asjadī, 150 a, Minūchihrī, 146 a, 'Umar Khayyām, 148 b, Nāṣir Khusrau, 146 a, and Azraķī, 148 a.

The section of Ghazals, by far the most extensive, contains alphabetical series from the Dīvāns of the following poets:—Salmāń (see p. 624 b). Kamāl Khujandī (p. 632 b). Auḥadī (p. 619 b). Sayyid Jalāl ud-Dīn 'Azud (see art. v.). Jalāl ud-Dīn 'Atīķī (who died A.H. 744; see Taķī, Oude Catalogue, p. 18). Maulānā Jalāl ud-Dīn Khwāfī. Jalāl Ṭabīb (see p. 867 b). Ḥāfīz. Nizārī Kuhistānī (see art. v.). 'Imād Faķīh (ib.). Khusrau Dihlavī (p. 609 a). Fakhr ud-Dīn 'Irāķī (p. 593 b). Nāṣir Bukhārī (p. 735 a). Ibn Yamīn (p. 825 b). Bisāṭī (p. 735 a).

XVI. Foll. 294—302. An abridgment of the Nizām ut-Tavārīkh (see p. 823 b), brought down to the reign of Abu Sa'īd, son of Ulja'itū.

XVII. Foll. 302 b—332. عفة الغرائب, an anonymous compilation, in twenty-eight Bābs, treating of the properties and hidden virtues of natural substances, of various magical and cabalistic operations, and of ingenious devices and recipes for purposes of utility or amusement.

Beg. و سپاس بادشاهی را که عجایب صنع او XVIII. Foll. 332 هـ—338. Madkhal Manzūm. See p. 801 a.

XIX. Foll. 345—396. Khafī 'Alā'ī. See p. 475 a.

XX. Foll. 396 b-398. An anonymous freatise, in nine chapters (asl), on the diseases of the horse.

ایس مختصریست در علم بیطره یعنی علم Beg. بیماریهای چهاردایان

XXI. Foll. 398 a—403. وآئينه مكندري, a treatise on alchemy, compiled by order of Sultan Jalāl ud-Dīn Iskandar, by Ghiyāş Kirmānī, غياث كرماني

الحمد لله القدوس السبوح الجامع بالحكمة Beg.

XXII. Foll. 420—504. Jām i Jam, by Auhadī. See p. 619 b.

XXIII. Foll. 504 b—539. سعاهت نامه, a theological treatise in Maşnavi rhyme, containing an exposition of the Sunni creed, with Sufi comments and a refutation of heretical doctrines.

حمد و فضل خداي عز وجل هست بر بنده واجب از اول

The writer, who in the prologue designates himself only by the patronymic Ibn Karīm, is no other than the well-known author of Gulshan i Rāz, Maḥmūd Ibn 'Abd ul-Karīm Shabistarī. See p. 608 b, and Haj. Khal., vol. iii. p. 598.

He explains how he had been reluctantly induced by the prevailing taste of the age to stoop down to rhyming, although derogatory from his high station, in order the better to maintain the true doctrine in the midst of the ever increasing number of heresics. The work consists, he says, of eight Bābs, subdivided into Faṣls. The latter comprise sections (aṣl) alternately headed عيى, علم اليقيى, علم اليقيى, مور أليقيى, مور أليقيى, اليقيى, اليقيى, العقيى, لموردة العقيى, العقيى الموردة العقيى, العقيى الموردة العقيى ا

The present copy contains only three Babs, viz.:—I. Knowledge of the nature of God, in three Faşls, fol. 506. II. Attributes of God, in seven Faşls, fol. 516. III. God's actions, in eight Faşls, fol. 525.

Add. 27,317.

Foll. 173;  $9\frac{1}{2}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ ; 15 lines,  $3\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, carly in the 18th century. [Duncan Forbes.]

I. Foll. 1—134. The Dīvān of Shi-kūh, شكوة.

اكر نه عشق بودي هادي مقصد بيانهارا Beg. '

No record has been found of the author. His period is approximately indicated by a reference (fol. 49 b) to Sā'ibā, who died A.H. 1088 (see p. 693 a), while, on the other hand, an autograph poem written by 'Abd ul-Husain on fol. 135, and dated A.H. 1177, shows that the present copy cannot be later than that date. From another passage, fol. 133 a, تا وارهم از طعن مخالف چو شکوه راهی بنما سوی حجازم ز عراق it appears that the poet lived in Irak.

Contents: — Ghazals alphabetically arranged, fol. 2 b. Rubā'īs in the same order, fol. 128 a. Blank spaces of a page or two have been left at the end of every letter of the alphabetical series, apparently for further additions.

II. Foll. 135—171. The Divan of Ghani. See p. 692 a.

Or. 165.

Foll. 113; 9 in. by  $6\frac{1}{4}$ ; from 27 to 32 lines,  $4\frac{1}{4}$  in. long; written in small Nestalik, in the 18th century. From the royal library of Oude.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

I. Foll. 2—9. A fragment treating of the life and precepts of Plato and Aristotle.

خبر افلاطون و اداب او معنی افلاطون بزبان .Beg یونان باشد بسیار علم پر منفعت است آداب, It breaks off in the section headed

II. Foll. 10—77. حديقة الصفا, a work on general history, relating more especially to India, and brought down to A.H. 1173.

The present copy contains only the last of three volumes (Jild) of which the work consists; it begins with the following rubrie: جلد سیم حدیقه الصفامشتمل بریك مقدمه و چهارده روضه

The arrangement and even the headings are borrowed from the work of Firishtah, which the author, while abridging it, closely follows, and, to some extent, textually transcribes.

Contents:—Mukaddimah. Belief of the Hindus; war of the Kauravas and Pandavas.—Early Rajas.—Fā'idah. First appearance of Islamism.—Rauzah I. Sultans of Lahore, or Ghaznavis.—Rauzah II. Sultans of Dehli from Mu'izz ud-Dīn Sām to the downfall of Iskandar Shāh Sūr (for the history of the Timurides the reader is referred to the second volume).—Rauzah III. Sultans of Deccan, in six dynasties.—Rauzah IV. Sultans of Gujrāt, and so on, as with Firishtah, down to Rauzah XIII., and last, which treats of the rulers of Malabar.

The third volume was to be followed, as stated in the subscription, by the Khātimah.

In the Mukaddimah, fol. 10 b, the author refers to A.H. 1173 as the current year at the time of writing.

The Ḥadīkat uṣ-Ṣafā is mentioned in the list of general histories prefixed to Elliot's Bibliographical Index, but it is not noticed in the same author's History of India. An extract relating to the conquest of Assam has been published in the Quarterly Oriental Magazine, vol. iii. pp. 267—285.

III. Foll. 78—79. A fragment, probably a part of the above mentioned Khātimah, with the heading:

در بیان احوال حکما مقدم به تعریف حکمه وبیان مجملی از اقسام آن مشتعل برسه باب

It consists of the first and second Fasls of Bab I. They treat of philosophical schools and of Logic.

IV. Foll. 80—113. A work treating of the lives and sayings of philosophers, without preface or title, beginning with the heading: قسم اول در نفیلت علم و حکمت و تواریخ حکما

The author, whose name is written, fol. حا حمد [sic] بن على بن الحاج جمال الدين , sic] حمد إلى الماري الاتصاري الاتصاري الاتصاري الاتصاري الاتصاري 'Alī B. ul-Hāj Jamāl ud-Dīn Husain ul-Ansarī, was a son of Zain ud-Dīn 'Alī, the author of the Ikhtiyārāt i Badī'i (see p. 469 a). In the notice devoted to his father, the last of the work, he gives some account of himself. He was born in Shiraz A.H. 760, and had spent forty years of his life in attendance upon his father, who died A.H. 806. He had written the following works: Miftah ul-Kunuz on the names of medicaments, Dastur ul-Mutaakkilin on sweetmeats, Tuhfat ul-Mulük on intoxicating drinks, Dastur uz-Zirā'at on agriculture, Dastür us-Su'adā on the sayings of sages, and some shorter treatises.

The first Kism, the only complete portion of the work, is divided into two parts, called Harf, as follows:—1. On the value of learning. Notices on ancient philosophers, fol. 80 b. 11. Lives and sayings of Muslim philosophers, fol. 94 b.

The last section, beginning with Muhammad and 'Alī, ends, according to the list given at the beginning, with Maulānā 'Alā ud-Dīn Manṣūr, a physician who lived about A.H. 800. A brother of the above, 'Izz ud-Dīn Mas'ūd, is stated, fol. 107 b, to have died A.H. 813, and one of his nephews A.H. 817, the latest date mentioned in the work. The biographies are meagre and the text extremely incorrect.

Spaces, probably reserved for portraits of the subjects of the notices, have not been filled.

Foll. 109—113 contain a fragment, ap-4 vol. 11. parently belonging to the same work. It is a chapter, imperfect at the end, on the structure of the human frame, with the heading قسم دوم از فصل اول در تشریح بدن انسان قسم دوم از فصل اول در تشریح بدن انسان

Or. 207.

Foll. 106; 8½ in. by 4½; 13 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastahāmīz, before A.H. 1182 (A.D. 1768). From the royal library of Lucknow.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

I. Foll. 3—69. Tazkirat ul-Mu'āşirīn, by Shaikh 'Alī Ḥazīn. See p. 372 b.

II. Foll. 70—106. A treatise on the chase, designated in the endorsement as تذكره صيديه, by the same author.

سپاس بیقیاس که مدارك اوهام از استقصای .Beg.

It is divided into two Mukaddimahs, three Bābs, and a Khātimah, as follows:—Legal prescriptions relating to the hunting and killing of animals, and to those which it is lawful or unlawful to eat. Bāb 1., which forms the main bulk of the work. Notices on wild animals, arranged in alphabetical order according to their Arabic names, fol. 78 a. Bāb 11. Origin of animals, and their nature, fol. 103 a. Bāb 111. Faculties of animals, fol. 105 a. Khātimah. Legitimate object of the chase, fol. 106 b.

The MS. bears the seal of Sayyid Sibghat Ullah Khan, with the date A.H. 1182.

Or. 248.

Foll. 316; 83 in. by 5; 19 lines, 3 in. long; written in small Naskhi; dated Muharram, A.H. 1130 (A.D. 1717).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

I. Foll. 2-72. Takmil ul-Imān, by 'Abd ul-Hakk Dihlavi. See p. 827 b, i.

II. Foll. 72—77. معرفة الدنيا, a tract on the love of worldly goods, by 'Alī B. Ḥusām ud-Din, known as al-Muttaki (see p. 356 a).

3 L

للحمد لله الذي جعل الدنيا قنطرة الآخرة Beg.

III. Foll. 77—81. A Maşnavî, in ten Faşls, on ascetic life, headed مرغوب القلوب

In the last line the author, who calls himself Shams, gives to the tract the title of رساله مرغوب, and states that it was composed A.H. 757:

ز هجرش هفصد و پنجاه هفت است

If that date is correct, the work cannot be ascribed, as has been done by Flügel, Vienna Catalogue, vol. i. p. 526, to the great mystic Shams i Tabrīzī, who died A.H. 645. See p. 585 a, and Nafaḥāt ul-Uns, p. 535.

IV. Foll. 81—87. The story of Shaikh Manşūr Ḥallāj, from the Maşnavī of Jalāl ud-Dīn Rūmī.

V. Foll. 87—89. An Arabic poem on wine as a symbol of mystic love, ascribed to Ghauş ul-A'zam, i.e. 'Abd ul-Kādir ul-Jīlānī, with a metrical paraphrase in Persian.

سقاني الحب كاسات الوصال Beg.

At the end is a short fragment of the Vaşlat Nāmah of 'Aṭṭār. See p. 579 a.

VI. Foll. 91—114. An Arabic Kaṣīdah entitled البادرات العينيه, by the same 'Abd ul-Kādir, with a paraphrase in Persian verse.

فواد به شمس المحبة ساطع .

VII. Foll. 114—121. Miscellaneous verses on religious subjects, including pieces ascribed to 'Abd ul-Ķādir Jīlānī, or addressed to him, and a Ķaṣīdah in praise of Sayyid Shāh Muḥammad Muķīm.

VIII. Foll. 121—316. مخازن القادرية, a defence of 'Abd ul-Ķādir Jīlānī and of the practices introduced by him.

Author: Shaikh Shams ud-Dīn B. Vali Ullah Shaikh Ishāķ B. Kutb ul-Anām Abil-Fath Shams ud-Dīn Muḥammad ul-Kādirī شيخ شمس الديس بن ولى الله الشيخ شمس الدين محمد السحق بن قطب الانام ابي الفتح شمس الدين محمد القادري الملتاني

An attack upon the Kādirī order having been brought under the notice of Shaikh Badr ud-Dīn B. Kuṭb ul-Anām, a paternal uncle of the author, the latter was desired by him to write the present work in reply. He states that he had drawn largely from the Futūḥāt i Makkiyyah of Muḥyī ud-Dīn Ibn ul-ʿArabī, and from the Insān i Kāmil of ʿAbd ul-Karīm ul-Gīlānī.

The work is divided into eleven Makhzans, subdivided into Makāms, and treating of the following subjects: 1. Superiority of 'Abdul-Kādir to all other saints. 2. Dates of his birth and death. 3. Genuineness of his pedigree. 4. His holiness and his austerities. 5. His Zikrs. 6. His contemplation, مراقبات. 7. His prayers. 8. His litanies, اوراه المنافع. 9. His spiritual concerts, المنافع. 10. His visions. 11. His teachings on Tauhīd.

Or. 282.

Foll. 95;  $8\frac{3}{4}$  in. by  $5\frac{1}{4}$ ; 15 lines, 3 in. long; written in Nestalik and Shikastahāmīz, apparently in India, in the 18th century. From the royal library of Lucknow.

[Geo. Wm. Hamilton.]

I. Foll. 2—81. The Divan of Ḥairati, ديوان حيرتي

ای بجان بنده ات سفید و سیاه ما بر خداوندی تو خلق کواه ما

Hairatī, who called himself a native of Tūn, but was brought up in Marv, became known by his panegyrics on the Imams and his pungent satires. The former won for him the favour of Shāh Tahmāsp, whose displeasure, however, he frequently incurred by his dissolute habits. He spent the latter part of his life in Kāshān, where he died A.H. 961 by a fall from a roof. The date is fixed by the chronogram شفاعت على, due to his contemporary Muḥtashim. See Sām Mīrzā, fol. 98, Haft Iklīm, fol. 333, Riyāz ush-Shu'arā, fol. 125, Atashkadah, fol. 36, and Dr. Sprenger, Oude Catalogue, p. 424.

The Divan, which consists of Ghazals alphabetically arranged, breaks off before the end of the letter (.

II. Foll. 82—95. Two detached fragments of the Divān of Niyāzī, ديوان نيازى

The author says, fol. 92 a, that he had received his poetical surname from his master Hazin (who died A.H. 1180; see p. 715 b).

He relates, in a marginal addition, fol. 95, a poetical encounter in which he silenced some soi-disant poets in Ilāhābād.

This poet is not to be confounded with another Niyāzi, who lived in Persia, and whose proper name was Aḥmad Mirzā. See p. 718 a.

Contents: Ghazals in , foll. 82—89. Ghazals in 1, foll. 90—95.

Or. 319.

Foll. 101;  $7\frac{1}{2}$  in. by 4; 9 lines,  $2\frac{3}{4}$  in. long, with 26 lines in the margins; written in Nestalik and Shikastah-āmīz, with 'Unvān and gold-ruled margins; dated Shavvāl, A.H. 1222 (A.D. 1807).

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

I. Foll. 2—101. ليلى مجنون, Lailā and Majnūn, a Masnavī by Hilālī (see p. 656 a).

The epilogue contains a reference to the author's former poems, Shah u Darvish and Şifāt i 'Ashiķīn, and eulogies upon his great predecessors and models, Nizāmī, Khusrau, and Jāmī.

II. Foll. 2—57, margins. The following prose pieces by Tughrā:—Tāj ul-Madā'iḥ (see p. 743 a, xi.). Firdausiyyah (p. 742 b, ii.), fol. 16 b. Tazkirat ul-Atķiyā (p. 743 a, viii.), fol. 39 a. Mushābahāt i Rabī'ī (p. 743 b, xii.), fol. 43 a. Mi'rāj ul-Faṣāḥat (p. 744 b, xxviii.), fol. 49 b.

The margins of foll. 57—79 contain miscellaneous short pieces and letters by Mīrzā Muḥammad Sharīf and others.

Or. .320.

Foll. 129; 8 in. by 5; 15 lines, 3\frac{1}{4} in. long; written in Nestalik, apparently in India, about the close of the 17th century.

[GEO. WM. HAMILTON.]

I. Foll. 2-69. A Sufi Maşnavî consisting of detached anecdotes.

Author: Ahl i Baitī, اهل بيتي.

The poet says in the prologue that he had written in his youth many Ghazals and Kaṣīdahs, but had put off till his old age the composition of a Maṣnavī. Further on, fol. 6, he addresses a panegyric to the holy Shaikh, Muḥammad B. Shaikh Aḥmad, "whose presence filled Dehli with joy," and in another passage, fol. 40 b, referring to Aurangzīb as the reigning sovereign, he declares his intention of devoting a poem to his praise.

The present copy was written during the reign of Aurangzib, for it bears a stamp dated A.H. 1109.

The poet concludes with an appeal to the liberality of the illustrious Khān, not named, in whose service he had spent his life, and with moral counsels addressed to his own son.

II. Foll. 69 b—129. The Divan of Hilali (see p. 656 a), wanting the latter part of the letter  $\omega$ .

Or. 1164.

Foll. 87; 8 in. by 5; about 20 lines in a page; written in small Nestalik, apparently in the 17th century. [Alex. Jaba.]

A volume containing Turkish poems, and the following Persian tracts:—

I. Foll. 57—63. رساله معميات, a treatise in verse on riddles, by Jāmī.

In the Vienna Catalogue, vol. iii. p. 542, three tracts of Jāmī on the same subject are noticed, but all with different beginnings.

II. Foll. 64—73. The Lavā'iḥ. See p. 44 a.

III. Foll. 75—78. الرسالة النائيه, a tract by Jāmī on the mystic sense of the reed mentioned in the first verse of the Maşnavī. See p. 863 a, xiii.

IV. Foll. 79—81. رسالة في معرفة لخضرات, a tract on the various degrees of existence, درسالة عبد الوجود This tract, attributed in the heading to Jāmī, is ascribed in another copy to Sayyid Sharīf. See p. 864 a, i.

V. Foll. 83, 84. On the meaning of the Ḥadīṣ, من عرف نفسه فقد عرف ربه

اى طالب علم توحيد و اي راغب فن تجريد Beg.

VI. Foll. 85 a, 86 a. رسالة في طريق خواجه بهاء الدين نقشبند, a tract on the rule of Bahā ud-Dīn Naķshaband, by Jāmī.

سر رشته مولت ای برادر بکف آر Beg.

Or. 1226.

Foll. 107;  $6\frac{1}{4}$  in. by  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ; 12 lines,  $2\frac{1}{8}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, with two 'Unvāns and gold-ruled margins; dated Rajab, A.H. 877 (A.D. 1472). [ALEX. JABA.]

I. Foll. 2—46. Gulshan i Rāz, by Maḥ-mūd Shabistarī; see p. 608 b.

II. Foll. 47—107. Zād ul-Musāfirīn, زاد , by Amīr Ḥusainī; see p. 608 a.

Or. 1286.

Foll. 343; 12 in. by 61; 17 lines, 4 in. long; written in Nestalik, in the latter part of the 18th century.

I. Foll. 1—309. Tazkirat ul-Umarā, by Kevalrām (see p. 339 a), wanting the first page.

II. Foll. 310—343. An account of the area, divisions, and revenue of the Sūbahs of Hindustān.

دامی کل و حال حاصل تهام مهالك محروسه

It is stated to have been taken from the note-book of Rae Nūndah, از روی بیاض رای Historical notices of each Ṣūbah are prefixed to tabulated accounts. The work was written after the death of Aurangzīb, who is designated by his posthumous title, Khuld-Makān.

Or. 1410.

Foll. 102; 9 in. by 8; 15 lines,  $4\frac{1}{2}$  in. long; written in Nestalik, in the 18th century.

I. Foll. 1—51. A collection of letters written by, or to, the Timurides of India from Humāyūn to Bahādur Shāh. It is designated in the title prefixed to the table of contents as the first third of the first volume of the 'Ināyat Nāmah: فهرس ارقام اولين ثلث ثلث كنيدة اول عنايت نامة نثر كه مبنى است از اخبار و اثار كزيدة

In a contemporary endorsement it is called Ruka'āt 'Ināyat Khānī, رقعات عنایت خانی, from which it seems probable that 'Ināyat Khān was the name of the author of the compilation. He appears to have been a son of Lutf Ullah Khān Ṣādiķ, whom he calls, fol. 40 b, پير ومرشد در جهانی, and to whom he gives the titles of Shams ud-Daulah Bahādur Tahavvur Jang, conferred upon that Amīr by Muḥammad Shāh.

Luṭf Ullah Khān Ṣādik died, according to Maāṣir ul-Umarā, fol. 435, under Aḥmad Shāh. Two of his sons are mentioned, viz. Ināyat Khān Rāsikh, apparently the author of the present work, and Shākir Khān (see p. 279 b).

The letters of Aurangzīb, which form the larger portion of the collection, are in part taken from two earlier compilations already mentioned, the Raķā'im Karā'im and Kalimāt Ṭayyibāt. See pp. 400 b, 401 a.

II. Foll. 52—102. انشای خانه زاد خای, letters and other prose pieces of Amān Ullah Khānah-zād Khān Fīrūz Jang, son of Mahābat Khān Sipahsālār, collected by himself. See p. 509 b.

The work is divided into the following four Fasls:—1. Letters to superiors and equals, عرايض و مكاتبات, fol. 53 a. 2. Familiar notes, رتعات, fol. 94 a. 3. Marginal notes, حواشي, fol. 99 a. 4. Prefaces and miscellaneous pieces, متفرتات, fol. 101 a.

The Ruka'at of Aman Ullah have been lithographed in Lucknow, and printed in Calcutta, without date. See Biblioth. Sprenger., No. 1593.

Or. 1433.

Foll. 253; 9 in. by 5\(\frac{1}{4}\); 12 and 11 lines, 3\(\frac{1}{4}\) in. long; written in fair Nestalik, in two gold-ruled columns; dated Safar, A.H. 1147 (A.D. 1734).

I. Foll. 1—202. Yūsuf u Zulaikhā, by Jāmī. See p. 645 a.

II. Foll. 203—253. بهرام و كل اندام, the story of Bahram and Gul-andam, in Maşnavî rhyme.

After a few verses in praise of God and the Prophet, the author enters at once upon the story, which he tells in very plain and familiar language. The hero's adventures turn mostly on encounters with various Dīvs, and Gul-andām is not, as in the usual version, a Chinese princess, but a Peri.

In the concluding lines the poet addresses himself by the poetical surname of Amin.

There are forty-one miniatures in the Indian style in the first poem, and twenty-seven of inferior execution in the second.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

- P. 440 a, Add. 25,869, read: Commentary upon the Kubrā, a treatise on Logic, by Shārīf Jurjānī. See p. 812 a.
- P. 441 b, l. 12, read: Nāṣir ud-Din Ṭūsī was born A.H. 597, and died A.H. 672.
- P. 551 b, l. 35, read: A poem entitled Sūz u Gudāz, by Nau'ī. See p. 674 a.
- P. 722 a, l. 34, add: Saba's proper name

- was Fath 'Alī Khān Kāshī. See p. 850 b.
- P. 768 a, 1. 28, add: Minūchihr Khān succeeded his father Ķarchaghāi Khān in the government of Mashhad, A.H. 1034. See the 'Alam-ārāi, fol. 570. The Maḥbūb ul-Ķulūb cannot have been written very much later.

LONDON:

GILBERT AND RIVINGTON,
ST. JOHN'S, SQUARE CLERKENWELL., E.C.

University of Toronto Library

DO NOT

REMOVE

THE

CARD

FROM

THIS

POCKET

Acme Library Card Pocket LOWE-MARTIN CO. LIMITED

